Blood Drive Scheduled Here Today, Thursday

Muleshoe's next blood drive will be held from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, July 11 at the Muleshoe Church of Christ, 2201 W. American Blvd. This is an opportunity for residents of Muleshoe to positively affect the lives of others. Giving blood is safe and easy, and takes only about 30 minutes. Those who want to donate may make an appointment by calling Johnette Marlow at 946-3381 or Carol Cox at 272-4396.

"There is absolutely no risk of getting AIDS or any other diseases by giving blood. This is a statement of fact that is echoed by every medical, scientific and blood service agency in the nation," said Jana Belew, Community Relations Representative of United Blood Services. United Blood Services is the area's nonprofit community blood provider.

Some Names Placed On Waiting List

In 1975, Harmon Elliott saw the need for public housing in Muleshoe. He began working toward this goal and in Dec. 1978, the Farm Labor Housing Complex opened its doors. The first unit of 48 apartments cost nearly a million dollars. The second unit opened in June 1991 at a cost of $810,000. Money was obtained through FHA and they require the Executive Director to reside on the premises. Besides the Executive Director there are three full time and three part time who are employed.

The units are completely full Jim Hartline, Executive Director, told the Journal Monday morning that they have a waiting list, partly due to Barrett Produce being in operation at the present time. The complex is agricultural based and occupants must be employed in an agriculture related job. "We have some families who came up from the Valley and have stayed here year around," Hartline noted.

The housing unit is governed by a board of directors with Buck Campbell as chairman. Others serving on the board are Max King, vice chairman, Noe Anzuldua, Charles Moraw and Charles Isaac.

As a member of the Rural Rental Housing Association, with membership through out the state of Texas, they must attend three training sessions a year, under the direction of the Executive Directors.

"We have our own little town out here," Hartline said in speaking of the Farm Labor Housing Complex.

The labor housing complex has a total of 72 units, consisting of two and three bedroom apartments, and a complete laundry with washers, dryers and folding tables. "Of the 72 units we only have about a two percent vacancy year around" Hartline continued. "A two bedroom unit rents for 47 dollars per week and a three bedroom unit rents for 52 dollars per week. We also have a $65.00 deposit which is paid when the occupants move in. "We don't have any problems with our people, we don't allow any alcoholic drinks in the parking lots. Occasionally we will have someone drift over from the park and start trouble, but our sheriff's department

TV Commercial Shot Here Carried On Channel 34

In June The E "Entertainment Television" Channel was in Muleshoe and Earth shooting some commercials. These 60-second spots can be seen through August 4 on Channel 34 by Cox Cable in Lubbock and Mission Cable, which serves Earth, offers the network on Channel 6.

The crew shot spots at Ana's House of Beauty and the Old Drive-In Theater, here in Muleshoe. They also shot some spots in Earth, for a "Down-To-Earth" promotion. Several Earth residents were featured in these spots.

The Hollywood-based company stated in a news release that the spots shot in Earth and Muleshoe were shot in a "Lighthearted, tongue-in-cheek manner," aimed at increasing cable network subscriptions.

The 15-20 member "E" film crew stayed at the Heritage Inn, in Muleshoe while making these spots.

Bailey County Featured In Progressive Farmer

Editors Note...In the July 1991, issue of the Progressive Farmer they featured Bailey County and had stories along with pictures of various residents.

The following article was mailed to Muleshoe Publishing Co. from Progressive Farmer.

"The Mule" of Muleshoe, Tex., peers stubbornly into another West Texas duststorm. Over the years, the blowing red sand has polished the life-sized metal beast as smooth and shiny as glass.

The county seat of Bailey County honors the hardy animal used by Muleshoe's early settlers as they coaxed a living from the dry, short grass prairie of the Southern High Plains.

Today, Bailey County farmers continue their pioneer heritage. They are a tough, savvy lot whose farming skills have been honed by a quirky, harsh climate.

But in recent years, there has been a change in the spring winds around Muleshoe. Just about anyone in the county will tell you that those winds carry less dust. Most folks credit the Conservation Reserve Program.

"The dust problem has been a lot better since CRP," says Joey Kindle, farmer and county commissioner. Like most area farmers, Kindle grows cotton, wheat, and grain sorghum--commonly called maize in this part of Texas. He rents almost all of the 2,500 acres he farms.

If ever a county were suited for CRP, it would be Bailey County. According to Soil Conservation Service district conservationist James Lutz, every one of the county's 530,000 acres of farmland is classified as highly erodible.

That's because once these High Plains soils are plowed for crops, the fine sandy loam takes to the air in great blizzards of dust during the Southwest's legendary spring blows.

Following the CRP's creation in the 1985 farm bill, Bailey County landowners were quick to show their enthusiasm for the program. They bid more than 100,000 acres into it.

"We were filled up by the end of the fourth signup in June of 1987," says Lutz. By filled up, he means that the county had enrolled the federal cap of 25 percent of the county's farmland in the program.

Like other participants, Bailey County landowners agreed to take land out of crop production for 10 years. In return, they receive an annual rental payment and Government cost-sharing money to establish permanent cover on the land. Nationally 34 million acres of

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Operation Desert Storm will probably go down in history as one of our most successful military efforts ever. That was due in large part to the participation of the U.S. Army Reserve.

Beginning in August 1990, thousands of Army Reservists were called upon to perform the missions for which they had been trained. By now the whole country is aware of the tremendous contributions they made to the United States' Operation Desert Storm effort.

Their success was, in turn, made possible by the generous support of the American people. First, and perhaps most important, was the wide-ranging support by the communities of the Army Reservists who were activated. Local communities were particularly supportive of hometown units as they deployed. Without that, the activation would have been much harder to accomplish. But our Army Reservists went with the blessings and good wishes of the American people. We all realize just how important that is.

Without a doubt, one of the most significant factors in informing the public was the news media coverage of reserve activations. Overall, both the print and the electronic media presented a fair picture of the issues and activities surrounding the mobilization. As a result, the public saw how well prepared Army Reservists were and learned how important they were to the total Army effort.

The understanding that our Army Reservists have received from their employers has been most encouraging. No one likes to lose a valuable employee suddenly for an extended and indefinite period of time, especially in times of economic uncertainty, but the response of the great majority of employers has been very positive. And many companies went beyond the requirements of the law and generously extended additional benefits to their Reservists. As a result, Army Reservists were able to deploy without worrying about their job security. Now, as they are returning, we are seeing that support continue as employers are welcoming them back into the work force.

And finally, the families of our reservists deserve special recognition. They bore the emotional, financial and physical burdens of their soldiers' absence. They supported their soldiers and that made a real difference.

Once again, Army Reservists have shown themselves to be dedicated to serving their country. They sacrificed their time, they were separated from their families, and many lost income when they were activated. They needed your support and they got it.

"We Buy The Shirt Off Your Back"

Moving full speed ahead, Anthonys will kick-off a new "We Buy The Shirt Off Your Back" promotion Sunday, July 7, to collect clothing for charity.

Stores will donate shirts taken in the trade to an area charity of their choice. (The Muleshoe Heritage House Thrift Shop)

"Anthonys is very pleased to conduct this campaign," said John J. "Jack" Wiesner, Anthonys Chairman and CEO. "We appreciate the business our customers bring and want to do something special in their respective Anthonys communities by helping a local charity through each of our 182 stores."

Anthonys currently operates stores in the following 11 states: Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Montana, Kansas, Wyoming,

On behalf of our fine Army Reserve soldiers, I am privileged to thank all of you whose support made it all possible.

Advertising Increased Texas Tourism

Almost a fourth of short-term visitors to Texas report they received information about the state from brochures, and tourism advertising is influencing more out-of-staters than in the past, according to the latest Texas Auto Visitor Survey, conducted by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

This quarter's survey of people who visited Texas by car or recreational vehicle covers March through May. When asked what influenced their decision to visit the state, 23.7 percent of travelers who spent 30 days or fewer here mentioned brochures, and 7.2 percent were swayed by magazine ads. Smaller percentages reported influence from television ads, newspaper ads and billboards.

These short-term visitors planned their trips--48 percent said they planned to visit Texas one to three months beforehand. Almost as many travelers received advance information from the state tourism office as they got from their personal auto club or travel agent--nearly half in each case.

Travelers stayed an average of 6.9 days, spending an average of $36 per person per day. Long-term visitors stayed an average of 71.2 days at $22 per person per day.

The survey report includes statistics for the previous four quarters and an annual average.

The report is divided into sections for U.S. long-term, short-term (less than 30 days) and foreign short-term visitors. The 17 survey questions include the age of the travel party, accommodations used, miles driven, and activities the tourists engaged in.

Out-of-state visitors who stopped at Texas Travel Information Centers were asked to mail in the survey when they returned home. The centers serve as Texas' front doors, where travel counselors extend hospitality to tourists arriving from all directions. More than half of Texas long-term visitors this spring said their information-center stop influenced them to see more attractions; 36.3 percent of short-term visitors surveyed agreed.

A free copy of the detailed report is available by writing Texas Auto Visitor Survey, Box 5064, Austin, Texas 78763.

Shea Wilbanks and Angie King Attend Camp RYLA

Shea Wilbanks and Angie King of Muleshoe will be attending Camp RYLA, July 14-19 at Camp Summer-Life in Vadito, New Mexico, along with 72 other young women from West Texas and the Panhandle.

Participants in Camp RYLA (Rotary Youth Leadership Award) are chosen for their leadership qualities shown in school, church and community activities, their scholarship and their excellent moral standards.

Camp RYLA is a youth program of Rotary International, sponsored by the 57 Rotary Clubs in District 5730. The camp provides an opportunity to make youth in the community aware of the great opportunities for service and accomplishment which they can achieve.

The objectives of Camp RYLA are to provide an atmosphere where future leaders will experience democratic living that will aid them in developing sound values, to promote an environment that will provide each individual with a basis of insight and understanding for intelligent leadership, to expose the youth leaders to some opportunities and challenges of life in a free democratic society, and to promote involvement that encourages the participants to think through and arbitrate conflicts of values.

Guest speakers and their topics for the camp include Texas State Representative Troy Fraser, "Free Enterprise at Work in the USA"; Susan Snelson, owner of Midland Travel Agency, "Where Are You Going to Take Me"; Liz Lowery, Howard College instructor, "Controlling Your Life: Making the Choices Right"; and Dr. Janet Metzger, assistant professor of Communications Studies at Texas Tech, "Bridging the Gap: Intercultural Communication".

Special seminars for the campers will be conducted by Dale Perryman, training specialist for ARCO Oil and Gas Company in Dallas, and Kay Baker, a specialist in adult learning theory from Austin.

Perryman will be discussing "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People." Baker's seminar will include "Becoming a Pro: The Key to Professionalism," "The Art of Influencing People," and "Who Am I? A Style Inventory."

Claudia Heathington, camp counselor, will introduce the steps in problem solving prior to a workshop by Susan Lewis, camp workshop coordinator, on problem solving. Lewis will also conduct a special workshop called "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

Lazbuddie Students Receive Cargill Scholarships

Lazbuddie graduating seniors, Jana Vise and Casey Bradshaw, were each awarded $1,000 college scholarships by the Cargill Foundation. Cargill's territory manager, Milt Hudson, traveled to Lazbuddie to make the presentation at the school's commencement exercises on May 28. He said that it is very unusual for a school to have two scholarship winners in the same year. He congratulated the winners, the school, and the high school counselor, Mrs. Anne Farris, for her efforts on behalf of the students.

The Cargill Foundation awarded 200 scholarships to 1991 high school graduates from U.S. farm families in 46 states. This year's scholarship program, in its sixth year, attracted 2,378 applicants.

The $200,000 Cargill Scholarship Program for Rural America is designed to recognize and encourage the academic achievement, accomplishments, and talents of young people from farm families throughout the United States. The National FFA Organization manages the selection process; however, applicants do not have to be FFA members to receive a scholarship. The Cargill Foundation sponsors these scholarships as a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

The Cargill Foundation is the private charitable foundation of Cargill, a diversified agribusiness company based in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Jana is the daughter of Dale and Nellie Vise. An outstanding academic student, she has also been active in raising and showing livestock. Casey Bradshaw is the son of Lloyd and Janice Bradshaw. He has been an outstanding student and was very active in FFA during all of his high school years.

Lazbuddie's FFA instructor is Mr. Rick Copp. Lazbuddie school administrators commended these students and their teachers, and expressed appreciation to the Cargill Foundation and to Mr. Milt Hudson for making the presentation.

Classroom Teachers Announce Scholarship

The Muleshoe Classroom Teachers Association awarded two scholarships this year, choosing to give one to a graduating MHS senior and one to a former MHS graduate currently enrolled in college. Sally Guzman, a 1991 graduate of MHS, was announced as the winner of one of the scholarships at graduation ceremonies in May. Sally plans to attend Southwest Texas State University, and major in elementary education. A second scholarship, earmarked for a Muleshoe graduate currently attending college and majoring in education, was awarded to Deborah Lackey Harding. Deborah is a student at Wayland Baptist University and is enrolled in secondary education with English as her subject area. Both scholarships are for $150.00 and will be put to good use by these students this fall.

Planning Summer Sanity

Parents with children out of school for the summer may save their sanity by doing a little homework, according to a psychologist at Texas Christian University.

Dr. John Schuster, a clinical psychologist in TCU's Counseling Center, said that planning activities for children can mean the difference between calm and chaos for the entire family.

Summer programs available for children range from camps to museum classes. Schuster noted that such programs allow children to develop skills and give parents time to fulfill responsibilities such as grocery shopping.

Schuster said day-long camps can be relatively inexpensive for parents and provide children entertaining pastimes such as archery, horseback riding or special training in a sport. More expensive overnight camps offer children extended time with their friends and give parents a chance to relax, he added.

Public libraries also may offer special summer programs, while private tutors and summer school may help children catch up or get ahead academically. Extended visits with grandparents, aunts or uncles can be beneficial as well.

Summer jobs can be an enriching experience for teenagers, Schuster noted.

It teaches them some self-confidence, gives them a little pocket money and lets them feel good about earning some money of their own rather than just looking for a handout," he said.

Schuster cautioned against over-programming children and suggested parents know when enough has been too much.

"If you are taking the child to this party and that party and you're constantly on the run, you're going to feel like 'There's no time left for me.' That's a signal that you're doing too much," he said.

Couples Shower Held

A couples shower for Marsha Williams of Odessa, bride elect of Donnie Davis, also of Odessa was held May 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Muleshoe Primitive Baptist Church.

Pam Short of San Angelo registered guests. Refreshments were fruit punch, cookies, nuts, butter mints, and finger sandwiches. They were served from crystal appointments.

Table decorations for the occasion were peach and teal silk flowers in an arrangement that were later given to the guests of honor and a white lace tablecloth over a peach under-skirt.

Hostess gift was a 10 piece Farberware cookware set. Hostesses were Mrs. Ken Angeley, Mrs. Cleveland Bass, Mrs. Freida Locker, Mrs. Harvey Bass, Mrs. Jim Collins, Mrs. Willis Wood, Mrs. C. W. Dale, Mrs. Elton Bass, Mrs. Preston Cargile, Mrs. Harold Britton, Mrs. Gary McDaniel, Mrs. Butch Vandiver and Mrs. Winston Allison.

Art Show Attracts Many

During the 4th of July activities scheduled in Muleshoe was an art show of work by Jolene Clement, daughter of Jo Timberlake of Muleshoe.

Hosts for the show were Tim and Lynn Campbell, Irvin and Dorothy St. Clair, Sam and Elaine Damron and Charles and Marie Lenau. The show, held at the Country Club and later hung at the First National Bank received much acclaim from those who were fortunate enough to visit it. It is telling much about this area to those who took time to study it.

Clement travels to do her landscapes so "my work is always a little like a vacation for me," she noted. Some of the regions she travels to are Colorado Springs and Palo Duro. Her home base is Amarillo.

"I paint about Muleshoe. Recently I sold a painting of a close up in a cotton field near here," she commented. "I have to photograph clouds because they move by so quickly that if I am going to paint them I have to do stop action with my camera," Clement noted. Clement uses portraits photographed for subjects when she paints that kind of work.

Encouraging young painters is one of Clements' major projects that is ongoing. She teaches art and has for many years. "I need to help young people feel free to create, not to be stiff and stifling," Clement said. "Students of art need to be more and more aware of the world around them and how much there is to express," she commented.

"Some people have a hard time expressing themselves except through drawing and painting," she added.

"From earliest childhood, the need to create, recreate, and record the world around me has heavily imposed itself upon me. The excitement of secret discoveries of an old house, a passing expression of a friend or a stranger, or the quiet and glorious beauty of all nature has captivated me. I love to experiment with various medias, but seem to have found some preferences, according to the qualities of media and what I wish to express or emphasize. I like to work with watercolor most often because moods and visions can be captured quickly and the looseness and transparency of watercolor allows for great freedom of imagination, on both the part of the artist and the viewer. Oils allow me more time to "play" with different ideas," Clement commented.

Clement uses oils for the drama of cloud formations and graphite and colored pencil when she wants to be more detailed and exact. Her B.S. and M.Ed. from West Texas State University guide her in her art work. She graduated with honors from Muleshoe High School.

The artist has eleven years of full-time teaching experience in the Texas public systems in the field of art education. She has also taught English and the gifted and talented program.

In addition to her other skills, Jolene Clement does free lance art work, sign painting and logos and coordinates art work for homes and offices.

Her one person art shows have been held in many locations in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Texas Food Marketwatch For Produce

by Mary Mahoney

July produce will offer Texas consumers the best variety and value of the season, with lower prices as greater supplies hit the market.

"Larger amounts of new-crop plums, apricots and grapes will be available at supermarkets, translating into savings for food shoppers," said Dr. Dick Edwards, a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Produce popular in June will offer greater variety, larger supplies and have the lowest prices of the season this month," he said. "Included will be blueberries, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, watermelons, peaches, cherries, mangos, green beans, yellow squash and tomatoes."

The weather has provided the best possible growing conditions for fruits and vegetables, Edwards explained, and all major producing areas are coming on stream in July.

"The only bad news is the price of bananas," he said. "Lower production and elevated demand will keep prices high on this fruit for some time to come."

With vacations at hand and children eating more snacks and meals at home, supermarkets will discount some products designed for this market, Edwards said.

"Look for sales on traditional pizza, hot dogs and chips, including hot dogs of chicken and turkey and new chip flavors."

Because of heavy promotions, sales of ice cream novelties peak in July. Edwards said a coupon blitz and wider selections ranging from pure frozen fruit juices on a stick to frozen pudding products will offer consumers greater savings.

"Frozen and microwavable meals for kids of all ages will be promoted heavily," Edwards said. "These meals can be capped with a frozen yogurt dessert that will be on sale each week of July."

Summer eating patterns also will be reflected in supermarket meat departments, with emphasis on cuts that can be cooked outdoors or prepared rapidly indoors, Edwards said. Fewer promotions will be seen on seafood since many consumers associate it with meals for cooler months.

Consumers will see July beef discounts on round steaks, sirloins, ground beef and rib-eye steaks similar in price to the specials advertised during the last two months, Edwards said.

Bailey County Residents Attend Electric Camp

Seven Bailey County residents participated last week in an electricity camp sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company. About 80 4-H'ers from throughout the Texas Panhandle attended the camp June 17-21 at Camp Scott Able, near Cloudcroft, New Mexico.

The camp featured demonstrations and lectures on basic electricity, safety, wiring and electrical terminology. The students also completed hands-on projects.

County agents and SPS representatives served as advisers and instructors.

example, if your farm's IAM is equal to its total wheat and feed grain bases, you are eligible for a 100% irrigated payment on all crops and a designation is not needed. However, if the IAM is less than the total bases, you must designate what portion of the IAM you want credited to wheat, barley, oats, corn, and grain sorghum. This must be done by final certification. This will be used for the next 5 years.

DISASTER DECLARED

Bailey County has been declared a disaster county for the 1991 crop year. Being declared a disaster county allows producers with an approved ASCS-574 (Disaster Application) for failed or prevented planting for a crop on at least 1 farm in the county may withdraw from the program (ARP) for that crop on any farm in the county and will not be assessed liquidated damages. However, the advanced payments must be refunded. Withdrawal from the program will allow producers to plant soybeans that are eligible for marketing loan. Contact this office for further details if interested in withdrawing from the 1991 program.

FAILED ACRES

Any program crop that has failed due to drought, excessive moisture, hail, or for any other reason beyond the producer's control, must be certified and an ASCS-574 (Disaster Application) filed before the crop is disturbed in order to be eligible for program benefits.

MAINTENANCE OF ACR, CU/PAY, AND CRP

This office is beginning to receive several complaints about the maintenance on ACR, CU/PAY, and CRP since the recent rains. There is a lot of set-aside land and CRP land that needs tending to NOW. Spot checks are being made now, so don't jeopardize your farm program benefits and/or your CRP annual rental payment by neglecting your lay-out land or CRP land. NO WEEDS.

CONSERVATION PLANS

If you have bought, leased, or crop shared a new farm or ranch, or thinking about doing so, you need to check with SCS about the Conservation Plan on that farm or ranch about that plan. This is very important because the Conservation Plan was formulated with the previous operator or owner, and stays with the land regardless of the owner or operator.

SEED GRAIN CONTRACTS

Any participating producer who is planting a crop under a seed contract will be required to submit a copy of the signed contract to this office. We request that you provide the contract to us when you certify the acreages.

1992 WHEAT PROGRAM

1. There will be a required 5 percent acreage reduction program for the 1992 wheat crop.
2. The established target price is $4.00 per bushel. The statutory minimum, no change from 1991.
3. A paid land diversion will not be implemented. Other provisions of the wheat price support program will be announced at a later date.

REMOVED WAREHOUSE

The Farmers Cooperative Elevator of Muleshoe, Warehouse Code 87511, has been removed from the list of approved warehouses under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement.

INTEREST RATE

The loan interest rate for July is 6.250 percent.

PEANUTS

1. The final date to request spring transfers is July 31, 1991.
2. The final date to submit contract for additional peanuts is September 15, 1991.

COTTON REFERENDUM

A cotton referendum will be conducted in July. Ballots will be mailed to all eligible producers who produced cotton in 1990.

portfolio is in ag-related loans. He credits the CRP with putting a floor under land prices in the county.

What's more, he says, "We've seen more folks come up with positive cash-flows" since the CRP was implemented. In his view, the program kept many area farmers in business during the tough times following the mid-1980's farm recession.

But you don't retire 100,000 acres of a county's farmland without generating trepidation among Main Street business and farm-supply companies. They earn their living from the farmers.

"There was fear at first in town due to the perceived economic impact," says Lutz.

And that fear was reflected in a survey by ASCS. Muleshoe businessmen were asked whether they would support the enrollment of 25,000 acres beyond the 25 cap. A majority of the Main Street merchants and farm suppliers voted "No" to more CRP land, and the cap stayed in place.

That vote caused some dissension in the county, recalls Kindle. "Some of the farmers felt pretty strongly that 'this is our land' and that the business people shouldn't have a say in how it's farmed."

The feelings about CRP along Muleshoe's main drag are still mixed. But no merchant or dealer that Progressive Farmer talked with could cite hard figures that verify a significant decline in business. In fact, for most business is about the same or even better since the CRP began.

Gary Dale has run Dale Oil Co. for 18 years. He hasn't seen much of a negative impact on his business. He knows that less plowing is going on now than before. But he notes that during the establishment of new grasses on CRP land, plowing and seeding activities increased. "That probably helped our business," Dale says. He adds that farmers still use fuel on established CRP land to keep weeds under control.

Leon "Tuffy" Dent and his brother Ronnie run the local John Deere dealership. Tuffy has mixed feelings about CRP: "It generated some cash for those who went in the program but it put some farmhands out of jobs."

But he says sales for the most part two years have been fairly good. "Some have taken CRP cash and bought new equipment," Tuffy explains.

Still, the CRP doesn't quiet sit right with Tuffy. "If you tell me you are going to take 100,000 acres of land out of farming, as an implement dealer I am worried."

Kearney Scoggin is an agri-businessman with no mixed feelings about the CRP. "I voted to let them have some more CRP land," he says.

Scoggin feels that conservation has its own value. "My dad told me if they keep breaking this land out," he says, "we're and the city police are very quick to get everything under control. They work very close with us, he continued. "I inspect the apartments every two or three weeks and I have only had to evict one person for destruction."

The occupants have three days after their rent comes due to pay the rent and if not paid in that length time they are evicted."

Hartline is also Executive Director of the Harmon Elliott Citizens Complex. Elliott also helped to organize and get the work going for this complex. In September of 1981 the first unit of 36 apartments, consisting of one and two bedrooms, was completed at a cost of $529,000. In November of 1982, another unit was completed at a cost of $359,000. "The paperwork is in Temple for more units," Hartline said. He expects 16 more units to be built.

The senior citizens apartments are equipped with all safety features, pull chains to be used if the residents fall or need help. "A light lights up on the outside of the apartment and burns until it is turned off in the room," Hartline said. "And, believe me, we have used them." These apartments are also full and keep a waiting list.

donation process. Everything, from the swabs to the blood bags to the needles, is used just once and then disposed of. "There is simply no way to get any infectious disease from giving blood," she said.

Before the blood donation, the donor is asked a series of medical questions to help assure the safety of both the donor and the patient who will receive the blood. In addition, the donor's pulse, temperature, blood pressure and iron level are checked.

Once the blood reaches the United Blood Services laboratory, several hours of tests are performed to further assure patient safety.

"Hospital patients' blood needs are increasing every year, and the only way to meet their needs is by healthy people regularly volunteering to donate blood," Belew concluded.

Texas Fund-Raising Workshops Scheduled

The Texas Historical Commission announces the dates for the 1991 Texas Fund-Raising Workshops to be held this summer in six locations across the state. Cosponsored by Preservation Texas, the popular two-day seminars are now in their 13th year of teaching representatives of nonprofit groups the ins and outs of foundation and corporate proposal writing. Each of the workshops will cover all aspects of fund-raising, including where to find funding, how to approach foundations for funds, and how to write convincing proposals.

Each year funds earmarked for grants both by corporations and private donors often go undistributed, due partly to a lack of expertise in proposal writing, according to Dr. Don Umlah of Phoenix, Arizona. Umlah, together with Anice Read, director of the THC's Texas Main Street Program, will lead the workshops.

The first day of each workshop is spent on lecture and discussion. On the second day, each participant will write a grant proposal. Under the guidance of the instructors, many grant applications have been funded.

"The Texas Fund-Raising Workshops are a valuable opportunity for nonprofit groups to take advantage of the many grants available to them in Texas," said Read.

Seminars are scheduled for Odessa, July 22-23; Glen Rose, July 24-25; New Braunfels, July 26-27; Ausint (advanced), July 29-30; Tyler, July 31-August 1; and Angleton, August 2-3. Registration is open to representatives of nonprofit groups for a fee of $85, which covers all materials needed to complete the course. Participants are encouraged to register early, as class size is limited. Checks should be made out to Preservation Texas and sent to P.O. Box 12832, Austin, TX 78711. For more information call 512/463-6092.

SPC Offers Law Enforcement Course

A knowledge of body language or nonverbal communications can save lives by diffusing potentially violent situations.

The importance of recognizing body language for law enforcement officers has prompted South Plains College to offer a short course in kinesics, the study of nonverbal communications or body language, beginning July 22 at SPC.

The week-long course will meet 8 a.m.-5 p.m. July 22-25 in the Law Enforcement/Petroleum Technology Building. Cost is $40 a person and instructors will be faculty members in SPC's two-year program in law enforcement technology.

"Law enforcement officers need to be able to recognize body language and how to be aware of potentially threatening situations in order to keep them from happening or to calm down certain situations," said George

Lawless, coordinator and associate professor of the program.

The course will include nonverbal communication through dress and appearance, gestures, body movements, use of space, time, voice, phrase, tone, touch and smell.

"Nonverbal communication is a language all its own that can convey specific meanings to a police officer and perhaps save someone's life in the process," said Lawless.

Advance registration is needed. Deadline to sign up is noon, July 19. For more information, contact the SPC law enforcement program at 895-9611, ext. 346.

Wrong Enemy

"You should love your enemies," the preacher told the Indian.

"I do. I love rum, whisky, tobacco and women," grinned the crafty red man.

An allergy is the result of an abnormal response to a normally harmless substance known as an allergen. These allergens can be inhaled, swallowed, injected or have direct contact with the skin. Common examples include pollens of plants, spores of molds, household dust and animal dander. Some foods, medications and industrial chemicals can similarly cause an allergic response.

"In allergic individuals, allergens stimulate the production of antibodies which result in an inflammatory response," said Dr. Robert J. Mamlok, an allergist on Methodist Hospital's medical staff.

This may result in a runny nose, itchy eyes, asthma or other disorders of the lungs, stomach or skin.

Many forms of treatment are available for allergy sufferers. The first step involves recognizing potential triggers of allergic reactions and removing them from the environment.

"For example, some allergic patients on a lot of medications have been essentially cured when they got their cat out of the bed or exercised appropriate house dust mite control measures," said Dr. Mamlok.

Several safe, effective medications are also available to treat the symptoms of allergic illnesses. Finally, immunotherapy (or allergy shots) may be considered by your allergist if symptoms persist. This form of treatment involves a gradual introduction of the offending allergen with a goal of desensitization.

Bottled Water:
There are many reasons to drink bottled water. Your tap water may sometimes taste "off". However, many people drink bottled water because they think it's "healthier" and "purer," which in most cases is not always the truth.

Because of this change in attitude "sales of bottled water have quadrupled during the last decade," reports the University of California at Berkeley Wellness Letter in its June 1991 issue. Some bottled waters are high in sodium and fluoride, which are also present in tap water.

A government report given in April 1991 found that bottle water "may contain levels of potentially harmful contaminants that are not allowed in public drinking water."

The newsletter suggests that if your tap water comes from a municipal system, there's no health reason to forsake it for the bottled variety.

Food Label Changes Benefits Consumers

Manufacturers of products marketed as "fresh" learned last month that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is getting serious about food labeling.

By November, the FDA will propose sweeping regulations that amount to the first major changes in food labeling in 20 years.

Products with labels that make glib claims using such items as "light," "lite," "reduced," "low-fat" or "cholesterol-free," among others, will have to start backing them up when the FDA rules become final, likely by November 1992.

The new regulations, mandated by the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990, should benefit consumers the most, said Dr. Mary Kinney Bielamowicz, nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The new law requires that virtually all packaged foods contain nutrition information on the labels.

The FDA signaled in April that it will enforce the few food labels rules on the books by seizing more than 2,400 cases of Citrus Hill Fresh Choice orange juice. The FDA complained that the product's manufacturer, Proctor & Gamble, violated its policy that prohibits using "fresh" to describe processed orange juice.

Until now, nutrition labeling has been largely voluntary, Bielamowicz said. The FDA required only that a label contain the name and address of the manufacturer and a list of all ingredients in descending order of weight. Calorie information was optional.

"Once FDA regulations are implemented, consumers will be able to make better food choices, especially if they are on strict diets relating to health problems," she said.

Required nutrition information will focus more on macronutrient data such as fat, calories and protein rather than on such micro-nutrients as vitamins and minerals, Bielamowicz said. Labels will list serving size, number of servings, and total calories, total fat, cholesterol, sodium, carbohydrates, sugars, fibers and other ingredients in each serving.

High fiber claims would be prohibited under the law unless the food is also low in total fat, Bielamowicz said. A health claim also is forbidden unless it is authorized by FDA regulation based on "significant, scientific agreement" supporting the claim.

For the first time, fresh fruits, vegetables and seafood will be labeled. Regulations will allow nutrition information to be provided at a single location at the point of sale and permit the information to be expressed as an average, or range per serving.

Under the new law, FDA may allow a statement on the absence of cholesterol in a product, but only if it would help consumers maintain healthy diets. However, claims of "no cholesterol" won't be allowed in products that do not contain cholesterol to begin with, Bielamowicz said.

Calendar Marriage

"So your married life is very unhappy. What's the trouble, December married to May?"

"Heavens, no. It's Labor Day married to the Day of Rest."

Improvements

"You said," exclaimed the irate caller, "that I had resigned from the town council and intended retiring from business into private life."

"But," protested the editor, "all that is quite true--"

"Quite. But you printed the information under public improvements."

Dear Louisa,
I have been engaged to a man for three years and I am no nearer to the altar than I was in the beginning.

He seems to enjoy being with me and says he loves me but I can never get him to set the date for our wedding.

What must I do? He has a good job so it is not finances that is making him delay.

I don't want to live
my life as an engaged woman, but I don't want to give him up as I love him.

--E.C.--N.J.

Answer:

Set the date yourself and make your plans.
If you don't do this you will probably waste a good many more years of your life as an engaged woman and when you reach the age where your means of attracting a husband are limited he is likely to transfer his attentions to someone younger than you.

If he is really in love with you and intends marriage he will accept the inevitable rather than give you up entirely.

--Louisa.

Africanized Honey Bees Swarm Along Rio Grande

Africanized honey bees migrating to the United States from Mexico provided a couple of surprises of swarm watchers this spring.

Lots of Africanized honey bee swarms hit South Texas in a short period of time and lots of people called to report them.

In traps, under a trailer house, near a corn field, on a school yard, at a railroad station, in parks and up trees, about 50 Africanized honey bee (AHB) swarms landed indiscriminantly in South Texas between April 15 and June 1.

As the spring swarming season ends, officials believe the final count may be 60 confirmed AHB swarms. The first migratory AHB swarm in the United States was detected last October near Hidalgo.

"We are surprised by the number of Africanized honey bee swarms so quickly," said Dr. Anita Collins, who leads the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Honey Bee Research Lab in Weslaco.

"What surprised me was that we had such a big response from the people calling in to report swarms," noted Elba Quintero of Harlingen, AHB program coordinator for the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

About 60 percent of the AHB swarms found so far this spring were reported by the public. The remainder were captured in a web of more than 1,200 traps strung across South Texas from the Rio Grande to San Antonio.

Most of the bees have been found along the Rio Grande from Brownsville to Eagle Pass. About 70 percent were found in two counties--Hidalgo and Starr.

"It seems the bees have come up the central mountains (of Mexico) and down the rivers from there to the Rio Grande rather than up the Gulf Coast," Collins said. "They have taken a more inland route."

Collins noted that Mexico had a relatively mild winter followed by a wet spring, both favorable for honey bee populations.

"Depending on the weather, we may see continued activity (in South Texas) at a lower level through the summer," she said. "There still are a lot of flowers blooming," said Collins, who oversees the USDA's Agricultural Research Service trap line from the Gulf Coast to near Mission.

She said ARS will continue to monitor its trap line monthly. APHIS traps--strung along various routes from the Rio Grande to San Antonio--are checked every two weeks. The Texas A&M University trap line from Laredo to the coast south of Corpus Christi also is checked every two weeks.

A second swarming season this year is expected in the fall, scientists said.

Dr. John Thomas, Texas Agricultural Extension Service entomologist, believes the migratory pattern will move up the Rio Grande and along the Gulf coast.

"If you look at where they have been found this year, you see that they follow the water," Thomas said. "That's what they have done in Mexico."

The greatest distance from the Rio Grande in which an AHB swarm has been found in the United States was 40 miles away at La Reforma in Starr County.
