Judge Signs Lease For Health Department Move

Mike Easley of Lubbock met with the Commissioners Court Friday Morning. Easley and the commissioners court have been working together to get the Texas Health Department which is presently located on second street, plans to move to the old Green Hospital building.

The estimated cost of remodeling of the building will cost approximately $30,000. One of the first things they plan to do is put the walls back, dividing it into examining rooms and install washing facilities.

Easley met with the commissioners to work out a lease arrangement. He was asking for a seven year lease.

Another big issue, the Health Department would like to do is re-emburse the county's $5,000 and do the amount of work, get the $5,000 from them again and do this amount of work

High School Football Begins Season Play

Friday night marks the beginning of the 1991, football season for the Muleshoe Mules as well as other teams across the South Plains, all hoping for a victorious season.

In their season opener, the Mules will take the field against the Brownfield Cubs, in Benny Douglas Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

After starting the 1990 season with three victories in their first five games the Mules went 0-5 in District 2-3A play.

Senior Galin Latham (5-10, 100 pounds) will be filling the quarterback position again this year.

Senior wingback, Michael Hardwick (5-2, 200 pounds) led Muleshoe with 16 receptions for 190 yards and six touchdowns during the 1990 season. Seniors Josh Alanis (5-10, 144 pounds) and Arturo Ruiz (5-11, 169 pounds) are battling for the tight end job, and senior Dustin Elliott (6-0, 134 pounds) and junior Jonathan Villa (5-6, 134 pounds) are fighting for the split end starting position. The Mules ran into a little trouble last year, the split ends didn't catch a pass last season.

The Mules leading rusher for the 1990 season, Fullback John Orozco, will have to be replaced. He gained 945 yards and scored six touchdowns. Marvin Lewis (5-10, 188 pounds) is the fastest player on the team and could fill Orozco's spot in the backfield. Lewis is a junior.

At halfback, seniors Kim McCall (5-9, 166 pounds) and Ramiro Alarcon (5-9, 149 pounds) will get most of the carries this year.

Senior center Kevin Morris (5-11, 160 pounds) is the only returning starter on the offensive line. Mike Friend, senior, (6-0, 205) could play some at tackle, and David Quintana (5-8, 180 pound senior) will probably see some action at guard.

Others who could be on the starting line include: Steve Noble (6-2, 180 pound senior), Steve Wauson (5-10, 180 pound junior), Jon Robin Watkins (5-11 180 pound junior) and Shane Glover.

Muleshoe has 16 returning lettermen to Brownfield's nine returning starters on offense and eight defense.

Junior quarterback Noel Garcia (5-9, 170 pounds) returns to the Cubs with a year's experience. Last year, he completed 27 of 94 passes for 481 yards and four touchdowns. The Brownfield Cubs returns its entire offensive backfield.

The Lions Club will serve a pre-game steak supper in the high school cafeteria. Serving time will be 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Tickets are $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for children.

Chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, green beans, coleslaw, home made rolls, gravy and home made peach cobbler will be on the menu.

Public Hearing Set Friday At Court House

In a public hearing Friday afternoon, Rick Hair of Maps Inc. of Austin presented a plan and maps for the re-districting of Bailey County.

"The reason Bailey County is doing this (re-districting) is due to the 1965, Voting Rights Act, which requires all counties to review the precinct boundaries (population) for voting purposes, every 10 years," Hair said.

One of the objectives is to change the precinct boundaries as little as possible to avoid confusion as to boundary lines. "We have to move the boundaries so that the county and other governments are fairly represented" Hair continued. "One person, one vote! The government says we have to have equal population in each of the precincts.

At the present time, there is a 65 percent variation in the population of Precinct One and Precinct Four. Precinct One being the largest and Precinct Four the smallest precinct in Bailey County. "You might ask yourself "how did the precincts get so unbalanced? Hair continued. "Over a period of 10 years, migration, people moving from one section of the county to another, while other residents have moved out of the county. The population of Bailey County has decreased 13 and a half percent since 1980.

The Census Bureau divided the county into Census Blocks, trying to get a fourth of the population into each precinct. Another thing the Census Bureau is working on is the Minority Equal Rights. Trying to avoid dilution of Hispanic

Immunizations Available On Tuesday's

Childhood immunization remain very important, all to often immunizations are delayed due to inconvenience or simply forgetfulness, according to Jo Ann Head. Only last month a case of pertussis (whooping cough) was diagnosed in Muleshoe.

voting strength. At the same time they are working on the population in each of the precincts. They are also trying to keep equal road mileage for the commissioners.

Members of the Citizens Committee including: Harvey Bass, Juan Chavez, Alfonso Posadas, Pat Prater and A.V. Wood; the commissioners, Judge Cox, and Evelene Harris from the Muleshoe and Bailey County Journals attended this meeting.

The commissioners rejected the plan, they had a problem with the way the county was divided up out in the country. One of the problems Hair had in drawing up the maps was keeping the county barns and voting boxes in the right precinct, this is a state requirement.

Alfonso Posadas and Juan Chavez had drawn a map, dividing the precincts into what they believed would be equal. They had no actual count of the population, the precincts were divided according to the number Cont. Page 6, Col. 1

MAKING CHILE SAUCE

Red chile salsa (sauce) can be made from dried chile pods.

Select dry chile pods in optimum condition. Do not use pods with signs of mold, insect infestation, signs of disease or decay. (Chile pods from ristras sprayed with plastic, shellac or insecticide are not edible and are to be used for decorative purposes only.)

Remove stems, seeds and yellow veins from chile pods. Twelve to fourteen large chile pods yield about 1 pint of chile puree. Leave the veins if a more pungent product is desired.

Wash pods in warm water, lifting pods out of water and changing water several times.

Place washed chile pods in a pan and cover with warm water for one half to one hour to allow pods to rehydrate. Add warm water as needed. Simmer pods and water for 10 minutes. Pulp should be soft, thick and separating from the skin. Place chile pods and some of the water in a blender and blend until a smooth puree is obtained. Run puree through a sieve or colander to remove any unwanted peeling bits. Measure:

- 1 cup chile puree
- 1 cup water
- 1 minced garlic clove (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 Tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1/2 Tablespoons crushed oregano leaves (optional)

In a sauce pan mix chile puree, water, garlic, salt, and fat. Simmer gently for 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add oregano and simmer another 5 to 7 minutes. This yields 1 pint or enough for 4 servings of enchiladas of 3 tortillas each. Store left-over salsa or puree in the freezer for later use.

Schools & Job Skills

The Bush Administration said that half of America's teen-agers are ill-equipped to enter the workforce because schools failed to train them in job-related skills.

Kitchen Skills Help Children with Writing Ability

The kitchen is an ideal place to help a child develop the skills needed in writing, that is, flexible finger movements, a range of hand movements, and the ability to distinguish between the right and left side of the body by learning to use each differently.

Using a rolling pin is a good two-handed activity. The lady of the house can let the children use the rolling pin to crush graham cracker crust or roll dough and cut cookies. If she does roll dough, cutting out circles, squares, and triangles is an excellent lesson in form perceptions; and then they can be eaten later, the impact is tremendous.

Think of the variety of movements in snapping beans, peeling potatoes and carrots (with a potato peeler), apples with a paring knife; in beating eggs with an egg beater; in stirring and beating with a spoon; in slicing and chopping, in turning the handles of a meatgrinder; in grating cheese; in pouring liquids.

Many clumsy children never get a chance to do these things. In trying to judge the independence of a child, we often ask his parents if he can go to the refrigerator and get himself a glass of milk. "No, we don't let him, because he always spills it," is a common reply. Some of these skills have to be taught systematically. If pouring milk is a chronic problem, work on the pouring motion itself. Let the child pour rice from one container to another; or to make it more interesting, chocolate chips or miniature marshmallows. (The incentive can be that they may eat the ones that aren't spilled.) Then he can progress to viscous liquids--those that pour slowly--molasses, honey, ketchup, and corn syrup.

The kitchen setting is a fine place for language training. If new experiences are introduced, children should be taught the words for them. The value lies in the chance to see how language is differentiated. Word like "hulling", "dicing", "chopping", "slicing", "stirring", "beating", are good to teach in conjunction with an activity. First teach the action, then the word.

The kitchen is the logical place for experiencing and learning "hard", "soft", "greasy", "sticky", "dirty", "liquid", "powder", "hot", "cold", "lukewarm", "cool". There is an opportunity to heighten both visual and auditory perception by teaching simmering and boiling. Help them hear the difference between a full rolling boil of the kettle and a slow simmer. Let them see the big bubbles in one, and the tiny, pinpoint bubbles in the other. The kitchen is the ideal place to stimulate the senses of taste and smell, and to teach the appropriate words: sweet, sour, salty, bitter. To develop perception of smells, bring out the whole spice cabinet. Have the child close his eyes and guess, through smelling, or tasting what you have. Assign smelling jobs. See who can be the first to tell when the coffee is perking; who can guess what is in the oven.

Developing awareness of sequence, order, and system can be done in the kitchen through cooking. Teach a recipe. Start with a simple one. Divide it into steps. Make sure that each of the individual steps is understood. Then introduce them in order--step 1, step 2, step 3. Demonstrate the importance of doing them in that order. Then encourage your child to do them independently.

One of the most useful things ever taught one little boy was how to make a peanut butter sandwich. We have been working on finger dexterity, handedness and form perception. I had given him many paper and pencil exercises which bored him and which he rarely completed. One day when he was hungry, I showed him how to make himself a snack. We took a square slice of white bread, spread the peanut butter over it, (and learning how to do it carefully right to the crusts is a good precursor to learning how to color within the lines) we put another square on top, cut it from corner to corner getting two triangles. The next one we cut down the middle, producing two rectangles. After that there was no need to assign homework. He made himself a peanut butter sandwich every day.

AARP Report

In anticipation of the many older persons who will be needing assistance with their 1991 income tax forms, the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) is seeking additional volunteers to man their Tax-Aide assistance sites.

In cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, the AARP will provide free training to volunteers who will provide tax assistance four hours per week during the tax season.

It is estimated that of the 28,000 AARP Tax-Aide volunteers nationwide, 2,000 will be in Texas assisting 95,000 older persons.

Neither those seeking assistance nor those volunteering to assist are required to be AARP members. Volunteers are needed to fill three positions: tax assistance, instructors who train the Counselors, and coordinate the Counselors, and Coordinators who administer the program.

Those interested in applying for an AARP Tax-Aide volunteer position, should write to:

Acting in cooperation with the Cotton Producing Industry and the Surplus Marketing Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture in an effort to increase our home consumption of 100 percent American grown, processed and manufactured cotton products, Irvin St. Clair, chairman of the Bailey County Cotton Industry Committee, revealed today that existing personal inventories of cotton goods are barely sufficient to permit one change of wearing apparel and household cotton per week.

Mr. S.t Clair said that although the United States is regarded as the cleanest nation in the world, this country could better its record substantially by increased purchases of cotton articles.

School Lunch Specials in September Food Sales

Texas consumers will find special sales on foods for school lunches sandwiched among an array of September supermarket promotions.

Dr. Dick Edwards of College Station, a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said food retailers will discount a number of foods suitable for school lunches, football season snacks and other fall activities.

"Advances in food technologies are changing the look and taste of school lunches," Edwards said. "Shelf-stable, microwavable foods that require no refrigeration are ideal for lunches. Increased production has resulted in lower prices and a greater variety."

Created especially for school lunches have been spaghetti, beef stew and chili food products. These will be featured as specials at less than $1 per unit, Edwards continued.

"Juices, packed in boxes, will be a companion school lunch sale item," he said. All ingredients will be on sale for the traditional school lunch of sandwiches, chips, cookies and fruit.

Besides sales on school lunch items, prices also will be slashed after mid-September on any remaining school supplies.

"Since children always need pencils, pens, papers and folders through the year, these items should be bought while on sale and doled out as they are needed," he recommended.

Produce will be in a transitional stage in September, with apples topping the list of newly harvested fruit arriving in large supply. Prices, Edwards said, will be lower than they have been for quite some time.

"Best buys will be on bags of apples weighing 3 and 5 pounds," Edwards said. "Although a bit small, these apples are excellent for school lunches."

Other items that will increase in supply during the month as harvests gain momentum are grapes, white potatoes and sweet potatoes. Also on special will be artichokes, avocados, broccoli, cantaloupes, cauliflower, plums and honey melons.

Edwards said a shift in merchandising patterns for red meat and poultry will occur in September.

"Beef prices, in general, will remain higher for consumers despite declining prices at the feedlot," he predicted. "But discounted items will shift from cuts of steaks to roasts and items used in stews and casseroles. Shoulder roasts, chuck roasts, stew meat and ground chuck will be on sale."

Edwards said pork products to be merchandised heavily are bacon, sausage and pork roasts.

"At the poultry counter, sales will continue to follow the advertisements seen all summer, with more frequent sales of whole birds," he said. "Consumption patterns show that households tend to prepare more fried and baked chicken in the fall."

An intense marketing effort using discounted prices will be made to increase purchases of turkey bacon, Edwards said.

As the weather gets cooler, people tend to eat more seafood. "Look for sales on fresh shrimp as the shrimping season advances," he said. "Prices will be best on shrimp of medium size. Retailers also will use canned tuna as an advertised item, and prices can be expected in the 49-cent range."

Prices on catfish fillets and whole fish will decline as catfish producers intensify efforts to increase their business, Edwards predicted.

For football enthusiasts, foods that can be consumed while watching games will be on special.

of houses. One question that arose was a section behind Precinct One's barn, the Farm Labor Housing Project. "Approximately 60 percent of the population of the Farm Labor Housing Project can't vote, due to them being migrants," Chavez said. There was also a disagreement on the number of Hispanics residing on the south end of First Street. In defense of Hair's figures on the number of Hispanics residing in different locations Judge Cox said "Hair only has what Washington provided him." Hair agreed to take Chavez's map back to Austin and divide it into Census Blocks, count the population, plus the number of Hispanics in each precinct and Federal Express it back, along with any changes. He stated that Judge Cox should receive it on Wednesday. Chavez's map was only of the City of Muleshoe, leaving the county as Hair had it in his plans. Another public hearing has been set for Friday, Sept. 6 at 5:30 p.m. at the Bailey County Court House. Judge Cox said "All persons are invited to come and participate." A re-districting plan must be worked out and be in Washington by Oct. 1, 1991. The Justice Department then has 60 days to either accept or reject the plan.

Football Highlights

Howard Schellenberger's Louisville Cardinals lead the list of teams involved in key games at the opening bell. Can they do it again? is the big question. Louisville, 9-1-1 in 1990, topped off its outstanding season with a 34-7 surprise thrashing of Alabama in the Fiesta Bowl. The Cards host Tennessee Thursday night with only four days rest after their home opener against Eastern Kentucky. Louisville's conquests last year included Big East powers West Virginia and Pittsburgh. The Volunteers finished 8-2-2 last fall, nipping Virginia in the Sugar Bowl 23-22, but surprisingly both Vol losses were at home, 9-6 to Alabama and 34-28 to Notre Dame. We're going to ignore Louisville's shocker over Alabama and pick Tennessee to nip the Cardinals.

Keep an eye on the Atlantic Coast Conference this fall. If you remember and it was no fluke—the ACC surprised quite a few football folks by nosing out both the Southeast Conference and the Pac-10 for #1 honors among the leagues at the end of the 1990 season. Georgia and L.S.U. open the Southeast Conference race Saturday in Athens. A year ago, the Tigers, playing at home, slipped by the Bulldogs 18-13, but both teams had disappointing seasons. Georgia finished 4-7, L.S.U., 5-6. The weekend favorite, Georgia. S.M.U., except for a 44-7 win over Vanderbilt last fall, was

Health Officials Warn of Cholera

The re-emergence this year of cholera as a major public health threat in Central and South America has underscored the dangers still posed by the disease wherever poor sanitation allows its spread.

The first major cholera epidemics to strike the Western Hemisphere in nearly a century began in Peru in January and quickly spread to neighboring countries and northward through Central America.

As many as 270,000 cases, including some 3,000 deaths were recorded by late July.

In Mexico, about 400 cases have been counted, some of which were reported in the state of Veracruz, just 220 miles south of the Texas border.

In Texas, health officials expect some cases of cholera, chiefly among travelers returning from countries where the disease is widespread.

However, according to Dennis M. Perrotta, Ph.D., at the Texas Department of Health (TDH), Texans should not expect rampant cholera infections on the scale now being reported in less developed countries. Perrotta is director of the TDH Epidemiology Division.

"Because of the high sanitary standards for drinking water and sewage disposal in Texas, it is unlikely that cholera will be widespread in this state," Perrotta said.

"However," Perrotta warned, "there are conditions in some Texas locations which could promote limited spread of the disease. Areas without safe drinking water or with unsanitary sewage disposal are at high risk. Such areas include the border colonias of South and West Texas."

Perrotta said that state and local health officials meeting in El Paso, August 29-30, will review the latest methods for diagnosis, treatment and control of cholera.

Cholera is a sometimes deadly illness caused by the bacterium Vibrio cholerae 01. The bacterium thrives in contaminated drinking water, or any water which contains sewage. Other sources of cholera can be uncooked or mishandled shellfish, or food or drinks handled by infected persons. Since only one in four cholera-infected people will show signs of illness, the disease may be spread by people who appear healthy.

Cholera's main symptom is acute diarrhea, which can lead to lethal dehydration if the patient's natural fluids are not quickly replaced. Early diagnosis is vital, since even with prompt hospital treatment, about one percent of victims do not survive the disease. "There are no restrictions on travel to countries where cholera has spread. However," Perrotta warned, "travelers to affected areas should, as always, pay careful attention to food and water sources. Such people should avoid untreated or unboiled water—including ice. Travelers also should not consume raw or partially cooked shellfish or uncooked vegetables, and should not bring perishable food back into the U.S."

"Anyone suffering severe, watery diarrhea should always seek a physician's advice, and food handlers with diarrhea should not process or serve food," Perrotta said. He added that doctors and hospitals are alerted to the cholera threat, and have been reminded to report suspected cholera cases to their local health authorities.

Persons filing claims in response to that letter need not file additional claims based on this notice.

The proceeds from the sale of the grain, plus interest accrued thereon, will be distributed to persons who own grain stored at Farmers Cooperative Elevator of Muleshoe, Texas, as of close of business on July 9, 1991, as determined by USDA.

Grain Funds will be kept separate by commodity. Each fund will be distributed to persons with valid claims on a pro-rata basis. Claims may be filed against the warehouse bond for losses, if any, not fully covered by the grain funds.

Insects Damage Bumper Crop

An uncommon insect may cut yields by 15 percent for Texas Blacklands cotton.

Scouts monitoring fields for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have found tarnished plant bugs in 80 to 100 percent of the 350,000 acres of Blacklands cotton in North and Central Texas.

The insect, known scientifically as Lygus lineolaris, is not harming Texas cotton in the High Plains or other parts of the state. Lygus feed on the developing fruit of the plant and get their name from tarnish-like dark spots left on the bolls.

"This is the worst year for lygus in my 16-year experience," said Glen Moore, Extension Service entomology agent in Waxahachie. "We estimate cotton farmers will lose $46 a bale on average."

"With the Blacklands crop projected to be 320,000 bales, the negative impact on those

Methodist Hospital Presents Great Expectations

Expectations

The Women's Center of Methodist Hospital will present "Great Expectations," a complimentary two-hour class designed for parents in the early months of pregnancy. The program will be at 7 p.m., September 11 in The Women's Center, located on the third floor of the Central Building.

Topics will include nutrition, exercise, emotional and physical changes and the growth and development of your baby.

For more information or to make reservations, call 793-4333.

cotton growers could total $15 million," said Dr. Carl Anderson, Texas A&M economist for cotton marketing. "Factoring in the effect on cotton-related industries swells the loss to $50 million."

"The Lygus infestation was both unexpected and unusually persistent, forcing an aggressive spraying program," said Extension Service entomology agent Keith Crenwelge of Hill County. "That destroyed the beneficial insects we depend on to keep late-season bollworms in check. Now bollworms are causing problems. Additional spraying now would cause more harm than good. In the next few weeks, it's vital to let the beneficial insects reestablish."

James Swart, Extension Service entomologist in Greenville, agrees, "We think the lygus was just a fluke this year, something that happens once in 20 years," he said. "We'll try to avoid some of these problems next year with early planting and by using cotton varieties especially adapted to early fruiting." "Growers report that insect problems are the worst they've seen in 10 or 12 years," said Allen Knutson, Extension Service entomologist based in Dallas. "Infestations of tarnished plant bugs and bollworms have driven up the cost of cotton production," said Knutson. "Pest control costs nearly doubled this year from $25 to $35 an acre to as much as $60."

Airman 1st Class

James M. Novak

Graduates

Airman 1st Class James M. Novak has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Novak of 312 Taylor St., Columbus, Miss.

His wife, Angela, is the daughter of Richard and Lillie M. Perkins of 910 Columbia, Friona, Texas.

At the same time, said Moore, the loss from insect damage is offset by good prices ranging from 60 to 65 cents per pound for a record crop. Recent rains improved prospects dramatically for a bumper crop in the Blacklands.

Swart believes there is a "cotton renaissance" occurring in the Blacklands area. Of the 40 major producers in the Greenville area, he says 20 of them are new.

"Even with the high risks, cotton is still the best cash crop. Anybody who contracted for more than 60 cents a pound this year is going to make a lot of money," Swart said.

"Cotton is making a big comeback in the Blacklands," said Anderson. "It has a great future if we can control insects and cotton root rot. Texas already leads the nation in cotton, producing 35 percent of all cotton grown in the United States."

Senator Phil Gramm Reports

The U.S.S.R.'s aid to Cuba must end if the faltering Soviet Union is to recover economically or achieve a full relationship with the United States, says U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

Gramm also stressed the need for freedom in the Baltic republics.

"Now that the coup has been crushed in the Soviet Union, a tremendous opportunity exists to impress upon the Soviet government the need to institute the drastic reforms that are necessary to lift Soviet society out of economic chaos," he said.

"The United States can take the lead, as it did in rallying world opposition to the coup leaders, by making it clear to the Soviet government that all aid to Cuba must end," the senator said.

"I strongly believe that any future assistance to the Soviet Union, including most favored nation trading status, should be conditioned on the cessation of all aid to Fidel Castro," he said.

Continued Soviet aid to the Castro dictatorship is simply unacceptable behavior by any standard of democracy, he said.

"The time has also come for the Baltic republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, which were illegally annexed by Stalin 50 years ago, to be given the right of self-determination," Gramm said.

Tips for Living With Angina

You hear you have angina, you may think life will never be the same. However, with the many treatment options available, you should be able to pick up your lifestyle pretty much where it was. Angina pectoris is a pain or pressure in the chest that results from an imbalance between the heart's demand for oxygen and its available supply. A symptom of underlying coronary artery disease, angina occurs when deposits of fatty plaque clog arteries, cutting down the amount of oxygen-rich blood flowing to the heart. Treatment for angina is aimed at balancing this supply of oxygen with the heart's demand. Lifestyle modifications such as stopping smoking, being physically fit, lowering blood pressure and reducing stress lessen the heart's workload and therefore its demand for oxygen. Most medications work on improving the flow of blood through the arteries, thereby increasing the supply of oxygen. Some drugs are taken to relieve symptoms, while others are taken regularly to prevent an angina attack. For example, Transderm-Nitro, a nitroglycerin patch, from Summit Pharmaceuticals, a division of CIBA-GEIGY, dilates both the veins and to a lesser extent, the coronary arteries to increase the supply of oxygen-carrying blood to the heart. Like all nitroglycerin, Transderm-Nitro may cause side effects in some patients, including headache, dizziness and flushing, particularly when therapy is first begun. Here are some practical tips on decreasing your heart's demand for oxygen from Kathryn Lechner, R.N., M.S.N., Manager of Cardio/Pulmonary Rehabilitation, West Penn Hospital.

- Avoid exercising in extremes of temperatures, whether hot or cold.
- Whether lifting heavy loads or laundry, take two or three trips to transport them instead of straining with one large load.
- Pull instead of pushing or carrying. The easiest way to move something heavy is to pull it in a cart or wheelbarrow.
- Avoid wasting time and energy by collecting everything you need before you start.
- Avoid exercise right after a large meal. It's best to wait 30-45 minutes.
- Break big jobs down into small tasks.
- Extend your reach by attaching tools like a feather duster, sponge or paint brush to a lightweight pole.
- Sit on a low stool rather than kneeling or squatting while working in the garden or doing other ground work.
- Work or exercise to music you enjoy and the task will seem much easier.
- Work with a professional to learn specific techniques to relax and reduce stress.
- If you ever feel pain during an activity, stop right away and rest. Next time, just take it a little slower.
- Ms. Lechner concludes, "With some ingenuity, most people with angina will find themselves doing things they never thought they could."

The Romans were the first to learn how to make cement.

Chlamydia Phenomenia Widespread

Chances are that neither you nor your doctor has ever heard of chlamydia pneumonia. Chances are good that you have both been infected with it at some time.

Unrelated to the sexually transmitted strain, this recently identified organism is one of the top five causes of infectious pneumonia worldwide, said Dr. B. Rusty Lang, a research associate in microbiology and immunology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"Our awareness of the diseases it causes is growing daily," Lang said. "Many physicians have not heard about it, so many patients do not get the correct diagnosis or treatment."

The bacterium is highly infectious and difficult to isolate in the laboratory. The techniques to culture and identify it were only developed in the past couple of years and are not widely available, he said.

The initial symptoms of chlamydia pneumonia infection, such as sore throat, coughing and chest congestion, are the same as those of a number of other respiratory infections. It can lead to a flu-like infection or "walking" pneumonia, Lang said. Some people may have no symptoms at all, but children and health-impaired adults can develop life threatening pneumonia.

"Penicillin will not help," Lang said. "Patients need a high dose of tetracycline or erythromycin for at least two weeks. Even then, incomplete cures and relapses are common."

Researchers have identified links between chlamydia pneumonia infection and other respiratory illnesses, such as bronchial asthma, Lang said.

"We could be seeing just the tip of the iceberg," he said.

"We may discover ties between this organism and illnesses for which no known cause has been previously identified."

Minor epidemics of chlamydia pneumonia infection have been seen in Europe and other areas of the world. The bacterium has initially known as the Taiwan Acute Respiratory strain (TWAR).

"Researchers in Europe originally thought the pneumonia they were seeing was related to a chlamydia strain found in birds and transmissible to humans," Lang said. "They eventually discovered that this was a completely new species found only in humans. In Scandinavia, researchers initially identified pneumonia cases that were caused by chlamydia pneumonia during tuberculosis screenings."

Until the techniques for blood testing and tissue culture of chlamydia pneumonia become available outside research laboratories, physicians and other health-care providers will have to rely on their clinical skills to diagnose the infection and treat patients, Lang said.

"Doctors need to be aware that chlamydia pneumonia is one of the most frequent causes of atypical pneumonia and other respiratory infections," Lang said. "That awareness will aid in proper diagnosis and treatment."

Quiet, to quick bosoms, is a hell.

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) reminds all parents and school or day care administrators that immunization rules for Texas children recently have been changed. In efforts to stop recent resurgences of so-called childhood diseases, the Texas Board of Health, in both 1990 and 1991, modified existing immunization requirements.

TDH urges parents to ensure that their children's immunization records comply with those rules. Physicians and local health departments can supply detailed information about the requirements. Low-cost or free back-to-school immunizations are offered throughout the year in many Texas communities.

One of the newest immunization rule changes eases restrictions against persons other than a child's parents who seek vaccinations for children in their care. Now, parents and legal guardians may formally delegate authority for signing immunization consent forms to other adults, such as a child's grandparent.

Other recent rule changes include a mandatory second dose of measles vaccine for all Texas school children by age 12.

Also, children who are younger than 5 must be vaccinated against Haemophilus influenza type b (Hib disease), a common cause of meningitis in children, and pertussis (whooping cough).

Wes Hodgson, epidemiology coordinator for the TDH Immunization Division, said.

"The continuing measles outbreaks which began in 1988 underscore the tragic results of incomplete vaccinations. In recent years, some parents failed to protect their children against vaccine-preventable diseases, while some school and day care operators failed to keep adequate records so that inadequately immunized children went unnoticed. The result has been a growing number of insufficiently immunized children and young adults—all of whom are now vulnerable to infection."

Hodgson said that state law requires all children entering Texas schools or day care to show proof of immunizations at certain ages against polio, tetanus, measles, rubella (German or three-day measles), mumps and diphtheria. Younger children must also give proof of immunity to whooping cough and Hib disease.

"The law allows for some exceptions to these requirements," Hodgson added, "but each case must be considered individually."

He stressed that since a child's age and medical history are factors in which vaccines and "boosters" the child needs, parents should consult their family physicians about the required immunizations for each child.

Hodgson said that, beginning in 1992, college students enrolled in health related courses, and medical or dental schools will be required to have certain immunizations against rubella, mumps, measles, tetanus, diphtheria and hepatitis B. Veterinary students will need current vaccinations against rabies.

Biotech Institute To Open In Houston

The new 11-story Institute for Biosciences and Technology will open in Houston September 3.

Dr. Robert Wells, director of the Texas A&M University facility, said the institute "has a mission that may be unique in the world."

"This is an opportunity for Texas A&M to have a major impact on biomedical, agricultural, and bioengineering sciences," he said.

The institute's location in the Texas Medical Center will allow animal health scientists to collaborate with human medical specialists to study diseases common to humans and animals. Such interdisciplinary work could lead to better understanding of cancers and other disorders, Wells said.

The state-of-the-art facility will draw scientists from around the world for work in those areas.

Texas A&M will take over the building in stages, starting with three floors on September 3. Included will be the 11th-floor administrative and cafeteria area and an eighth-floor laboratory housing Wells' own research team. That group of six postdoctoral fellows, one graduate student and one technician will be researching molecular aspects of heredity.

An estimated 525 institute employees eventually will be housed in the building, including approximately 440 involved directly in research, Wells said.

The building should be finished and occupied sometime in November or December, Wells said. A grand opening celebration is planned for early 1992.

Wells said he is still hiring faculty in specific areas, including molecular parasitology, genome research, neurobiology, comparative animal genetics, mammalian viruses and other related studies.
