Curtis Harrison Writes Home From Pacific

The following letter is from Curtis Harrison who is on the U. S. S. Taylor in the Pacific. Dear Mother and Dad: Received your letter written Aug. 18. Was glad to hear from you. They just passed the word that censoring had stopped so will try to let you know what we have been doing the last few months. We left Leyte 2 months ago operating with tankers of the 3rd fleet. Admiral Halsey picked us as one of the three ships to escort the flagship Missouri into Tokyo Bay. Three destroyers lead the way. The Nicholas was first with the Taylor on one side and the O'Bannon on the other. Then came the Missouri, Iowa, South Dakota, Duke of York (a British battleship) and two British destroyers in the rear. Sept. 2nd we took correspondents from the dock at Kokohoma to the Missouri. These war correspondents were from Russia, China, England and the U. S., and they were taking pictures of what was going on. We lay off the Missouri while the peace treaty was being signed and then took the correspondents back to Yokohama. While the Japs were on the Missouri there were a lot of B-29s came over and 800 carrier planes of the 3rd fleet. It looked like a swarm of black birds. I saw all the Japs that came aboard the Taylor and went on the Missouri to sign the peace treaty. The Jap prime minister was dressed in a black suit, he was tall and had a wooden leg. One was a short, fat guy and wore a brown suit. The 3rd wore an army uniform. General Stillwell who is in command of the Chinese army was at Yokohama a few days ago. We came along side of a hospital ship and saw some of the prisoners that had just been released, they were pale and skinny. Wainwright was there, he was just like the other prisoners, as poor as hell. I couldn't get a chance to see Isham while in Leyte as we were under a 4 hour notice and couldn't leave the ship for more than 3 hours. I doubt if we will ever be in the Philippines again. The reason that you did not hear from me for so long was that we were at sea 51 days. We transferred our mail to the tankers while fueling but it must have taken the tankers a long time to send it off. I don't know when we will get back to the states. The O'Bannon got orders to go back to the states a few days ago. The Taylor and the Nicholas are expecting their orders any time, but you never can tell, it might be a long time. I received a copy of a Hope paper. It's a nice paper, some one must have taken Rood's place. I have 29 points and it takes 44 for a discharge. I guess they will lower them when they get the older men out and they will probably give extra points for overseas duty. The weather in Japan is just like California, with a lot of fog and rain. I haven't had a chance to get shore leave in Tokyo. I did walk around a little in Yokohama. I checked with our signal men to see if George Wood's ship was in but they said it wasn't. The schools, churches and modern buildings in Tokyo that you can see from the bay are very nice. There were two submarines that surrendered in Tokyo Bay. They said they were the biggest subs in the world. There are a lot of tug boats here. They pull garbage barges from ship to ship carrying garbage off. The tugs are manned by Japanese with American guards telling them what to do. The Japs are happy, they will get fat on the garbage. When we throw the garbage on the barge the Japs can't wait to start picking things out especially cigarette stubs. Glad you got the war bond. We don't have so many watches to stand now so every thing is all right. This covers about everything we have been doing the past 3 months. Lots of love Curtis.

Good Prospects for N. M. Victory State Fair

As entries closed today more than 500 animals had been entered in the several livestock classes to the 1945 New Mexico Victory State Fair, in competition for approximately $12,000 allotted to all livestock groups. It is the largest number of animals ever entered in a New Mexico fair. From the names of the consignors it was regarded as likely to prove finest in quality as well as a new high record in numbers. With one or two exceptions the livestock entries are by New Mexico growers. It is the first fair at which the home state entries have dominated the livestock scene.

In the senior, or open classes 66 registered Hereford bulls and females are entered. They come from members of the New Mexico Hereford Association, Albuquerque; the Southeastern New Mexico Hereford Association, Roswell; the Lea county Hereford Association Lovington; the Northeastern New Mexico Hereford Association, Raton; the Tri-State Hereford Association, Clayton; each of which have scheduled sales to follow in November, December, January and February. It indicates, fair officials said, that New Mexico growers have learned "the value of a New Mexico State Fair ribbon award."

The fair's sheep barn will show about 70 sheep and lambs; the hog barn 83 head. Milk goat entries total 51.

NEW MEXICO FUTURE FARMERS WIN TRIP TO KANSAS CITY

Four New Mexico Future Farmers and an adult adviser will receive a trip to the National Convention of Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, October 9 and 10 from the Santa Fe Railroad.

Jack Parker, State F.F.A. President from Socorro Chapter and member of the winning dairy judging team, will head the delegates to the National Convention. Others to receive this award are: Jimmie Medlock, State F. F. A. Vice-President, from the Floyd Chapter; Morris Roberson, Carlsbad Chapter, member of the winning poultry judging team; Bill Devenny, Las Cruces Chapter, member of the winning livestock judging team; and Alan Staley, adult adviser, vocational agriculture instructor from the Clovis High School.

This trip was awarded to these boys for being outstanding in leadership, scholarship, school and F. F. A. Chapter activities, and for being members of winning judging teams at the 1945 State Vocational Judging Contest. The award will pay for all expenses to the Convention.

The Santa Fe Railroad has made a similar prize award to New Mexico vocational agriculture students for the past twenty-three years.

The boys will serve as delegates of the New Mexico F. F. A. Association to the National Convention of Future Farmers of America October 9 and 19 to transact the business of the National organization.

Claberon Buckner on His Way Home

The following letter has been received from Claberon Buckner.—Okinawa, Sept. 20, 1945. Dear Folks:—We have finally gotten this far on our way home. We had one ship almost sunk from under us on our way down here. A floating mine hit us and blew up the engine room. We were in a storm at the time, we think it must have been the typhoon we heard about. We had to be pulled in, have looked for Hollis and Raymond but can't find them. I think we will fly to Manila in the morning. See you when I get home. Lots of love, Claberon.

Wayland Hodges and his sister Mrs. Lockie Trigg were visiting in Hope Sunday afternoon.

INVESTING in War Bonds with their increase in value each year judged against the courage of Lt. J. L. Knight, Weatherford, Texas, 124th Cavalry Reg., seems insignificant, but it helps supply our fighters with weapons. Facing heavily defended Jap positions on the Burma road, Lt. Knight led his men through dense jungle and secured their objective. Reconnoitering the area, he found himself in a horseshoe formation of concealed Jap pillboxes and threw grenades, destroying four. Wounded, he saw that those in his command were protected until he died. A medal of honor was awarded Lt. Knight posthumously. U. S. Treasury Department

Hope School News

School bus entrance signs were set east and west of the school buildings Monday by the highway department. Let us all observe these signs and also caution our children about walking on the highway.

Basketball season started Monday when the first practice was held. The following boys showed up best: Terry, Potter, R. Kincaid, Teel and Renefee should furnish plenty of competition with a little more competition. Terry is the only senior. Supt. Moore is coaching the boys until a suitable coach is found.

The Freshmen were initiated Thursday by the Sophomores. Some of the Frosh really should have had a prize for the way they were dressed. A school party was held for the whole high school Thursday night in the gym.

Did you know that four Hope high school students are riding the bus over 50 miles one way every day to get an education. We are glad we can keep them warm this winter after their long ride.

Mr. Moore has applied to the Government Suhlus Equipment Board for arm chairs, typewriters, a 16 m.m. projector and ping pong tables. Roller skates with fibre rollers will not be available for six months so we will have to wait awhile before we learn to skate.

Chester Schwalbe and Dee Madron started work Monday laying pipe for our butane heating system. We hope cold weather doesn't come too soon.

Last Sunday a water pipe that had burst was discovered under the kitchen floor. So Mr. Teague and Mr. Schwalbe repaired it Sunday afternoon. We know now where our water supply was going.

LOCALS

A Rally Day program will be given at the Methodist church next Sunday at 11 o'clock. It is sponsored by the Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall from the Mountains were in town Tuesday. They have purchased the Shafer residence and expect to move in this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Olson and son have moved back to Hope and to are live in the Litt Prude residence. Mr. Olson will be employed at the S. C. S. office. They left there in 1941 and Mr. Olson joined the air service, of which he was a member for 18 months. He was stationed in the S. Pacific. While Mr. Olson was in the service Mrs. Olson lived with her parents at Fort Stockton.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Schwalbe and Mrs. A. A. Smith returned last Thursday from a trip to Ozona, Tex., where they visited Mrs. Jennie Schwalbe.

Alvin Kincaid returned last week from a trip to Kansas City where he disposed of two carloads of old ewes. He reports plenty of rain in Kansas and winter wheat fields looking good which means feed for lambs this winter.

Rain fell over the Penasco Valley last week Friday and Saturday. The highway west of Hope was so bad Saturday the mail man did not complete his trip but only went about half way. It must have rained and snowed because it takes plenty of bad weather to stop our mail man. Sunday and Monday were beautiful days but Tuesday it started to rain again. This moisture although a little late will be a big help to the stockman.

W. B. Durham was in town last week looking for help. He has one of the finest fields of cotton in the valley.

Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Drew were in Artesia Monday shopping. Joe Kennick visited relatives in Hope Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Anderson and Jean Kimbrough were in from the ranch over the week end.

Clayton Menefee

Clayton C. Menefee, pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. N. R., Hope, N. M., is a member of the USS SOLACE, hospital ship which has just been awarded the Navy Unit Commendation for outstanding work at Pearl Harbor.

Scene of the formal presentation of Secretary of Navy James Forrestal's commendation was a Portland, Ore., shipyard, where the vessel docked recently after completion of seven trips to Okinawa. It was her first voyage to the States since December, 1943.

The SOLACE, nicknamed "the workhorse of the Pacific," also participated in operation at Guam, Saipan, Tarawa, the Admiralties, Kwajalein, Eniwetok, Pelelu and Iwo Jima, treating some 27,000 patients.

Hollis Buckner Tells of Experiences in the U. S. Navy

Here's an interesting letter from Hollis Buckner. Manila, P. I., Sept. 6, 1945. Dear Mom and Pop: Hope you haven't thought I was lost, but we left Leyte two or three weeks ago and I have been so busy just couldn't find any time off to write. I guess we'll have a lot of mail piled up at Leyte and here we are beached at Manila. This is the second time we have been here. I saw Corregidor and Bataan. There are sure a lot of ships sunk in Manila Bay. I can look out over the harbor and see 20 or 30 with just masts sticking out of the water and there are others sunk beneath the water but they are marked. They told us this morning that we could send letters home uncensored so this is my first. I went on liberty yesterday and had some pictures made of four of us. We had 5 pictures made and they cost us 10 pesos. Some of the boys went through the walled city and said they were Jan skeletons all over the place and old letters, some signed by the president of the P. I., also letters of Philipinos being sent to prison and who had died of some disease. Seems as if all died of nearly the same thing. I didn't see this. The next day we thought we would go to the Walled City but couldn't find it. We four boys had a hair cut, massage, shave and a mud pack on our faces at a Chinese barber shop which cost us 6 pesos. We all bought a rubber stamp of our initials like mine on this letter. We left Manila on the Sunday that the Japs arrived to talk to MacArthur. We arrived here this time just before a typhoon hit. Boy, how we did rock and roll, but I didn't get sick. The last time we were here we went to Mindanao and sailed thru the China Sea which was very rough and did I get sick. I wasn't the only one though. If we ever get back to Leyte and don't have to copy code all the time I can really write a long letter. This paper I'm writing on we fished out of the water, two big boxes of it, it came floating by a few days after I came aboard the L. S. U. Papa we are in the horse and buggy days here. Some of the buggies are fixed up real nice too with pictures on them. The bridles are made of silver. Quite a few cars too, some are new. I guess you have heard from brother I heard where he was liberated. On Oct. 21, 1944, I got aboard the U. S. S. Sarasota at San Diego, left out on Oct. 22nd and got to Manus, Admiralties Nov. 9th. Was fixing to leave the Sarasota in a Higgins boat Nov 10th when a ship, Mount Hood, blew up taking 3 more ships down with her and another ship had big 8 inch holes in her side. I worked in the supply and ammunition department till they needed typists, so then I worked at that till Dec. 8th on board the "Jinks." Engines quit the 2nd day out and had to be towed to Hollandia. Dec. 11th we waded ashore with wet sea bags. Ate our lunch on Pan Cake Hill, moved into barracks at foot of Pan Cake Hill. Spent Xmas 1944 at Hollandia also New Years 1945. On morning of Jan. 22, 1945, went on board the U. S. S. Henry P. Allen, arrived at Leyte Jan. 28th. Jan. 30th went aboard the U. S. S. L. S. U. for duty at 5 p. m., it was storming and I got sick going from Allen to L. S. U., the water was very rough. This is what happened from time I left the states till I got board the L. S. U. I'll send a daily log of what happened from then on later. We are now assigned to unloading a Liberty ship that is on a reef, then we'll take the stuff to Languan Gulf. Better close as I started this letter 3 days ago. Love, Hollis Buckner.

CIO Strives to Maintain High Pay Level in Postwar Industry; Act to Spur Building Activity

Facing tough winter in war-torn Austria, Viennese scratch for future provisions. At left, woman is shown picking up stray grain in harvested field, while at right another woman is pictured carrying home wood found in shelled forest.

LABOR: Seek Peace

Armed with emergency powers, Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach moved into the troubled industrial front, where CIO demands for appreciable wage boosts threatened to retard the reconversion program and jeopardize stabilization policy.

Schwellenbach faced no easy task, what with the strategic oil, automobile, farm equipment and steel unions striving for wage readjustments to bring 40-hour-a-week pay up to wartime overtime levels, and major producers bucking the demands in the face of rigid price control.

In all instances, CIO demands for substantial wage boosts were predicated on the claim that the big companies had made sizable wartime profits and could use the money to defray part of the increases until peacetime production could be re-established on a volume basis.

While oil workers already had walked out of midwest refineries in a strike that threatened to spread and imperil the national fuel supply, principal interest continued to center in the troubled automobile situation, where the United Automobile Workers headed by R. J. Thomas laid plans for enforcing their demands for a 30 per cent wage increase by walking out on individual companies and leaving their competitors free to invade their markets.

In assuming command of a labor department strengthened by the inclusion of the War Labor board, war manpower commission and United States employment service, Secretary Schwellenbach planned to proceed slowly before exerting emergency powers, first exhausting ordinary procedure.

PACIFIC: MacArthur Disputed

Taking sharp difference with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's declaration in Tokyo that only 200,000 American troops may be needed for the Japanese occupation, Pres. Harry S. Truman feated for its effect on army demobilization plans and Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson said that at this time it was difficult to forecast the eventual size of the force.

Basing his estimate upon the Japs' wholehearted effort at co-operation with his command, MacArthur's latest figure of 200,000 was a sharp reduction from the 400,000 recently projected and the 900,000 at first thought necessary. In making his statement, MacArthur said that the Japs' execution of his dictates through their governmental framework relieved the U. S. of establishing an elaborate military authority to perform the same tasks.

In seeking to offset expectations that MacArthur's announcement might lead to speedier demobilization, President Truman declared the program was not dependent upon occupation needs.

Speaking for the state department, Acting Secretary Acheson asserted that the ultimate size of the occupation force will depend upon the scope of the job of eradicating the whole Jap war-making economy.

DEMOBILIZATION: Point Cut

Asserting that no man would be kept just to maintain a big army, Gen. George C. Marshall revealed a stepped-up demobilization program providing for a further decrease of discharge points to 60 on November 1 following the October 1 slash to 70. At the same time, the total necessary for officers was to be cut to 75.

Marshall reviewed demobilization plans at a meeting with 300 congressmen at which he also affirmed receipt of General MacArthur's estimate of an occupation force of only 200,000 for Japan by next summer. Though MacArthur had reduced his estimate, Marshall said, General Eisenhower's figure of 400,000 for Germany remains the same.

Declaring that the present rate of releases has been determined solely by the availability of discharge facilities, Marshall said that all G. I.s without useful army work would be freed within three to four weeks. With the exhaustion of high point men by late winter, the army may further alter its demobilization program by releasing all men with two years of service.

POSTWAR BUILDING: Lid Off

With removal of all building controls, government agencies bent themselves to the task of speeding up construction and at the same time keeping costs within bounds to head off an inflationary boom during the reconversion period.

As experts looked for the erection of 500,000 private dwellings next year and a peak of 800,000 in 1948, officials sought to increase the supply of scarce building materials, permitting wage and price boosts and priorities to break bottlenecks, if necessary. Inventory controls also were to be strengthened to prevent hoarding and creation of artificial shortages.

At the same time, OPA announced that it would tighten price control over building materials to counteract heavy demand, while federal credit agencies prepared to discourage loose financing in a market booming with home needs and prospects for high postwar employment.

RETAIL PRICING: Absorb Increases

Declaring that up to now retailers have not been squeezed by price control, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles reiterated government policy that dealers would have to absorb any increases in manufacturing costs in the reconversion period.

Rejecting a plea of a retailer group that such absorption would be uneconomic and unfair, Bowles said that dealers' markups were not reduced during the war, and records show that profits soared under increased volume and lower operating costs. Whereas the profit margin of department stores stood at 1 1/2 per cent in 1936-'39 period, it reached 12 per cent in 1944, he said.

Under OPA's pricing policy for manufacturers for the reconversion period, some increases will be permitted to allow for higher labor and material costs. Profit margins will be held to half the industry-wide average for larger businesses or prewar levels for smaller firms, however.

Nation Can Head Off Postwar Crime Wave

Quick Reconversion Can Prevent Era of Lawlessness, FBI Chief Says; Expects Vets to Demand Order.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street NW, Washington, D. C.

Will there be a postwar crime wave in the United States?

That question was put to the man who will have to deal with it if there is one—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. He threw the answer back on me—and on a lot of other people in these United States. Here it is:

Whether we have a postwar crime wave in the United States depends on how well we as a nation can reconvert. If we do have a period of lawlessness, it will in all probability be led by teen-agers. The returning veteran has it in his power to make or break such a crime wave.

That's not beating around the bush. Let's look at the facts, disturbing though they may be, as the FBI director laid them before me.

After the last war, he said, there grew up a lawlessness from which the United States has never been entirely free since. When the gangster era of the 20s and 30s was finally broken up there was some decline in criminal tendencies. Nevertheless, just before World War II began in Europe crime was still very much with us—in fact, the United States had 11 times more cases of murder and manslaughter than England and Wales.

With our entry into the war, crimes increased, the emphasis on type changing from crimes against property to crimes against the person—murder, assault, rape and the like. On V-J Day a major crime was being committed every 23 seconds in the United States. One person in every 22 in this country had been arrested at some time or other.

New Crop of Criminals Teen-Agers

Perhaps the most ominous single factor about the picture which we start the postwar years is that the most frequent criminals in the United States today are boys and girls 17 years of age.

Director Hoover explained why this has come about. These teen-agers have been maturing in a period of great political, economic and social upheaval. As they were entering the critically formative years for them in the beginning teens, fathers and big brothers, to whom they might have looked for guidance, left home to enter the armed services. Mothers frequently had to take jobs which kept them away from home, leaving boys and girls to their own social and recreational devices.

Frequently, families pulled up roots and moved to teeming industrial centers in other parts of the country where jobs could be had in war plants. Normal living was impossible under such overcrowded conditions. There was a general spirit of wartime abandon which impressionable youth was not long in catching—lack of discipline, lack of personal responsibility, became the accepted thing. A "war hero" attitude developed in many of those too young to "join up."

Then teen-age boys and girls found that because of the manpower shortage they could stop school and take jobs where they would make more money than some of their elders did before the war. Coming suddenly onto what seemed sudden wealth, and of their own making, found them unprepared to use it wisely.

"We have been developing a generation of money-rich and character-poor Americans."

While we had our attention on the far-flung battlefronts the foundation was being laid for one of our major postwar problems on the home front.

There is another condition that has been a breeding ground for lawlessness during the war, according to Hoover, and which may spread if crime detection and law enforcement do not keep ahead of it.

"Gangsterism has been showing signs of revival during the war," he said. "There have been gang wars in places where they used to thrive. Hijacking, shakedown rackets, black markets and bootleg have been on the increase."

Therefore, the groundwork has been laid for a new era of Dillingers. Then there are the returning veterans. Because of their peculiar training, will they present a new band of criminals efficiently trained in taking life and appropriating property that does not belong to them?

Vets Desire Orderly Community

On this subject, Director Hoover issued an emphatic "No!" Here is his reasoning:

"Of course, soldiers are trained to kill—but so are we of the FBI and so are police officers. But no man of the FBI has ever been arrested for a crime of violence. There will be criminals among the returning veterans, it is true—criminals who will operate more efficiently than they would have if they hadn't had army training. But these are the men who probably would have been criminals anyway if they had remained civilians. After all, the army is only a cross-section of the American people. Of course, the real criminals never got into the army—their records were too bad.

"I expect the returning veteran to be a big help to us in combatting crime," Hoover went on. "The boys who are returning from the battlefields have seen so much of destruction, horror, disease, the dangers of dictatorship that they are anxious to see their communities get back to normal, peaceful ways. They are more interested in their homes and civil affairs. They want law and order over here."

The FBI expects the veterans to be a major influence on the criminal tendencies of the teen-agers.

"If the big brothers and fathers coming back settle down into jobs or go back to school, they can show the younger boys and girls how to be good citizens. The youngsters look up to these men as heroes—they can be a strong influence on them."

But the responsibility for leading the teen-agers aright does not rest solely on the veterans—nor alone on the agencies of law enforcement.

"The question of crime among our youth cannot be pawned off on a few juvenile courts, overburdened juvenile bureaus, and the local police," Director Hoover declared. "These agencies can help materially, but the big job is getting every parent, business man, school teacher, salesman, farmer, mechanic, housewife, and every other forward-looking citizen to knuckle down to the two-fold realization that this is their job and it is up to them to do something about it."

But no matter what is done to try to meet a crime situation that now has a potentiality for great evil in this country, there is one thing which Hoover believes will determine in the long run whether it will be law or lawlessness from here on.

"Whether or not we have a postwar crime wave will depend in the last analysis on how we as a nation convert to a peacetime basis," Director Hoover announced emphatically. "You can't divorce economics from crime. Although it is true that having money does not necessarily prevent a person from committing a crime, not having money is a definite cause of it. When people are out of work, there is a greater chance for them to get into trouble than when they are employed."

"If the Republicans don't look out, this guy Truman is going to pick up some votes right out from under their noses, he's so darned human," a political wisecracker whispered to me at the Press Club party by Byron Price.

We were watching the President mingle with the guests, obviously enjoying himself.

Just then a colleague of mine on the weekly press came up. His face was wreathed in smiles.

"Guess what," he exclaimed. "I just said to the President 'I'm from Kansas City' and what do you think he said? 'That's a suburb of a certain city, isn't it?'"

And my friend, who has been a Republican since he can remember and especially so in the last 12 years, is beginning to think that "this guy Truman" is all right.

When the party was breaking up the President was heard to observe with a broad Missouri grin that he was having as good a time as he did when he was at the Press Club last. That time he was still vice president and his picture was taken playing the piano with movie star Lauren Bacall perched atop it.

At That, the City Chap Wasn't Doing So Bad!

A city chap was fishing on the banks of a stream for several hours without as much as a nibble, when a country lad approached and asked, "How many fish ya got, Mister?"

To which the angler replied, "None, as yet."

"How long ya been fishin'?" asked the boy.

"Oh, I guess a couple of hours."

"That ain't bad," observed the boy. "There was a feller fished here for two weeks and he didn't get any more than you did in a couple hours."

And the fisherman could but remark, "You don't say!"

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

"TEA CUP SURRENDER" UNIQUE IN HISTORY

WASHINGTON. — The accounts say that when we landed the Japanese met us with an invitation to a cup of tea. The surrender has thus become known as "the Tea Cup Surrender." Not with swords exchanged, this time. Not with an initial laying down of arms. But with two weeks of delay after terms were drawn, and a proffer of tea. This will make the end of the Pacific war unique in history. The tea incidentally, was rejected.

General MacArthur

There has been some talk here, but no alarm, about the 14 days' grace General MacArthur granted. The word was passed around through Washington, that he thought they probably needed that much time to adjust their people from the war propaganda line which had concealed from them even the news of the atomic bomb. Unless they had been granted time to change their home front to the facts of the situation, MacArthur thought there might be trouble in the occupation. His word has been accepted even in the quarters of congress where you might expect suspicion.

The hiatus nevertheless gave the Jap officials time to whip up more than a cup of tea in their own interests. They could destroy every record in the nation of interest to foreigners. They could organize their underground for what the emperor told all Asiatics was a "temporary condition" of defeat. They could plan their whole inner campaign for the occupation. Perhaps I am overly suspicious in believing this was their primary objective, but I do believe it. My defense is that my fault, and the fault of this nation up to now, has been that we did not suspect the Japs enough. What has proved true of Japan in the past has always been beyond our worst suspicions (witness the Pearl Harbor reports).

Emperor Hirohito

Yet it is plain there should be no early cause for alarm. We went in with enough power to handle any traps. And Japan, now, has suddenly become a small nation, a very small nation. The single point in the surrender terms which limited Japan to her homeland was the greatest guarantee of peace in the impending future. She was never powerful at home where she is short in raw materials and could not possibly build power. It was her East Asiatic expansion program which gave her the resources with which to make war against us.

As far as I can learn she has no uranium and no atomic bomb formula. If she developed these things she could cause trouble and no doubt she will cause as much trouble as her limited perimeter permits. This thought may well have lain unspoken in President Truman's mind when he excused his proposed 18-25 draft with the suggestion that, of course, we might have trouble in the Pacific.

JAPAN OUR RESPONSIBILITY
Now Japan has become our responsibility. China and Russia have settled their Asiatic mainland differences, at least to the extent of a presently peaceable working agreement. The Pacific peace is therefore on an entirely different plane than the settlement in Europe.

We have nothing on the Asiatic continent, but have taken the islands of the Pacific and the Japanese homeland, presumably intending to withdraw eventually when peace is restored, but keeping island bases we consider essential to our military safety (either under the trusteeship system through the United Nations, or by actual direct control as recently recommended by a house committee).

On the mainland are only Russia and China, as major influences there on the ground. Through Singapore, India and Indo China, the British and French are present to an extent.

DDT Is a Boon And Boomerang

Kills Not Only Mosquitoes, Flies, but Birds and Fish, Tests Show.

CHICAGO. — DDT, the war-developed insecticide, is proving to be both a boon and a boomerang, says the Associated Press.

It is killing mosquitoes and flies, but it is killing birds and fish, too. These intended and unintended results are being noted in tests now underway in forest, farm and marsh areas around the country, tests which make it clear that DDT must be used with great care.

A progress report on current experiments was obtained in an interview with Dr. Clarence Cottam, chief of the division of wildlife research of the interior department's fish and wildlife service.

"DDT is effective against most types of insects," he said. "It is highly effective against flies and mosquitoes. Where properly used, it also will have great value in the control of field insects."

Hits Fish and Birds.
"But it will kill a lot of things we don't want killed. Our studies show that five pounds per acre in a forest will either kill birds or drive them out. More than one-half pound per acre is damaging to fish, turtles and frogs. DDT is effective against bees."

"It kills beneficial insects as well as obnoxious insects. Therefore, it should be used with understanding, intelligence and caution. DDT has great potential use, but it will be a boon only if properly used. If used in excess, it will be like scalping to cure dandruff. It will do more harm than good."

During the war scientists watched the chemical used in checking typhus at Naples and to destroy disease-carrying flies, mosquitoes and lice in other war zones. They too figured that it could be harmful as well as helpful if handled indiscriminately.

Last spring the fish and wildlife service joined in experiments designed to determine the smallest amounts of DDT that could be used effectively against pests without destroying desirable or economically important forms of life.

Shown by Tests.
The Patuxent wildlife research refuge in Maryland, a 2,600-acre reservation, became one of the proving grounds.

An airplane strewed the compound over a 117-acre tract there on the basis of two pounds per acre. The drifting spray killed fish in pits 150 to 200 yards away from the test area.

Dr. Cottam reported that DDT can control certain forest insects but it also eliminates insects on which birds feed. The department of agriculture's bureau of entomology, he added, recommends that the insecticide be used on a small scale in wooded sectors and be restricted in such cases to no more than a half pound per acre. Preliminary observations, he said, indicated that it is effective against mosquitoes in doses as small as one-tenth of a pound per acre.

Still without answers are these questions: When the chemical remains in water, will it have a cumulative effect on such delicacies as ducks, oysters, clams and crabs?

What effect will it have in agricultural districts on necessary soil bacteria?

Casualties of War Rise To Total of 1,070,819

WASHINGTON. — With reports still to come in, combat casualties of the war announced by the armed forces have now reached 1,070,819. The army recently reported its casualties, as received here through August 21, as 923,481. The latest navy report was 147,338.

The aggregate represented an increase of 681 since the last report. Navy casualties actually declined by 43 as a result of revisions and shifts in the wounded, missing and prisoner of war classifications.

The services will continue to announce casualty figures until the final reports have been received.

A breakdown on army casualties and corresponding figures for the last report follow:

Killed 199,656 and 199,183; wounded 571,179 and 570,997; missing 33,543 and 33,653; prisoners 119,103 and 118,924.

The decline in the number of missing resulted from transfers to other categories. The war department said that 357,414 of the wounded have returned to duty and 96,521 of the prisoners have been exchanged or returned to military control.

Similar figures for the navy: Killed 53,229 and 52,963; wounded 80,039 and 80,171; missing 10,426 and 10,553; prisoners 3,644 and 3,694.

American Farmers to Continue High Production Goals in Satisfying Demands of the Entire World

Peacetime Need for Products Assures Farmers of Good Market and Price.

What will the impact of war's end mean to American agriculture?

That question has been raised with increasing frequency ever since Hirohito accepted President Truman's unconditional surrender terms and the Jap hordes have laid down their arms. It has brought in its train other questions: Will a farm slump occur? Will continued vast production smash prices? Will transition to peacetime schedules upset farm economy?

Three fairly definite answers have emerged and each is hearteningly reassuring to everyone who lives on or near a farm:

1. Demand for foods, fibers and oils will continue to require a high rate of farm production. The world must eat and American farmers must feed it.

2. Farm prices will not be deflated. The government has already guaranteed the farmer support prices for many of his products for one or two years after the war.

3. The farmer, unlike industry, is not faced with reconversion problems. His job is growing crops and he needs no different set of tools to accomplish his objectives.

All of these factors eliminate the possibility of a sudden crash in farm income.

Farm economists are agreed there will be no immediate cutback in production despite the end of the war. In the months to come, domestic and military needs of the United States plus the relief demands from liberated areas in Europe and the Pacific will take all the food this nation can produce.

With vast areas of Europe and Asia laid waste, American farmers will be called on to produce and keep on producing. It may be years before the ravaged countries can come back anywhere near to normal. In the meantime American farmers have a big job ahead to help keep whole continents alive and healthy. During this same time the United States itself must be fed.

As demobilization of our armed forces proceeds, there will be less need for the various services to have great stocks of food in reserve. That will tend to increase civilian supplies as well as permit better distribution.

No Major Farm Surplus.
With industrial reconversion getting the green light, the dislocation of workers caused by war contract cutbacks may be of much shorter duration than has been anticipated. That means more peacetime civilian jobs. One thing the war demonstrated was that if the entire nation is at work, there is no major farm surplus problem.

The greatest crops in history have been produced during the war. The record year was 1942. Next was 1944 and indications are that this year will exceed 1943, so that 1945 may be the third best.

Credit for this epic achievement must go to the nation's farmers, but the contribution of the fertilizer industry should not be overlooked. Agricultural authorities estimate that more than 20 per cent of the crop production in the war years has been due to the use of fertilizers. The use of plant foods has been of essential importance to the food production program because it has enabled farmers to produce bigger crops on existing acres instead of having to plow up millions of acres of additional farm land. The saving in labor, equipment and man hours has been enormous.

Farm income during recent years has passed the peaks reached during and immediately after World War I. Prices are now near or above parity. Even if prices should come down to government-support levels—a drop of perhaps 15 per cent below present peaks—farm purchasing power will be enormous. The farmer has a higher amount to spend out of his income than other wage earners, for the reason that less of his income is required for rent, food and fuel than is the case with city dwellers. Six million farm families comprising approximately 30 million people having a gross income in excess of 20 billion dollars a year will be a factor of tremendous importance to America's peacetime economy.

The war production of garden crops reached a new high. The demand will continue for some time. New varieties, improved soil fertilization and new equipment will aid the farmer in repeating his record production of these crops.

Farmer in Strong Position.
Just as significant as agriculture's high income rate in recent years is the fact that the farmer has been laying aside a good portion of his savings in war bonds to spend for essentials in years to come. Clearly the farmer has emerged from the war in a stronger position than he was at its start.

To maintain that position the farmer should do some straight thinking and planning. Two things are especially important: 1—He should avoid overexpansion through the purchase of additional land in the peace years ahead; 2—He should make immediate plans to repair the damage to his soil's fertility level which the vast war crop production quotas have caused.

The experience of the last war with its farm land boom and subsequent collapse should be a reminder that the American farmer should not go in for more land than he can successfully handle. Farm land prices have already risen dangerously toward inflation levels. Farsighted agricultural authorities are urging farmers to "keep their shirts on" and steer clear of the pitfalls of land speculation.

Better soil management methods on a well-equipped and economically operated farm will prove safer in the long run than vast fields without efficient management.

The key to successful farming operations in postwar years will lie in increasing the per acre yield on existing crop land rather than in bringing additional acreage under cultivation, a recent statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee pointed out.

"In months to come the emphasis will be on reducing the cost of crop production per unit," the statement sets forth. "That means making every acre do a better crop producing job."

"In every community there are farmers who increased their wartime crop output as high as 50 per cent, without increasing the cultivated area by one single acre. In every case the larger yield was the result of adopting good soil fertility practices. The experience of these farmers can be profitably followed by their neighbors in their peacetime operations. Their soil-conserving methods not only prevented waste of fertility, but actually have helped restore it."

"Such methods include growing legumes to enrich the soil's nitrogen and organic matter supply, the use of adequate quantities of mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, liming, contour plowing and a limiting, so far as possible, of soil-depleting crops."

Soil Fertility Replenishment.
The matter of soil fertility replenishment will have an important bearing on the peacetime continuation of farm prosperity. If the nation's farms are to be kept productive, a vast soil-rebuilding job lies immediately ahead.

How important this is may be understood from a recent report issued by the Soil Conservation service of the department of agriculture which estimated that nearly one billion acres—more than 90 per cent of the nation's farmlands—need soil conservation treatment to protect them from erosion and to maintain their fertility.

Wartime crop goals used up the soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash faster than they could be replaced in spite of the fact that the fertilizer industry broke all previous production records. Farmers have realized that this wartime drain on their soil's fertility level was a necessary contribution to victory. But the fact remains that wealth borrowed from the soil to help hasten peace must be repaid.

While every encouragement will be given to soil rebuilding projects by the federal government and by state agricultural agencies, the major responsibility for getting the job done will rest on the shoulders of individual farmers.

The effectiveness of the individual farmer's soil rebuilding program can be enhanced by the co-operation of agronomists at state agricultural colleges and experiment stations. Through research and experimentation over a long span of years, these experts have developed information concerning fertilizer needs for various crops and soils that is helpful to the farmer who is undertaking a replenishment program. The co-operation of the fertilizer industry will be an effective aid, also. The present plant capacity of manufacturers is sufficient to meet all peacetime needs of agriculture.

Farmers are more fortunately situated for accomplishing their soil-restoring job than at any time in the past generation. Dollars invested in war bonds, during the period when farm cash income has been at a high level and farm debt at a low point, can provide the ready cash to pay for the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash needed to build up the fertility level of America's soil.

Increased production of dairy and poultry products has been little short of a miracle. Better breeding, feeding and management has been the answer. Even greater results can be expected in the next few years.

WHEN Ann Sothern's 8-months-old daughter Patricia is old enough to aspire to fill her mother's shoes, she'll have a complete set of "Maisie" films and airshow recordings to study. Mama (who is Mrs. Robert Sterling in private life), has had each of her "Maisie" movies reduced to 16 mm. sound film for her daughter's library. And since she started the Wednesday night CBS radio series she's had special recordings made of each broadcast. Incidentally, the latest popularity rating of the "Maisie" broadcasts shows a marked increase over the previous survey—in fact, a gain of nearly 3,000,000 listeners in a single month!

fighter pilot with seven enemy planes to his credit, he's won plenty of decorations, among them the Distinguished Flying Cross with two stars and the Air Medal.

When you see Jose Iturbi dashing around on that motorcycle in "Anchors Aweigh" he's just being natural. He drives that same vehicle just that way around the studio all the time—and nobody'll ride with him, not for love, money, or even a new contract.

Una O'Connor, one of Hollywood's most versatile character actresses, makes a good bit of extra money each year by doing the crying for screen babies who refuse to wail when the director wants them to. She calls this extra-curricular profit "tear money" and invests it in war bonds. The voice of the weeping infant in "Christmas in Connecticut" is hers; she also has an on-stage role in the picture.

Those wise men of the motion picture industry, the exhibitors, voted this way in the Motion Picture Herald's annual poll to determine the stars of tomorrow: 1. Dane Clark; 2. Jeanne Crain; 3. Kennan Wynne; 4. Peggy Ann Garner; 5. Cornel Wilde; 6. Tom Drake; 7. Lon McCallister; 8. Diana Lynn; 9. Marilyn Maxwell; 10. William Eythe. That's a prophecy worth remembering.

Eleanor Parker of "Pride of the Marines," who'll have the feminine lead in "Humoresque," is regarded as the shyest star in Hollywood. Doesn't go to night clubs, doesn't show off at public functions, never attends a premiere of her own pictures unless completely disguised.

Tuesday night on NBC is dedicated to laughter. There's Amos 'n Andy at 9:00 p. m., E.P.T.; "A Date with Judy" precedes them, and a climax is reached with Fiber McGee and Molly following.

If you've ever wondered what the studio audience was laughing at, when listening to a broadcast, and felt annoyed because you couldn't share the fun, you'll agree with Kate Smith's manager, Ted Collins, who feels that too many radio stars play up to the studio audience, to the detriment of their radio performances. That's why Kate has eliminated studio audiences on her new Friday night series.

Danny O'Neil has been signed for his first network commercial series as star of the new Powder Box theater, beginning October 11, Thursday nights on CBS. The series replaces "Rhythm, Romance and Ripley." Evelyn Knight and Jim Ameche are also featured.

LOVE FOR GOD AND LOVE FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

"What shall I do?" The question of the lawyer in our lesson is a query which is on the lips or in the minds of millions of men and women each day. They want to do right and want to be right, but their lives lack the direction which only faith in God can give them.

The story of the Good Samaritan tell us what we must do to show our love for God and man, and gives a demonstration of how it is to be done.

I. What to Do (vv. 25-28).

The lawyer (a student of the law of Moses, and hence a theologian rather than an attorney) was posing a question to try to entrap Jesus. He was apparently not much concerned about eternal life and assumed that it could be obtained by doing something.

We know that eternal life is a gift (John 1:12; Rom. 6:23), but if the man wanted to have it by doing, Jesus was ready to meet him. In response to Jesus' question (v. 26), the lawyer gave Him what the Jews regarded as the summary of the whole law.

The man who can perfectly keep that law will have eternal life, declares Jesus. But note that you must do it, not just talk about it. And you must keep the whole law, "for whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is become guilty of all" James 2:10, R.V.; see also Gal. 3:10).

Observe that the commandment, so highly commended by our Lord, concerns a true love for God which shows in an active love for one's fellowman.

Love is the only thing that can save our bruised and bleeding world. How sad it is that in such an hour of need there is so little said in the church about love and it is practiced even less. It is the forgotten fundamental of all the fundamentals of faith! Let us begin to preach it and practice it!

II. How to Do It (vv. 29-37).

It is one thing to realize that one ought to do a thing; it is quite another thing to do it. Here we have what may have been an actual incident given by our Lord as an object lesson of the right and the wrong attitude toward a fellowman in need.

1. The Wrong Attitude (vv. 29-32).

The lawyer's effort to justify himself by diverting attention to the word "neighbor," which he felt needed definition, showed that he could not do the thing expected of him.

The one who seeing his sinfulness and his utter inability to keep God's law casts himself on the Lord is ready to receive the gift of eternal life. But the one who tries to defend his position and justify himself has shut the door on God's grace and mercy (see Luke 18:9-14).

The parable of the Good Samaritan answers fully and finally the question, "Who is my neighbor?" by making it clear that anyone who is in need, regardless of race, social position, condition or religion, is our neighbor.

The priest and the Levite doubtless had plenty of excuses for not helping the wounded man, but let us remember that excuses, while they may count with men, mean only our condemnation in the presence of God.

2. The Right Spirit.

It was the spirit of Christ that made the Samaritan show a compassionate and sacrificial interest in the needy man. Only Christ can make you and me like that. His love in the heart is the only "good neighbor program" that will ever work.

Statesmen, philosophers — yes, and the man in the street — of our day are looking hither and yon for an answer to the world's need. They all sense that we must have something great, and tender, and powerful to unite the hearts of men, or we shall soon be in conflict again. The next time we may well write civilization off the globe. What is the answer? Love! First, a real love for God, then love for our fellowmen of all nations. The answer to the world's awful problem is a revival of Christian faith; without it we perish.

Soldier's Stripe Taken From Ancient Heraldry

Why do American noncommissioned officers wear their stripes a different way from British noncommissioned officers? And which is the right way?

The soldier's stripe is borrowed from ancient Heraldry in which it was known as a chevron. The chevron represented the roof rafters, or the gable, of a house. It appeared on the coat of arms of a nobleman as the defender of his house. Later it became a mark of soldierly rank.

British noncommissioned officers wear the stripe "gable-down," so to speak, and Americans wear it "gable-up." There is no particular point in saying that one way is right and the other wrong; but the American way is the original chevron-way.

WORKS WONDERS FOR MRS. WILLIAMS

NASHVILLE, TENN.—A recent letter from Mrs. Johnny Williams of Nashville, Tennessee, to the Faultless Starch Company reveals an important time-saving ironing secret. Here is what Mrs. Williams wrote:

"For the past three years I have been doing my own laundering. Last week I decided to give Faultless Starch a trial. It certainly made my ironing easier and I finished in almost half the time. I shall never stop praising Faultless Starch; and I am telling all my friends about it. It sure worked wonders for me."

Would you like to save half your ironing time, like Mrs. Williams does? We certainly can't promise it, of course, because you surely iron with a different iron and in a different way—but, you can't lose anything by trying Faultless Starch. And it may help you save time, just as it has Mrs. Johnny Williams.

EASY, BEAUTIFUL IRONING There is an important reason why Faultless Starch makes ironing so easy. You see, Faultless Starch contains ironing-aids, already mixed in, that keep the iron from sticking. No more pushing or pulling at the end of each stroke. Your iron just slides along, smoothly and beautifully. No wonder Mrs. Williams found she could save half her ironing time.

YOU DESERVE FAULTLESS Why should you go on fighting a "sticky" iron, when Faultless Starch can make your ironing go so easy? Why "out" yourself out when Faultless Starch can help save your back, your arms, your legs? Why work so hard when Faultless Starch can make it so easy to do beautiful ironing?

Just ask your grocer for Faultless Starch—and use it. Then you'll know why Mrs. Williams says it "works wonders" for her. —Adv.

A Bell for Adano By John Hersey

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to replace the town bell stolen by the Nazis, and in other ways to build confidence among the people. He wanted to start the fishermen out again and arranged with Lieut. Livingston, senior naval officer, to open the waters to their boats. He allowed the carts to enter the city with food and water, despite orders from General Marvin that the carts be kept out of the city. Capt. Purvis reported to headquarters the cart orders given by the Major, by sending off the delayed letter to headquarters.

CHAPTER X

On the day that Mayor Nasta came down from the hills, Major Joppolo and Captain Purvis had just finished their pasta and were talking about the stuffy Navy fellow, Livingston, when they heard an unusual noise out in the street. There were shouts of anger, and whistles.

But the noise outside grew, and seemed to be coming up the street. And soon several of the idlers who had been listening to the radio in the restaurant ran out. As the noise grew still louder the two women picked up handfuls of fruit and ran out, pursued by their guests. Then the owner of the place and his wife and son ran out with their mouths full of pasta and eggplant.

Finally Major Joppolo said: "Let's go see what it is." So he and Captain Purvis ran out too, with their napkins in their hands.

This is what they saw: Up the center of the street a forlorn looking man walked. He was very short, and rather heavy-set. His clothes were dirty and torn. His shoes were covered with dust. His face was very sad, and he walked slowly, hanging his head. There was only one proud touch to his whole figure, and that was a pair of pince-nez spectacles balanced on his big nose.

Behind the man, keeping a safe distance as if there still might be some dynamite in him, a large crowd walked, shouting and whistling its derision. The derision was ten times louder than it would otherwise have been because this was the first time the people of Adano had ever been able to express their feelings toward this man. Even behind their own closed doors they had held their tongues about Mayor Nasta in the past, because he seemed to have ears in every house, and his eyes peered in every window, and his punishments were sadistic.

But now they shouted what they thought. "Fascist Pig," they shouted. This was what they shouted most.

But they also shouted: "The murderer always goes back to the scene of his crime!"

They also shouted: "Where is Mayor Nasta's whip now?"

Curiously the two women shouted, and there was a kind of pride in the way they shouted.

There was a priest in the crowd, and he shouted: "Blasphemer!"

There were some children in the crowd, and they ran along shouting: "Pig! Pig! Pig!"

The anger of the mob bordered on violence. When the unhappy Mayor got opposite the Albergo dei Pescatori one of the women raised her arm and threw a plum at him. It missed him and splashed in the street.

A boy of twelve threw a stone. Then several bricks flew, and the shouts of long repressed hatred became shrieks of revenge.

Captain Purvis looked at Major Joppolo and Major Joppolo said: "We've got to put a stop to this."

Captain Purvis was not a subtle American, but he was a brave one. He ran out in the street between Mayor Nasta and the crowd. He held up his hand and shouted: "Stop! Stop! you ignorant fools!" The crowd kept coming. A stone flew past Captain Purvis toward Mayor Nasta.

Captain Purvis pulled his pistol out of his pocket. That was enough. The ones in front held back the others, and the mob halted in the street. Captain Purvis went back to the sidewalk.

Mayor Nasta, seeing that he was saved, ran over to his deliverers, and he stood in the gutter blubbering his thanks. "Americans! Oh, my friends. Thank you for saving me from these ungrateful people. I have served them for years and see how they behave. I am all alone, Americans. I have been in the hills all alone for days. No one would stay with me. All the others gave themselves up. I have thought everything over. I wish to help you if I can. . . ." And he rattled on, his voice going higher and higher. Someone in the mob shouted:

"Mister Major, if you help that man you are not our friend."

Major Joppolo acted quickly to save the situation. He walked into the street and held up his hand for silence; he was careful to make it his left hand, so that it would not be mistaken for a Fascist salute.

"Go home, people. I will take care of this man as he deserves. He is under arrest."

And the Major said quickly to Captain Purvis in English. "Arrest him, Purvis, show this gang that you're arresting him."

This was the kind of thing Captain Purvis enjoyed, and as he clapped his hand heavily on Mayor Nasta's shoulder he shouted: "I wish I understood Eytalian. This is wonderful."

The crowd broke up slowly, mumbling its protests at being deprived of revenge.

Purvis said: "Who is this little squirt, anyway? They sure hate him, don't they?"

Major Joppolo said: "He's the one who used to be Mayor."

"Oh, he is, is he? Well, according to what Borth says, they've got plenty of reason to hate him." And the Captain kicked Mayor Nasta in the seat of the pants simply because he didn't know the Italian for: "You're a little squirt."

Mayor Nasta whimpered in Italian: "What are you going to do with me? If you are going to kill me, please tell me first. Don't shoot me from behind."

What Major Joppolo did with Mayor Nasta was to take him up to his office. Everyone, even little Zito who had once worked for Mayor Nasta, even D'Arpa, the weasel-like vice mayor who had once worked with him, everyone made faces of disgust when they saw Mayor Nasta, and some made obscene remarks within his hearing.

When word passed around the Palazzo that Mayor Nasta was back, many people stuck their heads in the door at the end of the Major's office, which had once been the Mayor's office, to have a look at him in his disheveled condition, and to laugh at him to his face.

"Well, what is it that you wish?" Major Joppolo said.

Mayor Nasta brushed his hand along the wood of the desk pathetically, and he said: "It seems strange to be sitting on the wrong side of this desk."

Major Joppolo said: "It may seem stranger to sit on the wrong side of the bars of your municipal jail. What do you want?"

Mayor Nasta rearranged the pince-nez on his nose, but he did not look Major Joppolo in the eye as he said: "I just want a chance, Mister Major."

"You want a chance?" Major Joppolo spoke angrily. "To whom did you ever give a chance?"

"I have thought it over," Mayor Nasta said. "I have been all alone for days. It was awful at night. I have thought it over, Mister Major. I want to help if I can."

"How many years were you in office?"

"Nine, Mister Major." "After nine years in office, you have thought it all over, have you? After nine years of graft and stealing and keeping these people down, you've thought it over, you want to help, do you?"

"You have other Fascists in office here. I saw the face of D'Arpa a minute ago. I saw Tagliavia who was my Maresciallo of Finance. I saw Gargano of the Carabinieri. If you could use these, why not Nasta, the Mayor?"

"I have a new Mayor, and a better one."

This hurt. "Who is this Mayor?" "Bellana the Notario, an honest man, much more honest than the former Mayor."

And the former Mayor said: "Yes, Bellana is honest. But surely you have something for Nasta to do? I would accept something less than Mayor." Nasta rubbed the wood of the desk wistfully. "There is not much left of the old Nasta," he said. "I would accept something less than Mayor."

Major Joppolo's eyes grew angry. He stood up abruptly. "Oh, you would, would you? Yes, I have something for you to do. You are to report every morning to Sergeant Borth of the American Army. You will find him in the Fascio. That is all you have to do each day. But see that you do it, Nasta, or you will be put in jail."

"You mean that Nasta has become a common probationer?"

"Oh, so Nasta is familiar with the practice of putting people on probation? That is very genteel of you, Nasta. I thought all your punishments were more ingenious than that."

"Please be generous with me," Nasta said. "Please give me some work to do."

"Generous? Nasta, what do you expect? For the crimes you have committed against the people of Adano, you deserve to be shot outright, without a trial. You certainly never would give a fair trial, unless it brought you some kind of profit. I am being more than generous. I am putting you on probation. See that you behave, you Fascist."

Mayor Nasta was obsequious now. "Yes, Mister Major," he said. "What did you say was the name of the American officer to whom I must report?"

"His name is Borth, and he is not an officer. He is a sergeant. You are not worth an officer, Nasta."

"Yes, Mister Major."

This is how it happened that Mayor Nasta reported once every morning to Sergeant Borth at the Fascio. Because four or five people followed the Mayor everywhere he went out of curiosity and hatred, there was a small audience on hand the next morning when he reported to Sergeant Borth for the first time. The audience enjoyed what it saw and heard, for this kind of situation was meat for Sergeant Borth, who thought the whole war was a joke.

The tattered Nasta stepped into one of the M.P. offices, rearranged his pince-nez, and said: "Where will I find the Sergeant Borth?"

"I am Borth."

"I am Nasta."

"Oho," roared Sergeant Borth. He stood up, rubbing his hands. "So you are the Mayor. I understand that you have come to Adano to repent your sins. Is that right, noble Mayor?"

"I was told that I was to report here each morning. I was to report, not be humiliated, Sergeant."

"You will call me Mister Sergeant."

Mayor Nasta snorted, from his long habit of snorting.

Borth said sharply: "Listen, Nasta, I know more about you than you know about yourself. You be careful how you behave here. Now, answer my questions civilly. Is it correct that you came to Adano to repent your sins?"

Mayor Nasta was white with anger, but he said: "I suppose you might say so."

"Thank you," Borth said with exaggerated politeness. "In that case you will repent one sin each morning when you report to Sergeant Borth. Would you like to choose your own sins, or would you like Sergeant Borth to choose them for you?"

Mayor Nasta couldn't keep himself from snorting.

"I see," said Borth, with his over-politeness, "you would like Borth to choose. Very well, let's see. This morning we will discuss the sin of your disgraceful running away from your post in the face of the American invasion. What is this sin called, Mayor Nasta?"

"What do you mean, what is it called?"

"You are at a loss for words? Very well, Borth will answer his own question. It is called the sin of cowardice."

Mayor Nasta snorted. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Robot Has Repertoire of 3,000 Tunes for Zither

Probably the most incredible robot ever made in this country is a life-sized figure of the Egyptian goddess Isis, a recent invention of Dr. Cecil Nixon of San Francisco, says Collier's. Isis reclines on a couch containing her mechanism which is comprised of 370 electromagnets, 1,187 wheels, 2,233 sections of wire and a score of other secret gadgets.

With a pick on one finger of each hand, for plucking the strings of the zither on her lap, the lady plays any one of 3,000 tunes requested of her by any person within 12 feet, her machinery being set in motion by the vibrations of the human voice.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

A U. S. Senator traveling in the West stopped to help a young lady change a flat tire. The flat developed a friendship that blossomed into marriage.

Soap's one of the important manufacturing agents of synthetic rubber. B. F. Goodrich has developed a synthetic rubber using a resin soap derived from Southern pine trees that is a great improvement over ordinary synthetic.

Demand for passenger car tires will total about 70,000,000 casings in the first year after the war—for both new cars and replacements.

Ardent Bogota Sport Fans Douse Fallen Toreador

When the umpire calls a bad one at the baseball game, you could wish you were in Bogota, capital of Colombia, South America.

In Bogota the principal sport is bullfighting. If the toreador doesn't please the bootblacks—who are the most ardent bull-ring fans in the city—the boys rush into the arena and take the fallen hero to a nearby fountain where he is properly cooled off.

Tomatoes, Mushrooms, Eggs and Rice Cakes Make Good Lunch

A tomato treat that's hard to beat is this one in which cottage cheese is used for stuffing. Frilly sandwiches can be made by spreading thinly sliced bread with mayonnaise, seasoning the lettuce and rolling up the bread.

Lunch is often one of the most neglected meals of the day because the whole family is not at home to eat it. Then, too, many homemakers feel they just don't want to bother fixing something palatable and attractive.

But, let's look at it this way. Lunch, according to nutritionists, should contain at least one-third to one-half the day's calories, and the proper balance of proteins, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals.

This doesn't mean that you have to spend a lot of time preparing this noon-day snack, because, chances are, there are plenty of things in the refrigerator, ready to be made into satisfying, nourishing lunches.

Now that food rationing has eased, it might be a good idea to invite friends in for a quick lunch; or, better still, have a plan whereby you invite four to six people over for noon-time, and then have everyone take turns having each other to luncheon. It's a neighborly way, and you will be sure to get into better luncheon habits this way.

Here is a colorful salad plate that makes a quick and easy lunch. It looks pretty, too, on gay, informal plates.

Stuffed Tomato Salad Plate. (Serves 6)
6 large tomatoes
½ pound cottage cheese
1 cup chopped cucumber
3 tablespoons real mayonnaise
Parsley
Scallions
Lettuce rolls

Section tomatoes to within ¼ inch from bottom. Mix cottage cheese, cucumber and real mayonnaise. Fill tomatoes. Serve with scallions and lettuce rolls. The rolls are made by spreading thinly sliced white bread with mayonnaise and then placing a lettuce leaf on each slice. Sprinkle this with salt and pepper. Roll up and fasten with a toothpick.

Occasionally we all have some leftover rice in the refrigerator, possibly after a chop suey dinner the night before. What about crispy, golden brown rice cakes for lunch, served with apricot jam or marmalade, and some spinach made delectable with a cream sauce. There you have nourishment plus in addition to a colorful and contrasting menu.

Rice Cakes. (Serves 6)
2 cups cooked rice (½ cup uncooked)
1 beaten egg
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 teaspoon sugar

Hints for the Home: Sugar bags make good dishcloths. Cut, hem and launder before using.

A dishwashing apron is easy to make out of oil cloth. Cut to pattern, bind the edges and you will have a water-resistant apron.

Old pillow cases are excellent for protecting the tops of clothes while they hang in the closet. Use this tip for putting away out-of-season clothes.

Odd bits of linoleum make nice covers for kitchen or laundry table and may even be used as shelf covering.

Old socks are excellent for applying wax to furniture; they may be used for cleaning silverware, too.

If you are crowded for space, build a blanket bin across the narrow end of a hall, underneath the windows. This is good to use in storing clothes, too. Fold the latter in clean tissue paper to prevent wrinkling.

Mix all ingredients together in order given. Drop by spoonfuls onto hot, greased griddle. Sauté until golden brown on each side, turning only once.

Swiss Spinach.
Into 2 cups of finely chopped spinach, blend ½ cup very thick, well-seasoned white sauce (flavored with onion and a dash of nutmeg), just enough to hold spinach together.

Country Omelet. (Serves 5)

2 cups diced, cooked potatoes
3 slices bacon
¼ cup minced onion
4 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons top milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Brown potatoes, bacon and onion together in a frying pan. Cool. Beat egg yolks slightly, add milk, salt, pepper and chopped parsley. Beat whites until stiff and fold into egg yolk mixture. Heat frying pan, add 2 tablespoons shortening into the pan. Pour in egg mixture. Cook over low heat until lightly browned on bottom (about 15 minutes). Brown top slightly under broiler and serve.

There's a surprise in store with mushrooms de luxe that will make guests ask for more. An all vegetable luncheon like this is served with a smooth, creamy mayonnaise sauce made by mixing mayonnaise and milk and heating together.

An easy, point-free luncheon is made with mushrooms and served with vegetables. It takes only about 20 minutes to bake.

Mushrooms De Luxe. (Serves 6)
12 large mushrooms
¾ cup dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1½ tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1½ teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
½ cup real mayonnaise
½ cup milk

Wash mushrooms, remove stems and chop. Mix chopped stems, bread crumbs, green pepper, onion, parsley and seasonings. Brown in 2 tablespoons of the mayonnaise. Fill mushroom caps. Bake in a moderately hot (400-degree) oven 20 minutes, or until tender. Serve with vegetables and mayonnaise sauce, made by heating remaining mayonnaise with ½ cup milk and cooking until smooth. This is cooked over low heat, stirring constantly, 5 minutes or until hot.

AROUND THE HOUSE

A piece of umbrella rib that has an eye in it can be filed to a point and used as an upholstering needle.

It's a good idea to cover labels on medicine bottles with a coat of colorless nail polish. Then should medicine spill over the labels, directions won't smear.

Alternate your shoes. Keep two pairs in use. Keep the shoes clean. Shine the leather regularly, and replace heel lifts promptly, before they wear through.

A gum eraser is excellent for removing spots from dark suede accessories. Brush thoroughly after using.

A geranium leaf dropped in a jar before pouring in apple jelly will help flavor it.

Before letting yourself in for a long siege of sewing, see that at least two bobbins are filled with the kind of thread you need. Then when the thread in one gives out, you have thread on the other to replace it.

Garden Flowers for Gay, Cozy Kitchen

IT IS all a myth that your new kitchen must be cold and clinical. It may be as gay and cozy as you like and your modern equipment will settle right down and be perfectly at home. So, if you have ever wished that you could have bright flowers on your cupboard doors, drawer fronts and canisters, go right ahead.

These garden posies are of the type used in all peasant art—simple in design, gay in color. All you have to do is to trace the outlines from the pattern and then fill them in following the color guide. You may want to use them for decorating tin trays, boxes and gifts for Christmas '50. AMERICAN HEROES

by WOODY COWAN

A LIBERTY SHIP has been named for James G. Squires of Everett, Mass., second cook on the torpedoed S. S. Malantic, and a Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal awarded posthumously. Squires clung to a rope thrown to the life boat in which he, the ship's master and nine other crewmen floated on rough seas until the other ten were safe on a British rescue craft after the torpedoing. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness and was swept away. Investment in Victory Bonds to support living heroes is a testimonial, too, to such men.

Mad Dogs and Wagging Tongues

The county had a "mad dog" scare last week. Phoebe Token's spaniel bit the postman, and he vowed that he was plenty mad about it.

But by the time the rumor got around, it wasn't the postman who was mad, it was the dog. And before the truth was learned, half the kids in the neighborhood had missed school, while their mothers nearly died of fright.

Wagging tongues can cause a lot of "mad dog" trouble. Like wagging tongues that gossip about our soldiers drinking too much around Army camps. It's just not true, as the government found out and told us. Milk and beer are among a soldier's favorite drinks which is why we have the best behaved army in history. But those ugly rumors are bound to hurt morale and cause hard feeling.

From where I sit, wagging tongues can cause a heap more trouble than mad dogs.

Hope School News Items

The classes in high school decided to have a popular girl contest to raise money to buy black and orange jackets for the basket ball boys. The following were elected candidate:—Seniors, Betty Jo Fowler and Eva Newsom; Juniors, Earlene Paxton and Lenora Munson; Sophomores, Marynette Seeley and Jeanette Terry; Freshmen, Christine Clements and Ruth Potter. The names of the winners will be announced Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The following made the high school honor roll for the first six weeks with an average of a "B" grade. Betty Jo Fowler, Dick Terry, Howard Forister, Madie Wasson, Helen Farmwalt, Delma Joy, Ruth Ellen Newbill, Glenn L. Stevenson, Jeanette Terry, Elta Chalk, Betty Zane Teague and Wilma Jo Young.

Hope vs Weed Tonite

The Hope Yellowjackets will open the 1945-46 basketball season here Friday night with Weed. Weed is reported to have a big team made of tough mountain boys. However the Hope boys are out to win and you will miss something if you don't come. A preliminary game between two Hope teams will be played at 7:00 p. m. and the Weed game at 8:00 o'clock. The officials will be Brown and Ratcliff of Artesia. The Yellowjackets will be decked out in their new orange and black jackets.

Popular Girl Contest

The popular girl contest is progressing nicely with Marynette Seeley a sophomore in the lead and Earlene Paxton a junior a close second.

The movies for Wednesday, Oct. 31 is as follows: The Ghost Walks—Apeing Hollywood—The Villian Pursues Her. The show begins at 7:30

HISTORY OF THE FRESHMAN INITIATION

By Bettye Zan Teague

The morning of Thursday October 4, 1945, people probably saw some of the high school pupils going to school wearing housecoats, evening gowns and short pants. This was a great day in the lives of the Freshmen for they were being initiated into high school by the sophomores.

That morning when they arrived at school the president of the Sophomore class, Alfred Dee, stopped them on the first landing of the stairs and inspected the girls dresses to see if they were less than ten inches from the floor, if they were wearing an onion necklace, if they had on any make-up, and if their shoes were not mates.

Not a single Freshman was absent that day but they knew better than to be. Lillian wore an old housecoat of some kind, Ruth and Wilma Jo had on evening gowns, Elta had a pully bone from a chicken in her hair and Edith's bone was so big she could hardly carry it on her head. The boys looked rather queer with short pants, bow ties, T shirts, their hair parted down the middle and wearing make-up.

When the last bell rang, everyone went to the studyhall. The freshmen had to wait until all the upper-classmen were in the studyhall before they could enter. Mr. Moore usually makes some announcements every morning. Having done this he said, "I think we have some visitors this morning. Will they please come to the front of the room?" With no more encouragement the freshmen went to the front so everybody could see them.

When assembly was over they were supposed to go to algebra. They had to wait until everybody had left the study hall before they could go to algebra. And then, some of the freshmen had to carry upper-classmen's books to class. While they were having algebra, the boys legs got cold from sitting in cold seats so they wanted to go a warmer room. That is where a lot of the freshmen

Combat Veterans Are Bitter at Strikes; Men in Los Angeles Call Tie-Ups Wanton

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—The men who won the peace for the United States, coming from fox holes, from ship decks and from the skies, are coming home to find their country in the throes of widespread strikes and they are bitter about it.

In a survey in which service men were selected at random in various public gathering places they expressed disgust with the situation in emphatic terms.

Master Technical Sgt. Russell McCollom of the Marine Corps and a resident of Chicago, declared:

"These people don't know what they're striking for. What do they mean '52-40 or fight'? There was no overtime pay there. And there wasn't any forty-hour week. They were dreary months at low pay instead. Is this what we fought for?"

"It looks to me like our Government is not being operated from Washington. It looks like it's being run from the CIO headquarters."

Chief Yeoman Joe Boyle, a former office worker for the Texaco Oil Company here, asked:

"Don't these strikers know that what they're asking for is not a raise in pay with fewer hours, but inflation? Overtime pay, shorter hours! I would have liked to have had some of them with me when I was in the service. I would not once, either torial heat. And there were no squawks, either!"

Pfc. William Howell of Detroit, veteran of a year's fighting in France, Germany, Holland and Belgium, and who possesses seventy-one discharge points, said:

"The strikers and their leaders have gone too far. It looks to me like this unionism thing has become a racket now."

"We didn't have any strikes where we were," said Pfc. John Parvin, whose home is on a rural route near Decatur, Ala. "I think the returning service men will have a lot to say about the deal when they get back home."

To the People of this Community

It would be pleasant to report that the Victory Loan is simply a valedictory to a great home front war program, a sort of final salute to the millions of volunteers who have worked hard and unselfishly to sell you defense and war bonds, a platform from which to pat ourselves on the back for a magnificent bond buying job. Victory bonds, however, are not on sale for the purpose of self-praise. The government is asking you in this last drive to buy extra bonds because billions of dollars in war bills are unpaid, billions of extra dollars must be spent to bring your uniformed men and women home, billions of extra dollars will be needed for care of the wounded, liquidation of war contracts and maintenance of occupation forces.

Besides serving as guardians of the peace in enemy lands, Victory Bonds hold off the threat of inflation at home. For your own good, the Victory Loan should be your best performance of all the war loans.

idea of paying some of these domino players $25 per week for 26 weeks.

With 23 major strikes in 7 weeks following V-J Day and between 300,000 and 400,000 persons jobless in the first week of October, it actually seems as though there must be something "rotten in Denmark"—to borrow a phrase that fits the United States.

Fifty years ago this coming Thanksgiving Day, J. Frank Duryea, co-inventor, designer and builder, with his brother Charles, of America's first gasoline automobile, won America's first automobile race, at the "terrific" speed of 7 miles per hour. The race from Chicago to Evanston and return, 55 miles, sponsored by the Chicago Times-Herald, was widely covered by newspapers from coast to coast.

This military highway that is scheduled to be built from east Texas to the Pacific coast is receiving considerable attention. It begins to look as if it will come thru this part of New Mexico. Some people think that if it is going to be of any value to us it would have to run through every little town on the route. It will be of great value to us to have it come through this part of the state. People should remember that this is going to be a four lane military highway on which motorists can attain a speed of 100 miles per hour if necessary, and will be used to transport from one part of the nation to the other. We can't expect a highway of this kind to go through the main street of Hope.

The principle of universal military training has been kicked about in our public life since it first got public attention. It has been advocated in our generation by the voice of the veterans of the first World War—The American Legion. It has been postponed at the behest of pressure groups time after time. Never has it been fortunate enough to receive an honest and considered hearing.

The idea of universal military training has been held up to cosmic ridicule. Always, in each of our wars, there has resulted a higher rate of production of Gold Star mothers caused by our failure to enact this principle into law in time of peace.

The Truman honeymoon seems to be waning. Congress admittedly does not see eye to eye with the President on some of the legislation he has recommended. When the President complained that the Senate "let him down" on his $25-per-week unemployment aid for 26 weeks the House Ways and Means Committee got tough and shelved the entire bill. We think they did just right. The

FAMOUS U. S. ARMY DIVISIONS

26th INFANTRY DIVISION

THE YANKEE DIVISION—It was composed originally of National Guard troops from the New England States—has made history in two World wars. In 1918 the 26th Division was among the first 50,000 American soldiers to arrive in France and took part in the Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations. It stood fourth on the list of American divisions in the matter of citations. It was again called into the Federal service on January 21, 1941, its personnel being composed principally of the Massachusetts National Guard. The Division went overseas in August, 1944, its components then being the 101st, 104th and 328th Infantry Regiments, and 101st, 102nd, 263d and 180th Field Artillery Battalions.

Relief of the beleaguered American forces at Bastogne and the prominent part it played in spearheading the drive of the Third Army to link up with the Seventh Army are among the highlights of the Yankee Division's combat record in the present war. The 26th first went into action on September 29, 1944, southeast of Verdun and by October 5, some 20 miles east of St. Mihiel, it was getting its combat indoctrination the hard way. On October 8 it relieved the 4th Armored Division near Nancy and by the end of the month was realizing gains north of the forest of Parroy. In November it was designated to help reduce the fortress of Metz and attacked on a line from Pont-a-Mousson to Arnacourt. The YD outfit next crossed the Saar river and on December 21 broke into the German frontier, quickly capturing Habkirchen.

Christmas Day, 1944, will never be forgotten by the soldiers of the Yankee Division. It had been rushed to the Ardennes to hit the southern side of Von Runstedt's salient in Belgium and on the holiday was engaged in the brutal and heavy fighting to relieve the forces surrounded at Bastogne. Along with the 4th Armored Division the Yankees smashed through to reach the 101st Airborne Division. Its triumph in the Ardennes was complete. Late in January it took up positions near Saarlautern. In February it relieved the 95th Infantry Division.

In March, 1945, the Division spearheaded the Third Army drive which resulted in the junction with the Seventh Army, slicing the Saar Palatinate and the routing of the German defenders. The Yankees drove into the heart of the Reich and by April 17 was holding a 15-mile front west of Nurnberg. On V-E Day it had advanced 20 miles north of Lins. Commanding the YD Division, Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, commanding the XII Corps wrote Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, then the Division's commander: "The remarkable speed with which your fighting troops have acquired the spirit of veterans deserves commendation second only to the high courage and constant aggressiveness with which you have battled across Lorraine."

Ladies' Day Brings Out Enthusiastic Crowd Who Know Fine Points of Game

Because it isn't in the nature of a woman to resist a bargain, Ladies' Day in the nation's ball parks is an event that rivals the World Series in attendance. We can imagine the deep sighs heaved by diamond impressarios who survey the packed stands and bleachers and murmur, "If only they were paying." For the clubs do not profit from Ladies' Day. When the distaff side comes out to honor the national pastime with its patronage, the ladies pay only the entertainment tax demanded on such occasions by Uncle Sam and the state, plus a small service charge.

As the grand march starts to parade through the turnstiles on Ladies' Day, toddlers of pre-school age mingle with the bobby socks generation and their grandmothers. There used to be a time when few of the patronesses on this occasion knew much about what was happening on the diamond. But nowadays, they are experts, and as unrestrained in voicing their opinions of the playing and players as the male fans. There are no more Mesdames DeFarge who calmly count their knots and purls while the diamond goes mad with frenzy and tension. They are as vociferous in urging a violent demise for the umpire as in exhorting the runner to make home plate — if he is running for their favorite team. And the "razzberries" are equally heartfelt and dining.

The accompanying candid photographs reveal the depths to which the national sport has embedded itself in the hearts of the fair fans at a recent game on Ladies' Day at Yankee stadium.

Area in Danger of Drouth Can Be Forewarned by New Forecasting Method

Farmers may look forward to keeping "one jump" ahead of the weather, if U. S. department of agriculture studies can be given practical application. Knowing when drouth would come to a specified area, as well as other weather hazards, could have an important influence on U. S. farm production, it is pointed out, since the possibility of annual crop loss would be greatly lessened.

A Complex Method. Government researchers have developed a statistical method of gauging the probable occurrence of drouth in any locality in the United States at any time of the year. Too complex for use except by scientists, the method produces information that may be used by agronomists and others for the farmer's benefit, in adapting soil and water conservation work, as well as other farm activities, to weather conditions. Charts might even be prepared for individual farmers to show the probability of weather hazards in their localities for virtually every day of the year.

Because the information obtained shows when sequences of dry or rainy days are most likely to occur, it can be valuable in checking day to day weather forecasts and in long range planning as well, it is pointed out. The knowledge can be used, for instance, in planning terrace construction programs for periods when rain is least likely to cause erosion of unfinished embankments; or in extensive seedings of grass, for selecting a planting time when a killing drouth is least apt to occur during the period needed for germination of the seed. Agricultural workers probably will evolve many other practical uses for the material provided by the study.

"Come o-o-on!!" Nothing phlegmatic about these young fans. A possible home run pulls them out of their seats, and a successful slide to home plate practically starts a jive session right in the bleachers.

Probability Tables Used. Applying to drouth the theory of probability used by insurance authorities in deriving life expectancy tables, climatologists and other scientists now have a technique that also can be employed to discover probable occurrences of other climatic hazards such as intensities of rainfall and extremes of temperature. Drouth was selected for trying out this method because drouth data already has been compiled and tabulated, from weather bureau records of 1898 to 1937, for stations representing every climatic area of the continental United States.

N. Africa Offers Chance for Development of Brisk Trade to U. S. Commercial Interests

Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia, where American G.I.s began their Victory march in 1942-43, are expected for several reasons to loom larger in American post-war foreign trade.

Before the present war French North African trade was part and parcel of French economy, and the mother country cornered the lion's share, says the National Geographic society. Recent studies of French industrial production in the light of war damage, however, indicate that the bulk of North African needs for the remainder of 1945, 1946 and probably 1947 will have to come from the United States.

In the next six months, North Africa, bled by two years of Axis exploitation, will require imports, exclusive of wheat shipments, estimated at more than $100,000,000. The "Maghreb," as the Arabs call French North Africa, normally enjoys a substantial wheat surplus, but drouth has produced four successive crop failures. Arrangements are in progress whereby the U. S. farmer will provide North Africa with 2,500,000 tons of wheat during the next 12 months. The French plan to pay cash for the wheat out of their limited foreign exchange reserves, a sacrifice which emphasizes the importance they attach to keeping these restive lands well fed.

French North Africa has been called "a museum of minerals," a fact of importance to the United States because this region contains many subsoil deposits lacking or near exhaustion in this country. The Maghreb yields one-third of the world's supply of phosphate. There are also important deposits of copper, lead, zinc, manganese, antimony, mercury, iron, molybdenum and coal. Vast areas of North Africa, especially Morocco, have not yet been carefully prospected, and expectations are that new deposits of some or all of these metals will add to the "museum's" store.

French North Africa covers an area of over a million square miles —roughly twice the area of Alaska —with a population now estimated at 20,000,000 people, mostly Arabs, native Berbers, and Jews, with a small minority of Europeans. Geographically the region is akin to the Mediterranean lands of southern Europe. The three countries are much alike in physical features, and the north-south boundaries are man-made lines unmarked by natural barriers. All are bounded on the south by the wastes of the Sahara and on the north by the Mediterranean sea.

Geography has marked North Africa into three east-west zones. Along the coast, where American marines fought the Barbary pirates 140 years ago, stretches the Tell, a belt of fertile slopes, and occasional alluvial plains, where citrus fruit, grapes, olives and cereals grow in

FUNNY BUSINESS

Do you know how many of your own tricks for teens are actually converted into big business? Too bad you can't claim royalties on them. Every time you introduce a new fad there's a smart manufacturer waiting to turn it into a fashion. Stand up and take a bow for these brain storms that were whacky enough to be put to work.

Jabberwocky Fashions—You've been writing Jabberwocky and autographs all over your station-wagon coats for years now, haven't you? Well, you inspired the very successful "Alive with Jive" coat with a lining printed in a design of Jabberwocky and names. Then, you've been embroidering Jabberwocky across your velvet headbands, haven't you? Along comes the Jabberwocky Bandleader—a hair band with assorted slang-words embroidered across the top. Aren't they the copy cats?

S.W.A.K.—You teen-agers started the fad for imprinting lipstick lip-tographs on your envelope flaps. Now you can buy boxes of lip-shaped, red paper stickers with gummed backs, all ready to stick on the back of your important letters.

Stop and Go—We reported that you were fastening bicycle reflectors to the backs of your belts and, before you could say "Tom Drake," there was a ready-made leather belt with red and green reflectors across the back. You'll find it at your favorite Gadgeteria.

DAFFYNITIONS

Palate Plush—A super-goopy concoction at the Soda Fountain.
Dope Fiend—A gossip.
Drug Addict—A guy who hangs around the Marble Slab.
Hi, Ping—How's Pong?—That's how you greet a half of any "steady" team.
Hi, Candle, Who Blew You Out?—A new way of saying "Hello."
Don't Be Hasty, Pudding—Don't get angry.

PARTY PATTEN

Here are some teen tricks to make your next get-together a neat and reef meet.

Mother-and-Daughter Teas—It's a new fad throughout the country. One girl invites her best friends AND their mothers to an afternoon tea. If you're serving Iced Tea, be sure to read the easy-to-follow instructions in the cook book.

Clang, Clang, Clang—We can't guarantee that you'll meet Tom Drake on the way, but Trolley parties are going full speed these days. At the End of the Line, there's a picnic.

Fire Alarm—A Fire party is Hot Stuff. You send out your invitations on brown paper with burned edges, telling guests to come to the party exactly as they were dressed when they received the invitation. Anything can happen from Pajamas to bath towels. All the guests are instructed to bring their most precious possessions, which are auctioned off for war stamps later in the evening. You get some Prize Packages with this gag.

Dry in Summer.

The climate of the northernmost belt is not unlike that of southern California. There is fairly abundant rainfall along the coast and on the seaward slopes of the mountains, but little rain in the summer. No rivers of economic importance flow through French North Africa. Normally, prewar trade between France's North African lands and the United States was comparatively small. From 1937 to 1939 exports to the Maghreb averaged under $8,000,000 a year, while imports averaged under $6,000,000. American exporters sent chiefly tobacco and cigarettes, lubricating oil and grease, refrigerators and parts, and farm machinery. Americans bought in exchange sausage casings, skins and furs, leather goods from Morocco, olive oil (both edible and for soap), gums and aromatic oils and cork. Manganese imports from North Africa began shortly after the historic Anglo-American invasion of the region toward the end of 1942.

Advance Fall Millinery Shows Reveal Exciting Style Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HEIGHT, bulk, rounded lines, thick edges completely transform hat silhouettes for fall. The new bulky brims and tall crowns, some draped or shirred to look imposing, give an entirely different and more important look than last year's flat tops. Berets look rounded and sort of inflated, pillboxes have grown so tall and boxy that only seeing is believing, visor brims take on high balloon-like crowns, the entire bespeaking a "more hat" vogue.

While the new-type hats are flattering with every hair style, most of them will be found particularly adaptable to the popular "up" hairdo. In fact, they have been especially tuned to accommodate upswept hair with topknot curl and other soft arrangements.

One of the favorites for immediate wear is the new off-face roller after the manner of the hat pictured below to the right. This most likable and shapely little felt requires little trimming to "show it off." In this instance a pert ribbon cocarde is held in place with two button-like ornaments.

The cossack style centered in the group is one of the best sellers in the initial fall showings. It is the sort that will declare the "new look" at a glance. The band of ribbon ending in a decorative arrangement of loops and ends is most attractive. It will look stunning with your fall suit or your smart belted-in shortie coat.

Another highlight of the season is the hat with a tiny roll brim surmounted with an imposing balloon draped crown as shown below to the left in the group. This is one of the new-style shapes that is so self-glamorous it requires little or no trimming. Many of the new hats are just like that, so shapely that interest centers about contour more than anything else. The word "success" is written all over this sensationally new-looking felt.

However, the prospects are for most elaborately trimmed millinery for late fall and winter wear. Hats will be gorgeously be-feathered and lavishly garnished with ribbons, embroidery and glitter-glamour decor. Fur will be played up in trimming accents, and for the entire hat in every possible way. Even now hats are being shown with a flash of fur trim that tunes most effectively into the autumn scene. As a forerunner of the big vogue for fur that is on its way, you will find fetching little models as the hat shown above to the left. Its swish of silver fox pompons not only gives it style distinction, but it will be found the answer to what type hat to wear with the handsome silver fox scarf to complete a patrician ensemble.

A very effective use of ostrich is seen in the lovely off-face hat pictured above to the right. This charming use of ostrich as a halo about the upturned face-framing brim is but a forerunner of that which is to be this fall in way of extravagantly beautiful ostrich.

One of the new trends that makes for charming millinery is seen in the cunning bonnet types that are showing up in the new fall collections. These include endless versions, from girlish little flat scoops to wide face-framing brims with high crowns. Rumor has it that before the season is over we will be wearing quaint little bonnets that tie under the chin with pretty bows of ribbon or lace.

Contrast Yokes Enliven Simple Daytime Dresses

It's chic for one's frock or one's coat to take on a contrast yoke this season. Simple daytime dresses are enlivened with various bright color yoke schemes. Some of the yokes are often elaborately embroidered but the newest for the black dress are transparent in the loveliest contrast colors the season has to offer. Cloth coats are yoked with fur, with velvet or with trapunto worked or braided cloth.

New Fall Costume

Here is a costume that carries that new fall look. For dramatic gesture, it takes on stunning red lizard trapunto detail in a manner that bespeaks high style distinction. The one-piece dress underneath has a black satin top.

One of the most notable innovations in safe heating is the wet base boiler in which water circulates under the ash pit. The fact that the boiler can be placed in connection with the trend toward the basement-less house. In such houses it is often desirable to install the boiler on a wooden floor in a utility room or kitchen. Other safety features of modern boilers are foot-treadle door openers, ball-shaped, air-cooled handles and side shakers making it easier to open and close doors.

Lucky Stones
Emeralds were once believed to be beneficial to the eyes and ametrists were thought to prevent drunkenness, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. The belief in lucky stones still exists.

Bath Banishes Blues
According to etymologists, the English word "bath" comes indirectly from a Greek word meaning "to drive sadness from the mind." Which goes to prove again that the classic Greeks were a modern people and that they knew the full value of bodily cleansing. Bathe frequently and thoroughly, and thus "drive sadness from the mind."

Plan Baths
If the man of the house has been accustomed to taking his daily shower in the morning, reserve this time for him. The children might bathe in the evening, allotting the time according to their ages and when they go to bed. The younger children might be bathed before dinner, older children later. Plan your own bath for whichever hour will give you the most relaxation.

Eggs Nutritious
Eggs help keep the body healthy. They make strong muscles and red blood. A child needs four to five eggs a week. An older person needs three to five eggs a week. Eggs may be eaten plain, or mixed in other foods.

Whip Soap Flakes
Whip your soap flakes in a little hot water with an egg beater and you will need fewer flakes and get better results.

Drainage Practices Increase on Farms

Crop Yields Improved By Control of Moisture
Improved drainage is considered one of the better means of increasing crop yields on flat farmland without furthering the danger of erosion. Good ditches have been found to increase crop returns materially while actually cutting the cost of planting and cultivating. On some farms, drainage is necessary before such practices as terracing and strip-cropping can be satisfactorily employed, and good drainage is helpful to the best results from any soil-improvement or soil-building practice.

Experts point out that the drainage of wet spots in cultivated fields is generally the most profitable type of drainage a farmer can use. Surface drainage is usually accomplished with shallow ditches that quickly remove water from the top of the ground. Tile drains are employed when under drainage is needed to remove excess water from the root zone of the soil.

Emphasis in the AAA conservation program is laid on the importance of keeping ditches and drains clean and free from weeds, trash and sediment.

New Ideal Salt Box

Keep salt clean in the barnyard or pasture by erection of box as shown in illustration. The post should be set solid and the box spiked to the post. A hole in each corner will let out rain water.

DDT Proves Valuable In Dairy Fly Control

A 5 per cent suspension of "water dispersible" DDT powder is used to spray cows that are kept in open air stalls.

Walls and ceilings covered with DDT spray remain deadly to flies for three months. Dairy cattle made nervous by flies have been quieted by sprayings of the compound, an important item when it is realized that a cow's productivity is lowered by a pestilence of flies, apart from sanitary considerations.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for October 28

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

TEMPERANCE BEGINS AT HOME

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 1:1-6; 3:14-15; Titus 2:1-4, 11, 12.
GOLDEN TEXT—As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.—Joshua 24:15.

The influence of the home on the character of a child is the strongest factor in the development of high and holy standards in the life of the man and woman. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6).

Emphasis is placed on temperance in our lesson, and it is clear that in the home real temperance principles may be built into the thinking of boys and girls. It is not easy for a young person who has been brought up right on this matter to go astray, no matter how severe the temptation.

I. Our Family Is God's Gift (II Tim. 1:1-5).

Paul, the apostle of Christ, addressed his son in the faith, Timothy, with affection and appreciation. He knew the good which was in this fine young man and saw the possibilities for service for God.

He knew that as the background of that faith, there was a godly line of ancestors, those with an "unfeigned faith." This young man, so precious to Paul and so successful in the ministry, owed a deep and abiding debt of gratitude to these godly women who had directed his steps aright, who had instructed and encouraged him in the right way.

II. Our Faith in God's Guidance (II Tim. 1:6; 3:14, 15).

The gift of God for preaching which Timothy had was recognized by the church, and he was sent forth to proclaim the gospel. But alas! the burdens of life and the pressure of service cause a man to forget or neglect his calling so there comes often the need of stirring up the gift of the Lord.

God gave it. He will bless us as we use it to its fullest possible extent. He wants us too, to stir it up—this blessed, divine gift and calling.

The admonition (v. 14) is to "continue" in that which was learned, to remain true to the Word of God. We show our faith in His guiding hand; as we resist by His grace, the ever-present temptation to get away from the only true foundation of a life of usefulness and joy.

III. Our Fellowship in God's Gospel (Titus 2:1-4).

Old and young are to be united in a great communion of believers proclaiming the gospel of God's grace by a living testimony, by a life devoted to the things of God.

Men and women are to be "temperate," not given to excess, and particularly in mind here is the use of intoxicants. To be temperate in such a day and land as ours can mean only one thing, and that is to abstain altogether. Christians ought to keep entirely away from intoxicants, and that includes beer and wine.

There is a positive side to the admonition, for soundness of life and faith shows itself in holy living, love, patience, the teaching of God's Word, and in fine fellowship among the people of God. We need to stress that side of the teaching of this passage.

IV. Our Faithfulness by God's Grace (vv. 11, 12).

God's grace has brought salvation to man through Jesus Christ and His atoning death on the cross. That grace calls for and calls forth from the believer a renouncing of that which is ungodly and lustful (and you can put intoxicants right in there!) and a determination to live right in faithful devotion to God.

That brings about right relationships to self, to others, and to God. The Christian is sober and self-controlled as to anything which could "intoxicate" him, whether it be liquor, or lust, or pride, or any other such thing. He also shows that grace of God before men in a life of righteousness. Then he finds his true place in a reverent devotion to God which makes him a worshiper "in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4:23).

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Largest inflatable rubber units ever made (200 ft. long and 25 ft. high) were the pneumatic breakwaters used to control the waves on the beaches during the Normandy invasion.

The various raw materials used in the manufacture of tires came from 35 different states.

35.7 pounds of synthetic rubber are used up in driving a car 20,000 miles at 35 m. p. h. 61 pounds are used while driving the same number of miles at 50 m. p. h.

Sponge rubber, a century-old discovery, may become a hundred-million-dollar industry.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

W. H. U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace the town bell stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Marvin, barring carts from the city, Major Joppolo recalled the order, to permit food and water to enter the city. M. Cacopardo came to the Major asking for permission to see General Marvin, and deliver information on important German troop movements. He was given his pass and set out for the General's headquarters. He was determined to aid the Americans against the Nazis.

CHAPTER XIII

"Oh," said the sentry, "why didn't you say you had a pass? Sure, the General's here." And he shouted: "The Old Man's in, ain't he, Buck?"

"Yeah, I think His Nibs came in about half an hour ago."

"Yeah, he's in," the sentry said. "What you want to see him about?"

Cacopardo pulled out the tissue paper. "I can tell you where are the Germans," he said.

"Right up there," the sentry said, pointing up the driveway to the main door of the villa. "Right in that there door."

The jeep drove up to the main door. There was another sentry there. When Cacopardo tried to go in, the sentry put his bayoneted rifle across the path. Cacopardo jumped back, alarmed. "I am no enemies," he said. "I have the paper to see General Marvin," and he stretched out the pass. Cacopardo learned quickly, for a man his age.

The sentry took the pass. "Brother, I doubt if you can see the General right now," he said. "He don't like to see no one in the mornings. You stand here a minute." The sentry called the corporal of the guard.

The corporal of the guard came right back. "This way, brother," he said.

He led Cacopardo to a man at a desk.

"Name," the man said gloomily. "Cacopardo."

"Is that a first name, or a last name?" the sour man said.

"That is the name of my family," Cacopardo said.

"How you spell that?"

Cacopardo spelled it out. The man wrote laboriously: Cacoparato.

"First name," the unhappy man said.

"Matteo."

"You got to spell those Dago names."

Cacopardo spelled it and the man misspelled it.

"Who you want to see?"

"General Marvin."

"You haven't got a chance of seeing him," the man said. "There's a war going on, Dago. What you want to see the General about?"

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You'll have to talk with G-two about that," the man said, and he pointed with his pencil. "First door on the right, where it says Colonel Henderson."

Cacopardo went to the door marked Colonel Henderson, and he knocked.

"Walk in," a voice shouted.

"General Marvin?" Cacopardo asked.

"Upstairs, upstairs," the impatient voice, which belonged to a full colonel, said. Cacopardo started out.

"Say, wait a minute."

Cacopardo turned around. The Colonel said: "Who are you, anyway?"

"Cacopardo Matteo, I was sent to see General Marvin."

"General Marvin doesn't like Italians," the Colonel said. "What do you want to see him about? You better not ask him for any favors, he'll kick you out, personally, himself."

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You've got no business taking that kind of thing to General Marvin. What do you think we have a G-two section for around here? You can just show that to me."

"I was sent to see General Marvin. That is the one I am going to see."

After an argument with Colonel Henderson, Cacopardo was sent upstairs under guard, was stopped and questioned by a sentry at the head of the stairs, was sent downstairs because he did not have a proper Division pass, was given a pass, was taken upstairs again, was questioned as to age, religion, political beliefs and sex by a sergeant, was interviewed by a staff officer who doubted whether the General would be free to see him, was referred to Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, was questioned by Colonel Middleton's secretary, who thought the Colonel was busy, was finally admitted to Colonel Middleton, who, after an argument, agreed to see whether the General would see Cacopardo, which he doubted.

At the moment, General Marvin was playing mumble-te-peg with Lieutenant Byrd, his aide. They had found that a certain mahogany table took the knife beautifully. The General had just reached the double flip off the forehead.

Colonel Middleton walked in just as the General let the knife go off his forehead. The surprise of Colonel Middleton's entrance was just enough to throw the General off his aim, and the knife clattered on the table and did not stick in. This annoyed the General.

"Haven't I told you to knock, Middleton?"

"Yes, sir. There's an old Italian here wants to see you."

"Middleton, what's the matter with you? Didn't I tell you I didn't want to see any more Italians?"

"Yes, sir. But this one seems to be above the average. He was sent to you by one of our people. He says he has some information you would want."

"Well, show him in. What are you standing there for? Show him in."

And so Cacopardo was finally brought into the presence of the General. By this time he was just as angry as the General, and being some twenty years the General's senior, he considered it his privilege to vent his anger first.

"You are a barbarian," he said.

He found perfect expression for his anger in what he saw on the surface of the mahogany table.

"You are a barbarian," he said.

"A what?" the General bellowed in his famous voice.

"I said, you are a barbarian. How dare you chop and pick at the surface of my friend Salatiello's table?"

For the sake of argument, it would have made no difference whatsoever if General Marvin had known that Salatiello had been thirteen years dead. The General could not possibly have been more outraged. He bellowed at the walls, "who is this wop, anyhow?"

"That table was made circa 1775, when your country had not even begun to exist, barbarian. It was carved by Vincenzo di Lucca of Parma. I cannot calculate the values of that table. You are a pig to chop and pick at it."

The General shouted: "Take this crazy wop out of here."

Colonel Middleton and Lieutenant Byrd rushed into the room. They grabbed old Cacopardo, and started to push him out.

"Wait!" the General roared.

"Who sent that idiot here, Middleton?"

"I don't know, sir, it was some Major."

"You don't know? It's your business to know."

Colonel Middleton asked Cacopardo: "Who was it who sent you here?"

"My friend Major Joppolo, who is not a barbarian."

Colonel Middleton said: "What unit is this Major from?"

"Adano, from Adano," old Cacopardo said. "From my home, Adano."

"Adano," the General shouted. "There's something about that place. What is it about Adano, Middleton? What is it?"

"The cart, General," Colonel Middleton said. Colonel Middleton would never forget Adano as long as he lived.

"The cart? What cart? Don't talk in riddles, Middleton. What cart?"

"The cart that we threw off the road, sir. The mule we shot, sir."

General Marvin remembered, and the memory turned his face a shade darker. "So that's the Major who sent you," he roared. "What was that name again? I want to remember that name."

"Joppolo," Middleton said.

General Marvin shouted: "Joppolo. Write that down, Middleton, remember that name. That Major's a wop, too. I remember now, he's a wop himself, isn't he, Middleton?"

In the interests of justice, Colonel Middleton said: "I don't remember, sir."

General Marvin shouted: "Well, I do. Now throw this crazy Italian out of here, and if you let any more Italians in here, Middleton, I'll break you back to a second lieutenant."

Behind Major Joppolo's back, Captain Purvis was very critical of him. To his face, the Captain was cordial, even friendly.

The two men now had, besides their mere community of tongue, another thing to draw them together: they both knew the same girls. In a foreign land, that is enough to make Damon and Pythias out of two sworn enemies.

One day at lunch they talked about the girls. They talked as American men do talk about girls when they are abroad.

The Captain said: "That younger one, that Francesca, she sure is nice."

"Yeah," the Captain said. "What do you say we go up there tonight and see 'em?"

"Let's do that," the Major said. "That would be fun." Then he wondered why he had reacted so quickly and so happily to the Captain's suggestion. The Captain's attitude toward these girls disgusted the Major. The Captain regarded the girls as trash; he seemed to think of them as something to buy and sell, like Italian watermelon and grapes and red wine. The Major refused to believe that he was falling into this way of thinking.

The family of Tomasino and their guests spent the next five minutes on their hands and knees picking up the chicken feathers. When that was done Rosa said to Tomasino: "Sad one, put the girls to bed."

Tomasino led the little ones out without gentleness. Rosa retired to the kitchen with the feathers and the bird, to finish her job.

As soon as the two officers and the two girls in pajamas were left alone, Tina said: "Mister Major, I want to talk with you," and she stretched out her hand for his and led him into her bedroom. Captain Purvis's sober shouts followed them this time: "Hey, don't desert me. I can't talk to this lovely thing. Where you going?" And he subsided, and settled down for an evening of desperate sign language.

Tina sat down on her bed and the Major sat down on a chair by a wooden dressing table.

"I want to ask you something, Mister Major," Tina said.

"Yes?" the Major said. He did not know what to expect, but he expected it would please him, whatever it was.

"How long do you think the war will last? Here on Italian soil, I mean."

The Major found that he was not pleased. "That's a very serious question," he said. "Let's not talk about war. That's all I have all day long, war, war, war."

"But I have a special reason for wanting to know," Tina said. "How long do you think it will last?"

"How should I know?" the Major asked. His voice was a little testy. "If I knew that, I would have to know a lot more about our plans for the campaign, and if I knew the plans, I would know military secrets, and I couldn't tell you secrets if I knew them."

"But you can guess, Mister Major."

"All right, I guess two more months."

"And how long do you think it will be after those two months before our Italian prisoners of war are released?"

Major Joppolo got the point very quickly, and it did not please him in the least. "You have a sweet-heart who has been captured?"

To the People of this Community

Leave it to the nation's school children to be on top of the ball when it comes to sizing up the war financing situation.

From Pearl Harbor to V-J Day they dedicated each purchase and sale of war bonds to fighting equipment. Then the Japs quit. Schools at War instantly became Schools For Peace. The theme shifted from "Back the Attack" to "Speed His Recovery." The new goal was set at 35,000 hospital units, including a bed, wheel chair, X-Ray machine and surgical instruments.

Grownups could well listen to one of the millions of youngsters who are taking part in the Victory Loan. Even without a word from the young volunteer, you have one of the main reasons for buying extra Victory Bonds—the future of the "salesman" who may be your own son or daughter. Your war bonds have just helped to defeat the Nazis and Japs who would have educated your children for death. Your extra Victory Bonds will assure a brighter life for tomorrow's citizens.

MRS. ALLEN'S HUSBAND GIVES HER A SURPRISE

WEST MONROE, LA.—Mrs. Carl C. Allen of West Monroe, Louisiana, has an interesting story to tell about how she discovered Faultless Starch. Here is what she wrote:

"Last week my husband brought home a box of Faultless Starch. I decided to use it, thinking that all starches were about the same. You can imagine my surprise when I began ironing. My iron fairly flew and I was finished in no time. My clothes were so bright, with no rough starch blotches to mar their sleekness. I felt I just had to tell you how wonderful your starch is. My husband was just as proud as I when he saw his shirts. I wish all women could just try your product."

Now there is a thoughtful husband. That box of Faultless Starch really meant more to Mrs. Allen than a box of candy—and here is why:

SAVE 468 MINUTES A YEAR

Let's say it takes ten minutes to make hot starch when you have to cook it and stir it over a hot stove. But you can make hot Faultless Starch in a minute. That means you save nine minutes each time you make it. If you wash only once a week, in one year you would save 468 minutes, or seven hours and forty minutes. Would you rather have a box of candy or a box of starch that saved you better than seven hours a year?

SAVE 26 HOURS A YEAR

And that isn't all! Many people tell us that Faultless Starch makes it possible to save half their ironing time. Let's be conservative and say that Faultless Starch might save you half an hour each ironing day. In a year you would save twenty-six hours of hard ironing time! Which is best—a box of candy or a box of Faultless Starch?

Why go on starching and ironing the hard way when you can do it the easy way with Faultless Starch. Or, better still, ask your grocer for a box today. You deserve Faultless Starch, too.—Adv.

When Your Back Hurts—

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

DOAN'S PILLS

Youngsters' Party Delight—Ice Cream Clowns
(See Recipe Below)

Children's Party

How long since the youngsters had a party of their own? It doesn't have to be birthday time to celebrate, because parties for the younger set are fun to have, and essential for developing social poise.

Parties like this are easy on mother because refreshments must necessarily be simple. A little imagination and flair for decoration will do the rest.

Good wholesome food prepared attractively will go a long way toward satisfying the little guests. Add a few gay tablecloths and napkins, some easy but exciting games and you have all the ingredients for a successful party.

If you are serving sandwiches, cut them into shapes with animal cutters. A cool glass of milk, or hot chocolate with a frothy blob of whipped cream—now returned to the grocery shelves—will bring forth cheers from Jimmy's or Joan's friends.

The favorite dessert is cake or cookies with ice cream of course! Anything you can do to make this latter partyified will all be on the credit side of the party.

Now that cheese and meat are easier to obtain, you can again have fun with sandwiches. Not too much seasoning, though, because youngsters' stomachs are sensitive. Here are some good suggestions:

- Deviled Egg Filling.
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 4 teaspoons vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
 - 4 tablespoons mayonnaise
- Chop the eggs fine. Add other ingredients and mix well.
- Deviled Cheese Filling.
- 1/2 pound mild cream cheese
 - 1 small onion
 - 3 canned pimientos or chopped green or red peppers
 - 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 - 4 tablespoons mayonnaise

Lynn Says:

Don't Ration Eye Appeal: Foods that look their best usually taste the best, too, because they've been cooked and served properly.

When garnishing daily dinner and luncheon platters, simplicity is the theme. A few freshened carrot tops, lettuce leaves, strips of green pepper or tomato wedges make the difference between the family's liking the food and merely eating it quietly.

Candles, simple flowers or a bowl of fruit add to the table immensely. They even seem to make the food more palatable.

Serve meat balls and chops on a bed of watercress and watch the difference.

Or, cut grapefruit rind into fancy shapes with a cutter and set them against a background of green.

Grind the cheese, onion and pimiento. Add the eggs, seasoning and mayonnaise. Mix thoroughly.

Fruit salads, which contain well-liked fruits, are a nice contrast to sandwiches at children's parties. This one will be high in favor:

Orange, Pineapple and Apple Salad.
(Serves 6 to 8)

- 3 oranges, peeled and diced
- 3 slices canned pineapple or 1 cup tidbits
- 1 unpeeled red apple, diced
- 1 cup seeded grapes, slivered
- 1/2 cup pitted dates, cut in small pieces
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise

Mix fruit with mayonnaise and chill very thoroughly. Serve on shredded lettuce.

During the cooler weather, it is often advisable to have a hot dish for the youngsters to start things off right. Now that cheese is again available, it might be a good idea to serve the following spaghetti dish:

Creamy Spaghetti.
(Serves 6)

- 4 tablespoons butter or fat
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup grated American cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped pimiento
- 3 chopped hard-cooked eggs
- 2 cups cooked spaghetti (1/2 pound uncooked)

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt and pepper. Blend in milk, cheese, pepper and pimiento. Add eggs and spaghetti. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake 35 minutes in a moderate (325-degree) oven. Turn onto a hot serving platter and garnish with chopped stuffed olives or pickles.

Simple foods made to look pretty are a big hit at any party and doubly so if the foods are ice cream and cookies. In this dessert to top off the festivities, a plain cookie forms the ruff of the clown's suit, a ball of ice cream makes the clown's hat.

Ice Cream Clowns.
(Serves 6)

- 6 large cookies
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- 6 cones
- Seedless raisins
- Candied or maraschino cherries

Arrange cookies on a large plate. In center of each place a ball of ice cream. Top each ice cream ball with an inverted ice cream cone. Decorate each ball with raisin eyes and cherry nose and mouth.

To the People of this Community

Some day in the next few weeks a volunteer salesman will ask you to buy more bonds. You may be tempted to answer: "The war's over, haven't you heard? Would you care to give that reply to any one of the 300,000 young Americans now fighting for health in military hospitals from coast to coast? Would you care to walk a patrol in Tokyo or Berlin with a GI and tell him "the war's over?"

Of course, the bloody fighting is over. Your job in helping to clean up the money cost is the easiest patriotic chore any country ever asked of its citizens; loan of more dollars to be repaid at good interest in 10 years. Compare that job with the chore you have handed to your own son or neighbor's son to spend countless days in strange lands to nail down the victory.

Think you can afford to say no to the Victory Loan salesman? Have a talk with your conscience this very moment. Be ready for your Victory Loan salesman in spirit as well as in pocketbook.

"TO REMOVE THE SCARS OF WAR"

By Herbert H. Lehman

Director General, United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration

America's all-out effort to win the war in Europe must now be succeeded by America's all-out effort to help the victims of enemy aggression. We spanned the Atlantic with a mighty bridge of war materials to accomplish our military objective. Now we must project a bridge of relief materials to the people we liberated, to help remove the scars of war. In that effort the agencies of the National War Fund, working in cooperation with International and National agencies, can play a highly important role. America's all-out effort serves the double purpose of speeding the rehabilitation of those people and adding to greater international unity and good will.

FAMOUS U. S. ARMY DIVISIONS

4th INFANTRY DIVISION

THE IVY DIVISION—That's the nickname of the famous Fourth Infantry whose intrepid fighters were among the first to breach the German lines on Utah Beach in the early hours of D-Day and advanced into the Norman orchards and hedgerows beyond Ste. Mere Eglise to relieve the 82nd Airborne Division. The Fourth swept on to Cherbourg, and then joining Patton's Third Army, participated in the tremendous smash across France. By the end of August, 1944, it helped to liberate the city of Paris and in September fought its way into Belgium, and by mid-month had bitten into the Siegfried Line.

A 22nd Infantry Regiment patrol has been credited as being one of the first American units to cross the border of the Reich, filtering through the German lines September 11, 1944. By September 14 the 4th had breached the line in four places. During October the Division inched ahead into Germany and by December was in the hell of the Hurtgen Forest where one regiment of the Fourth claimed the destruction of five German regiments in 19 days of constant attack.

In the "Battle of the Bulge" the Division held firm in Luxembourg, and helped blunt Von Runstedt's drive. On January 18, 1945, it crossed the Sauer river and within three days captured all its objectives, putting the enemy into headlong flight. Rapid progress was made and with the 11th Armored Division it pushed across the Kyll river at the beginning of March. A task force made a 24-hour dash which carried it more than 20 miles, capturing Adenau and Reifferscheid. By the war's end the 4th had rolled well into the vital heartland of Germany. During its combat it suffered 21,550 casualties.

Reactivated June 1, 1940, at Fort Benning, Ga., the Division sailed for the European theater in January, 1944. Its components then were: 8th, 12th and 22nd Infantry Regiments; 29th, 42nd and 44th Self-propelled Field Artillery Battalions, and 20th Field Artillery Battalion. The 12th Regiment, organized in 1798, took part in the defense of Fort Mifflin in the War of 1812. The 8th Infantry dates back to 1803 and the 22nd participated in Indian campaigns. The Distinguished Unit Citation was awarded to the 8th and 3rd Battalions of the 22nd for action on D-Day, and to the 22nd Regiment for action July 26-August 1, 1944. Maj. Gen. Raymond O. Larson commanded the Division from July 1942, till December, 1944, and Maj. Gen. Harold W. Blakeley from December, 1944, to the present. Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., assistant division commander, died of natural causes in Normandy. He was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously.

The shoulder patch is green with four ivy leaves. The leaves represent the Division's number, while the word ivy, as pronounced, suggests the character in the Roman numeral IV.
