Thanksgiving Day Thursday, Nov. 24

Thanksgiving Day, a festival of Thanksgiving, was set apart to return thanks for the harvest, mercies and blessing of the closing year, which resembles the feast of ingathering held by the Hebrews. The Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, in 1621, kept the earliest harvest thanksgiving in America and in the succeeding centuries the practice was frequently repeated. In many of the colonies the governor's appointed a day for rejoicing in the autumn, especially in the New England states, where thanksgiving services have been popular from the early settlements and where Thanksgiving Day still ranks as the special annual festival. Thanksgiving services were recommended by Congress for each year of the Revolutionary War and in 1784 a special day of thanksgiving was appointed for the return of peace. After the adoption of the constitution, in 1789, Washington appointed a thanksgiving day, while a special thanksgiving for the welfare of the nation was given in 1795 and another for the return of peace was appointed by Madison in 1815. The festival has been observed annually in New York since 1817 but its general observance in the United States dates from 1863, when Lincoln issued a proclamation recommending that the last Thursday of November be observed as Thanksgiving Day. All the succeeding presidents have regularly issued proclamations calling the attention of the nation to the observance of this festival, which ranks as a legal holiday and the duty of observing it in a fitting manner is likewise proclaimed by the various governors, in whom alone is vested the legal authority to declare a holiday within the states.

In 1940, Thanksgiving Day, by tradition the last Thursday in November, was advanced one week by President Roosevelt. The nation was split by this effort to change precedent, 32 states followed the recommendation of President Roosevelt and observed Thanksgiving on Nov. 21 while 16 states observed Thanksgiving on Nov. 28. The purpose in moving Thanksgiving ahead a week was to provide a longer period between Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays. Merchants and business interests generally favored the change. Dissenters were largely those who felt tradition should not be upset.

Now that we know a little about the origin and history of Thanksgiving Day let us all be as thankful as we can for all the blessings that we have received. Your surrounding don't have to do with your thankfulness, you can be just as thankful in a humble cottage as the family living in a castle. It don't make a bit of difference whether you have roast turkey, cranberry sauce, etc or if you sit down to just a plain rabbit stew.

School News

First and Second Grade News—The first grade has finished its third book and is very proud of it. Nov. 1, the individual children began taking library books home. Ronnie Weindorf has read four of them, Royce Parker, Peggy Harris, Betty Seely, Roy Young, Leon Alexander and Charles Ray Tarrant two each; Jimmy Potter, Johnny Crockett and Manual Cortez one each. The second grade have been re-reading last year's books, so they can recall all the words they learned. Johnny Hidalgo has read 24, Barry Teel 22, Bill Wilson 12, Lewis Wells 7, Floyd Jones 23, Bobby Tarrant 16, Bobby Madron 12, Jeri Lynn Carson 27. The more we read, the better we read and vice versa. Leon Alexander had a birthday party last week and Jeri Carson the week before. Charles Tarrant celebrated his on Sunday and we did not get to spank him once. If anyone is interested and we know you are, Betty, Bill Bobby Madron and Jeri have not missed a word in spelling.

6th, 7th and 8th Grade News—We were all very sorry to hear about our teachers death and to show our sympathy, the 6th, 7th and 8th grades, part of their class dues and added it to what each of us brought. We gave it to Mr. Lea to buy a separate spray of flowers to send to Kansas for Mrs. Campbell. Mrs. Hardin will take Mrs. Campbell's place until Mr. Lea can find a different teacher. Well test time again. Seems they are three week tests instead of six week tests. Each of us will do our best to get good grades. There was a party Wednesday night at Mrs. George's. It was sponsored by Mrs. Penn Trimble. It began at 7:30 and ended when we got through eating the refreshments. Josephine Blackney, Trent Prudencio, Bobby Rex Seeley, Sue Ray Summers, Patricia Ann Wells, Gregorio Hidalgo, Jimmy Houston and Letha Mae Newbill are the ones who have been absent this week. We will celebrate Gordon Goddard's birthday by attending a free show at the Landsun Theater Saturday. You may be sure that most of us will be there. You know it is getting closer to Thanksgiving and a lot of turkeys are getting their heads chopped off. Reeve Jeanne's aunt couldn't get an axe sharp enough to cut Reeve's head off she just cut off her hair.

3rd, 4th and 5th Grade—We are studying hard in order to get in all of our work before the Thanksgiving holidays. Nobody has missed a word in spelling since school started and we are striving to keep up our good record. Barbara Nell Seely had glasses fitted in Carlsbad last Friday and from all reports she has become quite a radio star, as she has broadcast twice from the radio station. Billy Madron was absent from school Monday as he was helping his daddy haul feed. We never tire of drawing horses in all shapes and forms and how interesting to see the horses that are prancing, bucking, running, jumping or kicking. We have made some strutting turkeys for our table decorations for Thanksgiving. We enjoyed the delightful party planned for our room by our room mothers, Mrs. Guy Crockett, Mrs. Malone Nunnelee, Mrs. Bill Madron and Mrs. Floyd Greene on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bill Madron. We played games outside and went inside for refreshments of apples, candy bars, cookies, pop, marshmallows and bubble gum. Thanks to our room mothers for an enjoyable afternoon.

Freshman News—E. L. Cox was in town over the week end to visit his folks who live here. The Home Ec girls are very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. T. A. Campbell. We sent her a spray of flowers. Oleta Melton was a visitor in Carlsbad Saturday night. Allan Stirman was a lucky hunter over the week end. He got a 10-point buck. The Methodist Church had a Thanksgiving supper Monday. Two of the class attended. It was enjoyed by all.

Sophomore News—We have been working pretty steady to get a few dollars for the class. We have sponsored a stage show and now we are selling Yellow Jacket pencils. In general science we have been having a test a week. We all think that is much better because we learn it better and study harder. We are all deeply shocked and saddened at the news of Mrs. Campbell's death. We all thought she was such a nice teacher and lady. We are very happy that Mrs. Hardin could substitute for us, she is a wonderful teacher. We are having six weeks exams and will be very happy when they are over.

Mrs. Tom Campbell Passes Away

We regretted very much to hear of the death of Mrs. Tom Campbell, who was teaching Home Economics and departmental work in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the Hope school. Mrs. Campbell left the Hope school on Tuesday, Nov. 8, with a severe toothache. She entered the hospital at Dalhart, Texas, a few days later. Mr. Lea was informed that Mrs. Campbell had passed away with heart trouble on Wednesday night, Nov. 16. Word was received later the funeral would be held Saturday, Nov. 19, at Soldier, Kan. She is survived by her husband and three daughters.

Phone Committee Hard at Work

The committee appointed to raise funds for the purpose of starting the Penasco Valley Telephone Cooperative have been busy this past week and the last report is that about $600 had been raised. Wm. M. Siegenthaler, attorney for the Central Valley Electric Cooperative is busy now drawing up the necessary paper and possibly right after Christmas construction work can begin on the telephone cooperative.

"An estimated 1000 persons gathered here Saturday afternoon as Mayors Eber McKinley of Alamogordo and Ray Daniels of Cloudcroft cut a ribbon officially opening the tunnel on the new Cloudcroft road.

When paving is completed, the road will cost nearly $2,000,000 and will render more accessible to tourists and others a vast mountain playground in the Sacramento Mountains of Southern New Mexico.

C. Vernon Clayton of the Tularosa Chamber of Commerce was master of ceremonies. Speakers included C. Otto Lindh, regional forester; Joe Bursey, director of the New Mexico Tourist Bureau and official representative of Gov. T. J. Mabry; Jack Spence, Carlsbad; C. W. Holford, Harry Thygesen Construction Co., contractors on the job; T. A. Smith, Bureau of Public Roads; Bill Prestridge, member of the New Mexico Highway Commission; Bill Garard, El Paso Chamber of Commerce; Johnwill Faris, custodian of White Sands National Monument; Bud McLean, president of Cloudcroft Chamber of Commerce; Conley Chappell, president of Alamogordo Chamber of Commerce; Lillian Bagwell, secretary of the Alamogordo chamber and Frank Mayhill of Mayhill, N. M.

The Alamogordo High School band furnished music for the affair. After the ceremony, coffee and doughnuts were served by the Alamogordo Chamber of Commerce.

Improvement of the highway was divided into six sections.

Section 1, from Highway 54 to cattle guard, cost $130,000.

The section, including boring the tunnel, cost $765,000. The third project consisted of lining the tunnel with concrete at a cost of $200,000.

Fourth section consisted of two extensions of paving at $4,000 each. Fifth and sixth sections are surfacing from Mountain Park to Toboggan Canyon and to Cloudcroft, at $369,000 and $375,000 respectively.

The highway is surfaced to High Rolls and surfacing to Cloudcroft will begin Dec. 1 provided the U. S. government allots $1,250,000 for the project from forest highway funds.

Boy Scout Meeting Next Monday Night

There is to be a meeting of all men and boys interested in organizing a Boy Scout Troop next Monday night at 7:30 at the high school gym. The Boy Scout field representative plans to be here that night and invites all men and boys interested in doing Boy Scouting to be present. Hope has had a good troop in the past and there is no reason why we can't have it again.

Lift-Type Device Used on Tractor

Will Aid Materially In Easing Farm Chores

To help with those odd chores about the farm that so often are time-wasting and back-breaking, Pittsburgh forgings company of Corapolis, Pa., has developed a lift-type utility carrier for use on tractors.

The Pittsburgh carry-lift is attached in a few seconds to tractors through the regular implement suspension points. Made of alloy spring steel and structural steel, it will handle loads as heavy as 700 pounds.

An important feature of this new unit is its quick conversion from a platform lift to a fork lift, making it universal in the types of loads it can both lift and carry. It can be used as a platform lift either with or without a back panel, and pockets are provided for standard 2"x4" stakes. The frame is punched to provide easy securing of loads and for the addition of a wooden platform.

The farm carry-lift is attached in seconds through the regular tractor implement suspension points. Heavy containers can be tipped and rolled onto the platform without lifting. The tractor engine raises the carry-lift.

Used as a fork lift, the utility carrier works like a small hay buck, and thus can pick up bulky material without the lift having to be loaded by hand. Heavier loads can be handled in this way by using slip-pallets. Its capacity for light, bulky loads can be extended materially by putting 2"x4" fork extensions into the brackets provided.

Lifting of heavy containers like milk cans, drums and barrels is eliminated by the carry-lift because these can be tipped and rolled onto the platform which practically rests on the ground. Small buildings, range shelters, and feeders can be easily and quickly moved by tipping slightly and running the forks beneath them. Heavy bags of seed grain can be taken to the field with a minimum of lifting, and field feeding is made both quicker and easier.

The carry-lift will be found particularly useful because material can be moved over any kind of ground, under any condition where a tractor can operate and in places that might be inaccessible by other means of transportation.

Make Your Fruit Cakes, Plum Puddings in Time For Leisurely Ripening

BEFORE YOU GET CAUGHT in the crush of holiday shopping or tangled in festive tinsel and wrapping, give a thought to your fruit cakes and plum puddings. These should be made at least a month or more before the holidays to give them time to ripen and mellow so their flavors will be perfect.

It's a comforting thought, too, many homemakers have found in years past, to have their Christmas desserts all snugly wrapped, ready to be eaten well in advance of all the other holiday food preparation.

In case you want to give away fruit cake and plum pudding as presents with "warmest regards" from your own kitchen, decide exactly who will be the lucky receivers, and plan accordingly.

PLAN TWO DAYS for making your fruit cake. The first day is usually spent ordering the fruits and nuts and getting them ready, along with lining the pans with paper. The second day is spent mixing and baking, as well as decorating and wrapping the cakes for storage.

Horn of Plenty Fruit Cake (Makes 5 pounds)

- 2 1/2 cups golden raisins
- 1 cup dried apricots
- 1 1/2 cups sliced citron
- 1 cup cut candied pineapple
- 1 cup halved candied cherries
- 1 cup shredded coconut
- 1/4 cup apricot whole fruit nectar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons nutmeg
- 2 teaspoons mace
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3/4 cup thick orange marmalade
- 1 cup butter or substitute
- 1 1/4 cups granulated sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 1/4 cups finely chopped blanched almonds

Rinse raisins and drain. Pour boiling water over apricots and let stand five minutes. Cut into thin strips. Combine with raisins, citron, pineapple, cherries, coconut, nectar, spices and marmalade. Cover and let stand overnight. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat thoroughly. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt and mix well. Blend in flavoring, almonds and fruit mixture and mix well. Pour into two loaf pans (8 x 4 x 3 inches) or one (9-inch) tube pan lined with two thicknesses of greased brown paper and one of waxed paper. Bake in a slow (275°f.) oven 3 to 4 hours, depending upon size of cake. Decorate top as desired.

Bake your fruit cakes in loaf pans or tube pans, whichever you like, but bake them early. Then they'll have a chance to ripen properly before the holidays and taste their mellow best. This Horn of Plenty Fruit Cake, light in color, is packed with luscious candied and dried fruits, golden raisins, coconut and almonds.

Wash and dry raisins and currants, combine with nutmeats. Dredge with one cup flour. Sift remaining flour, baking soda, spices and salt. Beat eggs, add crumbs, sugar, molasses, buttermilk, suet and grape juice. Add raisin mixture and blend thoroughly. Add flour mixture; mix thoroughly. Pour into two greased three-pound molds. Cover and steam for three hours. Cool puddings, wrap in heavy waxed paper and store in a cool place. Re-steam to heat and serve with hard or other type sauce.

Plum puddings, like fruit cake, should be given a month or so to ripen before serving to taste their best. Here's a truly festive pudding with fruits, nuts and spices combined with suet, molasses and bread crumbs.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Budget Problems

"OURS IS A FAMILY that is never quite easy on the money question," writes Alison Hoyt from Kansas City. "Lynn and I are intelligent, I think, not college folk, but just two more of the great mass of people who have a boy and a girl and a car and are paying on a washer, and manage to spend every cent of our $400 a month.

"My grandmother," the letter goes on, "thinks that is big money, but when my grandmother kept house for $160 a month, taxes were not what they are, steak was 18 cents a pound and bacon 11 cents. Children's dentistry consisted of a visit a year, and there were no motor cars, movies, telephones, electric kitchen equipment.

"Our real trouble," continues Alison, "is that Frank and Barbara are 14 and 12 now, and their clothes, amusements, and expectations in the way of presents have just simply gotten out of reach. We did pile up a nice nest-egg of bonds during the war, when I worked, but we are down to bed-rock now."

What's the answer? Where are we wrong? We only have what so many others have; seven-room house, no servant, public schools. Barbara's dresses and mine cost under $10 each, but she has to have a coat each winter. Other children get their half-dollars for movies and skating rink and chocolate malts; we can't be the ones to stop.

Considers Working
"Should I get a job, and if I do, who keeps an eye on my boy and girl in the dangerous teens?"

Alison, if my answer seems harsh to you, you may comfort yourself that it applies to about four million equally worried American families, too. Science has never put so many tempting household devices in woman's way, social development has never put before children's eyes so many desirable things to wear, eat, watch. We have all, as a nation, gone slightly crazy on what we must have, wear and see, even though every voice that speaks prophecies now says "rocks ahead!"

You and Lynn are following the trend, and it is a trend that leads to a dependent old age, to Frank and Barbara being burdened with tomorrow's heavier costs, insurances and taxes, and being burdened with you, too. It is an everyday tragedy, but nonetheless terrible in its effects.

Now I am going to tell you a little story. Olga and Jan Ricker came from the depth of occupied Poland two years ago. They are as well educated as Lynn and you, but they had known nothing but starvation, fear, cold, pain for years. Now miraculously, they are here.

Small Apartment

Olga tumbled through the very quiet, utterly unfashionable parts of town, and found three rooms near the river for $26 a month. Katzi 13, helped her clean and paint the uninviting apartment. Karl, 15, and his sister go to school, but Katzi got an after-school job with burdened little Mrs. Smith and her three babies, and makes $10 a week. Karl has had a bakery delivery job since the day they arrived.

Olga does her own washing in a tub, on a board, marveling in the new powders that are one more miracle in this land of miracles. She takes a basket to market, and not a smart market—but the hungry family finds no fault with the thick soups, the shining salad, the home-made bread and cheap desserts—desserts of cornstarch, apples, runty prunes soaked to softness. Nothing is wasted.

Jan wears his nine-year-old coat. If her school companions laugh at her clumsy European clothes, Katzi has the good philosophic talk at table to give her balance. She found several pals as shabby as herself, and Mom takes their breath away now and then by saying that her good girl can have a dollar, yes, go to the movie.

Household Hints

Add a different flavor to potato salad by marinating the chopped onions in lemon juice for an hour before mixing with the other ingredients.

As a salad for children, use celery stalks filled with peanut butter. Cut the stalks into half-inch pieces and place them on shredded lettuce with banana slices of the same length. Serve with mayonnaise.

Before adding the batter, drop a teaspoon of peanut butter in each muffin pan to give muffins a delicious, nutty flavor.

To retain the greatest amount of flavor in fruits, place them in a covered saucepan and cook them as fast as possible without scorching the fruit. Also do not overcook the fruit.

The original wagon axle was kept, the cart was built of 3/4 inch pipe. Time required to build the cart was two and one-half hours at a cost of $1 for materials. Arc welding played an important part in the cart's construction.

Corn in Silage Form Answer to Extra Crop

Corn in the form of silage is the solution for the extra crop—and a trench silo is the cheapest and easiest way to provide for making and storing of silage. The trench silo is especially recommended for those who need to provide storage space hurriedly. However, areas having extremely high water tables or soil that is sandy or loose are not suitable according to a dairy specialist.

France, Canada Urge Atomic Pact; British Labor Gets Speedup Rule; G.M. Dividend Sets Industry Mark

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

NEW NAVAL OPERATIONS BOSS CONGRATULATED . . . U.S. Navy Secretary Francis Matthews (left) congratulates Adm. Forrest P. Sherman after the latter was named by President Truman as chief of naval operations to succeed Adm. Louis E. Denfeld. Denfeld was let out because of criticism of unification and defense policy in the armed services setup.

ATOMIC PACT:

Asked by Two

France and Canada joined at Lake Success in asking that all nations do everything in their power to ban use of atomic bombs and control atomic energy.

THE APPEAL was directed to all—and especially the Soviet union—to forget traditional ideas of the sovereignty of nations and join an atomic pact that would promote security and peace.

It was a sincere gesture, but about all that could be said of any results that might ensue was that it was a "nice try."

The proposal did have the support of the others in the majority group of the 59-nation political committee of the U.N. general assembly, but Soviet Russia was still to be heard from on the suggestion.

The French-Canadian resolution actually meant the majority pow-

FIRST BOMB WEIGHED TON

According to Stephen M. Alexis, Haiti, the first atomic bomb weighed a ton. He made the statement at a United Nations session. Statistics on the makeup of the bomb have not been officially disclosed, but Alexis said he had his information from a scientist, and that in three or four years there would be a smaller bomb for use by smaller countries.

ers want the general assembly once more to endorse their proposal for atomic control and to order secret talks to continue between the Big Five and Canada.

SIR BENEGAL N. RAU, India's chief delegate, offered another idea in the debate outlining officially his plan for the international law commission to draw up a world declaration for prohibition of the bomb and for control of atomic energy.

But, it was said in official circles, that the French-Canadian proposal was as far as the majority powers wanted to go at this time.

DIVIDENDS:

New High

Was it a symbol, a portent of the future? Did it indicate the strength of the nation's economic situation, or was it as temporary signboard at the mercy of any real wind of economic recession?

WHATEVER its real significance, industrialists and economists took cheer for it. It was a vote by General Motors corporation of the largest cash-dividend total in the history of American industry. The company, which recently reported a record net profit of more than 502 million dollars from the first nine months of this year, would send checks totaling $190,436,055 to 436,005 holders of its common and preferred stock. The distribution would represent a year-end payment of $4.25 a share on the outstanding issue, raising to $8 a share the amount declared on the common stock this year.

GENERAL MOTORS was also expected to establish a record when it retired out of its own corporate funds its entire long-term debt of 125 million dollars—17 to 27 years before the notes are due.

Plane Record

Commercial planes were darting about the world faster and faster. Latest speed record for commercial planes was claimed by Pan American lines which reported its strato-cruiser Westward Ho landed at London in 9 hours and 12 minutes after leaving New York.

Capt. Robert D. Fordyce, Jackson Heights, N. Y., commander of the Westward Ho, did it with the aid of a tail wind which at times reached a speed of 75 miles an hour.

The plane traveled the Great Circle route and its average speed was about 385 miles an hour. The plane carried 21 passengers and a crew of 10.

Only a day before, a Pan American plane flew from New York to London in 9 hours, 21 minutes, which had bettered the existing mark by 20 minutes.

BRITISH LABOR:

More for More

It has been a fairly well established philosophy of trade unions to frown on the "eager beaver" who likes to demonstrate how fast he can work or how much he can produce in a given time. In fact, some unions prohibit members from engaging in any type of production speed contest.

The philosophy is understandable, if not popular. It is one which takes care of the union member who hasn't the ability, the skills or the physical stamina to keep up with the would-be speed demon. The philosophy has been applied often enough for critics to charge that it has amounted, in many instances, to an actual work "slow down."

ALL THIS being a matter of record, England's labor government's move to allocate higher rewards for greater labor productivity came as a surprise to many U. S. supporters of the Attlee regime. They began to speculate whether the prime minister was laying up trouble for himself among his labor adherents.

The British government's turning away from this traditional philosophy of labor was explained on the basis that it must be done to meet growing demands for higher wages to offset higher living costs. Therefore, the ministry is advocating a system of tying wages to the rate of production, rather than the price index.

GOLD HOARD:

Really There

Those skeptical, apprehensive citizens whose dreams had begun to be haunted by the awful spectre of doubt that Uncle Sam's purported gold store at Fort Knox wasn't there at all could all relax. The gold was there, all of it.

ASSURANCE came from a source certainly qualified to know, for that source was Leland Howard, assistant director of the U.S. bureau of the mint. It is his duty to examine personally the gold hoard at least once a year.

"There's more than 12,000 tons of it (gold) at the Ft. Knox depository," he reports. That's more than half of the 24 billion dollars worth of the stuff which the government keeps under lock and key.

RUSSIA:

Direct Warning

Soviet Russia was doing a bit of boasting and chest-thumping about the atomic bomb for her arms stockpile.

IN A SPEECH broadcast from Moscow, Georgi N. Malenkov, a member of the Soviet inner circle, warned that with the atomic bomb in Russian hands a third World War would "wipe out capitalism." His was the main speech in celebration of the 32nd anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

"If the imperialists unleash a third world war," he said, "this will not be the grave of individual capitalist countries, but of world capitalism as a whole."

He said that atomic energy in the hands of capitalism is the "means of bringing death."

Turning to a new note for the moment, he declared that "we do not want war and are doing everything to prevent it." Then, discussing atomic energy again, Malenkov asserted that atomic energy "in the hands of the Soviet people must and will serve as a mighty weapon of unprecedented technical progress and further speedy growth of the productive forces of our country."

FOLLOWING THE PARTY LINE right down to the final syllable, he charged that the United States has a plan to "enslave the entire world" and that this plan was "borrowed from the mad plans of Hitler and Tanaka (pre-war Japanese militarist) but different in that it exceeds both plans together."

Despite all the boasting and the bombast, there existed in many minds a doubt that Russia has the atomic bomb as we know it—a weapon ready to be dropped at will.

POLITICS:

Sound & Fury

The sound and fury of the 1950 congressional campaign was touched off rather prematurely by Minnesota's Harold E. Stassen in Minneapolis where he accused President Harry Truman of making "vicious and untrue" statements in his attacks on political enemies.

AND STASSEN is one of those enemies, for the former Minnesota governor and now president of the University of Pennsylvania, is a certain candidate for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

Stassen charged that Truman used historical references in his recent St. Paul speech to "wrap the cloak of Jefferson around himself," but that actually the President "long ago personally trampled on the cloak of Jefferson."

WITHOUT mentioning Truman by name, Stassen answered directly the President's address at St. Paul in which the chief executive assailed "reactionaries" who, he said, had impeded progress of his welfare program in congress.

Stassen praised congress for refusing to go along with Truman on the "dangerous" Brannan farm plan, on the President's request for postwar retention of OPA, and on his demands for pyramided centralized power over a wide range of subjects."

BLARNEY:

A Sham Rock?

Most folks know better than to get into an argument with an Irishman—particularly about anything that is peculiarly Irish, such as the blarney stone.

BUT IN CALIFORNIA, as in Brooklyn, anything can happen, so it wasn't too surprising to find a row over Ireland's famed blarney stone breaking out there.

It all happened when a 15-pound stone, believed by San Franciscans to be a chunk of the real blarney stone, was stolen from a church bazaar. Jim Cummins, custodian of the San Francisco stone chunk, declared he had "documentary proof my stone is authentic."

On Trial Again

The Way It Happened . . .

IN SUPERIOR, WIS. . . A man was arrested for stealing his ex-wife's dentures and selling the gold in the upper plate for 75 cents.

IN HONG KONG . . . A driver was fined $150 for carrying 22 adults in his station wagon, the body of which measured six feet by five.

IN INDEPENDENCE, MO. . . A defendant was charged with selling a cow for $150 to a farmer, then stealing it from the buyer and reselling it to a packer.

IN MILWAUKEE . . . A railroad engineer got an overtime parking ticket when his locomotive broke down and blocked a street for 25 minutes.

IN BATON ROUGE, LA. . . A dismissed iceman was arrested on charges of criminal mischief because he turned the signs in housewives' windows to read: "No ice today."

IN PHILADELPHIA . . . 11-year old Joseph Dowling found "pirate gold" believed to have been washed off the British privateer "Thistle" when it was lost in 1813 off Mantoloking Beach, N. J.

Spokesman of God

Lesson for November 27, 1949.

GOD MAKES USE of strange characters. What shall we think of a preacher who tried to beg off from being a preacher? What can we make of a man who actually reproached God for forcing him into the ministry? How shall we rate a man who in time of war urged his own nation to surrender, who was believed by almost nobody, who was repudiated by his own class and even his own family? What can we say of a man who was often in hot water with the city authorities, who spent months of his time in jail, who was called subversive, and who never got along with the established religion?

Dr. Foreman

The prophet Jeremiah was that man; yet posterity honored him. His own generation thought him a liar. But some then knew, as we know today, that he was a teller of God's truth, a spokesman of God.

Was He a Pessimist?

WE KNOW (Jer. 1) that Jeremiah did not wish to be a prophet in the first place, though unlike Isaiah he shrank back not from a sense of sin but because he thought of himself as a mere child.

We know (chap. 20) that at times he was thoroughly discouraged about himself, and even cursed the day he was born. It is also true that in the last war waged by his little country of Judah before it was smashed, his advice from beginning to end was "Surrender."

No wonder people thought him a pessimist, a calamity-howler. But before we call him such names we must remember two things. First is, that his unwillingness to be a prophet, and the fact that so to speak he hated the job, marks a vital fact; he, perhaps even more than other prophets, sensed the difference between his own ideas and what God was saying through him.

Even when what the Lord said was not what they themselves would have wished to say, they spoke for the Lord nevertheless. The other thing to remember is that when everybody wants to believe a pleasant lie, and a man comes along telling the unpleasant truth, he is not a pessimist, he is simply stating facts.

Jeremiah stood by the facts as God gave him insight to see them. If they jailed him for it, he could not help that; but they could not shut his mouth nor close his eyes.

Was he a patriot?

JEREMIAH was constantly accused of acts and attitudes which today might be called "subversive," though he dearly loved his country. This was because he dared to rebuke the ambitions of his country's leaders.

They said: Our country shall be free! But Jeremiah knew it would not be free. They said: Our king will conquer! Jeremiah knew he would end his days a prisoner.

Then, as now, many persons think that patriotism means believing yours is the perfect country. If anyone points to injustice in our land, some one may yell, "Deport him!" But Jeremiah showed that is a true patriot. He is not necessarily the man who approves all the foreign policies of his nation (Jeremiah approved not one), nor the man who speaks only good of his country and his people.

The best patriot is the person who, seeing his country as God sees it, will dare to speak out against evil wherever he finds it.

A Way to Know God

JEREMIAH knew God well, and the trouble with his contemporaries was that they did not know God. But Jeremiah did not say: "Know God by becoming a prophet like me," for he knew that only a few are called to be prophets. Neither did he say, "Go to church oftener," for you can see in chap. 7 what he thought of the Temple of his time.

U. S. S. OLYMPIA, DEWEY'S FLAGSHIP, STILL ACTIVE—The old grey fighter, which just 50 years ago returned in triumph from the victory of Manila Bay, lies peacefully at her slip in the Philadelphia Naval Base where she receives homage as an "eagle of the sea" that escaped plucking by the "harpies of the shore." Twenty-eight years ago she brought to the United States the body of the First World War's Unknown Soldier, and a year later was ordered to be scrapped. There was no eloquent Oliver Wendell Holmes to write another "Old Ironsides" that saved the frigate Constitution a century before, but the protests of the patriotic citizens of Olympia, Washington, forced the cancellation of the scrapping order. She's a proud ship still—just as trim and span as on that May morning in 1898 when she led Admiral George Dewey's squadron into Manila Bay. She was rated a light cruiser of 4,500 tons and was commissioned January 2, 1894, and looks young for her 55 years. The illustration is from a photograph made when she participated in the Dewey Day exercises in New York harbor September 29, 1899. Today tens of thousands annually visit the U. S. S. Olympia.

The DALLAS HEART by GEORGE ETHELBERG WALSH

SYNOPSIS
Jerry Longwood and a girl he believes to be his cousin, Nancy Lee, meet and seek shelter at Swamp Hollow, home of Abner Longwood, wealthy uncle. They find Abner dead. Later, the body disappears and as Jerry is searching the house for it and the "Dallas Heart," a mysterious object he tells Nancy he wants, Abner Longwood appears through a secret exit and captures Nancy. He tells her there was no body in the living room and shows her his uninjured chest where she had thought he was stabbed. He imprisons the girl in the musty cellar, but she escapes by using a nail file on the rotted trap door.

CHAPTER IX

Jerry would be somewhere around. Once by his side I would be safe.
Encouraged by the thought I began edging toward the door, and when I reached it I peered up the spiral stairs. The lower part was bathed in the light from the lamp, but the upper part was in gloom.
For a long time I could not muster the courage to act. Then I calmed my beating heart, and started swiftly for the stairs, rushing up them for fear I might weaken and change my mind before gaining the top.
They were steep and narrow, with no railing on either side for support, but I climbed them swiftly. On the top step I paused and caught my breath with a gasp.
The huge frame containing the portrait was swung back, revealing the hall beyond. And in the opening stood Abner Longwood, peering out and listening!
His absorption had been so great that he had not heard me coming, and fortunately he was still ignorant of my presence. This gave me time to recover my breath and still the loud beating of my heart.
I watched him narrowly, measuring the distance between us, and once when he made a motion as if to withdraw I ducked my head and actually crouched for a football tackle against his legs; but a noise outside in the hall drew his attention back.
I heard the noise too. It was made by Jerry. He was coming up the stairs and, from the racket, I knew that he was not trying to deaden his footsteps or conceal his movements.

The warning was just in time. He whirled as the knife began descending.

Through the Wall To Jerry's Arms
My heart almost leaped in my throat, and with difficulty I restrained myself from shouting back; but caution warned me to keep quiet until he came nearer, and I crouched and waited expectantly for the moment when I could safely rush past Abner Longwood.
But one thing I had not figured upon, and this neglect got me into immediate trouble. I should have known that Abner would not stand there in full view until Jerry came in sight. He knew of his approach, and was watching him stealthily. When freedom seemed near he stepped back, and the mammoth picture began swinging noiselessly in position, concealing the entrance as effectually as if it had never been.
It happened so suddenly and unexpectedly that my way to freedom was blocked before I realized what was happening. I had been so confident that Jerry would soon rescue me that the reaction was terrible.
I gave a scream and rushed blindly forward. Abner was so startled that he lost his usual quick presence of mind. He recoiled as if attacked by a ghost.
I pushed him aside in my rush and tried to stop the huge panel from closing, but before I could interfere it snapped into position with a gentle click.
I was shut in, with total darkness around me. But my scream had reached Jerry's ears. I heard him rushing down the hall, shouting: "Nancy! Nancy! Where are you? Speak! Shout again!"
Abner heard him, too, and the sound brought him to his senses. I felt rather than heard him creeping toward me.
The terror of having those bony fingers clutching my throat again, choking me into submission, moved me to desperation. I drew back and cried for help at the top of my voice.
My screams enabled Abner to locate me, for the next moment his hand touched my arm and tried to close upon it. I jerked away just in time and crouched at the foot of the opposite wall.
I waited breathlessly, holding back my voice now, listening and watching, expecting any moment to feel the bony fingers seeking me out in the darkness.
Jerry continued to shout, running up and down the hall frantically, but Abner and I played our game silently. I knew he was waiting to locate me by my movements or breathing, and to balk him I held my breath and crouched in silence.

The seconds seemed like minutes. I could not hold my breath a moment longer, and as I expelled it with a huge sigh there came a quick, cat-like movement toward me.
Frightened almost out of my wits, I gave a tremendous spring, leaping up in the air and holding both arms before me to fend off the man's attack.
It was the act of a desperate woman. I did not know whether I leaped ahead or sideways. I had no denly come to life and was leaning forward to strike him. The result of his hesitation was disastrous.

Abner recovered his balance, glared a second at us, and then, with a snarl of rage, hurled the knife at Jerry. Fortunately, though, it missed him by a few inches, and he turned and rushed back into the secret corridor.
"Oh, you've let him get away!" I wailed. "Why didn't you catch him?"
"That brought him to his senses. 'It's Uncle!' he exclaimed, as if he had not realized it before. 'It wasn't his ghost or—or that portrait!'"
"No, it's Abner in blood and flesh!" I cried. "And he tried to kill you and me! Oh, Jerry!" I added.
"Tried to kill you!" Jerry exclaimed, jumping to my side. "Then I'll—"
He snatched the flashlight from my hand and jumped through the split canvas into the opening. Realizing when it was too late that my words had inflamed him, I called to him.
"No! No, Jerry! Come back! Come back!"
But my pleas might have been addressed to the air. I doubt if Jerry ever heard them. If he did, he ignored them.
I saw him dash down the corridor and disappear. Weak and helpless, I stood a moment unable to act, and then I followed.
I didn't want Jerry to commit murder—not for my sake or his—and I knew that murder was in his eyes. All the wrongs that his uncle had committed against him and his family in the past came to a dramatic climax at that moment, turning him into an irresponsible avenger seeking the blood of another.
"Jerry! Jerry!" I cried, running after him. "Come back, please!"
I scrambled through the split canvas and staggered down the dark corridor. I came to the head of the spiral stairs and halted.
Everything was quiet below. Jerry was down there, for I could see the flash of his light. A sickening feeling that he had accomplished his deadly purpose seized me.
"Jerry!" I called weakly.
"It's all right, Nancy!" he replied.
"Where's Abner?" Nancy, he was in such a hurry to get away that he stumbled and fell down those stairs head first. He broke his neck when he hit the bottom."

Jerry at Last
Tells the Truth
"Jerry," I added, "this whole night has been a terrible nightmare. Did you know of this secret passage behind the picture?"
"No! If I had I'd have hunted for you in it. But tell me how you got in here. Tell me all that's happened since I lost you. I've been crazy. I was going to tear the whole house down to find you. Nancy, dear, I never spent such a horrible night in my life."
In a few sentences as possible I related the whole harrowing series of events that had driven me nearly insane with fear.
Jerry was a poor listener. Several times he interrupted with words and looked down at poor old Abner Longwood's body with glowing eyes.
When I came to that part in which Abner had imprisoned me in the cellar, Jerry burst out angrily: "He's done enough harm in the world! If he were alive I'd kill him—yes, Nancy, I'd really commit murder, I think."
"Then I'm glad he's gone, Jerry," I smiled, "for I wouldn't have your hands stained with his blood for anything."
He held up his hands and looked at them. A smile creased his lips. "I'm not sure," he remarked, "that they've not been already stained with his blood, Nancy."
I asked him what he meant, and he hesitated some time before answering.
"I guess I lied to you in the swamp," he said. "That blood on my sleeve and hands was Uncle Abner's. I didn't like to tell you before. It wasn't pleasant. I thought you wouldn't understand, but now—"
He paused a second, and then went on:
"When I came to Swamp Hollow early in the evening, I found Uncle Abner dying from a stab wound. I caught him just as he fell. I thought he had killed himself.
"Before he died I wanted the truth about the Dallas Heart. I asked him to tell me where it was. I pleaded with him, but I couldn't get a word from him. He was the same old Abner."

Implement Company Marks Anniversary

Famed Manure Spreader
 First Built in 1889

The story of American free enterprise is graphically illustrated by two buildings at the Coldwater, Ohio, plant of the New Idea Division, AVCO manufacturing corporation, which this year is celebrating its golden anniversary.

One of these buildings (actually a series of connected buildings) covers over 15 acres and houses 705,000 square feet of manufacturing facilities. Newly expanded, it boasts one of the most modern foundries in the nation and a full compliment of equally modern production machines and processes. It is the plant in which New Idea produces its specialized line of farm implements and equipment.

August Reutschilling, who has been with the company 47 years, stands nostalgically at the forge in the "museum"—a replica of the original plant, and it is the same forge at which he worked in his early days with the company.

Across the street is a small, wooden frame building occupying just 1440 square feet of space. In it are an old forge and several simple machines of the kind used for manufacturing in the early 1900's. This is an almost exact replica of the modest structure in which Joseph Oppenheim first began building his now famous manure spreader in 1889 in the nearby village of Maria Stein, Ohio. The communities for miles around Coldwater, and sales personnel throughout the nation, know it as the "museum."

Large letters painted on the front wall identify the building as "New Idea Spreader Works-1889." Inside are the four rooms in which Oppenheim and six helpers fashioned the first one of the most important and most widely used implements ever devised by the farm implement industry.

The first room as you enter was the "forge and machine room," containing a forge, hand shear, hand punch press, hand threading machine, small high speed drill, benches and water tank for cooling a gasoline engine.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

How About Being A "Good Sport"?

Big pow-wow the other night at the Fire House between farmers and the town fellows who go fishing and hunting on their land. Easy Roberts says: "We don't mind anyone going on our property. It's the carelessness—gates left open, fences broken, fires started, even livestock getting hurt."

Then Slim Dalton spoke up. "Some of us may have been a bit careless, but from now on we'll get permission first. Besides that, we're offering a $50 reward for information about any destruction to a farmer's property!"

Farmers and sportsmen both liked the idea and went home friends. From where I sit, that meeting showed how folks can get together and work out safeguards for each other's good.

It's like the Brewers' Self-Regulation program whereby tavern owners cooperate in setting up safeguards to keep their places clean, bright and law-abiding. In this way, "no trespassing" signs are never needed!
