School News

Senior News—The Seniors have been entertaining the teachers every day since school started. Hope played Weed in baseball Thursday afternoon. One of the Senior boys came out with a black eye. And we might add that some need their school spirit renewed.

Freshmen News—We had a class meeting Monday and decided what was what. Thursday some of the boys in the Freshman class played baseball. They did very well.

7th and 8th grade news—Carol Munson was absent from school Monday because of illness. We are glad to have Lee Mack back in school. She has been attending school at Raton. We had skating Monday night. Some of us received some pretty hard falls especially Ella Sue Nunnelee. We want to thank Mr. Lea for jetting us skate.

5th and 6th grade news—Mrs. H. L. Harris and Mrs. J. W. Trimble are planning a party for our room Friday. We are anxious for Friday to come. Several of us plan to attend the fair at Roswell this week. Marion Ray Teel missed school part of this week to help with the sheep on his father's ranch. We are studying about the early colonial life in New England. We have decided that we are glad we are living now instead of then. Gergorio Hidalgo is back in school again. He has been absent two days because of illness.

Third and Fourth Grade News—Miss Rhodes the health nurse visited the school on Monday. We have received several sets of new books. The pupils enjoy writing in their new penmanship books and they are striving to form better letters each day. They are very interested in working in their public page book. We made patch work animals and birds in art and many artistic designs were created. We have a new set of flash cards and we are drilling on addition and multiplication combinations. Tommy Greene celebrated his ninth birthday Saturday. Elmer Wood was absent from school Friday, as he went to a dentist to have a tooth treated.

At a meeting of the commissioners of the Hope Water Users Association held last week Thursday night it was decided to send a tractor and blade to the river to run a ditch down the river to try and improve the water situation. Work on this started Wednesday.

EDITORIAL

Before too many of the Democrats start to vote for Dewey they should think back of what happened when they voted for Hoover. Hard times, bread lines, unemployment were their reward. Such things could happen again.

Every cloud has a silver lining. If we lived in a rainy country we might get our feet wet, get a cold, get sick with pneumonia, have to have a doctor, go to the hospital and eventually pass over the Great Divide leaving a doctor and hospital bill for the family to pay. Yes siree, there are sure some advantages in living in a dry climate.

Had a nice letter from Zury White at Carlsbad Tuesday. He ends his letter with a slogan which follows: "Be true with Truman, he is a true friend. If re-elected will be true to the end; That fellow Dewey he will do you if he can, if he's elected, it's soup kitchens again." Mr. White urges everyone to try and get the vote out at the November election.

Geo. Reese, chairman of the Democratic county committee and Joe Gant, chairman of the Carlsbad precinct committee were in Hope Tuesday conferring with Geo. Teel, chairman of the Hope precinct committee, and Max Johnson, member. Mr. Reese brought up registration blanks which he left with Geo. Teel. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Altman will not charge each registration blank free of charge. Registration books close Monday, Oct. 4, therefore please hurry.

To Vote Nov. 2 You Must Register

We don't know how we are going to write this item about registering, so that each and everyone of our readers will realize the importance of registering so that everyone can vote on Nov. 2. Therefore we urge everyone to see the local registration board and if your name is not on the list see that it gets on there immediately. Contact Geo. Teel, Max Johnson, Mrs. N. L. Johnson, Mrs. Altman or Mrs. John Teel and they will be glad to see that you are registered properly. This matter of registering is of extreme importance because if you are not registered you have nothing to say about who is elected in the November election. The time is short, as the registration books close Monday, Oct. 4.

Revival Services At Methodist Church

Revival services will begin at the Methodist church Sunday morning, Oct. 3. Dr. C. Pardue Bunch will preach at the 11 o'clock hour and Rev. R. L. Willingham at the evening hour. Services will be continued each evening throughout the week. All are cordially invited to attend these services. We need you and we believe the services will be helpful.—The Pastor.

GOP Headquarters Issues

Following Statement

Mrs. E. L. Moulton, Republican National Committeewoman from New Mexico has issued the following statement to the press:

"The Republican Party of New Mexico is starting its 1948 campaign. It seeks to elect to office candidates who have been chosen by the party, nationally, and here in the State.

We are in an extremely critical period of our national history. There is a feeling of impending danger abroad, and even at home. We fought a war at tremendous sacrifice of lives and material resources in order to gain peace and security. Today we have neither. So all thoughtful people are tremendously concerned.

We are concerned over the evidence of spies and traitors within our government. We are disturbed over the inefficiency and ineptitude of a government gone stale. It is honeycombed by the worst elements of a party long in power. That corrupt element now is all powerful in our national government. It is the controlling factor of the party in office in New Mexico.

Fellow citizens, most certainly we must agree that we should recognize these dangers to our national safety and to our national integrity. We must have men and women in our government who are honest and efficient. Not people who are there for purely personal aggrandizement or gain. We must do something about it before it is too late.

In our national ticket our party has named two outstanding citizens. They possess integrity of the highest order. They are young men fired with the crusading spirit. Their motto has always been to serve honestly and efficiently. Over many years they have done just that.

Thomas Dewey of New York and Earl Warren of California, irrespective of party affiliation, personify the highest ideals in governmental philosophy and governmental administration. They have the background of professional training and the years of administrative experience which fit them most admirably for the Presidency and Vice Presidency of these United States.

In their experiences as attorneys, defending the laws of the land and prosecuting criminals, they were fearless and unusually effective. They say that the way to keep Communism or others hostile to our government out of government service is not to appoint them in the first place. That is the kind of ability in office that our nation needs. That is what we must have.

In the administration of the civil affairs of their two great states, Governors Dewey and Warren have sought out and secured the very best talent available. As a result New York has enjoyed, under Governor Dewey, the best administrations in its history. Governor Earl Warrens administration in California has been of such high quality that he was made the nominee there of both political parties and elected with scarce a dissenting vote.

Time does not permit me to make extended references to our Congressional and State candidates. As a member of the Republican National Committee I am required to stress particularly the national ticket. I have done that briefly. However, I do want to say, as pointed out here recently by the chairman of the Republican National Committee, Mr. Hugh Scott, a United States Senator, representing a State at large is really an ambassador to Washington. As such he should be acceptable to the party in power. That party may be the Republican Party headed by Dewey and Warren. Therefore, it is most important that we elect Patrick Hurley as our ambassador. He will be in complete sympathy with the Republican administration and the policies of the Republican Party. Very naturally his opponent, Mr. Anderson, would not be in sympathy with our policies.

The representatives in Congress are our ambassadors also and Republicans should be elected. These two men, Ben Meyer and Herman Baca, as well as our outstanding candidate for Governor, former Mayor Lujan of Santa Fe, deserve the support of all citizens interested in the welfare of New Mexico; in honest and efficient government.

JOAN DAVIS was the most excited member of the audience at the Laguna beach playhouse on the opening night of "Junior Miss." Her daughter, Beverly Mills, was appearing with the rest of the CBS cast of the radio show in the stage play of the same name. Though

JOAN DAVIS

Joan had taught Beverly the special Davis comedy technique, she had never realized how perfectly Beverly had picked up all mama's gestures and tricks. Said Joan at the end of the first act, "I'll sue that kid!"

Cathy Lewis, who had been ill most of the summer, was ordered off at least the first few "My Friend Irma" broadcasts by her doctor, whereupon husband Elliott Lewis pared his air schedule to two shows, "Gregory Hood," on Mutual, and the role of "Frankie Remley" on the Phil Harris show. Joan Banks stepped in as substitute for Mrs. Lewis opposite Marie Wilson.

Those semi-documentaries are growing more and more popular. Eagle-Lion has one coming up, "He Walked by Night," based on a case in the Los Angeles police department files, which will star Richard Basehart and Scott Brady.

After a cross-country trip, Ted Malone reported that the radio personage the most people asked about was Eloise McElhone, the firebrand of "Meet the Girls." Recently, when the show moved to Hollywood and she stayed back in New York, the public demanded her return till she gave in. And she was chosen in the first place because "she looked so sweet!" To the women who ask if that little wisp hates men because she's never had a beau—she has plenty! She's pert, pretty, and no man-hater.

After completing his first western, "Black Velvet," Howard Duff hung up his spurs in preparation for his next film, an untitled documentary-type picture about an international gang of thieves, his fifth in little more than a year.

American history will bob up all over the air this season. "Cavalcade of America" presents it on Mondays on NBC; Sundays, "Carnegie Hall" brings Dr. Frank Black, soloists and commemoration of an historical event, with Gene Hamilton's commentary and appropriate music. And there'll always be historical sketches on other programs, of course.

According to the Motion Picture Herald's poll of movie theater operator's, the number one star of tomorrow is Jane Powell of "A Date With Judy" and "Luxury Liner." Cyd Charisse is second, Ann Blyth third. Robert Ryan, only man in the first ten, is fifth. Those men who run our theaters really know what they're talking about, too, as polls of the past prove it.

After five years as a blonde on the screen, Marilyn Maxwell turned brunette to co-star with George Raft and William Bendix in "Race Street." She says she'll wait to see what the fans think before deciding to turn back.

Listening to an announcer's description of the California climate on the 1928 Rose Bowl game broadcast, Ken Carpenter decided to move to California. He'd been in advertising. There were no openings in that field—so he became a radio announcer. His first full-network job was another Rose Bowl game, in 1934. In 1935 the Bing Crosby program made him an actor.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Indian Troops Invade Hyderabad, Endanger Country's Shaky Peace; Russia Confuses Crisis in Berlin

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

INVASION: Hyderabad

Events in India were a far cry from the days when Mohandas Gandhi's philosophy of passive diplomacy prevailed among the affairs of that sub-continent.

Indian troops, strongly supported by armored units, had invaded the princely state of Hyderabad (see map) whose Moslem ruler—called the Nizam—had refused to join with the other Indian dominions even though Hyderabad's population is predominantly Hindu.

THAT WAS THE whole story. The Nizam and his small, compact Moslem court would not agree to follow the other Indian princely states in acceding to the Dominion of India which was established last year.

The Nizam, often called the richest man in the world, and the only surviving heir of the great Mogul empire, wanted to rule an independent Hyderabad.

Whether he could have succeeded in doing that, even if the dominion government had not opened hostilities against him, is questionable. Hyderabad is completely landlocked and has no access to the sea except by courtesy of the states surrounding it. All of its imports and exports, therefore, must pass through India.

WHILE HYDERABAD might profess its independence as a state, chances are that the economic and political conditions of actual independence never could be achieved.

Can India's invasion of Hyderabad be justified? Not too easily, if at all. It was not a matter of sending a police force into the state to quell internal disorders. It was, apparently, a deliberate act of aggression and as such should go before the U. N. security council for judgment.

From a practical standpoint there was not only no need for the invasion but there is an actual danger involved. There are no linguistic or racial differences between Hyderabad's Hindus and the Hindus of adjacent states. The boundaries of Hyderabad are arbitrary and historical, not dependent upon the geography of the vicinity.

INDIA MIGHT well have refrained from pushing the issue for a year or two, pending a peaceful settlement. The potential danger lies in two phases of the situation:

1. THE HYDERABAD war might prove to be the factor that will precipitate violent conflict between Hindu and Moslem Pakistan, whose more or less peaceful relations now are strained and uneasy.

2. IT IS A BLOW to the British Commonwealth, to which both India and Pakistan still belong. With the Russians acting the way they are, any disturbance of the delicate balance of power that still prevails in the East could bring still another catastrophe down upon the world.

RUSSIANS: Fantastic

Not even the most starry-eyed Pollyanna could deny that the U. S.-Soviet fracas over Berlin was downright fantastic and getting more so every day.

The whole thing simply had stopped making sense, even to many of the diplomats who were embroiled in the situation.

WHAT CHANCE was there for any logical kind of peace when, even while western diplomats were in Moscow attempting to work out a formula with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, the Russians in Berlin were inciting riots, kidnapping western sector policemen and firing on American planes engaged in the air-lift?

One complication was being piled on top of another, with the ensuing result that any possibility of a peace-

The Last Mogul

Sir Mir Osman Ali Khan, sometimes called the richest man in the world, is the Nizam of Hyderabad, land-locked princely state in India which was attacked by India's dominion troops.

ful solution was getting buried deeper and deeper.

That all this confusion was being fostered deliberately by the Soviets was quite evident. Their purpose for so doing was more obscure.

THE RUSSIANS want full control of Berlin, taking that as their immediate objective. Ultimately they want to force American occupation troops completely out of Germany, after which Russia could take over the great German industrial potential, including the inestimably valuable Ruhr section.

However, there might be still another reason for this display of Soviet diplomatic aggression which was planned almost a year ago to erupt this fall.

The Russians might be trying to harass the western nations to the point where the entire Berlin issue will be dumped in the lap of the United Nations. Once the crisis comes under U. N. jurisdiction the Russians might plan to use the inevitable squabble as a pretext for resigning from the world organization and taking their satellite states with them.

THE EAST-WEST split into two opposing power spheres then would be complete. Moreover, the U. N. itself probably would be reduced to total impotency in guiding international affairs.

And the question of whether the Soviet Union is entertaining motives like these might be answered by the end of the year. For the western nations were determined that if they didn't get some satisfaction from Moscow soon they would arraign Russia before the United Nations this fall.

COTTON: Lift Dat Bale

With the largest cotton crop since 1937 being harvested this year, Uncle Sam is making ready to stage a comeback in the cotton buying business.

Of the 15,219,000 bales to come off the land, the cotton trade estimates that about a third will go into storage under federal loan.

TWENTY-ONE MILLION people in the United States depend on cotton for their livelihood, and the fate of the cotton crop, therefore, is not only a personal but a national concern.

The federal government is coming into the picture because cotton prices are coming down. They have reached 31.04 cents a pound, which is pretty close to the support floor of 30.74 cents.

Here's what happens: WHEN THE COTTON grower hauls his crop to the warehouse he gets a receipt for it, and then he either sells the cotton at the market price or accepts the government's standing offer to lend him money on it.

If he chooses to accept the loan, he is paid 30.74 cents a pound on the average—the exact price depending on the kind and quality of the cotton.

Then he is free, for one year, to sell the cotton for more money, provided the price goes up. If he doesn't sell it within a year the government becomes owner of the crop.

PROBABLE EFFECT of this operation will be to keep a lot of cotton off the market this year, thus preventing the price from dropping through the support floor. Also, it will result in the government's ending the year with several million bales of cotton on its hands.

BIG FOUR: Or Little 14?

The U. S. government's spectacular suit against the "big four" meat packing companies—Swift, Armour, Cudahy and Wilson—promised to be one of the biggest anti-trust actions since President Theodore Roosevelt said something about carrying a big stick.

Filed by the justice department in federal court in Chicago, the suit asks that the four companies be broken up into 14 separate firms. Specifically, the U. S. wants Swift and Armour to be carved into five separate companies each and Wilson and Cudahy each to be split into two firms.

TOM CLARK, attorney general, said in a statement: "The four defendants named in the complaint are charged with suppressing competition in the sale of meat and meat products." The Sherman anti-trust law is being invoked in the action.

Clark described the suit as "another in a series of cases instituted by the department of justice in furtherance of its program to free the production and sale of food and food products from monopolistic restraints."

THE PACKERS had another story to tell, however, with "playing politics," as one of their key phrases.

Said John Holmes, president of Swift and company: "It is significant that the charges appear at the beginning of this fall's political campaign. Apparently an attempt is being made to shift responsibility for inflationary price trends."

"No one can control either livestock prices or meat prices," Holmes fumed.

INFRA-RED: Frost Killer

The day—or night—of the old-fashioned smudge pot as the main buffer between plants and killing frost may be nearing an end.

Science has taken over to come up with a new kind of frost killer, development of which was sponsored by the American Iron and Steel institute.

THE CONTRAPTION, known as the Plymouth infra-red lamp, is in a fair way to affect materially the nation's agricultural system, the institute thinks.

Reporting on the new device, the institute pointed out that while farmers will find the lamp invaluable in saving crops during the first touches of frost, the growing season actually may be extended as techniques for its use are developed.

Dr. Arthur W. Farrell of Michigan State college, one of the men responsible for development of the infra-red machine, cited an example: "On September 2, 1946, to take one example, Michigan had a two-hour killing frost. The next frost did not occur until October 1, a month later. Had tomato and melon growers been able to protect their crops for about two hours on the morning of September 2, they would have had four more weeks of very favorable growing weather. As it was, they lost everything."

"THE FROST dispeller, made up of sheet steel and a little ingenuity, will put an end to some of nature's nonsense."

The lamp is composed of a circular piece of stainless steel, shaped in cone-shaped steps, with an oil burner within the framework. When the burner is put into action, the steel heats until it becomes cherry-red. At this point, infra-red rays are thrown off, spreading over the area to be warmed, even entering the ground in their intensity.

Little Pigs Stunted By Worm Infestation

Tests Show Marked Retarding of Growth

Seldom are farmers inclined to argue with scientists, livestock specialists and others who keep warning that internal parasites are harmful to swine. Occasionally, however, a farmer will pose the question: "How much injury is caused by worm infestation?"

The answer to that question is provided in tests conducted by the bureau of animal industry to determine how much the growth of pigs is retarded by roundworms (ascarids).

Growth of this pig will be determined largely by number of worms present.

In carrying out the experiment, the bureau used eight litter-mate pigs eight-weeks old, feeding four of them infective roundworm eggs. The other four, which served as controls, received no worm eggs.

After four months all eight pigs were weighed, killed and examined for roundworms. None were found in the control pigs, but the other four harbored 109, 39, 20 and 12, respectively.

Growth of the four pigs that had roundworms at autopsy was less rapid than the four controls. The pig with 109 worms weighed 8.7 pounds less than at the time it was fed the worm eggs; its control litter-mate gained 96 pounds.

The pig with 39 roundworms gained only 48 per cent as much as its control; the one with 20 roundworms, only 55 per cent as much as its control. The growth of the pig with only 12 roundworms was not retarded very much; it weighed nearly as much as its control mate.

Research to Intensify Winter in Meat Tests

Freezing is one of the oldest ways of preserving meat. It is also one of the newest, the U. S. department of agriculture points out.

In old-time freezing there was not much that could be done about the process. It was a winter method depending on continued cold. A mid-winter or early-spring thaw might spoil a meat supply intended to last for additional weeks or months. This was true whether the meat was wild game brought in by hunters or was from domestic animals.

Modern freezing is still so new that there is a good deal to be learned about it.

This is the purpose of an expansion of studies of meat freezing and curing made possible under the research and marketing act. A first step will be to survey freezing and curing methods now in use. Samples of meats typical of these methods of preservation will be assembled and compared for quality and nutritive value. Next, the experimenters will try first to duplicate, then improve the methods which the survey and comparison work indicate are most effective.

The bureau of animal industry will have equipment that can improve on even the most severe winter weather. It will be able to freeze meat at 100 degrees below zero if that proves desirable.

Quality Cream Boosts Returns to Dairymen

Production of high quality cream will pay dividends to the dairymen.

A few suggestions for assuring top production: Protect separator from rust; rinse with chlorine solution before using; wash with powder immediately after each separation; cool cream immediately; separate milk immediately after straining; cool cream rapidly and thoroughly before mixing with older cream; keep containers covered from the time the milk is strained into cans until it reaches the receiving vat; strain milk in milk room or milk house, not in the barn; cover cans tightly and place in cooler with cold circulating water.

College Degree Still Helps

Higher starting pay coupled with an unprecedented demand for college graduates by business and industry, disavow any popular belief that the market value of the college degree has been on the downgrade, reports John P. Kirwood, director of personnel and placement at Rutgers university.

Kirwood believes that this great demand for college-trained personnel will continue for at least three years—and probably longer—despite the increasing size of each new graduating class.

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

All-Time Best Seller

Lesson for October 3, 1948

IF ALL the Bibles sold in one year by one manufacturer, the American Bible society, were piled on top of one another, flat—not endwise—that pile of Bibles and testaments would be 26 miles high. In 1947 that firm put out the astonishing total of 9,310,439 Bibles, testaments or portions. During the first 125 years of the society's existence, 305,579,217 copies of Scripture were printed and sold by them; this would make one shelf 870 miles long.

Dr. Foreman

The Bible is the best selling book in the world. No other book is in its class.

Not to know the Bible is not to know the most widely read book in the world. The American Bible society publishes it in only 167 languages, but parts of it have been translated into as many as 1,000 languages and dialects.

Many Authors

SUCH popularity must be deserved. There are many reasons why the Bible continues to be, year after year, the all-time best seller. But one of the reasons is its impressive variety. It is not one book, it is a library of books.

A Christian will try seriously to appreciate the whole Bible and not merely one or two parts of it. Yet there is such variety in it that invariably some persons are attracted by one feature of it while another feature makes stronger appeal to others.

Our studies these next three months will be in "The Literature of the Bible" and each week we shall be noticing a different feature. This week we give a thought to the tremendous variety of the Bible, along with its underlying unity.

Many Types

LOOKING through the Bible you find all varieties of literary types; you find poetry and prose; stories, essays, sermons, biographies, dramas; rhapsodies, love songs, funeral dirges and battle hymns.

Here are pages as prosaic as a telephone book and here are pages more exciting than any fiction. Here are simple, straightforward ideas that a child can understand as soon as he understands the words and here are mysteries so profound that the world's mightiest and boldest minds shrink back in awe.

Many Times

NO ONE knows exactly how long it took for the Bible to be written. Let us suppose that the earliest parts came from the pen (or stylus) of Moses, and the latest part from about 100 years after Christ (John and the Revelation). If Moses flourished around 1200 B. C., that would mean that the Bible was completed 13 centuries after it was begun.

In 13 centuries much can happen, and much did. There is hardly any circumstance or crisis, there is scarcely any time, however humdrum or thrilling, which does not have its match in the Bible.

One Theme

FOR all the vast variety of the Bible, there is in it a deep and lofty unity. It is bound together by its mighty purpose, which throbbled in the heart's blood of every man who wrote a line of it. That purpose is to make God real to man, and to bring man to God.

They wrote under the irresistible impulse, born of the Holy Spirit, to make plain to other men what God had revealed to them.

So as you come to the Bible, remember its purpose is not to make you admire or revere it as a book; its great purpose is to be transparent, a window through which you shall see God.

A small inexpensive can of fish when combined with other nutritious ingredients such as bread, milk, cheese and vegetables makes a hearty and protein-rich dish that really satisfies. Serve a salad and light but tangy dessert and you have the foundation for your meal.

FOR THOSE DAYS when you have to economize but still have something the family cheers about, select foods from this parade of recipes. They're kind to the food budget.

Tuna puff uses such nourishing ingredients as eggs, milk and bread crumbs to make a hearty and satisfying dish out of a small can of fish. Bake it in individual casseroles for a colorful edging around the vegetable platter.

*Tuna Puffs (Serves 6)

- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 pound sliced mushrooms
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few grains cayenne
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 cup freshly grated American cheese
- 1 7-ounce can flaked tuna fish
- 2 cups fresh bread crumbs

Melt butter in saucepan, add mushrooms, cover and cook five minutes over low heat, stirring occasionally. Remove mushrooms. Add flour and seasonings to butter left in pan and blend. Gradually add milk. Stir and cook over low heat until thickened. Beat egg yolks slightly, add some hot sauce and blend; return to remaining sauce and cook two minutes longer. Fold in grated cheese. Remove from heat. Add drained, flaked tuna and mix thoroughly. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold in fish mixture. Pour into six large, buttered custard cups - or individual casseroles. Bake in a moderately slow (325 degree) oven, 45 minutes or until firm. Serve with lemon. For baking in a large casserole, allow one and one-quarter hours baking time.

Salmon-Rice Loaf (Serves 6)

- 1 1-pound can red salmon, drained
- 2 cups hot cooked rice, blanched
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Juice of 1/2 lemon
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup sliced stuffed green olives

Flake the salmon, add the rice which has been thoroughly drained and to which the butter has been added. Add lemon juice, olives and seasonings to taste. Fold in beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered pan into the bottom of which a buttered piece of paper has been fitted. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 45 to 50 minutes or until loaf has cooked through completely. Unmold and garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSES

By Roger Whitman

QUESTION: We have just emptied the last gallon from our 50-gallon range-oil drum, and the drum seems to be full of rust. Is there any way to clean this out before we have it refilled?

ANSWER: I believe the lower inside part of the drum has probably corroded. If you do not wish to buy a new one, you might consider having the lower part cut out and a new piece welded on. After opening up the drum it can be cleaned out thoroughly before welding on the new piece.

QUESTION: I have a pair of wrought iron candlesticks. I have just removed a coat of shiny black enamel from them. Now what is the correct, dull black paint or finish to use on them?

ANSWER: First wipe with benzine to remove all traces of whatever kind of remover you used to take off the old finish. Be careful of fire when using benzine. Finish the pieces with a flat black paint intended for metal surfaces; the better stocked paint stores sell this paint.

Strangers in Love

By Vina Delmar

Kathleen Manners was supposed to marry her fiance, Martin, when her mother sailed for Europe leaving her alone. However, on her way to Martin she meets fascinating Johnny Virginia, owner of Medicine Man, race horse. She falls in love with him at first sight and upon arrival in Los Angeles, she breaks her engagement to Martin and marries Johnny instead. Not wishing to spoil things for her mother, she conceals her strange marriage from her, leading her to believe she has married Martin. Medicine Man loses a big race and Kathleen is unduly upset. To make matters worse, her mother arrives from Europe on an unexpected visit and a showdown is inevitable.

CHAPTER VI

The coffee game, and with it came Romania, Italy, and France. Mother went on talking long after the coffee-pots were empty and cold, and Kathleen came to know first boredom and later panic as the clock moved on to post time. True, the important race was not till late in the afternoon, but suppose Johnny looked for her and she wasn't there? He was jumpy enough on the day of a big race, but when he came to the box and she was there with Mother—? That would be interesting for the spectators. Mother would leave them in no doubt that something was amiss with the Virginias. Still, Johnny was wise enough to take any cue that was thrown him, and Mother need not know till they were alone again that she had seen her son-in-law.

Kathleen smiled encouragingly. "I'm dying to hear more about it, Mother. But I'll have to get dressed now. I have such a treat in store for you. You came on the very best day you could have chosen. We're going out to the race track to see the big race."

"What!" Mother couldn't have been more amazed if Kathleen had jumped into a diver's outfit and said, "Let's have tea twenty-five feet under water."

"Everybody" goes out to the race track here. Some people, I understand, go every day. But, of course, this is something special this afternoon. A fifty-thousand-dollar purse to the winner."

Mother looked shocked, and Kathleen could see her reducing the purse to grains of rice for the Chinese orphans. "I thought we'd talk, Kathleen—"

"Oh, we will, dear, we will. But, darling, I just have to see this race, and so do you. It's a very important thing here in Los Angeles."

Mother looked doubtful. "I could send for my trunk and unpack while you're gone."

"Yes, you could. Would you prefer to do that?"

Mother considered. "No, I guess I'll go with you. After all, we've been separated for six months."

The very air that hung above the track seemed tinged with the sharp, electric crackle of excitement which rose from the clotted mass of humanity that pressed together trying to see, hoping to hear something of what transpired upon the fast, soft strip inside the rail.

Mother chattered bright throughout the afternoon. She had never seen a horse race before and she was full of questions.

It was five o'clock, and the track was a deep, shadowy gold when the horses that the people had really come to see walked out upon the track. A great chorus of acclaim rose from the spectators. Medicine Man had drawn a good post position, and through the binoculars Kathleen could see Rickey McAvoy smiling contentedly as they paraded before the applauding crowd. She looked at the tote board. Odds on favorite, Medicine Man. She was proud of him, and of Johnny and of Rickey. But Johnny hadn't come to the box to watch the race.

Mother Goes To the Races

"Well, now, Kathleen, here's your big race. Whom are you going to bet on?"

"I'm not going to bet, Mother."

"What?"

"I came just to watch."

"I must say that's silly. Still, it's probably better than throwing away your money."

Mother looked up at an airplane that was advertising some product in skywriting: D-R-E-

"Now, what's he trying to write?"

"I'm sure I don't know, Mother."

Mother laughed. "All right. Look at your old horses. I won't bother you again."

Kathleen didn't even hear her. The horses were in the gate now. Medicine Man had walked in like a lamb. Ah, what the papers would make of that! "When Medicine Man is carrying top weight he doesn't delay the start," they would say.

"And there they go!" The giant voice from the tower began to call the race, and Kathleen sat with clenched fists and her breath drawn so tightly that her chest ached.

Flash of colored silks in the sunlight; glimmering flanks of gallant horses and the illusion of terrific speed.

"Around the first turn it's Do Tell; High Rate is second, Inception is third," the loudspeaker said.

Through the binoculars, Kathleen could see Medicine Man holding his place easily, not yet ready to challenge the leaders. Rickey looked thoroughly contented with the situation and she allowed herself to breathe again.

"Into the back stretch it's Do Tell by half a length. Inception is second by a head. High Rate is third by a length, and Medicine Man—"

"Get up there, baby," Kathleen whispered.

Mother turned and smiled at her.

A mighty roar rose from the crowd as Medicine Man made his move. The steady, steady, calm tone of the announcer was drowned in the yells of the mob.

"Which baby do you want to win it, dear? They're all beautiful."

"Around the far turn it's Inception by a neck. High Rate is second by a length. Do Tell is third by half a length. Medicine Man is fourth."

"Come on, baby," Kathleen murmured between parted lips. Then to herself, "Rickey, get up there. Please get up there."

A mighty roar rose from the crowd as Medicine Man made his move. The steady, steady, calm tone of the announcer was drowned in the yells of the mob.

Tragedy Strikes At Medicine Man

"He's got it. It's in the bag," a voice behind Kathleen cried. And she knew it was true. He couldn't lose. Those strong, lithe legs were eating up the yards that stood between him and victory. Kathleen's breath came in a swift, surprising shock to her ears. She was screaming. But surely this once Johnny would forgive her for being carried away by Medicine Man's great charge. And at that moment the thing happened. Medicine Man seemed to plunge forward, his right front foot doubled under him, and he was down.

"He stumbled," somebody cried. "Is the boy dead? Did another horse kick him as the field went past?"

For Rickey McAvoy lay motionless on the track, his bright silks making a puddle of color on the soft loam. Medicine Man was standing now. He stood piteously on three legs, his fourth dangled horribly, and the bewilderment on his face was tragic to see. The race was over. Somebody won. Kathleen never knew which horse it was, for she was running down the stairs, with Mother babbling in her ear and the sound of her own sobs accompanying the rain of words.

"Where are you going? You can't do anything for that poor horse, dear. And the boy, just a child, he's badly hurt, I'm afraid. Don't carry on so, dear. There's nothing we can do. Let me take you home."

"Mother, go away. I've got to get to the stables. How do you think Johnny feels? He loves Medicine Man. That horse is his life."

"Who's Johnny, dear?"

"My husband, of course."

"Darling, you're—"

A man came rushing up to them. "I have a car right here, Mrs. Virginia. Would you like to ride around to the stables?"

They drove to the stable area, Kathleen fighting her sobs all the way.

She jumped out of the car. The horse ambulance was driving in with Medicine Man standing patiently on his three legs. Johnny came running from another car. There were tears running unashamedly down his face. She went at once to his side, but he paid no attention to her. Now there was only Medicine Man, who waited trustingly for whatever it was that Johnny thought best to do.

"Johnny, is there any way I can help?" Kathleen whispered.

He looked at her without seeing her. She was just a well-dressed stranger. "No, no, thanks." Then, "Sure. Go with Rickey to the hospital. See that he gets everything he needs."

"Are you going to stay here?" she asked gently.

"Yes, I'm going to stay here." His voice was savage and low-pitched. "My horse's leg is broken. I'm going to stay here and shoot him."

"Surely, Johnny, you needn't do that. If he must be destroyed someone else can—"

She avoided looking at the poor animal, but it was almost worse to look at Johnny's tortured face.

"Sure, I can get someone to shoot him for me, and I suppose he can hire someone to die for him. He did everything I ever asked him to do. I said, 'Go out and run for me. I'll get a swell living out of it and you'll get nothing, and if you break your leg I'll have to shoot you.' Well, the least I can do for him is not pay someone to take the rap for me."

Kathleen felt the sobs rising in her throat again and she turned away. When she looked back the ambulance had moved on, and Johnny had gone to do the one thing that was left to do for the greatest horse in training. Medicine Man, with the soft eyes and the gentle manner. Johnny's big horse, who was brave and fleet and who had asked nothing but a caress in return for all he gave.

A stable hand looked at her, bit his lip, and made a circle in the dirt with the tip of his boot. "Mrs. Virginia, that boy is dead, that Rickey McAvoy."

"Oh, no."

"Yes, ma'am. You could see it when they brought him in. They took him down to some place where they'll keep him and send for his folks and everything."

Kathleen stood stunned in the fading California sunlight. Mother's arm was around her, her hand tenderly patting her shoulder and her voice murmuring words of comfort: "You go, Mother. I'll stay here with Johnny, since there's nothing I can do for Rickey."

"Please come, baby. Your husband is upset—"

"Of course he's upset. That's why he needs me."

"But there's nothing you can do to help him, dear, and you needn't drain the cup of the last miserable drops. You needn't see the shooting of the poor horse."

"Johnny wouldn't let me see that, Mother."

"Oh, I don't know. He seems pretty much set on doing as much suffering as possible. He isn't being very sensible, you know. After all—"

Kathleen lifted her eyes to her mother's face and stared straightly into it and waited for Mother to finish her sentence.

Farewell to Rickey And His Horse

"After all, we have to make the best of our misfortunes, don't we?" Mother finished weakly.

"Yes," Kathleen was silent for a moment. Then, "Johnny bought a colt and they believed in each other, so Johnny taught the colt to run, and he became a horse that people had to respect, though they never respected Johnny. And then there was a kid that Johnny met at a fair grounds, and he taught the kid to ride the horse, and together the horse and the kid were great. And they died together, and you say Johnny isn't being very sensible. Would you like to go in, Mother, and sort of rationalize the situation for him?"

"Oh, Kathleen, you're letting your emotions tear you apart. Where's my good, intelligent girl gone?"

"I'm not sure you ever had one, Mother."

Through the soft, yellow haze came the high, sweet notes of the bugle calling the horses for the last race. The call came sadly to the ears of Kathleen, dolefully, a minor key that wept for Rickey McAvoy and Medicine Man, who would go to the winner's circle no more. There were other horses and other boys to answer that bugle. There would always be horses to run and boys to ride them, but for Johnny there would never again be a horse like Medicine Man. For Rickey's girl there would never be another Rickey.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"BERT is worried to death over high prices and hard times," writes Lois Jacks from an Iowa city. "But just the same he gets furious and won't help me at all when I try to cut down. We have two sets of twins; girls of 9 and boys of 3."

"Bert and the girls take box lunches every week day. That means 18 meals a day. I try to make them inexpensive as well as appetizing, but Bert wants hearty dinners—meats that cost more than the whole meal cost a few years ago; and all the old trimmings—celery, nuts, jelly, rich desserts."

"It's all his loyalty and love for us, of course; his desire to make everything perfect for the children and me. But it has led to a real difference of opinion between us."

Meatless Nights.

"For one thing, I inaugurated four meatless nights a week, using cheese and fish dishes to insure proper nourishment. Out of one old fowl and half a can of ham we had delicious club sandwiches for one dinner, and a hearty rice-and-chicken soup for the next. But Bert spent both meal-times fretting and arguing, against meat substitutes, butter substitutes, makeshifts generally."

"Incidentally, our income is $4,000 a year; we own our home, and rent our garages on the side street for

... spent meal-times fretting ...

$60. I can manage; I've never got Bert Jacks one cent into debt in our 12 happy years—but I'm stumped now."

"With my four young children I can't take a job, nobody is going to leave us any money, and a few unimportant raises in the next few years are all Bert can hope for. We're better off than most, with our car and our garden and our summer picnics; if things don't get any worse we'll be all right."

I wonder if this letter conveys to other women the warmly sweet and admirable nature that I am sure the writer has. This gallant little wife and mother only asks a chance to make a success of today's domestic difficulties.

She wants to try new dishes, make experiments, challenge rising prices with smarter meals. Millions of women are doing it all over the world; saving fuel, saving fats, serving hearty delicious one-dish meals, drawing husband and children into the game that will hold the family together through the disturbed years ahead.

To Bert, therefore, and to many another husband, my advice is this: Wait until you've eaten the dinner before you break onto fretful criticism. On the table, soup and muffins and succotash and deep dish apple pie may look rather meaningless.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

But if the soup is hearty, the vegetables very hot and well seasoned, and the apple pie as good as home-made apple pie should be, then you'll lean back from the table just as satisfied, and really better off gastronomically than if the $2.20 meal had cost $8.40.

So you tired businessmen all over the country, or at least as many of you as have good wives like Lois, take this suggestion from me: Eat your dinner before you criticize. Give Mother a chance to prove that inexpensive well cooked foods, seasoned by hopeful conversation and the conviction that you are licking high prices rather than letting them lick you open a whole new world of dinnertime satisfaction.

Let's hope that lower prices, lower taxes, world peace, better times are ahead. But let's also face the truth that these are nervous and trying times. Harmony at the dinner table is all-important. And for you, Bert, a special message. To have your own home, two daughters and two sons, and a wife like Lois—who faces this world-wide situation of change and panic so gallantly—ought to make a dinner of plain bread and milk a Lucullan feast for you.
