LABOR BILL:

Plenty of 'Teeth'

A strike control bill that would rigorously restrict labor unions in many ways has been approved by the house Republican steering committee. Its most drastic provision, perhaps, is a clause authorizing the federal government to obtain injunctions for a 75-day period in industries which affect public health or safety. This apparently would cover the telephone and other communication industries, coal mining, electric light and power companies, railroads and possibly several other fields.

The bill was prepared under direction of Chairman Hartley (Rep., N. J.) of the house labor committee. He told newsmen he hoped that the bill would pass the house within a week. It probably faces a struggle in the senate, observers believe.

The injunction feature is designed and blood plasma into the area. The to give the government a stronger department of public safety of weapon against strikes imperiling Texas used its two-way radio to republic safety and welfare. The attorney-general would be empewered to seek a restraining order in federal courts which would require a 75-day "cooling off" period. During this "no-strike" time, government conciliators would attempt to settle the dispute. Other provisions would outlaw industry-wide bargaining and ban the closed shop. Unions would be required to keep dues low and to elect officials regularly by secret ballot. Communist'- dominated unions would lose the recognition of the National Labor Relations board. Unfair labor practices would be investigated and prosecuted by a new agency-the Office of Administration of the National Labor Relations Act.

LURE TO TRAVELERS . . . As its bid for the postwar traveling trade the railroad industry is introducing sleek streamliners embodying a wide variety of improvements designed for passenger comfort, relaxation and safety. Typical of the new trains is this scale model of the observation lounge car of the Train of Tomorrow.

PALACES ON WHEELS

Improved Service Is Keynote Of Railroads' Bid for Trade

WNU Features.

Faced with the keenest competition in their long history from the modern automobile, bus and airplane, American railroads. are leaving no stone unturned in their all-out bid for passenger preference, if the new streamliners now entering the transportation picture are any criterion. These new streamliners, sleek and beautiful in their exterior appearance, are modern palaces on wheels inside.

Determined to replace outmoded rolling stock, the railroads are adding equipment at an ever-increasing rate, as builders slowly recover from a wave of postwar strikes and work stoppages that have kept strategic supplies of steel, roller bearings, air-conditioning and certain electrical appliances, hardware and other materials coming into their plants in a mere trickle since V-J Day.

Traffic and revenue reports on America's first four postwar-built trains constructed by Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company show that the public not only is showing great interest in the new trains, but also is backing it up at the ticket window. The new equipment is bringing improved service, and the public is responding with increased patronage.

Stress Comfort.

Postwar railroad coaches are designed from end to end for passenger relaxation and comfort.

One of the greatest postwar improvements is in seating. Coach seats of the Sleepy Hollow type provide the ultimate in comfort. This seat, so spaced as to give ample leg place disrupted communications. room and provide a wide range of All seriously injured patients were adjustment of back and foot-rest po-the greens, and the skies and lakes set the interior color tones for the blues and grays.

Further decorative effects are obtained through use of colorful fabrics for shades and chairs, and mirrors in flesh or gold tones are used for bulkhead ornamentation. Tinted murals also have made their appearance in postwar equipment, done in special monochromatic coloring, matching or contrasting to the wall tones.

No Spilled Coffee.

A new postwar diner, with diagonally placed seats and tables, has made its debut. This diner seats its patrons at the sides of the car at square tables, which are placed diagonally along the car wall. This modern arrangement permits patrons to pursue a direct conversational attitude at the tables; permits serving from between tables instead of from the aisle, and obviates the necessity of reaching in front of one patron to serve another, as is the custom in the conventional diner.

Although the railroads and equipment builders have emphasized beauty and comfort in the new postwar train, no compromise has been made as to safety features, for here, too, new ideas have been incorporated into the finished product.

Edison Invented Talking Doll. but Destroyed It

A doll developed by Thomas A. Edison about 1888 is believed to be his least-known invention and the only toy of its kind that ever actually talked, having a small phonograph mechanism in its body that enabled it to recite a dozen nursery rhymes, says Collier's. After making a few hundred, Edison learned that another company held the right to manufacture phonograph toys and, therefore, he stopped production and had most of the dolls destroyed.

Of the several he saved and presented to friends, only two are known to be in existence at the present time.

LILIENTHAL:

Confirmed at Last

After 11 weeks of argument and vituperation, the senate has confirmed David Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy commission. The vote was 50 to 31. Lilienthal was appointed to the powerful position by the President last October.

Lilienthal, in a terse victory statement, said, "The important thing now is to get on with this job.'

"This job" means supervision of all atomic energy plants and materials in the country, all of which are now government-owned. It also means almost complete authority over all research and development work in the field. The President's budget provided half a billion dollars for the commission's work

Derailment of the Santa Fe's Super Chief in northern New Mexico. with injuries to 25 passengers but no fatalities, rounded out a week of railroad accidents reminiscent of the early days of railroading.

The Super Chief, one of the nation's most famous streamlined luxury trains, left the track near Raton, N. M., while traveling at high speed. The three-unit diesel locomotive broke loose and came to rest with its nose on the trestle of a dry river bed. The train was eastbound from Los Angeles.

Other accidents within a week: April 3, Burlington's Twin City

Zephyr derailed in Downers Grove, Ill.; three killed, 35 injured. April 4, engine of Rock Island Rocket derailed near Linwood, Kas.; engineer injured.

April 5, Milwaukee road switch engine fell off bridge near Ottumwa, Iowa; crew narrowly escaped drowning in swollen Des Moines river.

April 6, Union Pacific's City of Portland collided with a freight near Granger, Wyo.; 11 injured.

April 7, Pennsylvania's Gotham Limited jumped track outside Columbia City, Ind.; 40 injured.

April 8, Pennsylvania's Manhattan Limited derailed; passengers shaken up.

FRANCE: Trouble in Colonies

Rioting and revolts in various parts of the French empire have prompted the French cabinet to strengthen the army. To this end President Auriol has called up conscripts of the 1947 class on May 15, several months early.

An uprising in Algeria has brought promises of reforms. Interior Minister Depreux has gone to the North Africa country to make swift changes to pacify the rebellious Kabyle tribes and to quiet general unrest.

War Minister Paul Coste-Floret has demanded additional troop reinforcements to cope with trouble spots in Indo-China, Madagascar, Algeria, Morocco and several African protectorates.

SOLID COMFORT . . Ultimate in comfort is afforded coach passengers in the new streamline trains now reaching the nation's railroads. The chaise-longue chair shown above provides full-length relaxation.

sition, was developed as a direct result of studies of 3,867 persons who were measured by a university scientist to determine the sitting requirements of the average passenger. This reclining seat is adjustable to 10 different positions and the foot rest has four positions.

In the main seating compartments of the new postwar cars, a new type of lighting affords a high degree of reading comfort and convenience. The reading lights, installed in the overhead baggage rack, are equipped with two lenses over each cross seat, one to give light for the window passenger, the other for the aisle passenger. Each light has an individual switch to permit a passenger to read without disturbing his neighbor.

The new trains are particularly interesting from a color standpoint, inasmuch as the new color themes are set by the route of the train. In an effort to have these streamliners express in color the characteristics of the countryside through which they pass, colored pictures are taken and studied by the builders. As a result, interiors are strikingly pleasing to passengers, for the rock formations furnish the inspiration for the tans and browns, the foliage provides Basically, the streamline train must be lighter in weight than the old conventional equipment. It must be sleek of surface but strong enough to meet rigid requirements of the railroads.

Development of new materials for construction of lightweight cars created many new problems, and the choice of car-building materials and processes came as the result of intensive investigation by welding engineers and other research agencies. It is the conclusion of the nation's largest car-building plant that the socalled low alloys of steel, of high tensile strength, and the strong alloys of aluminum-together with the advantages of girder type construction-offer the combination of qualities most suitable for the building of modern lightweight passenger train cars.

Extensive testing and service use. and experience with severe forms of shock, have confirmed the soundness of these selections of basic car-building materials and designs.

No Rude Awakenings.

Postwar cars are equipped with the famous titelock coupler, which offers maximum safety by making virtually impossible the accidental uncoupling of cars and also adds to the riding comfort of passengers by permitting no slack between the cars to cause jolts in starting or stopping.

Double pane, shatter-proof glass is used throughout the new lightweight equipment, assuring insulation not only against frosting and steaming of windows but also against outside noises. Special materials control temperatures and reduce outside noises.

On some of the new equipment, fool-proof electric impulses are replacing the deft hand of the locomotive engineer in stopping highspeed passenger trains. Engineers on these streamliners merely press a button when they wish to stop and a robot electrical "aide" makes all the decisions from there on.

This new system results in smoother and faster stops because the maximum of efficient braking is applied automatically at each speed range. Loss of efficiency in stopping, which takes place when train wheels slide, is eliminated by a decelostat.

Yes, the postwar transportation battle is on, and it all adds up to the best deal the traveling public has yet been offered.

Famed Azalea Gardens Recall Beauty and Quiet of Old South WNU Features.

NORFOLK, VA .- It's spring again and Norfolk's azalea gardens are in bloom.

Eighty acres of floral and woodland beauty bid the visitor to old Virginia welcome to a beauty spot which many lovers of nature claim is unrivaled anywhere.

Within a few minutes' drive of the business section of Virginia's hustling seaport city and actually within sound of giant airliners taking off from Norfolk's airport, the azalea gardens are a step to yesterday-to the beauty and quiet of the Old South where nature stages a pageant that man can only admire but cannot hope to reproduce. More than 50,000 azalea bushes, planted so as to give continuous blooming from about April 1 to about June 1, are the principal attraction at the gardens but they are only a part of the beauties there. Tall trees and quiet lakes and flowers other than azaleas combine to form a silent symphony of nature at her best. Song birds in profusion add their voices to the scene.

The azalea gardens, a part of Norfolk's park system, are located along the shores of Norfolk's lakes which form a perfect water mirror for the flowers. The area has been landscaped with paths and foot Plans call for two runways, one of bridges to make all sections of the gardens available to visitors.

Wild flowers bloom in profusion in July. Included in the wild flowers in the azalea gardens are the beautiful cardinal flowers which present a contrast to the rhododendron maximum.

Lovers of the crape myrtle, which is Norfolk's adopted flower, will find that plant at its best in August when its blooms appear in bold masses in many parts of the gardens.

That is what happened in the vicinity of Nashua, shortage impended. A shipment of feed by air was credited with saving a number of valuable breeding flocks.

> The Iowa Flying Farmers organization is really soaring-in membership at least. The group, which will note the first anniversary of its founding in June, already has exceeded the 500 mark in membership. The total, according to Howard Hill, president, exceeds that of any other three states in which Flying Farmers are organized. As one

The gardens as they exist today are a result of the dreams of Frederic Huette, director of the Norfolk bureau of parks and forestry, and Thomas P. Thompson, former city manager.

Admission to the gardens is free, and when the azaleas are at their best as many as 13,000 persons have visited them in one day.

Army Bows Out.

The azalea gardens have been recognized by the army as having priority over the pressing needs of war emergency. In 1942 the army staked out a construction project in the area and planned a series of buildings which would encroach on the actual garden properties. City officials, garden clubs and other organizations rallied to the defense of the gardens and the army, despite the pressure of war in 1942, changed its plans and erected its buildings elsewhere.

At that time Huette voiced the feelings of nature lovers the world over when he said:

"Not all the government's billions can replace a 50-year-old oak, a 25-year-old pine or a 20year-old gum."

The azalea gardens are but a small part of the attractions of the Norfolk area for the tourist. The lakes on which they are located are a veritable fisherman's paradise and while fishing is not permitted in the gardens themselves, it is permitted close by

Within 20 minutes' driving time are Virginia Beach in one direction and Ocean View in the other. In the general Tidewater area are such points of interest as the Williamsburg-Jamestown-Yorktown historical section, naval establishments at Norfolk and Portsmouth, the waters of Hampton Roads and the scenic grandeur of the Great Dismal Swamp. Not far away also are the rugged Outer Banks of the North Carolina coast.

As another lure to visitors, Norfolk points to its food, which is universally acclaimed as a delight to the visitor and homefolk alike, whether it be saltwater delicacies from the deep or the famed Smith-field ham and Virginia fried chicken, ably supported by candied yams, black-eyed peas, turnip greens and peanut soup.

FAMILY PROBLEM

The flying Hicks family of Talladega, Ala., doesn't have the usual one-car family trouble. That is eliminated because the father. City Commissioner James L. Hicks, owns an automobile agency. The Hicks' arguments instead concern use of the family planes. There are two airplanes in the family, but Hicks, three sons and one daughter all have their fliers' licenses. . . .

A new type of drunken driver -drunken airplane pilots-got legislative attention in Wisconsin. A bill was introduced in the state assembly providing for fines of $10 to $100 for the first offense and $100 to $500 and six months' imprisonment for a second offense by drunken or reckless pilots.

WHITE GRASS

Scientists have been urged to develop a snow white grass. The suggestion was made by some planepiloting Illinois farmers. If they can't get white grass, they'll settle for grass of some other color that would plainly mark runways on rural landing fields.

NEW TRANSPORT . . . First of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation's new Convair-240 commercial transports will be delivered in June. The new plane is America's first 300-mph, twinengine, pressurized and air-condi-tioned, 40-passenger transport using jet exhaust propulsion for added cruising speed.

Jill McFarlane, 26, has fallen in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Her mother, Julia, is upset as her own husband, Richard, disappeared during the first war and she had hoped to spare her daughter from being an army wife. Jill's brother, Ric, is involved with a divorcee and Jill goes to camp to irvestigate the matter. Ric tells her he is on duty and unable to see her but while she is dancing with Spang they see Ric and the woman in ques-'ion, Sandra Calvert, together. Jill inds Sandra an older, hardened womin. Later she is accosted by Captain Mackey, known? at camp as "Old Cyanide." He tells her he knew her mother years ago. He looks vaguely familiar. CHAPTER VIII

She might as well catch the afternoon bus, but she would have lunch first and then try calling Spang again to say good-by.

Few people were in the diningroom, a few commercial travelers, several lonely locking women whom Jill catalogued as officers' wives, a child perched in a high chair and being coaxed to drink milk by a wan-looking mother, and at a table secluded near a window was the blonde Mrs. Calvert.

Jill went straight to her table. "How do you do?" she said cool-

"I'm Jill McFarlane, we met ly. last night. Mind if I sit here? I have a phobia about eating alone." "Delighted, I'm sure." Mrs. Calvert was cool, too, and definitely unenthusiastic.

"I'll have the jellied soup, stuffed crab, and some coffee, please," Jill told the hovering waitress, then leaned her chin on her palms. "You live here, Mrs. Calvert? In the hotel?"

"I'm a camp follower," she said. "I followed my husband here-my former husband. Then he was transferred back to the Islands, and I decided that I couldn't endure being married to him any more. So I'm staying because when you're entirely alone places don't matter."

"And with all the boys at the field so near there's less chance to be lonely, of course?"

"They're such nice boys, all of them. I was an officer's wife, badly cramped by a lot of taboos and military procedure, but now that I'm free I enjoy being with these boys of my own age. My husband was years older," she added, "and definitely a home tyrant. I shouldn't dose of the army."

Jill giggled delightedly. "You're so funny, Spang. The poor old man looked entirely harmless to make it today. They're running in me. Just a lonely, unhappy old Sunday classes on me, I'll be tied man.

"He's not so old. I don't trust him any, Jill. Stay away from the fellow.

"Oh, I'll be going home right away "We'll put up a plaque for him now, on the afternoon bus. You don't somewhere," Jill answered, making know when you're leaving, Spang?"

"No, I don't know, and even if I did, I couldn't tell you, Jill-and you know better than to ask."

"You'll be fighting, won't you?" "Gosh, I hope so! I'm tired of this academic stuff. The Japs haven't read any books, but look how they fight!"

"Will you write to me, Spang?" "If I have a chance, I will. Will you answer if I write?"

"How silly! Of course I'll answer. Pages and pages, all about the pigs."

"You can tell me what you're doing."

What would she be doing? Waiting! Hung up by the heartstrings, tormented by the inching of the hours! Oh, Spang, please let me have love to keep, a fire to warm myself by when the dark comes too early!

But though he said good-by half a dozen times, he did not speak of love. He hung up, with the same little flick as the salute he always gave when he left her.

She breathed, "I love you, Spang." But the click of the telephone being disconnected left the whisper hanging in air, unheard, unanswered.

After that she cried. Long and wretchedly, all alone, with the hot afternoon passing.

The yellow leaves began falling from the apple trees and the sumac burned red against the fences.

Jill crossed her booted leg over the saddle. The mare, Dave's new saddle mare, was warm and saltily moist and lazy.

"I hate September!" Jill said abruptly. "It's a stupid month, that doesn't mean anything. It isn't summer, and it isn't fall. It just sulks through thirty days. All the flowers are tired, but they won't die, and the whole world looks shabby. People look shabby, too,

Crying Inside

The French artist Degas struggled along for many years, receiving only a pittance for his paintings. At one time, when in desperate straits, he sold several of his canvases to an art dealer for a few francs apiece. Two weeks later, the dealer met him.

"I have the most wonderful news for you," he exclaimed, "I sold your paintings for 20,000 francs each!"

Degas accepted the information without enthusiasm.

"What's the matter?" asked the dealer. "Doesn't this make you feel happy?'

"I feel," replied Degas, "like a racehorse who has won a race for the bookmakers."

talk about him, poor Win, he may be in some ghastly jungle now in horrible danger!"

"Nice of you to give so much time to Richard. Ric has always been more or less of a family problem. My mother was terribly worried about him until he enlisted."

"Rickey's getting on well, I'm sure."

"I hope Ric decides to stay on in the army." Jill salted the vapid soup, poked at rubbery lumps in it. "He hates our farm, and he hasn't shown any aptitude for anything else. And, of course, he hasn't any money."

"He told me about your farm." It must be a lovely place-quite a show place, he said. I was so interested in hearing about it."

"It's a pig farm." Jill was blunt. "Ric must have let his imagination get the best of him once he got away from it. When he's there he loathes everything about it. We have to work awfully hard to keep it going. My mother works all day in overalls and a man's shirt. I got this blister hoeing beans." She exhibit-ed her palm. "Our farm help have gone off to the army, and even my eighty-year-old grandfather has to work, so if Ric has been embroidering tales to you about green lawns and pedigreed horses and stuff, just write them off as a homesick boy's wishful thinking."

Mrs. Calvert's eyes were masked behind carefully trained eyelids. She put away her lipstick and the little mirror. She reached for her check and picked up her purse with fingers that clutched a little.

Spang Calls to Say Good-By

"Nice to have seen you again. Good-by," she remarked, rising.

She's quite sure that Ric is a rich woman's son and that I'm a meddling sister with my knife out for greedy throats like hers, Jill told herself.

She put Ric out of her mind grimly and thought only of Spang, won-dering if she would see him again.

Everything lovely that she owned she had put on this morning. She had turned a hundred times before the mirror, changed her lipstick twice, worried at her nails, and pinned and repinned her hair into exactly the right sort of halo so that every curl should shimmer with allure, when at last the telephone rang. Spang said, "Hello, Jill. I was army-hadn't you heard?"

"I did hear a rumor, but I thought it might be propaganda. Morale stuff, keep the boys happy, keep 'em singing while they're marching off to war with blisters on their heels and shoulders."

A Warning

Against Mackey

She said, "Spang, I ate lunch with that Mrs. Calvert today. I simply crashed in, and I know now that I was awfully stupid about it. I told her that Ric hadn't any money, and she looked at me with those cynical eyes of hers and didn't believe a word of it. It worries me, and yet I hate to tell Mother."

"If Ric gets himself into a mess let him wiggle out of it," counseled Spang. "Might be good for him. Maybe he's depended on other people too much already."

"But it might break my mother's heart. I have to think of that, Spang. And she has had enough heartbreak for one lifetime."

"I hadn't thought of that," Spang said

"You couldn't do anything about getting him moved to another post, could you, Spang?"

"No, I couldn't, Jill. I'm only a technical officer here, and those things are handled by personnel boards with a lot of red-tape involved. Mackey's on that board, and he keeps the red-tape tightened up plenty stiff. I can't even talk to Ric, he wouldn't listen." Jill said, "By the way, I saw that Captain Mackey last night after you left me, Spang. He came up and introduced himself. He thought that he once knew my mother."

Spang did not speak for a breath. Then he said, soberly, "That's an old line, Jill. All the old he-wolves spring it when they get their eyes on a pretty young girl. Fatherly approach. Knock 'em off their guard."

"But he didn't appear to be interested in me at all. He merely said that he knew a girl once in Tennessee named Julia McFarlane."

"That's part of the technic, Jill." "But it could be true, you know. Mother was a belle before she was married, and it was war then, too, Spang. You couldn't by any chance goes on waiting." be jealous?"

in fady summer clothes or fall smothery. If ever I do something completely mad and unforgivable it will be because it's September and I can't bear it."

Dave did not look at her. Julia was worried about Jill, her growing irritation, her restlessness, her impatience with everything.

"That isn't the answer, Dave," Julia had said. "Not trumped-up jobs that she sees through instantly and does with that air of awful patience and thinly concealed contempt."

She knew so well that there was no answer to the problem of Jill. The bloom of love, fruity and glowing, was upon Jill now, she was ripe with it, gilded with it, and every nerve and vein were vibrant with readiness, and she had not been chosen. Her loneliness was made brackish by the bitter distillation of disappointment, and tears too fiercely contained canker into acid and weaken the strongest spir-

"Take her places, Dave," Julia had pleaded. "I cannot do any-thing for her."

Jill Tries Her Hand at Cupid

So Dave and Jill rode the hills on this first Sunday in September and when Jill had spoken her tirade against the sun-drunk weather she kicked her toe back into the stirrup and jerked the mare's head up "Dave, why don't you marry my mother?" and said in a sharp and harsh voice,

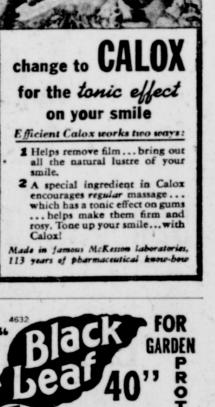

"Because" he said slowly "she believes that she's still married to your father.'

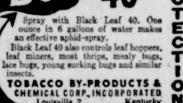

Jill clicked her teeth. "You know that hope is fantastic, Dave." "Yes, Jill, I know."

"I never saw my father," she went on. "He was in France when I was born. Mother doesn't even know for sure that he ever knew that I was born. She wrote letters but never had any answers. The letters didn't come back, nothing came back. It's grisly to think about Grandfather going over there and watching them open graves but in war things like that happen."

"Yes, they happen."

"Then we went to Washington and Mother and Grandfather spent days investigating records but there wasn't anything. And yet she

Our Main Street san't Broadway. But for cleanliness and neatness, it has Broadway lashed to the mast! (Pm sticking my neck out, so far as those city people go, but it sure is the truth.)

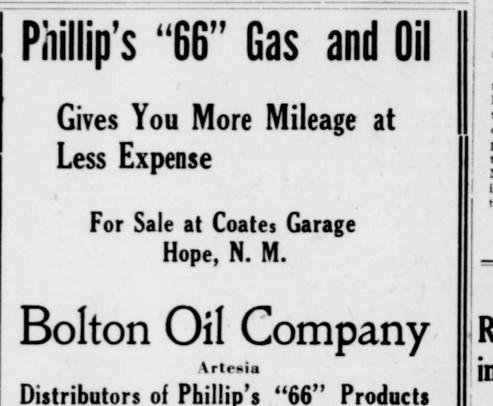

Our sidewalks all along Main Street are swept clean each morning; the store fronts are kept neatly painted; the windows are shiny bright; and there's grass and flowers every place that grass and flowers can be made to grow!

Once when "Butch" Snyder let the awning of his store get torn and dirty, folks up and down the street just gently nudged him till he went out and got it repaired and cleaned. That's how it works around this town of ours.

From where I sit, it's a little like the Brewers' program of Self-Regulation. They want all taverns selling beer to be a credit to the city...neat and orderly and up to scratch. And when any tavern lags behind, they nudge it back to standard. Works too!

COMMISSIONS OPEN IN NATIONAL GUARD

The patriotic civilian who was not old enough to serve in the Army during World War II not only can serve his country in his spare time by enlisting in the National Guard but also can become a commissioned officer as well.

The War Department has announced that plans are now being formulated whereby enlisted men of the National Guard may apply for attendance at the Army Officer Candidate School. Successful applicants will be placed on active duty while attending the school and will serve on inactive duty with the National Guard upon completion of the course. Those who desire to do so may apply for active duty in a commissioned status in the Army of the United States.

Graduates of the course may be commissioned in any of the Ground Arms or administrative or technical services. The school, which now is at Fort Benning, Georgia, will be moved to Fort Riley, Kansas, on September 1, 1947.

The War Department also announced that members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps will be given the same opportunity to become commissioned officers. When application forms are ready for distribution they will be placed with National Guard and Reserve units in the field and made available to those interested.

This is getting-ready time for my farmer nieces and nephews. Today's plowing and investment in money and labor may or may not pay off in rich crops. There's a big IF in every farm family's life. If the sun shines, if it doesn't rain too much, if we have a drought—if, if. if. However, there's one crop which has no "if" side. It's a crop of Savings Bonds, which grows steadily, rain or shine, wind or calm, year after year until it produces $4 for every $3. My city nieces and nephews can plant this crop, too, by joining and staying on the payroll savings plan or by arrangement with their bank. U.S. Treasury Department
