Santa Fe Official Issues Statement on Freight Rates

Poining out that the Santa Fe has a natural interest in the industrial uevelopment of New Mexico and stating a willingness to sit down across the table and discuss any specific rates which are thought to be out of line, G. C. Lyman, general freight and passenger agent for the Santa Fe at Albuquerque, today issued the first statement icr the railroad regarding the treight rate structure in the state of New Mexico.

"Since the attack continues unabated, with little consideration of the facts, we believe the situation should be clarified and the position of the Santa Fe publicly stated," Lyman explained.

'We fear no investigation of our rates in New Mexico, in fact they have always been under the watchful jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the New Mexico State Corporation Commission and must be competitive with rates of other forms of transportation. Santa $100.00 Reward Fe has no monopoly on the transportation of commodities from, to or For Evidence within New Mexico. We decry attempts made by a few to inflame public sentiment against the railroad industry in the state in order to justify another state bureau, to be maintained at the expense of the taxpayers, including the railway company, for a needless purpose. Freight rates should not be a political football," Lyman said.

"Cooperation with shippers and receivers has always been the position of the Santa Fe in the state of New Mexico as in other states served by our line," Lyman pointed out. New Mexico Politics

It looks as though the folks in New Mexico may look forward to a hot political campaign in 1950. U. S. Rep. John E. Miles, a former governor has announced he will again be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for chief executive of New Mexico.

It is practically certain that Miles will have two or three opponents for the nomination.

Former Gov. John J. Dempsey is a candidate to succeed Miles in Congress. Dempsey tried unsuccessfully to go to the Senate from New Mexico. It is being rumored that Luther Sharpe of Artesia also will run for Congress.

The political strength of Miles is a sources of wonder to quite a few men who think they are wise when it comes to politics.

The Times has watched him in public office for some time. He never has been defeated for any office he ran for. There must be a reason.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS-Huge Crop Surpluses May Bring On Widespread Federal Farm Controls; Three Pact Nations Unify Defense

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CROP REPORT:

Punitive Plenty

It was an ironical twist that American farmers, by producing in 1949 the second largest crop in all U.S. history, may have shackled themselves with broad government controls for years to come.

The year's harvest acreage was the largest since 1932 when depression-ridden farmers sought to offset declining prices by expanding production.

Except for bad weather during the growing season in some sections of the nation, the 1949 crop total might easily have set a new record. Even so, the harvest was so large that the U.S. department of agriculture felt called upon to invoke production controls of various kinds to reduce the volume next year. These controls probably would extend to cotton, peanuts, major types of tobacco, rice, potatoes and soybeans.

The agriculture department said the huge harvest was the result of uniformly large production of most crops, rather than record volumes of a few individual ones. Records were marked up only for rice, dry beans and peas.

The figures:

Corn, three billion, 378 million bushels; livestock feed-grain, 126 million tons; vegetable oil-seeds; soybeans, flaxseed, peanuts, cotton-seed, 15.33 million tons; tobacco, two billion pounds; fruit production, nine million, 800 thousand tons

Yields per acre were above average for most crops, although wheat, flaxseed and dry peas were notable exceptions. Nearly 163 million tons of the eight grains were harvested during the year.

PACT DEFENSE: One Broad Pattern

Probably pointing the way toward a general North Atlantic pact policy, the United States, Great Britain and Canadas have worked out procedures for practically a complete exchange of information concerning military weapons and fighting techniques each country develops.

THE OFFICIAL announcement to that effect was a guarded one, but defense department spokesmen said the three nations will pool all data on just about everything in the way of conventional weapons used by their respective fighting forces and together will study such advanced weapons as guided missiles. There was no indication of the atomic bomb in this "share-the-know-how" deal.

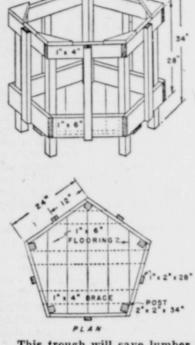

The goal, according to the announcement, was to make not only standard weapons interchangeable, but to draw on the incentive techniques of scientists and the "operational procedures" developed by military planners.

THE STEP, in any manner of was a prudent one if the

Easily Built Trough Will Aid Sheepmen Designed to Cut Labor, Lumber, Space and Feed

The trough shown in these drawings is intended for mature sheep and will save labor, lumber, space and feed.

As the drawings show, the trough can be built easily by any farm handy-man, if the plan is followed strictly. It should be noted that the trough has its own floor.

If yearling rams are to be fed, the material should be slightly heavier than is shown in the plan. The center of the pen, according to Briggs, is the most desirable location for this trough. Or several can be placed in a lot or pen. If the trough is placed on a dirt floor or lot, dig a shallow hole under each leg so the trough cannot be pushed about. In a bedded pen, the legs

The books were to be sent to South Korea, Thailand, French Indo-China and Indonesia. The hope was that through hand-tohand circulation information about the history and background of the United States would be spread widely in areas under strong Communist pressure but which, as yet, had not capitulated.

PANCAKE DAY:

Idea Spreading

A familiar and popular event in some United States communities, unknown in many more, National Pancake day is beginning to catch on in many localities.

An ancient as far as international observance goes, the event has been observed elsewhere in the world for hundreds of years. No artificial "Johnny - come - lately" idea, the day has long been observed in Great Britain and many other countries in Europe-always on the day before Lent begins.

THE NEXT Pancake day falls on February 21, 1950, when here. in the United States, some communities will mark the day in citywide celebration, a sort of midwinter fair at which everyone eats pancakes. In many other communities, church groups (frequently Episcopalians) have long observed the day with quiet breakfasts, luncheons and suppers-all of which feature pancakes.

democracies are convinced that among the best avenues of peace is one that leads to the ultimate in preparedness.

There is a most plausible school of thought among international diplomats, that if a consolidation of sufficient strength is mustered by the western powers, there need be no fear of World War III, no matter how much the Russians might desire one. For whatever else may be said of Russia's Stalin, he has never been branded as a complete idiot. After Stalin, of course, anything might happen, for ambitious men ofttimes let their ambition cloud their vision to the extent that they can't see where they are going. Give such men enough power, and the war everyone fears might well be in the making.

TOP 10 MEN: Rated Outstanding

More than 1,500 newspapermen had been called upon to choose, in their opinion, the 10 outstanding men of the world during 1949. At first blush that would appear to be a staggering assignment, but there is no newsman worthy the name who won't give you an opinion on anything at any time.

THE TEN "outstanding men of the year," as announced in the 1949 Year News Annual were:

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, religion; Dean Acheson, U. S. Secretary of state, statesmanship; Dr. Ralph Bunche, world peace; Dr. Charles Seymour, Yale university president, education; Walter Reuther, president of the CIO-UAW, labor: Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers second baseman, sports; Serge Koussevitsky, Boston symphony orchestra, music; Arthur Miller, "Death of A Salesman," drama; Stanley Kramer, producer of the "Home of The Brave," movie movies; Milton Berle, radio and television. CRITICS of these selections might charge that the selectors let the headlines of the year, rather than the gentlemen's accomplishments, get in their eyes when they made their choices.

that respect, the "forgotten man" would surely be most gratefulbut the manner in which the housing problem has been kicked around in Washington could be blamed if the "forgotten man" adopted an attitude of "I'll be-lieve it when I see it."

The new housing program, according to reports, will be on the "must" list of early consideration by the lawmakers, but that "must" isn't as formidable as it sounds, for most Americans will remember that Mr. Truman was unable to get any action on a lot of "must" legislation in the first session of the 81st congress.

However, no one could be ruled out for trying, and if any successful housing venture should result, there would probably be an air of forgiveness all 'round.

THE LEGISLATION which the President is reported as ready to sponsor is said to rely mainly on private industry to do the job.

Caution Urged In Use Of Chemicals, Sprays

Dust sprays, gasses and other insecticides will do much to promote the healthy growth of fruits and vegetables is the gist of instruction being passed out now by county agents over the nation.

However, these can often have just the opposite effect on people. Even though the container may not bear the skull and crossbones label, caution is necessary since many substances are harmful in some ways to man, despite the fact that they may not be definitely poisonous.

The whole story of safety in use of insecticides, it was pointed out, is simply precaution.

THE CHURCH is not meant to be a club, a lecture-hall, a debating society, a rest home, a music hall, an entertainment bureau or a burial association. It has something to do along all these lines, of course. But the Church is meant to

The early Christians could not have imagined a church without the Holy Spirit, because in fact there had never been one without him. It was the coming of the Spirit on that summer day in Jerusalem that actually made the church, in the first place. True, it was not made out of nothing.

But suppose the Spirit had never come? What would have happened? Sooner or later the little band would have grown tired of waiting, would have given up faith in Jesus' promise, would have drifted off one by one, and the Christian church would have died before it was born.

Tongues of Fire

THERE SEEMS to be something mystic, mysterious and unreal about the Holy Spirit, to most people's minds. Are some people more "emotional" than others?

Answer: Very much so, if you try to learn something from . ings freely, or cannot control them when they want to. But I know no reason for believing that one person is endowed by Nature with more or less inborn capacity for feeling than another./ Depending upon their life-experience, especially children, A-develops more intense feeling of love or hate than B-does and at the same time either remains free to express his feelings or is forced to "repress" them out of consciousness. But they may have been much alike to start with.

Does it do you any harm to be bored?

Answer: Yes. For boredom is frustration (of your wish to do something that interests you) and frustration always tends to create rage and inner conflict. On the other hand, the reason for your being bored is often that you're childishly unwilling to "make the best of a bad j6b." For instance, choose to reveal it.

Do "truth serums" violate a prisoner's rights?

Answer: They would seem to, unless he accepts the treatment of his own accord and with full knowledge of what he is doing. For "narcoanalysis" may lead him to incriminate himself by admitting what the law allows him to require the prosecution to prove. A French court ruled that a prisoner who had been shown by this is just something in the Bible, some experience they could have away back yonder, but not here and now. After all, looking over the church from that day to this, and around the world at the present day, how many cases, authentic genuine cases of fire-on-the-head or storm-in-thechurch-house, do you find? Not many! Does that show the Holy Spirit is not here any more?

We must remember that St. Paul met with much the same questions. Did a man have to speak in strange tongues to be sure he had the Holy Spirit? Fortunately, Paul stated in so many words what the fruits of the Spirit are: Love, joy, peace . . Look up the rest of it in Gal. 3:22-23.

You may take St. Paul's inspired word for it: If you over see a church, a Christian group, that is notable for love, joy, peace . . gentleness, goodness, faith . . . you may be sure the Holy Spirit is there. Wo do not gather grapes from thorns nor figs from thistles, Jesus says. . . .

How Can We Get the Holy Spirit?

WE CANNOT GET the Spirit by wishing ourselves back in the first century. We can have the Holy Spirit now, on the same terms as always. There are no new conditions, no complicated rules, no application blanks to fill out. Jesus said: God will give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him; Paul said: Covet earnestly the best gifts.

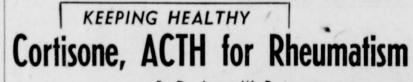

In any church, if there is even a small group who want the power of God in their lives, who want his power for the church, that little group can change that church and change the community. Power passes through a wire when one end of it is attached to a dynamo and the other end to a ma-chine that is doing some work.

Prayer-that is the touch with God. Service-that is the link with man. So power will flow through the Church when at one end it is in touch with God, and at the other end it is doing something real for human needs.

WHEN WE READ about the won- | erful results obtained in the treatment of rheumatism and drugs of the same standing as inarthritis by the use of Cortisone-Compound E-and also ACTH, and have a loved one suffering with disability and pain, we may grow impatient with the delay in producing these drugs.

And in the case of ACTH, we cannot understand why a firm as large as Armour & Co., cannot produce it in sufficient quantities for even a small percentage of sufferers.

Perhaps all the answers to why we cannot get either of these drugs at the present time is because the tremendous demand greatly exceeds the supply.

Rheumatism is the oldest disease known to man and more patients suffer with it than with any other disease. Besides, to the great de-mand for the drugs in cases of rheumatism, research workers are reporting excellent results in the use of them in other diseases than rheumatism.

In fact, they state that Cortisone and ACTH will be hailed as wonder sulin for diabetes. And like insulin, at present anyway, these new drugs must be taken continuously, as symptoms return when these drugs are stopped.

In "The Ontario Medical Review," Dr. Wallace Graham, president, Canadian Arthritis society, states that Cortisone, produced by Merck & Co., and ACTH, taking months to produce even under the best conditions, are now available.

"The production of Cortisone is an extraordinarily difficult and complicated process requiring more than 30 time-consuming chemical reactions. To produce the com-pound from its first step to the finished product requires many months. The amount accumulated from 1946 to January, 1949, will have been virtually exhausted by the experimental and clinical studies which have already been completed and by the additional studies now in progress."

Homer Croy blinked back tears as he drove along the country road amid the scenes of his childhood. An older, wiser man, he was going home-a prodigal son of northwest Missouri returning to places that revived memories. He remembered happy times with the Kennedys-Newt, the kindest man he had ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their two daughters, Ida and Lucy; their son, Harlan, his childhood playmate. As he inspects the Kennedy "mansion," now a dingy and drafty ghost out of his past, he recalls the painful "welcome home" party Newt gave for the De-linskys, the "foreigners" who had just purchased the 40-acre farm behind the poor farm.

CHAPTER III

Newt grew more and more uneasy; plainly he had made a mistake.

"I guess we'd better begin," he said as if it were a funeral. "Lucy, can you favor us with a selection?"

Of course she could! That was the very moment she had been waiting for. She came out, made what we considered a graceful bow and said, 'I will endeavor to recite 'Captain Jenks,'" then began:

I'm Captain Jenks of the Horse

Marines, I feed my horse on corn and beans.

In a moment we were all laughing, for no one knew better than we did what to feed a horse; how we clapped when she finished! But Mr. and Mrs. Delinsky sat un-smiling, staring straight ahead.

"What about music?" asked Newt. The musicians took their fiddles out of their pillowcases and our guitar player unwrapped his guitar. Chairs and tables, everything cleared put now.

The caller-out said we'd open with "Miller Boy." Grandpa said "we ust to dance 'Ol' Dan Tucker." Heels flew, skirts swung.

This had an amazing effect on the gloomy Delinskys. Instead of staring straight ahead, they began to watch the dancers. Back and forth and around and around the dancers flung; the floor rocked, the house shook. Then a very strange thing happened. Mr. Delinsky began to tap his foot.

Newt went over, seized Mrs. Delinsky and said: "Come on!"

She grabbed her husband as if Newt was about to harm her. Mr. Delinsky said something guttural and Mrs. Delinsky got up obediently. The result was pretty bad. Mrs. concerned with Delinsky as a farmer. For Newt judged everybody by his farming.

"I don't think he can ever make it," said Newt. "He'll crop out. You can't farm with one horse on forty acres.

"Maybe he'll be able to get another horse and more land," said Mrs. Kennedy

Newt shook his head. You were a born farmer, or you weren't.

The last day of the term was the biggest, the most exciting day of the school year, for it was Exercises Day. The day our parents came to see if we had learned anything. It was exciting for the teacher, too, for if she hadn't pounded anything into our heads, she wouldn't get her job back in the fall.

There is the school house-I can see it this minute! It still stands. The Knabb School. It still has one room; corn comes up on all sides. Osage hedge grows around it. There was a coal house and there was a cyclone cave and an iron pump; the iron pump had a hook

Bertha Scott holds up her hand "Teacher, the flag over George Washington is crooked."

"Won't you please arrange it cor-rectly, Bertha?" Bertha marches forward and swings the flag into position. "Thank you, Bertha."

"You're quite welcome, I'm sure." Everybody is tremendously polite Arch Willhoyte holds up his hand "Teacher, Roan is about to get his bridle off.'

"You may go and fix it."

Arch races out and fixes the bridle. Then pumps himself a drink We hear him throw on the ground with a splash the water he doesn' drink. We all immediately ge thirsty.

At last we see them coming-out fathers and mothers and the schoo directors-coming down the road some walking, some driving, Mrs Gerilda Knabb in her sidesaddle They're dressed up, too. Everything grows more terrifying. And the worst is yet to come. We've got to take part in the exercises. Some body is going to just about die. And I know who it is.

We hear their feet on the plat form outside; they knock as if this were a private house.

The teacher goes to the door and swings it wide. "Oh, how do you do! Please come right in. We're so pleased to have you. We're delighted aren't we, children?"

"Yes," we peep.

In a moment our guests are stiffly seated. We stare at them as if they were the Northern Lights.

Newt is head director and has or his Sunday clothes and Congress shoes. He looks solemn, for he has Responsibilities.

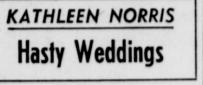

More people come; the people noc to each other; it would hardly do to call out to each other any more than it would in church.

Stretched across the room, from wall to wall, is a mysterious curtain.

"IS THERE ANYTHING we can do to stop the unthinking young Marriages that lead to so many unthinking divorces?" asks Doris Day (not her real name).

She is matron in a dormitory that houses some 200 college girls, on the campus of a midwestern university. "They plunge joyfully into matrimony without any consideration for anything except their newfound passion for each other," her letter goes on," and in a pitifully short time the realities of rent and food and clothing swarm over them; they feel cheated and tied; and only under exceptional circumstances can they hold together, or be expected to hold together."

And Miss Day, who is Scotland born-and has herself been married, and is war-widowed-observes that she was engaged to her young man at the age of 20, and married to him eight years later, and that their 10 years together were cloudlessly happy.

"In my country," she writes, "long engagements are considered quite natural. A girl and a man find an affinity, they plan their future and then, perhaps, he goes off to Africa, China or India to get his start. Or he gets a position with one of our many banks, oil companies, or shipping firms that simply do not permit employees to burden themselves with domestic cares until a certain financial stage is reached.

Their Happy Plans

"It seems to me this delay," continues the letter, "makes for character and self-control. The girl trusts her man, and he trusts her. And as the time of the wedding approaches, their happy plans, their preparations, the presents and trousseau and finding of the new home, are surely the more delightful because of the long wait.

"Aren't slow-developing things nature's way, after all? Spring and summer, the coming of a baby, the slow rise of a man to a position of

SPEEDY LONG-LASTING relief for Delinsky's strange, endless skirts swung, but always in the wrong way; and always she turned in the wrong direction.

Mrs. Delinsky came, finally, and said something to her husband. He got up slowly-didn't pop up the way she did-and joined the dancers. He swung in the wrong direction too, and bumped into people; but, little by little, began to catch on as the beat and rhythm of the dance took hold of him. And of Mrs. Delinsky and Lizzie and soon they were sashaying forward and bowing to their partners.

"Swing Josie," said the caller-out. Finally Delinsky smiled; after a while he let out a yip! which made everybody laugh. We held their arms and we shoved in the right direction.

When eating time came the Delinskys plunged in, not bashful now. We found they could talk better than we thought. When they got stuck, Lizzy helped them out. Suddenly, without a word or invitation, Mr. and Mrs. Delinsky stood up and began to sing; the song had something to do with eating, for they would say a few words, pretend to take a bite of cookie, then sing again. It was all so new, so strange, that we clapped and urged them for more. But they sat down, looking self-conscious, as if afraid they'd been too bold. We were beginning to like them.

The odor of cookies and cakes filled the house, and there was cold fried chicken, sage sausage and cider; Ida and Lucy went here and there with dishpanfuls of popcorn. People in every room; men sitting on the floor. There was lots to eat. Hm!

Post-Mortem on

The Delinsky Party

When it was time to go Mrs. Delinsky went in and got the baby, then handed it to Delinsky to hold while she put on her overshoes. Delinsky looked so funny with his beard and with the baby no bigger than a summer squash that everybody smiled. Delinsky lit his lantern and we followed the Delinskys to their two-wheeled wagon; when the wagon pulled out we were all standing there, waving to them.

After all had gone, we sat around talking about the party and how much fun it had been; especially ing made out of baling wire and on this hung the school tin cup. We all drank out of that cup.

The big day came in May. Usually, on the way to school of a morning, we whooped and yelped but not on the Last Day. All dressed up today, no "prisoner's base," no "burn out," which was our baseball game. The girls looked awesome rigged out in their dresses. And we boys were so stiff and formal and tonguetied in our Sunday clothes we could think of hardly anything to say to the girls we'd been going to school with all year.

Everybody Is Very

Polite-Today

We'd decorated the schoolroom till it looked awesome, too. There was vase of flowers on the teacher's desk and there were so many pussywillows and cattails that an Indian could have crept from one end of the room to the other without being seen by a paleface. Well, almost.

The teacher always kept her switches on two nails over the blackboard. But today they came down. No one was going to be fool enough today to be licked. Besides, the switches didn't seem to fit into the fine excitement of this last day of school.

We sit there stiff and formal; now and then a child giggles. But we don't encourage him. No monkey business today. Hours pass. At least it seems hours. Dinnertime comes. We get down our buckets from the shelves in the rear of the room and sit around politely and eat. Fried chicken. Always fried chicken on the last day of school.

We go out and play as sedately as preachers; no base sliding and clothes grabbing today; nobody is pasted in the back with the ball. No boy tells another he is going to knock his block off. The girls go in and out of their little building as dignifiedly as bees in and out of a hive.

The teacher comes to the door and rings the bell . . . a little sadness here, for we know it is for the last time. We walk in as solemnly as mourners.

"Oh!" says the teacher. "We forgot to empty the coal scuttle. Har-

Harlan gets up and takes the bucket and tosses the bones over

The teacher gets up to deliver her welcome speech. She's just about scared to death, too. Our fathers and mothers study her . . . they are thinking, "Has she made good this year? Do we want her back?"

She tells what good children we have been. We grow popeyed, for she has whaled some of us. Ah yes! "And now the scholars will endeavor to render one of our musical selections," she says politely. She steps out in front of us and we begin to hawk and clear our throats. She raises her pointer, down it comes, up go our voices. We don't get off quite together. She smiles as if it wasn't anything. "Again, children." Now we are all off together, exactly right; pretty soon we get warmed up and make the pussywillows shake.

The parents clap politely. Mustn't overdo it just because they are our children. Our parents didn't believe in being "foolish" over us; the Puritan influence.

"And now," says the teacher, "the 'Birdies' Ball.'"

We tear into that; the robins, hopping around in the yard, stare up into our windows as if they'd never heard of a birdies' ball.

Newt's hand goes into his pocket: out come some notes. Can it be possible he is getting nervous-Newt who, to me, always seemed so self-possessed and sure of himself?

The teacher says, "And now we are going to be honored by a speech from our Head Director, Mr. Newt Kennedy.'

Newt gets up to make the Head Director's speech; this has to be done every year to show that the directors take an interest in the school.

He walks up in front, agony on his face, and stands a moment, gazing out over the scholars. There is pain in his eyes. I feel sorry for him and in my imagination I suffer with him. He puts his hand in his pocket, then pulls his hand out and places it behind his back. He swallows and I-following him so intently, so sympathetically-swallow

He clears his throat. "Teacher and scholars of Knabb School." Pausing. he pulls a raveling out of his pocket. It falls on the floor. He continues.

"Isn't it better relished than this rush of today's adolescents into the most sacred of relationships, the skipping of all formalities and preliminaries, the childish assumption that ignorance and passion and novelty are all that is needed?

"Right near the campus," writes Doris, "there is a couple aged 19 and 20. They ran away and were married in a neighboring state eight months ago. The girl's family continued to send her $100 a month. The boy's family has never answered his exultant wire.

What About Freight Rates?

A timely message to the shippers of New Mexico from Santa Fe System Lines

'Way back in the last century, a man of courage, integrity, and a vision of the westward course of America named a railroad.

Many reductions in freight rates have been accorded New Mexico shippers by purely voluntary action on the part of the Santa Fe.

Friday, JAN. 6, 1950

He called it "The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe."

This railroad carries New Mexico's capital city in its name.

This railroad, from early times, has been bound by strongest ties to the growth, strength and destiny of the people and the industries of New Mexico.

In all our dealings with the people of New Mexico, we try to reflect the integrity and the vision of that early pioneer who put "Santa Fe" in our name.

It is not only for reasons of pride that we do this. It is basic railroad economics.

The shipper "pays the freight." The more he ships, the more business we do.

It is sound business planning for the Santa Fe to help the shippers and industries of New Mexico move their freight on a basis competitive with that existing in adjoining states.

Not ail freight rates are perfect, and we make no claim that they are. Freight rates must be high enough to be profitable and must be kept flexible to meet realities and not fancies. Changes are continually being made as conditions require.

The me

New Mexico industries have been given freight rates that permit them to market the state's natural resources in competition with producing areas in other parts of the country.

Every day we are exploring possibilities in New M_xico for the growth of freight traffic, which can build business for the Santa Fe through sound and fair transportation charges.

Bring Your Problems to Headquarters

We are continually meeting New Mexico shippers and making rates to meet their problems. We want to continue this practice. Rates should not become a political football.

Our doors are always open to any shipper, large or small, who can help us serve his interests better in the matters of rates, car service, expediting the loading, unloading and movement of freight anywhere in the world.

That is how the Santa Fe has always grown-hand in hand with the people it serves.

That is the way it is always going to be.

That is why we have a general traffic office in Albuquerque and representatives throughout the state who are always ready to talk over with you any of your freight problems. Why not consult them?

Hearty Desserts, Served Piping Hot From Stove, Pep Up Family Meals

"T SEEMS though I can't serve enough to keep appetites satis fied these cold days,' " says many a homemaker when the temperatures dip and chilly menfolk and youngsters crowd around the table ready to eat everything in sight. If you've planned a soup, this helps take the edge off sharp appetites. Add to this a nourishing meat dish, a starchy food and a vegetable and a salad; top it off with a hot, hearty dessert, and you'll be certain to meet not only nutritional requirements for a heavy meal, but also those of the appetite as well.

. . . I^F YOU MIX a starchy food with fruit, you have the perfect answer for dessert in many instances. Hot puddings can be baked right with meat and vegetables. Oother topof-the-stove desserts may be quickly prepared, so neither adds much work toward getting together a meal.

Cranberry Coconut Dumplings (Serves 6)

- 1 cup sifted flour 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 cup shredded coconut, cut 1 egg, well beaten
- 1/4 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons melted butter 1-3% cups (1-pound can) whole cranberry sauce
- 1/2 cup orange juice

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Add coconut. Combine egg, milk, and butter; add to flour mixture, stirring until soft dough is formed.

Combine cranberry sauce and orange juice in saucepan; bring to a boil. Drop dumpling batter from tablespoon into hot cranberry sauce. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Serve at once with cream, if desired.

To remove egg stain on silver without resorting to polish, sprinkle salt on the utensil and rub it with a wet cloth.

To retard rust on the inside of the oven, coat the surface with lard, well rubbed in. Repeat the treatment every two months.

When making muffins, the ingredients will combine easier if you have them at room temperature before they're mixed. Avoid beating the batter if possible, because beating usually makes for tough muffins.

To keep harmful light and heat from canned and preserved food in storage, tack a piece of oilcloth on the edge of each shelf so it hangs down over the contents of the shelf below it.

When an iron frying pan collects a lot of black deposit, dip it in gasoline; then take it outdoors and set a match to it by attaching the
