Give Hours Of Hard Work

By Nancy Kidd

The Bailey County Veterans Memorial Committee says "Thank You" to all who have contributed to the Memorial Monuments. As of Thursday, November 21, 1991, the grante in the monument belongs to Bailey County, and you helped make it happen.

There have been many hours spent on this project. There is a very special couple in our community who have spent hours of very hard physical work getting native rock from the grounds to the monument site. Our hats go off to Pete and Marieta Wilkinson for their contribution. They have encountered rattle snakes, being stuck in mud, and other hardships, but they have brought in supply of beautiful rock.

When Seconds Count, 9-1-1 Is For Everyone

A large crowd gathered at Earl Ladd Fire Station Tuesday afternoon when Emergency 9-1-1 was officially cut over. Bailey County Judge Marilyn Cox welcomed everyone to the ceremonies.

Judge Cox introduced Mayor Darrell Turner, members of the City Council, members of the Commissioners Court, Police Chief Wayne Holmes, Dave Marr, City Manager; G.T.E. and Five Area Representatives and Ella O'Neal.

Judge Cox also introduced Judge Wayne Whiteaker, Lamb County Judge and president of SPAG. Judge Whiteaker stated that this region is No. 1 in the state to implement E 9-1-1. "The cities in this region have a right to be proud," Judge Whiteaker said.

The Bailey County 9-1-1 system is the eighth system in the South Plains Regional 9-1-1 Emergency Communications Plan, and one of several fully enhanced system under the state 9-1-1 plan to be implemented.

Four special presentations were made. Judge Whiteaker presented plaques to Judge Cox and the Bailey County Commissioners, Mayor Darrell Turner, Frank Goodman, GTE; and Hugh Young, 5-Area Telephone.

Following the presentations, Shawn Raborn, South Plains Association of Governments, addressed the group stating that since we now have E 9-1-1 it is time to plan for the future, through Education. Raborn showed a video, which he stated would be used in public education.

Raborn introduced members of the Police Department, EMS, and the Fire Department.

Nine-one-one will assist these people in doing the job they are already doing."

"The best thing about E is its simplicity," Raborn concluded.

Nine-one-one service will be available throughout Bailey County, and parts of Lamb, Cochran and Hockley Counties due to the Bula telephone exchange within this system. The system coverage also extends into parts of Parmer and Castro Counties. Anyone residing or visiting any of these areas will have access to 9-1-1 service. Additionally, pay phone users will be able to make 9-1-1 calls at no charge.

The push for 9-1-1 service for the area began in early 1987. County government officials were enthusiastic about the idea of a centralized emergency network and overwhelmingly voted to bring the service to Bailey County. The Muleshoe City Council and Bailey County Commissioners' Court entered an agreement in November, 1988 with the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) to implement the system county-wide.

Since that time city and county governments of Bailey County and SPAG have worked diligently with telephone companies and emergency agencies to make the 9-1-1 service a reality. Detailed engineering, records coordination and outside

City Council Meets In Regular Session

Darrell Turner, Mayor of Muleshoe, called the City Council together Tuesday morning in the council room of the City Hall.

Following the approval of the Minutes of the previous meeting, Dave Marr, City Manager, gave a report on the progress of the package the Industrial Foundation is putting together to submit for a prison in Bailey County.

"We are trying to put a package together that will be acceptable, one that we think might have a chance in our bid for the prison," Marr said.

A possible location for the site was discussed at length. Another item of business on the agenda was the walking path in the park area.

With no further business, the council was dismissed.

USDA Sponsors Environmental Responsible Use Of Fuel

In an effort to reduce pollution by decreasing gasoline and diesel fuel consumption, the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has been requested by Edward Madigan, Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), to remind all employees to procure ethanol-derived fuels when such fuels are available at comparable prices with regular gasoline.

Ethanol is a grain-derived alcohol which burns cleaner than regular gasoline, reducing exhaust pollutants. Existing vehicles may use ethanol or ethanol-blended fuel without harm to engines or need for retrofitting. By implementing this alternative fuel policy, the USDA is seeking to reduce American dependence on oil, and improve the quality of the environment.

Beginning on April 17, 1991, the President signed an Executive Order on Federal Energy Management which encourages the use of alternative fuel sources such as Ethanol. This order mandates that USDA cut its gasoline and diesel fuel consumption by 10 percent between fiscal year 1991 and fiscal year 1995.

Prior to that, the Secretary has issued a memorandum in 1990 mandating that USDA employees purchase ethanol or ethanol-blended, oxygenated fuels (ETBE) when using USDA owned or leased highway vehicles.

Under these two guidelines, credit will be given to agencies utilizing alternative fuels towards the mandated reduction. Accordingly, Secretary Madigan has requested that USDA employees operating vehicles procure ethanol or ETBE-based fuels when available at prices comparable to unleaded gasoline. He has also asked that drivers approach service stations in their areas that offer ethanol fuel yet do not accept

Football Highlights

Pittsburgh hosts Penn State on Thanksgiving Day, and early in the season it appeared this would be a clash of two top-ranked powers. Nittany Lions, yes. Panthers, no. Pitt came on like gang-busters at the start of the season winning their first five games. Then the Panthers fell apart, losing four of their next five. However, with any intra-state rivalry, season records can be tossed out the window. Last year, Penn State was 9-2, Pitt, 3-7-1. The Nittanies eked out a 22-17 win at home. Penn State is coming off a big win over Notre Dame, so Pitt should not be a let-down for them. Either way, the Lions should win.

On Friday, Nebraska is at home against Oklahoma in their Big Eight finale. A win by Nebraska and the Cornhuskers will share the conference title with Colorado, a team they tied in early November, 19-19. The Sooners lost to the Buffaloes 34-17 earlier in the season, so an Oklahoma victory will give the title to Colorado. Nebraska is favored.

Then comes the final Big One in Florida Saturday. The Southeast Conference champion Florida Gators entertain Florida State in Gainesville. The result just might confuse the national championship picture a bit more if Miami doesn't close out with a win over San Diego State. Though the Hurricanes are favored, the national title would really be up for grabs with Washington having the inside track. Incidentally, we're picking Florida over Florida State.

Finally, on December 7, Army meets Navy. Neither has done well this season, Army winning four, losing six. Navy really has had its problems, losing all nine games before a final date with Wake Forest last Saturday. The only common opponent was the Air Force, and the Falcons defeated them both handily. The Cadets defeated the Mid-dies last year 30-20, so the series is tied at 42-all. Army is a slight favorite.

Help Available For Trichotillomania Sufferers

Ever feel like pulling your hair out? Those suffering from trichotillomania do, one hair at a time.

Trichotillomania is the irresistible impulse to pull one's own hair. The bizarre disorder affects millions of Americans and the majority appear to be women, says a psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"It is difficult for us to know exactly how many people suffer from trichotillomania because victims are so secretive," said Dr. Suzan Streichenwein, an assistant professor of psychiatry at Baylor and chief of the Mental Hygiene Clinic at the Houston Veterans Affairs Medical Center (VAMC). "Most men will not discuss the disorder, whereas more women may open up and tell their doctors about the problem, which may be why we see a higher incidence among women."

Trichotillomania usually begins in childhood and can continue throughout a lifetime. Young children will pull out their eyebrows or eyelashes while adults pull hair from the scalp and pubic areas.

"Kids do not have the resources adults do to hide the condition such as buying an eyebrow pencil or a wig and may withdraw socially," Streichenwein said.

Patients carefully examine the hair's texture, color, and condition before deciding which one to pull.

The urge to pull, ranging from a short period of time to all day, can be brought on by stress, caffeine, sugar, chocolate or pre-menstrual syndrome. There is usually an increased sense of tension before pulling and a sense of relief and gratification after pulling.

"Trichotillomania is thought to be a neuro-chemical imbalance and can be regulated with certain medications," said Streichenwein.

Streichenwein also suggests, in addition to medication, that a high protein diet and behavior modification may control the disorder.

"Becoming involved in activities to keep the hands occupied diminishes the urge to pull," said Streichenwein. It is also important to relax."

Relaxation techniques include sitting in a favorite chair, listening to soothing music, taking a warm bath, or taking time to be alone. Psychiatrists are not always familiar with the disorder, since patients generally seek the advice of pediatricians, dermatologists, gynecologists or clergy members.

"Once the secret of trichotillomania is revealed, more patients can be relieved of their terrible emotional pain and suffering," said Streichenwein.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry recently helped launch an innovative program aimed at recycling pesticide containers.

Perry spoke during opening ceremonies for the Empty Agricultural Chemical Container recycling Project.

"I've said this time and again that today's farmers and ranchers are critically concerned with their environment—that ag producers are the original environmentalists," Perry said.

The project is a pilot program that Perry hopes will be a statewide model for solving the growing problem of pesticide container disposal.

"We are meeting challenges and developing ways to take our industry into the next century," Perry said. "I only look for more positive things to come out of this pilot project and the other programs such as these that I know will follow your lead."

The Edinburg project's aim is to establish a widespread program for collecting and recycling plastic containers. Applicators will be encouraged to bring their containers to designated collection centers throughout the Rio Grande Valley.

Almost a half a million pounds of chemical containers are generated by the Lower Rio Grande Valley each year. Disposal options are limited because burning the containers is illegal. Also, many landfills are refusing to accept containers, and taking containers to specially designated incinerators is often too costly for the average applicator.

The project will accept well-rinsed plastic pesticide containers which will be granulated into small plastic flakes. The flakes will then be taken to a plastics processing facility, where they will be turned into pellets that could be used to make pesticide containers.

Chemical container granulation was demonstrated during the opening ceremonies.

More peanuts for oil in 1942 is one of the first calls to Texas farmers in the defense production campaign, Romeo M. Korth, state AAA committee-man from Cleto, has announced. Peanut growers are being called upon by the Texas USDA Defense Board to increase the acreage of peanuts in the state from 320,000 to 523,000 or approximately 100 percent. Of the 623,000 acres, 378,000 will be planted to peanuts for oil, the AAA official said. The entire southern region is being asked to increase peanuts for oil by 1,900,000 acres.

Hotline Offers GED Info

First Lady Barbara Bush has joined Bill Cosby and Waylon Jennings--both GED graduates--to help promote 1-800-62-MY-GED, the new GED Information Hotline that has just been launched nationwide.

This national toll-free number provides a central source of information to adults on how they can earn their General Educational Development (GED) Diploma, where their nearest adult education center and GED testing center are located, and how they can study for the GED tests at home. The GED Tests are the nation's only national standardized test for measuring high school proficiency. Over 10 million adults have earned GED Diplomas since the program began in the 1940's.

Country music superstar Waylon Jennings, national spokesman for the GED Information Hotline, earned his GED Diploma just last year. The 52-year old singer left school in the tenth grade. Bill Cosby's GED Diploma enabled him to go on to Temple University and eventually earn his doctorate in education. Actress Kelly McGillis, New Jersey Governor Jim Florio, Mary Lou Retton, Wally "Famous" Amos, and parade publisher Walter Anderson also are GED Diploma recipients.

The national GED Information Hotline is operated by the American Council on Education, the organization that develops and administers the GED Tests. All adults who didn't complete high school should call 1-800-62-MY-GED For help, encouragement, and information concerning the GED.

By Olive Cox, Secretary

Monday, November 18 the Muleshoe Senior Citizens met at the Depot for a Thanksgiving lunch. The Senior Citizens bought a turkey and Lou Knowles prepared the turkey and dressing. Vegetables and desserts were brought by others.

The blessing for the food was given by Bret McCasland, pastor of Muleshoe Church of Christ. The food and fellowship was enjoyed by all. There were 19 members, 1 visitor and one new member, Bob Shafer, present.

Odessa Shanks, program chairman, introduced our guest speaker, Bret McCasland. He brought us some statistics about Senior Citizens and discussed who we are and our place in the community. He also read an article entitled "How Well Do You Know Your Bible?" Everyone enjoyed his message.

In the absence of Katie Roubinek, Odessa had charge of the business meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A sympathy card was sent to Clara Coffman. Her son-in-law Wendell Speck, died Sunday night. There were no birthdays this month. The new business was election of officers for another year. The meeting was closed with prayer by Floyd Grimley.

American Association of Retired Persons Installs Officers

Muleshoe's American Association of Retired Persons met Friday, November 22 at 12 noon in the Bailey County Civic Center with about 15 attending. Leon Lewis presided.

Alma Carter, assistant state director, was present from Littlefield to install the organization's new officers. Carter used a humorous approach by presenting each new officer with the type of candy bar whose name applied to the work of the office. For instance, the new secretary-treasurer was given a $100,000 Grand candy bar.

Carter talked to the group on things she was thankful for. She said she was thankful she has good health. She also believes that Americans should be thankful that they live in a country where they can meet, have organizations like AARP, have family get togethers, and practice religion.

Carter recited several poems for the AARP members. Among them was one called "I'm drinking from my saucer 'cause my cup has overflowed."

Carter also brought literature to help members keep up with medical bills.

The Muleshoe Police Department will be the primary public safety answering point (PSAP) with access to the location of the caller via the enhanced 9-1-1 network.

One of the dramatic features of the 9-1-1 system includes the ability to lock onto an incoming 9-1-1 call by automatic number identification (ANI) and automatic location identification (ALI), so the telecommunicator can identify the caller's telephone number and location, which speeds up the dispatching of response time of emergency assistance. This feature is of benefit to all citizens, especially small children or callers who may not know their location, or those who are unable to communicate verbally. This feature also helps to reduce the number of prank calls made to 9-1-1 since the caller's phone

Football Contest

This must have been an easy week for persons entering the weekly football contest. More than one entry hadn't missed a single game, so it was back to the tiebreakers.

Tom Burgess, who has two previous wins, didn't miss any games and was 24 points off in the tiebreakers for a first place win and ten points toward the grand prize of $150.00.

Close behind Burgess, Mrs. John Hayes didn't miss any games and was 25 points off for a second place win and six points.

There wasn't much leeway between the three top winners, Gerald Shanks didn't miss any games and was 27 points off the tiebreakers for third place.

Another previous winner, R. G. Wilson didn't miss any games, but was 55 points off the tiebreakers.

We had some late entries this week and the participants were unqualified for the contest.

Only one more week remains in the contest and who the big winner is still undecided.

you were watching artist at work. D.T. Garth, Pete Wilkinson, Barry Wilson and Rod Springfield are these men and they are doing an excellent job.

Thanks to Wayne Holmes and Walter Sain for taking care of the finishing touches at the top of the flag pole. Wayne drew the design and Walter furnished the steel and cut out a beautiful eagle; and Johnny Miller did a fantastic job painting the flag pole. Many thanks to Bailey County Electric for setting the flag pole.

Thanks to Sheriff Jerry Hicks and the trustees who unloaded rocks for the monument; Five Area Tele. Coop. for delivering the flag pole to the welders; building materials were needed and Noe Anzaldua, Joe T. Gonzales, and Charles Lenau took care of this; Higginbotham for supplying the light fixtures, (the monument will have four lights shining on it, and there will be one light on the flag so that it will fly at all times); Clay Kidd for designing and building the podium that will go inside the Court House for the Veterans Register to go on. And to Butch Vandiver for pipe and building the rail to protect the monument from vehicles pulling up to it.

You see, this is truly a community project. If you've had a part in it and you aren't listed, please call 272-5448 and we'll see that you are recognized.

Appreciation goes to interested citizens who have donated lots of time; Nelda Merriott, Bobby Harrison, Billie Downing, Vivian White and Rae Logan. Thanks to these ladies for time, suggestions and lots of support.

Dedication will be Saturday, December 7 at 1 p.m. at the Memorial site. All veterans please plan to be there. We would like to have you placed according to the war you were involved in, so if you would, please, let us know ahead of time, your name and war; Donna Kirk and Billie Downing at the Court House, or call Nancy Kidd at 272-5448. This way we will have a fair idea how many in each section. Thank You.

This is a very special time to celebrate. Fifty years ago on December 7, 1941, an event, Pearl Harbor, happened that affected each of our lives. We're grateful America was victorious and she was and still is because of our people who have served and still are. Thanks.

Killer Bees Now On Fall Migration

Killer bees are on their fall migration, and now is a good time to learn a few facts about their habits, say experts at The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston (UTMB).

"People need to learn the difference between killer bees and garden-variety honey bees," says Mike Ellis, M.S., R.Ph. Director of the Texas State Poison Center at UTMB. "Since they're not going to stay out of our way, we can avoid injury by learning to stay out of their way."

Ellis gives the following facts about killer bees.

1. Africanized honey bees or "killer bees" are extremely ferocious and much more easily agitated than their counterpart, the European honey bee.
2. One swarm of killer bees can inflict 4,000 to 6,000 stings during an attack.
3. The killer bee's venom isn't necessarily more toxic than the honey bee's, it's just that killer bees sting their victims thousands of times.
4. Unlike the honey bee who only stays agitated for 20 to 30 seconds, killer bees remain hostile and ready to attack two to three hours after they are riled.
5. A swarm of angry killer bees will chase their victim three miles, whereas honey bees only pursue their enemy a few feet.

Letter To The Editor

November 22, 1991

Editor, Muleshoe Journal
Main Street
Muleshoe, Tx. 79347

Dear Sir:

Why I am opposed to the use of the Veterans Administration Hospitals and Outpatient Clinics treating non-veterans:

(1) Who would be eligible for care? Under the present proposal it would be federal prisoners, including illegal aliens, who have broken our laws and have cost the taxpayers lots of money. Others eligible include people on medicare, medicaid, Indians health care and others. Does this mean they have the same right as veterans who have served the United States honorably and have put their life on the line?

(2) Who has the authority to enter into a contract like this?

(3) Have they given consideration to additional liability claims arising from this, and what the cost would be?

This should be unacceptable to any citizen, especially the veterans.

I called Congressman Combest's office to ask these questions. His answer was the same: money. I hope there are other ways to balance the budget other than this. His aide told me there was just one VA Hospital in Texas that is being used for this at this time, located in Dallas, and about 1% of its patients was non-veteran. No one knows what will happen after this pilot program is completed.

Please write or call your Congressman and Senators today to try to get this practice stopped before it spreads to all Veterans Administration health care centers. Thank you.

Care Helps Feed People Worldwide

According to international experts, the developing world's poor are facing the hungriest Thanksgiving in recent memory. War, terrorism, drought, famine and a host of natural disasters have combined to put hundreds of millions of impoverished people on the brink of starvation.

"More than a billion men, women and children go to bed hungry every night," says Saba Gessesse, who manages food programs for CARE, the world's largest private relief and development organization. "That's roughly 20 percent of the earth's population.

"CARE helps to feed 27 million people worldwide," Gessesse said. "But there is still a great deal more we must do to make it possible for poor people to become self-sufficient."

According to experts from CARE, continued armed insurrection and a devastating drought are putting 28 million people at risk of starvation throughout the Horn of Africa. In Ethiopia alone, more than seven million people have limited access to food and water.

More than 300,000 Somalis faced such desperate war and poverty in their homeland that they fled to Ethiopia's teeming refugee camps.

"It's ironic that their flight," Gessesse comments, "has led them out of the frying pan and into the fire. The refugees are having a very tough time."

African hunger is just a portion of the global picture made bleak by the unusually large number of disasters that occurred in 1991. Tens of millions of Bangladeshi people are still homeless and hungry more than six months after the devastating cyclone that destroyed much of the southern third of the beleaguered country.

In the Philippines, a nation often considered more developed than many poor Asian countries, the eruption of Mount Pinatubo and the raging winds of Typhoon Thelma, have ruined hundreds of thousands of acres of valuable farmland and taken at least five thousands lives.

In all these cases, and in more than a dozen emergencies worldwide, CARE is making progress. The organization is helping millions of disaster victims to rebuild their homes and their lives.

"It will take tens of millions of dollars," Gessesse comments, "money organizations like CARE simply do not have."

CARE officials are especially concerned about this year's spate of disasters. They have not received as much public attention as the Persian Gulf Crisis, The continuing global recession and the end of the Cold War.

"The toppling of Soviet communism," Gessesse says, "could spell big trouble for the developing world's poor."

"Countries that were once considered key to the struggle between communism and democracy," she continues, "may no longer be important in the global game of political chess. This could translate into reduced aid at a particularly precarious time."

But, according to Gessesse, there is also reason for hope.

"In Mozambique and the Sudan," Gessesse says, "We are helping people take their first steps toward agricultural development in many years."

The organization is providing farmers with seeds and agricultural training so they can grow food to feed themselves and their families.

"Perhaps next Thanksgiving," Gessesse says, "our global harvest will be more plentiful."

Opera Kicks Off Public Radio Season

The "Met Marathon," the four-hour prelude to the 52nd season of live Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcasts, will be heard on Saturday, November 30 at 3:30 p.m. MT over Public Radio KENW/KMTH-FM, which is a member of the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera International Radio Network. This program will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening to the Metropolitan Opera House at Lincoln Center with broadcast highlights from the inaugural 1966-67 season. In addition, many of the operas and artists who will be heard during the upcoming 1991-92 broadcast season will be featured in radio highlights from over half a century of live Texaco-Metropolitan Opera performances.

Other milestones to be celebrated during the "Met Marathon" include the fiftieth anniversary of the Met debuts of several beloved and legendary artists: soprano Astrid Varnay, American tenor Jan Peerce, and conductor Fausto Cleva; as well as the centenary of the birth of the great Italian bass Ezio Pinza. Their artistry will be heard through rare historical excerpts taken from the recorded archives of the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

Among other artists to be heard in archival musical excerpts are Carlo Bergonzi, Grace Bumbry, Placido Domingo, Marilyn Horne, Dorothy Kirsten, James Levine, Sherrill Milnes, Birgit Nilsson, Luciano Pavarotti, Lenotyne Price, Leonie Rysanek, Thomas Schippers, Teresa Stratas, Renata Tebaldi, Richard Tucker, and Carol Vaness.

The 52nd season of Texaco-Metropolitan Opera live Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts will begin on Saturday, December 7 at 1:30 p.m. ET, with Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Cosi Fan tutte," and will run for twenty consecutive Saturday matinee performances through April 18, 1992. The first three opera broadcasts of the season continue the Metropolitan Opera's commemoration to the bicentennial of Mozart's death, which is being marked by the performance of all seven Mozart operas in the company's repertory during the calendar year 1991.

A highlight of the 1991-92 broadcast season is the world premiere broadcast on January 4, 1992 (two weeks after its world premiere at the Met on December 19) of "The Ghosts of Versailles," a new opera by American composer John Corigliano commissioned by the Metropolitan Opera, with a libretto by American playwright William M. Hoffman.

To mark the beginning of the second half century of Texaco-Metropolitan Opera radio broadcasts last December, Texaco instituted live transmission of the opera broadcasts of Europe. The broadcast distribution in Europe is coordinated by the Geneva-based European Broadcasting Union, also known as Euroradio. This season, sixteen of the live opera broadcasts will be transmitted to fifteen participating European countries, including the Soviet Union. The Metropolitan Opera can be heard in Muleshoe at 89.5 MHz on the FM dial.

Dear Louisa,
 We have moved recently to a new town and our neighbors and friends in my husband's business have been very nice to us. We have been invited out to dinners and parties but most of these people have large houses and plenty of help. Now my problem is this: we live in a very small house but it has a nice patio. I do my own work. Do you think it would be proper for my husband and I to invite these people for hamburgers we could grill in the yard? We really can't afford steaks for that many people.

Gain Through Sharing

Have you ever considered the priceless learning experience of hosting a cultural exchange student and how it could benefit your family? Envision the cultural enlightenment that would evolve amongst your family members by sharing your home with a fifteen or eighteen year old high school student from countries like Argentina, Belgium, Denmark, Hong Kong, or Mexico, only to mention a few.

In turn, imagine the gratitude of a family who has entrusted the care of their child to you for a whole school year or semester. No words can describe or measure the gratitude of that family. If you host a student and then decide that you or a member of your family would like to visit the homeland of your student, be rest assured that you will discover a lifetime friendship and will receive a royal welcome from that family.

Plus, being able to host a student has the benefit to deduct $50 per each month you have one of these students with you. For more detailed information contact: The non-profit Youth Exchange Service (YES), 4675 MacArthur Court, Suite 830, Newport Beach, California, 92660, or call 1-800-848-2121.
