TWO WRECKES KILL THREE PERSONS

Both Pickett, Stephens Hurl Charges Of 'Stooge' At Other

SANTA FE (AP)—Charges of "stooge" candidates in the Democratic gubernatorial race were hurled from a different direction Saturday.

Robert Stephens of Santa Fe charged that Ingram B. Pickett was a "stooge" for Governor John F. Simms.

Pickett himself has repeatedly charged that Stephens was a "stooge" candidate of Simms.

Everybody charged as being a stooge has denied it. The three are opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Pickett Saturday was unavailable immediately for comment on Stephens' new accusation. Simms was in Carlsbad for dedication ceremonies of a new hospital wing.

Stephens, in a statement from his Santa Fe headquarters, said he asked Pickett to withdraw from the governor's race on the Democratic side two weeks before Stephens himself filed.

He said he again asks Pickett "to pull out because he is a stooge for John Simms and is in this race in an attempt to split the anti-Simms vote."

Stephens said Pickett "has admitted in the public press taking $12,000 from the trucking industry for his campaign fund, the same industry that John Simms has been slavishly serving."

"By his own admission in the public press, 6-foot, 10-inch Pickett is a stooge for John Simms when W. O. Culbertson was announced as a candidate against Simms, 6-foot, 10-inch Pickett stated to the press that if Culbertson, a distinguished member of the House of Representatives, filed for the governorship, he would file against him, to split the anti-Simms vote, as a stooge for Simms."

Stephens' statement continued: "Two weeks before filing date, I sent word to 6-foot, 10-inch Pickett that I was going to enter the race against Simms, and asked him not to file, as a stooge for Simms, in Simms' desperate effort to split the anti-Simms vote."

Stephens said Pickett "has publicly admitted before a Junior Chamber of Commerce in Albuquerque that he is not qualified for the office of governor, that he is not smart enough to be governor—I agree with him."

JAYCEES HOLD BANQUET, CHARTER PRESENTATION

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce is the outstanding young men's organization in the United States," Ben Caudle, Artesia businessman, told a gathering of 70 at the Veterans Memorial building here last night.

The banquet-dance meeting was held in order that the recently formed Artesia Junior Chamber of Commerce might receive its charter from the state organization.

Caudle was chief speaker. He pointed out that the first Jaycees chapter was organized in St. Louis in 1915. The national affiliation was formed in 1920. At present, he indicated, the national headquarters are located in Tulsa, Okla.

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce," Caudle said, "will return a hundred fold to those who put effort into the organization. Many of the nation's outstanding leaders have been members. It is more than just a civic organization."

Caudle listed the objectives of Jaycees as follows: To make the community a better place in which to live; to offer education, recreation, and social activities to men between the ages of 21 and 35; and to give young men a voice in community, state and national affairs.

"This organization is a challenge to young men in this age group," he declared. He said at present there are 180,000 Jaycees in the United States and that the Artesia chapter is the 4551st in the national affiliation.

LOVINGTON MAN IS ELECTED EDUCATION ASSN. PRESIDENT

The Southeastern New Mexico Education Association, in the closing hours of its annual conference here Friday elected by acclamation Roy Hillingsworth of Lovington president for 1956-57.

Four new members were elected to the executive committee. They were F. L. Green, Artesia; Phil Hosford, Chaves County; John D. Collie, Lea County; and A. D. Handey, Chaves County.

Holdovers on the executive committee are John Hadsell, Carlsbad; Mrs. Conie Belle Smith, Hobbs; Mrs. O. L. Bartholomew, Eunice; and D. N. Pope, Chaves County. The secretary-treasurer is an appointive post.

Next year's meeting of SNMEA is to be held by invitation at Lovington.

Addressing a general assembly of the educators Friday afternoon, Dr. David Simons, chief of the space biology lab at Holloman Air Development Center, listed the competencies necessary for a good scientist.

Dr. Simons listed first the general characteristics, that lead to success in any field, which he described as industriousness, intelligence and emotional maturity. Secondly he listed four specific characteristics necessary to make a good scientist: 1. a questioning mind; 2. broad technical training; 3. a creative imagination, which he described as the most important qualification; and 4. a capacity for self-criticism.

He described memory as the basis of imagination. But, he went on to say, one must not only have the facts in store, but must know exactly where to find them and have the ability to put them together. He described as the key to scientific education, the process of constructing imagination.

That, he said, is the challenge to science education today.

"The essence of science," Dr. Simons said, "is not what we have accomplished, but what we can and will accomplish in the future."

What makes a scientist? The person must be really interested in science and have the fundamental competencies, Dr. Simons said. A person must have a broad foundation in the humanities, he must know how to read and write, and he must have as much scientific training as he can take on.

Only after he has his bachelor's degree should he specialize in science, Dr. Simons said. And after the Ph.D. level should come specialization in science in greater detail.

Dr. Kenneth H. Hansen, chairman of the division of education and psychology at Western State College of Colorado at Gunnison, Colo., who had addressed the general assembly Friday morning, gave a summary of the conference. (Continued on Page Four)

MISHAPS SATURDAY SEND THIRTEEN TO HOSPITALS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three persons were killed in two separate accidents Saturday and 13 others were sent to hospitals, some in serious condition.

Latest to die was Henry Moore, 76, who was killed instantly Saturday night when he was riding struck a cow on a narrow bridge six miles south of Truth or Consequences.

Moore was thrown from the truck. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clay Moore also was thrown clear and suffered cuts and bruises. The driver of the truck, Clay Andrew Moore, 33, son of the victim, was not seriously injured. All were from T or C.

A smash of two cars on a small culvert bridge near Budville early Saturday morning took the lives of one member each from two families and sent an additional 8 persons to hospitals in dangerous condition.

State Police headquarters in Santa Fe identified the victims as: Joe Boyle Smith, 31, of Safter, Calif., passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Lou Smith, also of Safter; Bobby Chambers, 10, of Vargas, Minn., passenger in a car driven by Robert Chambers of Vargas.

Being treated are Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and a daughter, Layna; Mrs. Lou Smith, sons Michael, Jimmy and David and a daughter, name undetermined.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and the Smith girl were described as in critical condition.

San Fidel Justice of the Peace Otis Whitfield, who presided over the inquest at Grants, said the youngster was identified by an unmailed post card found on his body. Whitfield said the card was to Fred Rode, Rt. 1, Vargas. The card said "We are having a nice trip. Love, Bobby."

State Policeman Robert Cook and Wallace Tapley said the accident occurred about 6:30 a. m. 2 1/2 miles west of Correo post office on U. S. 66 West of Albuquerque. They said Mrs. Smith's car apparently pulled into the left lane, colliding head-on with the Chambers car.

The deaths boosted the state death toll for the year to 75, 12 more than on March 24 last year.

Charles Johnson Attends Meeting In New Orleans
Charles Johnson, Artesia banker, has returned with Mrs. Johnson from New Orleans where he attended a three-day meeting of the Agriculture Committee of the American Bankers Assn., which discussed agricultural problems and the outlook of agriculture from the bankers' standpoint.

Johnson was appointed to the Agriculture Committee at a meeting of the Bankers Assn., at Chicago last year and is the first New Mexico banker ever appointed to that committee.

Johnson represented the four southwestern states of New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado on a panel composed of 12 bankers from across the nation and four agricultural economists.

The committee discussed national conditions as they apply to agriculture, studied what the banks might do to further the cause of agriculture, and forwarded to Congress, through the American Bankers Assn., certain recommendations that have not yet been made public.

Hanging Of Boy Ruled Accident
LAS VEGAS (AP)—A coroner's jury Saturday ruled that death came accidentally to 13-year-old John Lovato, found hanging in a woodshed behind his house Friday night.

Baylor Captures W. Tex. Relays

ODESSA (AP)—Baylor won the West Texas Relays by a third of a point Saturday because of a pulled muscle and a couple of runners with knots in their legs.

The pulled muscle knocked Oklahoma A&M out of contention in the mile relay, and the knots prevented Texas from making a fight of it.

The Bears, winning their second meet in a row, contributed two records of the 10 marks and one tie hung up in the big three-division track and field carnival.

Texas had to use a couple of substitutes in the mile relay because its Lavern Vogt, and Ralph Rosenberg had leg injuries. The Longhorns never could get going and finished last.

Queen's Horse Dies Trying To Win Steeplechase

AINTREE, England (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth's fine jumper, Devon Loch, running 3 lengths ahead with only 40 yards to go, collapsed in exhaustion Saturday and E.S.B. swept home to win the most sensational Grand National Steeplechase in living memory.

Only a collapse or sudden death could stop Devon Loch from becoming the first royal horse in 56 years to capture racing's toughest steeplechase.

He had taken the last of 30 stiff jumps boldly and surely, and all that remained was a flat run to the finish of the 4-mile, 856-yard course.

Local Doctor Asks: "Why Suffer With Headaches?"

Headaches are a very common condition and a very painful one. Chiropractically we have found that headaches are caused by a misalignment or subluxation of the upper two vertebrae of the neck, thereby causing a pressure on the nerves branching off to the head and preventing the normal transmission of nerve impulses to the head. These two vertebrae are built in such a way that we can move the head freely, and being built in such a way, it is possible that a jar, jolt, fall or strain affecting any part of the body will affect these vertebrae.

The Chiropractor is trained and equipped to locate this pressure on the nerves and remove it, thereby removing the basic cause of headaches.

If you are suffering with headaches, see your Chiropractor at once. Why suffer?

For further information about Chiropractic in caring for headaches or other ailments, you are invited to consult Dr. K. Behnke Rains, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 420 W. Quay, phone SH 6-3800.

Wes Santee, AAU Rest In Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—Both sides rested Saturday in the running legal battle between Wes Santee and the Amateur Athletic Union while a New York State Supreme Court Justice debated his decision.

Judge Walter A. Lynch, who has been hearing Santee's application for a permanent injunction against the AAU to keep the organization from enforcing its lifetime suspension on him, indicated he would not hand down a verdict for more than a week.

PALACE DRUG Monthly News

A message from Fred and Jim, "Your Pharmacists"

IN ANCIENT DAYS, Pharmacy was practiced only by priests. All forms of the healing arts were connected with religious rites.

DURING THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, Pharmacy, the science of compounding, dispensing, and protecting medicines, became separate from the practice of medicine, which is the science of treating disease and the preservation of health.

NOWADAYS, A PHARMACIST must study four years in a College of Pharmacy, and pass a state examination before he can receive a license to practice pharmacy. Modern pharmacy is becoming so technical, that it has already been ruled that in 1960 it will be necessary to increase the College of Pharmacy requirement to five years of study.

PHYSICIANS, PHARMACISTS, AND RESEARCH SCIENTISTS are the health team that works together to keep you healthier longer. As your pharmacist, we will always cooperate by observing the strict requirements of our profession, and keeping informed of all new progress.

Kill Fruit-Tree Pests With Oil

Don't forget to give your fruit trees a dormant or delayed dormant oil or DN (dinitro) spray, reminds County Agent Richard Marek. Dormant sprays of oil or DN, he says, will kill mite and aphid eggs and scale insects which spend the winter on the limbs and trunks of the fruit trees in your orchard or yard.

"Through coverage of all the twigs, limbs, and trunks of your trees is very important," Marek advises. "Eggs and scales are in cracks and crevices in the bark and in the crotches of limbs and twigs. If a few eggs are missed now, your trees will suffer later."

"Oils can be applied from now until the green-tip stage on apples and peaches and until just before the buds break on pears and cherries. If you use a delayed dormant spray when buds are breaking, add nicotine sulfate for increased control of aphids. DDT should be added to the delayed dormant spray on peaches to control twig borers."

"Don't apply sprays to fruit trees if the temperature is below 40 degrees F. or if there is danger of a freeze before the spray has a chance to dry," Marek said.

Nationally prominent speakers and authorities on agricultural and public land problems are scheduled to appear before the 42nd annual convention of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association in Albuquerque Monday and Tuesday, according to Sherwood Culbertson of Lordsburg, president.

Eddy Dairying Assn. To Meet Thurs. Night

Dear Mr. Dairyman: I know you use some method of getting rid of your boarder cows. However, after you have cut out a cow have you wondered if she was the right one to eliminate? I'm sure you have. This problem has been with dairymen, I guess as long they have been milking cows.

Some dairymen last year organized the Eddy County Dairy Test Assn. in hopes of developing a culling system founded on production testing which has proved its worth many times in the past. The association is holding a meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the office of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce to discuss production records and would like to have you attend.

E. E. Anderson, extension dairyman, will lead the discussion and will explain production records. Also, while Anderson is in the county we will make farm visits, so if you want to us to stop by let us know.

Remember the meeting March 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the office of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce. Richard G. Marek, County Extension Agent.

Terry Jane Gray Is Leader Among High School Girls

By Norman Thomas

Seventeen-year-old Terry Jane Gray is a farm girl in a farm community. But like most girls who grow up on the farm in these times, Terry Jane will leave it this year and will probably never live on a farm again.

She is a senior at Artesia High School where she will graduate at the end of this school year. Like 50 per cent of her classmates, she will go on to college. Terry Jane has decided on the Colorado Women's College, a two-year junior college at Denver, where she will study to be a medical secretary.

She doesn't date steady, or seriously, and has not given much thought to marriage as yet. Her goal at the present time is self-sufficiency. She wants to be able to support herself. After that she will let things take their course. It is toward this goal that she will take the medical secretary course in college. She believes there is a wide field of employment open to her, with that training behind her. She says, however, that after she completes junior college she may transfer to a co-educational institution and go on with her education.

Terry Jane is the eldest daughter.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles and picture stories depicting the lives and thinking of Artesia High School seniors about to graduate into the adult world. Featured this week is a high school senior girl, Terry Jane Gray. See the accompanying picture story of Terry Jane's life at Artesia High School, on page 6 of this section.

er of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Gray of Cottonwood. She has a brother, Bill, who is a sophomore at Artesia High; a sister, Genelle, who is in the seventh grade here; and a sister, Elizabeth, who is in the fourth grade at Cottonwood.

She attended school at Cottonwood until she finished the elementary grades, then began riding a school bus to Artesia. Now she drives to school with her brother in a car her father bought for them after Bill started taking part in High School athletics.

As her mother is very active in community affairs, so is Terry Jane exceedingly active in school affairs. Her principal, Calloway Taulbee, says that Terry Jane is one of the five or six exceedingly active leaders among high school girls. As a freshman in high school, she was a cheerleader. She has lettered in Pep Club every year in high school and is field secretary this year. She has been on the Annual Staff every year and was Freshman Annual Princess. As a sophomore she was in the Dramatics Club, the Spanish Club, and the Rainbow Club. She is now a member of the Honor Society.

Exceedingly popular among her classmates, Terry Jane was Football Princess and Homecoming Queen this year. She is a member of the Student Council and last year was a "Girl Siater." She has been listed in the High School "Who's Who" the past three years. Terry Jane is a member of the Senior Executive Committee and chairman of the Class Day Committee. As a junior, she was student director of the Junior class play.

Terry Jane is a member of the "Beles," a service club of high school girls. She is also secretary of the Methodist Youth League, a social organization of the young people of her church.

Her many school and outside activities leave Terry Jane very little time for dating and things purely of an entertainment nature. In spite of her extra-curricular activities she manages to maintain a "B" average in her studies and ranks 30th in her class of 145 students.

Terry Jane is an outdoor girl. She likes to ride horseback and enjoys most outdoor activities. She also collects records, mostly jazz and popular. She likes to dance, and like most high school kids here, sticks mostly to the jitterbug and fox trot.

T. Jane, as some of her classmates call her, enjoys movies when she has time to go to them, but likes them only if they are "good." She spends her evenings at home, with her parents, watching TV while she does her homework. She likes most of the TV theaters and enjoys George Goebels' program. She likes to read and enjoys magazine fiction but reads few factual articles. In books she prefers historical novels and stories based on Biblical happenings. She reads a great deal in the summer but finds little time for outside reading during the school term.

Terry Jane feels that her parents treat her as a grown-up now, and let her decide her own future and live her own life. However, at 17, she doesn't feel that 18-year-olds should be given the franchise to vote. She believes that 18-year-olds are too easily persuaded. In line with the trend of American youth, due to better diets and fewer illnesses, Terry Jane, at 5 feet-six inches, is two inches taller than her mother.

With her mind set on a career at this time, rather than a home, Terry Jane is not too interested in house work. And though she sometimes helps her mother about the house, she says she doesn't cook very much and she doesn't sew.

Her parents give her an allowance from which she buys her meals at school and which takes care of most of her personal needs, but they buy her clothes for her. Her mother makes some of them.

Although Terry Jane is a serious-minded girl with a degree of maturity, she doesn't take too great an interest in world affairs. She prefers to leave them to the men to handle and is confident that they will do all that can be done. She doesn't worry about the world situation, though she is aware of it, but takes it in stride.

Her attendance at Girl's State created in her an awareness of the evils of Communism and she believes that some of our literature is subtly infested with Communist theories, and takes this into consideration in her reading.

As a Methodist and a member of a church-going family, Terry Jane is a devout Christian but not a fanatic about religion. She believes that all religions are working toward the same goal and is tolerant of all religions. Many of her outside activities are centered about her church.

Union Official Support O'Rourke On Gangsterism

HONOLULU. — James R. Hoffa of Detroit, vice president of the Teamsters Union, Saturday denied charges that the man he supports for president of the New York Joint Council is gangster-backed.

Hoffa, here for the teamsters executive board meeting, said "There is absolutely no foundation in such charges."

A rival of Hoffa has obtained a court order to prevent John J. O'Rourke from taking over as president of the New York body.

"Any suggestion that O'Rourke is a friend of gangsters is absolutely silly," Hoffa said. He has been a respected member of his union almost as long as I am old."

The 43-year-old labor leader, a rising power in teamster ranks, would not comment on the federal court order issued Friday in New York that kept O'Rourke from taking office.

"Starvation of the soil leads to starvation of plants, which results in starvation of animals, including human beings."—A. G. Kilburn.

Lovington Man—

before adjournment that afternoon.

He said that after attending many of the discussion groups throughout the day he found that most discussions boiled down to three major headings, which were as follows:

1. That the key to education problems still lies with the teacher. The problems of science and education still must be solved at the classroom level. The teacher's attitude can make or break the science program.

2. Teaching methods. These included the problem of motivational techniques—the establishment of purpose. Under this he listed the problem of getting students ready to take up the next steps in science—the problem of reading readiness. Also the problem of what kills the natural curiosity toward science. He laid this to ineffective teaching, lack of materials, and under-emphasis on the exploratory process. Also listed were the mechanics of teaching.

3. The goal—which is the educated student. He listed the importance of directive guidance to the extent of having required courses up to a certain level. There was the necessity for more broad reading in science and more opportunity to experiment, and avoiding over-specialization.

Above all, Dr. Hansen said, is the necessity to realize that a scientist, though he is a specialist, still is a person living in a community of persons. Any education program that overlooks this fact is doomed to failure, he said.

Total United States population is expected to increase from 161,461,000 in 1955 to 221,500,000 in 1975. Farm population decreased from 25,058,000 in 1950 to 22,158,000 in 1955 — decrease of 2,900,000.

Cardinals Win NIT Basketball

NEW YORK. — Louisville's lightning-fast Cardinals, led by Charlie Tyra, asserted their supremacy over Dayton and Bill Bradley on the third day of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament with a 80 victory over Dayton's Flyers.

A noisy, excited crowd of 12,000 in Madison Square Garden, in spite of bad weather and a postponement—saw Louisville pile up its biggest score ever made in 24 finals. The tournament, now in its 110th year, is the first round of the final but the top previous score in the final was LaSalle's 73 against Dayton in 1952.

"Responsibility Law"

THERE are always some questions—questions without answers—when a new state law becomes effective. In New Mexico a Safety Responsibility law went into effect last October.

Some are now seeing this law in operation and they are wondering and questioning it. For instance, recently drivers' licenses and motor vehicle license plates have been picked up of those individuals who have been involved in an accident and failed to report it and to clear themselves.

The law requires that within five days after a motor vehicle accident resulting in death or injury, or property damage in excess of $25, the operator of every car involved is required by law to file a written report with the Division of Motor Vehicles. Official forms are available for the report.

Within 60 days then if there has not been satisfactory settlement of matter as provided by the act the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles can revoke the driver's permit and pick up the plates.

This applies to all motor vehicles owned by any one individual involved in an accident in which satisfactory settlement is not made.

Those properly protected by proper insurance or bond must submit their report but they are not subject to losing their license or their motor vehicle plates.

For some years New Mexico has had a law requiring the operator of motor vehicles to provide public liability insurance—protection for the drivers of other motor vehicles in cases of accidents—but it had no teeth in it and was difficult to enforce.

The new Safety Responsibility law may provide that protection. Those needing information regarding how they can protect themselves in the event they have an accident can obtain this from their insurance agent or it can be obtained from State Police.

The time to avoid loss of driver's license or license plates is before that accident occurs.

But if the accident occurs then, the thing to do is comply with the law; meet the requirements; and the chances are, difficulties some are meeting today can be avoided.

It is always better to be prepared before an accident occurs and problems are less than after it has happened.

SIREN SONG

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—St. Louis police are used to sirens, but not in their garage. When a burglar alarm siren on a truck began sounding early in the morning, the officers couldn't figure out how to silence it so they woke up the prisoner—owner who did the job. Neither police or the truck owner could explain what started the siren, designed to prevent thefts from the truck.

IS THIS WORTH TWO HOURS A WEEK?

... asks Todd Wheatley, a university student, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

"My family means a lot to me, Donna Lynn is two and a half years old, and Sandra Jeanne is going on a ripe old six months. My wife and I want them to grow up and prosper in a free and independent country. That's why I put on a reserve Captain's uniform once a week and attend training sessions at my local Army Reserve Center. As a university student, extra hours mean a lot. They mean time to study and time to work for my family. But I save those two hours a week for reserve meetings, nevertheless, I know they are worth the short period I have to spend to keep myself prepared for emergency. I have been through combat, and I know what a vicious enemy could do to my family. It isn't pretty. My reserve duty is our family insurance for a free future. How about you? How much is your time worth? Your family? Your freedom? Join me, and your neighbors, in your own Army Reserve. Your future is in your hands right now."

Find out for yourself what the Army Reserve means to you. The Reserve Forces Act of 1955 opens new ways you can serve your country at home. It outlines new prospects for military service for all young men. It may affect you. Find out today how you can join Todd Wheatley and hundreds of alert citizens in your community's own US Army Reserve.

Dairy scientists and dairymen have their eyes on a new principle for controlling disease caused by bacteria or viruses that is being developed at the University of Minnesota.

According to the county agent, the experimenters injected vaccines for disease-causing viruses and bacteria into the udder of cows and discovered that the cows will manufacture large quantities of antibodies to combat the injected material. Vaccinating the cows, in other words, would make it unnecessary to vaccinate those humans who consume the required amount of protective milk.

Such special milk may help to eliminate diphtheria, typhoid, measles, and certain other ailments. Passive immunity would be maintained in the person drinking the milk as long as he continued to use it. The milk would contain no disease-producing organisms.

How To Tell A Child That He's Adopted

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Feature Writer

All the experienced people who know about adoptions agree that an adopted child should grow up with the idea that he is adopted. Sooner or later he is bound to find out. If the knowledge comes suddenly it's apt to be rough blow. If the child is young when he learns from someone outside the family that he was adopted, he is apt to be fearful that since he was cast out by his own parents he may be cast out again by his present parents. If he is older when the sudden knowledge comes, he may be resentful.

"Why do you lie to me? How can I trust anything you say?" But how and when to tell a child? It's impossible to give an exact answer.

Try to talk about the adoption in a matter of fact way. Don't conceal it, ever. But at the same time, don't feel forced to drag it into every conversation.

There are many times when the fact that your child was adopted can be brought in casually: "No, I didn't breast feed Nancy. It's sort of hard to breast feed an adopted baby!" Oh when someone tells you Nancy is the image of her father you can say, "Isn't that lucky—she's adopted, you know?"

Before long Nancy herself will pick up the word and you'll get, "What's adopted mean, Mommie?" And you tell her.

"Adopted is one way Mommies and Daddys get a little girl. Your Mommie and Daddy wanted a little girl with yellow hair and blue eyes, just like you. We went to a place where they had a lot of babies and the lady showed us the cutest little girl you ever saw.

Answer truthfully. "I don't know, Nancy dear. I'm sure she didn't want to, but I know there was some very important reason. But weren't we lucky to get you, and we are your Mommy and Daddy forever and ever now."

An adopted child, like any child, needs to feel loved. The adopted child needs a little bit of extra reassurance that she is secure in her home. Give her reassurance casually but warmly.

Cattle slaughtered in New Mexico during the year of 1955 totaled 56,700 head compared with 54,800 head slaughtered during 1954. Calves slaughtered during 1955 was reported at 5,100 head compared with 6,400 head a year earlier. Hogs slaughtered during 1955 were estimated at 83,600 head, 34 per cent more than the 62,200 head slaughtered during 1954. The number of sheep and lambs slaughtered during 1955 amounted to 23,900 head compared with 22,500 head slaughtered during 1954.

This is the second of two Advocate picture stories of the lives and thinking of Artesia High School seniors about to graduate into the adult world.

For the story of Terry Jane Gray, see the accompanying article on Page 4 of this section.

ONE OF TERRY JANE'S favorite classes is biology which fits in with the medical secretary course she plans to take in college. Here she dissects a frog.

SOMETIMES Terry Jane helps her mother about the house. Here she slices a cake that her mother baked. Terry Jane says that she doesn't cook very much.

TERRY JANE does her home work. She often watches television at the same time. Here she is practicing shorthand, which is one of her favorite subjects.

Backstage New Mexico

By the New Mexico Staff of THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Contrary to election year jibes and jeers, it just isn't true that all candidates are professional feeders at the public trough.

It takes all kinds to make the world, just as it takes all kinds to make up the Democratic and public primary election tick-and, eventually, the family of the government.

It is true that many of those seeking or holding office have done so for so long that it is difficult to say they have any other occupation. But it is equally true that the bulk of those bidding for party nominations for national, state and district offices are successful operators in various fields of industry and professional skills.

Historically, the field of law has produced the greatest number of candidates and top public holders in New Mexico.

But many other fields contribute the men and women who guide the reins of state and county government in the state.

A look at the ballot list for the May 8 primary election indicates the widespread fields represented by office seekers.

Gov. John F. Simms, seeking renomination on the Democratic ticket, was a member of an Albuquerque law firm before he resigned to take office. Former Gov. Ed Mechem, unopposed for the GOP gubernatorial bid, joined another Albuquerque law firm when he left the governor's office almost two years ago. Richard Robinson, attorney general who is bidding for a Democratic nomination to the U. S. House of Representatives was a Carlsbad attorney.

Seeking the Republican congressional nomination without opposition are an atomic energy scientist, Ralph Carlisle Smith of Los Alamos, and a northeastern New Mexico rancher, Forrest Atchley of Union County.

The state ticket also includes public relations men, real estate executives, insurance agents, trucking firm agents, more attorneys, school teachers, printers and farmers.

Private industry and professional fields are perhaps most widely represented in races for the state Senate and House of Representatives.

Just a few: school teachers, hotel operators, ranchers, farmers, more attorneys, a former lieutenant governor, several former members of the House of Representatives seeking to jump to the Senate, sporting goods store owner, a one-time member of the State Highway Commission, a one-time U. S. commissioner, a radio announcer, a real estate salesman, a shoe store operator, a sheepman, a dentist, re-oil and wholesaler of oil and gas agent, the owner of an office supply store, a potash company employe, the owner of a peanut mill, a former mayor, a newspaper publisher—and just about as many more occupations as there are persons seeking the offices.

It really takes—and gets—all kinds.

A CERTAIN four-legged character in Corrales, N. M., whose name means "Hey You" in Japanese, has slowed down a lot since "Moshi" a German short-haired pointer, had a habit of taking off like a shot when his owners opened the back door of their home. Running through a back passageway, the 85 lb., 16-month-old pup had learned to hit a screen door with a front paw in full stride and go careening into the back yard.

When the big wind storm hit a few weeks ago, the dog's mistress latched the screen door to keep it from banging. It was the first time the door had been locked.

When company arrived in the midst of the blow, the lady of the house opened the back door of the house to let the rangy pup out to greet the visitors.

Running at his usual full speed, the big dog hit the still-latched screen door and knocked himself cold as an Eskimo's nose in a blizzard.

While the owner and her guests hovered anxiously over the prostrate pup, the long-eared hound rose unsteadily to his feet, shook his head, gave the assembled crowd a reproachful look, and staggered back into the house.

The dog's master reports that when the back door is opened now, "Moshi" stalks sedately out the screen door, raises one paw and gently pushes the door open before venturing into the yard.

Arizona newspapers have taken note of reports in political circles in that state that Paul Clinite may be a powerful figure in the proposed Arizona State Athletic Commission. Creation of the commission is now before the Arizona Legislature. Clinite is the publicity man who was suspended by the New Mexico State Racing Commission at Ruidoso Downs last season. The allegation was that he provided race results to newspapers in violation of commission rules and without the commission's approval. Clinite reportedly is applying to the New Mexico commission for a yes or no answer on his 1956 contract with Ruidoso Downs.

The Las Cruces Sun-News says editorially it will continue during the primary and general election campaign its standard policy of cash with all political advertising except to regular advertising agencies. "Experience has taught us," the newspaper said, "that it is always far easier for the candidate to take care of his campaigning expenses—including his newspaper advertising—during the election than after the election is over."

A BOOK by New Mexico's Oliver La Farge, "Behind the Mountains," is getting exceptional reviews over the country. The New York Times, in a review by Charles Moore, says, "This book is the children's discovery of themselves, the growing, surprising, not always completely welcome, knowledge that they were a part of the 20th Century America. They wanted the chained existence of the ranch and nearby villages to go on forever. Who wouldn't?" And Lon Tinkle in the Dallas Morning News describes the book, about the Spanish-French Baca y Pendaries family into which he married, as "one of the most unusual books of the year and certainly one of the most delightful." "A perfect maturing of material and manner."

Steel Industry Warms Up For Union Demand

NEW YORK (AP)—With one great labor-management struggle over another one—potentially even greater—is beginning to take shape.

Westinghouse workers are back at work. And Westinghouse salesmen are going out in search of business to help recoup some of the loss.

But in the basic steel industry both management and labor are warming up vocally and starting to woo public opinion for the contract negotiations that will begin shortly.

Management sees further wage increases as inflationary for the economy as a whole. The union thinks the wage scale can be raised and the steel companies still make money.

It's for Westinghouse and the electrical workers union to evaluate how much was gained or lost by the bitter 156-day strike. The company reports it operated at a loss in the fourth quarter of last year, and the loss doubtless was greater in the first quarter of this year.

Products it might have shipped but didn't are estimated to total nearly 300 million dollars in billings. Wages it could have paid but didn't are estimated to total 100 million dollars.

Evaluating orders it might have got but didn't is harder. And it will be some time yet before it can be told how successful the company will be in its sales campaign to recapture and widen markets for its products.

A strike in the steel industry could be much more costly. Mills are now operating at capacity with order backlogs ensuring production for months ahead.

Angry Lawyer Hits Atty. Gen. Ben Shepperd

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—An angry San Antonio attorney struck Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd in the face Thursday during a recess in a veterans land case being tried in Criminal District Court.

Reporters said Shepperd was standing, smoking a cigar, in the reception room of Dist. Atty. Hubert Green Jr. when Maxwell Burkett rushed up uttering obscenities as he struck him.

Burkett later said Shepperd had promised immunity to his three clients but had not kept his promise.

The cigar apparently cushioned the blow. The cigar was crushed but there was no mark on the attorney general. He walked out of the courtroom building at once.

The attack followed a courtroom hearing in which Judge Howard Green of Cuero overruled a motion which would have given immunity to three veterans land fraud case defendants who were key state witnesses in the bribery trial which resulted in the conviction of former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles here last August.

Lovington Press To Become Daily

LOVINGTON (AP)—Dave Worley, owner of the Lea County Broadcasting Co., has announced his Lovington Press will start daily publication "just as soon as additional equipment and personnel arrive."

The announcement was made in an issue of the weekly Press.

Worley said the operation will stress local ownership and coverage of local news.

Worley is owner of Radio Station KLEA in Lovington and a majority stockholder in Lovington's community television system. He also is associated with station KTNM in Tucumcari, KDAV in Lubbock, Tex., and KRFX, Rocky Ford, Colo.

Worley, who acquired the Press Feb. 1, said the chamber of commerce in the community has estimated current population of the Lea County seat at 12,000 and "merchants and residents want a daily newspaper."

The owner said the paper, in its daily operation, will be under the direction of General Manager W. A. Dub Amburn, until recently

Ag Department Gives $100,000 For NM Erosion

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—The Agriculture Department has authorized $100,000 for wind and erosion control in 10 New Mexico counties.

H. M. Rickman, LaMesa rancher and chairman of the state ASA committee, said counties declared eligible are Colfax, Curry, Harding, Lea, Roosevelt, Quay, Socorro, Torrance, Union and Santa Fe.

The money was to be made available and may be augmented by a supplemental allocation in the next 60 days, said Dale Helsper, ASC executive officer.

Last year, about $900,000 was spent in New Mexico by the federal government for erosion control. The program is to keep top soil from blowing off. Special ways of turning earth are used to reduce soil loss from wind.

owner of the newspaper at Silverton, Tex. Worley said that in the six weeks Amburn has been with the paper, he has doubled both advertising and circulation.

Gov. John F. Simms, seeking renomination on the Democratic ticket, was a member of an Albuquerque law firm before he resigned to take office. Former Gov. Ed Mechem, unopposed for the GOP gubernatorial bid, joined another Albuquerque law firm when he left the governor's office almost two years ago. Richard Robinson, attorney general who is bidding for a Democratic nomination to the U. S. House of Representatives was a Carlsbad attorney.

Seeking the Republican congressional nomination without opposition are an atomic energy scientist, Ralph Carlisle Smith of Los Alamos, and a northeastern New Mexico rancher, Forrest Atchley of Union County.

The state ticket also includes public relations men, real estate executives, insurance agents, trucking firm agents, more attorneys, school teachers, printers and farmers.

Private industry and professional fields are perhaps most widely represented in races for the state Senate and House of Representatives.

Just a few: school teachers, hotel operators, ranchers, farmers, more attorneys, a former lieutenant governor, several former members of the House of Representatives seeking to jump to the Senate, sporting goods store owner, a one-time member of the State Highway Commission, a one-time U. S. commissioner, a radio announcer, a real estate salesman, a shoe store operator, a sheepman, a dentist, re-oil and wholesaler of oil and gas agent, the owner of an office supply store, a potash company employe, the owner of a peanut mill, a former mayor, a newspaper publisher—and just about as many more occupations as there are persons seeking the offices.

It really takes—and gets—all kinds.

A CERTAIN four-legged character in Corrales, N. M., whose name means "Hey You" in Japanese, has slowed down a lot since "Moshi" a German short-haired pointer, had a habit of taking off like a shot when his owners opened the back door of their home. Running through a back passageway, the 85 lb., 16-month-old pup had learned to hit a screen door with a front paw in full stride and go careening into the back yard.

When the big wind storm hit a few weeks ago, the dog's mistress latched the screen door to keep it from banging. It was the first time the door had been locked.

When company arrived in the midst of the blow, the lady of the house opened the back door of the house to let the rangy pup out to greet the visitors.

Running at his usual full speed, the big dog hit the still-latched screen door and knocked himself cold as an Eskimo's nose in a blizzard.

While the owner and her guests hovered anxiously over the prostrate pup, the long-eared hound rose unsteadily to his feet, shook his head, gave the assembled crowd a reproachful look, and staggered back into the house.

The dog's master reports that when the back door is opened now, "Moshi" stalks sedately out the screen door, raises one paw and gently pushes the door open before venturing into the yard.

Arizona newspapers have taken note of reports in political circles in that state that Paul Clinite may be a powerful figure in the proposed Arizona State Athletic Commission. Creation of the commission is now before the Arizona Legislature. Clinite is the publicity man who was suspended by the New Mexico State Racing Commission at Ruidoso Downs last season. The allegation was that he provided race results to newspapers in violation of commission rules and without the commission's approval. Clinite reportedly is applying to the New Mexico commission for a yes or no answer on his 1956 contract with Ruidoso Downs.

The Las Cruces Sun-News says editorially it will continue during the primary and general election campaign its standard policy of cash with all political advertising except to regular advertising agencies. "Experience has taught us," the newspaper said, "that it is always far easier for the candidate to take care of his campaigning expenses—including his newspaper advertising—during the election than after the election is over."

A BOOK by New Mexico's Oliver La Farge, "Behind the Mountains," is getting exceptional reviews over the country. The New York Times, in a review by Charles Moore, says, "This book is the children's discovery of themselves, the growing, surprising, not always completely welcome, knowledge that they were a part of the 20th Century America. They wanted the chained existence of the ranch and nearby villages to go on forever. Who wouldn't?" And Lon Tinkle in the Dallas Morning News describes the book, about the Spanish-French Baca y Pendaries family into which he married, as "one of the most unusual books of the year and certainly one of the most delightful." "A perfect maturing of material and manner."
