U.S. Assembling Radar Net to Cover Halt Around Globe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is slowly assembling a radar warning system in the air, on the ground, and at sea—which will reach around almost half the globe. The Distant Early Warning Line (Dewline) being built in secret places on the polar coast of the North American continent is only a component of the vast system intended ultimately to give warning to this country of enemy aircraft and perhaps later missiles approaching from almost any point of the compass.

Stations Somewhat Similar to powerful radar installations going into the Dewline sites apparently are beginning to appear in far corners of the world—in Okinawa and other far Western Pacific islands; on islets in the Central Pacific; in the Hawaiian group; up in the strategically critical archipelago of Alaska; in Greenland; far southward in the Caribbean.

Texas towers are being built in coastal waters to extend the fixed position stations of the radar chains across Canada and the United States.

Into these gaps, the United States through its Navy and Air Force is putting plugs. They are planes and ships. A comparatively large number of ultra-long-range flying radar stations now are in operation. More are being built.

These flying radar-command post aircraft are in addition to the close-in surveillance conducted by Air, Force and Navy fighter-interceptors operating constantly on patrol and search missions.

At sea, the Navy has a substantial force of radar picket vessels of various types, including submarines, destroyers and a new type being built from converted cargo hulls. To them will be added within the next couple of years the newest of the Navy's picket vessels—atomic-powered submarines with unlimited cruising range.

Upper Colorado River Project Showdown Is Finally At Hand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The showdown on the upper Colorado River project is finally at hand.

One version of the bill to authorize the big development was passed by the Senate last year. This coming week another version will be brought up for an even more crucial test in the House.

Right now, no one is sure what is going to happen when the House bill is brought up, probably today or Tuesday. The result is likely to be close. But supporters are more hopeful than they have been in recent months.

Should the House pass the legislation, the difference between Senate and House bills will still have to be ironed out in a conference committee.

There are important differences: The Senate measure would authorize construction of project units totaling more than one billion dollars. The House measure allows for only 760 million dollars of initial construction.

The Senate bill provides for construction of Echo Park Dam in Dinosaur National Monument, which aroused the ire of conservation groups. Echo Park was eliminated from the House bill.

The House measure, if adopted, is expected to include an amendment setting up a formula for the allocation of power revenues for the construction of irrigation units—the formula comparing roughly to the allocation of upper Colorado River waters among New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming under their compact. This amendment was agreed upon only lately by the states, after Colorado, particularly, had questioned the benefits it would receive under the compact, and is not included in the Senate-approved measure.

One other important expected amendment to the House bill relates to the Navajo irrigation unit in New Mexico. It reads as follows: "Costs allocated to irrigation of Indian-owned tribal or restricted lands within, under or served by any participating project, and beyond the capability of such land to repay, shall be non-reimbursable."

This would allow for a part of the cost of this unit to be repaid eventually through the Indian Bureau and not be charged against the power revenues of the project.

It appears safe to bet that an upper Colorado project bill coming out of Congress will more nearly resemble the House measure than the Senate's.

For one thing, even the strongest supporters of the bill are just about convinced that no bill providing for construction of Echo Park Dam in Dinosaur National Monument can be passed at this time—if ever. And they are about equally convinced that unless some formula for allocation of the power revenues is included in the legislation, there is going to be a split among the states seeking the bill.

Also—and this may be important—the House bill is smaller by several hundred thousand dollars. At the close of the last session, the upper Colorado River Basin congressmen were hesitant to bring the bill to a vote in the House—even though it had been cleared by the interior and rules committee, because they feared it would be defeated.

Some of its supporters are still pessimistic, others are keeping their fingers crossed. But there have been some favorable straws in the wind.

For instance a "whip poll" of the Democratic membership showed more for the bill than against it, although there were a large

Five Drowned When Boat Is Upset In River

LA PLATA, Md.—A motorboat speeding over the wind-whipped waters of the Potomac River yesterday suddenly flipped over, throwing seven persons into the water. Five drowned.

Drowned were Kay Roundtree, 20, Washington; her niece Glenda Stafford, 18, and her 16-year-old sister Kay, River Springs, Md.; Russell Walling, Colonial Beach, Va.; and Peyton C. Wodzell, Warrenton, Va. Wodzell was owner and operator of the boat. Both men were in their 30s.

Rescued by a Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission boat were Linda Knight, Washington, and Barbara Ann Russell, 19, River Springs. They were treated at a hospital for shock and released.

Miss Roundtree was to be married this week to sailor stationed at Bainbridge Naval Air Station, Md.

The tragedy occurred off Cobb Island, Md., in southern Maryland. All five bodies were recovered.

The sheriff's office said the boat was traveling so fast in the rough water the bottom was ripped open.

Pineapple Oat Crisp

Hot, spicy Pineapple Oat Crisp is an answer to busy homemakers who want to serve an easy-to-make filling dessert. There's no long time preparation—just arrange the pineapple in the baking dish, then sprinkle with the oat-crumble mixture.

The crunchy oat topping, rich with brown sugar and butter and lightly spiced with cinnamon, is so simple to make. It bakes to a crisp candy-like layer, the perfect cover-up for chunks of pineapple and colorful slices of maraschino cherries. Either regular or quick-cooking rolled oats can be used.

Since this dessert is so good served warm, you can put it in the oven just before dinner. Then bring it to the table right in its own baking dish, resting it in a pretty wrought iron rack or on a colorful ceramic tile.

Breakfast cereals are a willing ally to nutrition-minded, budget-wise homemakers. When used as an ingredient they add variety, interest, flavor and texture, and they are inexpensive. In addition to these qualities, breakfast cereals make important contributions of protein, the B-complex vitamins, minerals, and food energy. Look to the breakfast cereals on your kitchen shelves for added variety and nutrition the next time you make deserts, cookies, breads, candies, pie crust, muffins, or meat loaves.

Pineapple Oat Crisp

3 cups pineapple, chunk style 2 (14 ounce) cans
1/2 cup maraschino cherries, cut in half
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup rolled oats, uncooked
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Arrange fruit in 10 x 6 x 2-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice. Combine dry ingredients, add melted butter, mixing until crumbly. Sprinkle crumb mixture over fruit. Bake in a moderate oven (350°-375°F.) 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold with top milk or cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Army Influence In Soviet Union Seems Growing

LONDON (AP)—All 11 members of the present Presidium of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party have been re-elected, Moscow radio said today. This is the body which used to be known as the Politburo.

A broadcast news item said candidate—or alternate—members of the Presidium, which in actual fact is the collective leadership of the Soviet Union, included Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, defense minister, who previously was elected a full member of the powerful Central Committee.

This indicated the growing influence of the army in Soviet affairs.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—What does it cost a business firm to write a letter?

A survey of 200 Los Angeles businessmen indicates the figure is between $1 and $1.25.

This includes dictation, stenographic time, overhead, mailing, stationery, filing and related charges.

The survey was made by Dr. Erwin Keithley of the business education faculty at UCLA, who says few businessmen are aware of the high cost of correspondence.

Lawyer To Press For Hearing For David C. Nelson

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—An appointed attorney for David Cooper Nelson, confessed murderer of two, says he will press a preliminary hearing in the future.

Rolando Matteucci, one of son's attorneys, said he hopes to get a preliminary hearing after mid-March.

Declaring that Nelson is entitled to a preliminary hearing, he said "we don't want to wait until just before the trial for the hearing."

Dist. Atty. John Murphy said to avoid a preliminary hearing, because of the cost, and instead, convene a grand jury in Valencia County to present murder charges against the year-old Las Vegas, Nev. native.

Nelson has confessed the slaying of Ralph Roney, Santa Clara, Calif., Jan. 9 on U. S. 89, Buville, and the murder of a meth North, North Hollywood, if, whose body was found in a snow drift near U. S. 89, far from Vega, Tex. Feb. 11.

WASHINGTON—Coincidences are sometimes interesting and significant. About the same time Soviet leaders buried the "new spirit" and blasted President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Acheson for being so mediocre as to express the hope that politically enslaved peoples behind the Iron Curtain may be free, the Senate internal security subcommittee released a 90-page booklet packed with documentary evidence to show that the Communist party of the United States is a Moscow-directed instrument of world conquest.

Be Sure Of Your Agent

THERE ARE ALWAYS COMPLAINTS being registered concerning the activities of some insurance company or firm.

Some times these are mail order agencies and sometimes they are those represented in our own community by comparative newcomers.

These proposals made by mail or by the agent sound so good and we are always looking for something for nothing, so we are inclined to make a purchase of the insurance without giving the matter too much thought and study and without checking to see how reliable the company is or how reliable the salesman may be.

We have good agents and representatives of fine insurance firms in our own city; they will gladly discuss any insurance matter or problem with us; they will give us the benefit of their experience and knowledge and secure for us an information we need but we refuse to go see them.

Rather than to trust these people who have been here for years and who represent good insurance firms, we will deal with some company or some firm we do not know.

There are no more programs or plans to help us get rich in the insurance field than in any other field. Insurance companies are in business to render a definite service and for this service they expect and do make a reasonable charge.

The money we put into policies amounts to only so much even with the interest added. Any individual could quickly employ a little mathematics themselves and figure out whether an insurance policy can or will do some of the fantastic claims made for it.

But we even refuse to do that. And so often times we have spent or invested our money in some insurance scheme or program which is not what it was claimed to be; we get disgusted with it and drop it; and we feel that all insurance is of the same kind.

But there are many legitimate, fine and reliable insurance companies which have been in business for many years. They have reliable and dependable people representing them — people trained and experienced in the field of insurance.

They will be glad to discuss your insurance problem with you and to even discuss any policy you have under consideration. Take advantage of these local people — people you know and who are in business here. They will save you from a bad insurance investment.

Dulles' Statement, Said Before, Brings Retort From Democrats

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON, (AP)—It may be Secretary of State Dulles talks so much that when the Democrats get mad at what he says they forget he said it before and, between times, perhaps just the opposite.

That the Democrats are getting very vocal in an election year may be only coincidence. But Dulles is pretty vocal himself. He has not only traveled more than any secretary of state in history but may hold the record for speeches and statements too.

He set the Democrats off over the weekend by his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday when he said Russia's policy of "intolerance and violence" had failed because of free world "firmness" over the past few years.

He had made the same statements a number of times before without this reaction from the Democrats. He might have added, but didn't, that the policy of firmness had been laid down by the Democrats under President Truman.

Yet, Dulles last December seemed to say the exact opposite when he declared the Russians' zigzag policy had ended and they were opening dangerous new cold war fronts in Asia and the Middle East.

Why they were doing it? In December Dulles said it might be they were more confident because they were stronger. Friday he said they were in a "very bad way" although he acknowledged they were making great progress in heavy industry and in war industries.

In December he suggested there was a rebirth of Stalinism in Russia. On Friday he said the new Russian leaders had to ditch Stalinism. In December he said Russia's new tactics "do not mark a change of purpose," meaning world communism.

He said the same thing Friday. But then he added something which threw the Democrats into a lizzy. He said the Russians are changing their tactics because they realize "they must bring their system closer to ours rather than the other way around."

If this sounds rather optimistic, it is not unusual for Dulles, whose optimism sometimes has been badly upset by later events.

Not long after President Eisenhower's summit conference with the Russians in Geneva last July Dulles Friday if he didn't think dead, prevail, and he expressed belief the cold war might be ending and the Russians might let Germany be unified.

Then he went back to Geneva in the fall for the foreign ministers' conference. When not even a baby step was taken toward German unification, Dulles said the cold war was on.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) asked Dulles Friday if he didn't think the Russians "seem to be making progress, especially in the Middle East?" Dulles said he didn't think so, that they had made very little progress in the past few years.

But on Jan. 11 Dulles, with Eisenhower's approval, issued a statement calling on America to "wake up" to "all the implications" of Russia's changed tactics.

Senators Hope For Voting On Rigid Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today that packers of rigid farm price supports "are ready to start voting" on the omnibus election-year farm bill.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) who opposes the rigid supports but favors the new administration soil bank proposals, said in a separate interview he is anxious for voting this week.

"Every day's delay will cost the farmers money," Aiken said. "The sooner the soil bank is law, the quicker farmers can make plans for a share in it this year."

Chairman Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said he would confer today with Senate leaders, seeking an agreement to limit debate on the measure. Like Aiken, he expressed hope a final vote can be taken late this week, but the controversial nature of many pending amendments to the politically important measure could put off final action until next week.

He said this has been confirmed by Dr. Corbett, president of New Mexico A&M at a meeting with a few farmers of the area yesterday.

Oliver said the lab organization was formed by Chavez County farmers for a soils, water and plant tissue analysis service. "These services are available to members of the organization only," he said.

The purpose of the organization is to raise the most cotton for the least dollars spent by making use of the above services.

"The lab will cooperate with the experiment station in every way," Oliver said, "even though it is not at present financed by any state money, but rather by the farmers who join the organization."

Further details, he said, can be obtained at the Cottonwood meeting.

Mayor Asked To Resign For Letter To Red

AURORA, Ill., (AP)—Controversial Paul Egan, who came off the relief rolls to become mayor in 1953, has been asked to resign because he wrote a letter to a deputy premier of Russia.

Egan, 57, protested to Anastase I. Mikoyan, the Soviet official, that freedom of speech is dead in the United States.

In his recent letter to Mikoyan, Egan said he had been denied the right to speak up at the National Conference of Mayors in Washington, D. C., Feb. 16-17.

He also asked the Russian deputy premier if the Soviet Union would pay for a tour of Russia by some 200 U. S. mayors.

The request for Egan's resignation, which he turned down flat, came at a special meeting yesterday called by Egan to hear his report on the Washington conference. It was attended by some 350 persons and soon became a boisterous affair punctuated by catcalls and noisemaking.

After reporting on the mayor's conference at length, Egan read his letter to the Soviet leader. It said in part:

"I believe the bells of the world should be tolled for the death of free speech here in the United States of America."

"In a meeting called by the President of the United States to inform the mayors... of the dangers lurking in the world today and to hold a free and open discussion of all the ramifications of this peril, I was shut up and the meeting adjourned."

Egan told Mikoyan he proposed to the conference that the U. S. provide funds for a good will tour of Russia by the mayors and their wives but was informed no funds were available. Egan said he suggested to Mikoyan that he Soviets underwrite the trip.

As Egan finished reading the letter commissioners offered a resolution condemning it as "most degrading and insulting to people of this city, state and nation." His three fellow commissioners joined in passing the censure motion asking for Egan's immediate resignation. Egan abstained.
