Hope School Ready to Open

The Hope school is now ready to begin the 1952-53 term. The grounds have been mowed. The playground between the buildings has been black-topped. All of the desks have been varnished and finished. The floors have been oiled or painted. Mr. Jones painted all of the woodwork on the outside of the buildings.

The faculty for the new term is: Mrs. Anderson Young, first and second grades; Mrs. Lea, third, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Tyner, sixth seventh and eighth grades and home economics; Ray Silkwood, coach and commerce; Mr. Goldston, shop and science. Henry B. Jones is custodian. The bus drivers are William Keller and Nelson Jones.

All pupils will be enrolled Friday, Aug. 29. There will be no school Monday, Sept. 1. Regular classes will begin Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Hope Extension Club Holds Meeting

The Hope Extension club met at the home of Mrs. Felix Cauhape, Sr., on Aug. 20. The all-day meeting was spent on leathercraft. Miss Marjorie Howell, new county extension leader, met with the Hope club for the first time. She was accompanied by her guest, Miss Johnson.

The meeting was attended by Mmes. Bob Barley, Charlie Barley, Dick Carson, George Casabonne, Felix Cauhape Sr., Charlie Cole, Floyd Cole, Guy Crockett, Nelson Jones, Ida Prude, Alice Waltom, John Ward, George O. Teel, Lewis Weddige, Lincoln Cox. Visitors were Miss Alice Ruth Williams, Mrs. Margaret Finche and Mrs. Virginia Martin. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George O. Teel Sept. 17.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the preservation of the Penasco soil and water resources is indispensable to the health and prosperity of the commonwealth and its people, and

WHEREAS, the welfare of all farmers, ranchers and business enterprises as well as labor are directly dependent upon what can be produced from the land, and

WHEREAS, the Penasco Soil Conservation District is organized for the mutual benefit of farmers and ranchers in controlling wind and water erosion and reducing damages from floods, and

WHEREAS, all available facts and information lead us to believe that every land owner and operator within the valley should plan his agricultural operations so as to control erosion and maintain the fertility and productivity of his land,

NOW THEREFORE, I, Ethel Altman, Mayor of Hope, New Mexico, by virtue of the authority invested in me, do proclaim the day of Sept. 19, as Soil Conservation Day in Hope and Penasco Valley.

In accordance therewith, I urge the press, public officials, schools and farm organizations and all other groups and individuals to bring to the attention of the Penasco citizens the fact that their welfare and continued prosperity are dependent upon the maintenance of the Penasco Valley's land and the wise use of its water.

ETHEL ALTMAN,
Mayor of Hope, N. M.

Penasco District to Observe Soil Conservation Week

Gov. Edwin L. Mechem has proclaimed September as Soil Conservation month in New Mexico. In conformity with this the supervisors of the Penasco Soil Conservation District have designated the week of Sept. 14 as Conservation Week in the Penasco district.

During this week, farmers and ranchers of the district are urged to seriously consider where and how they need to effect more soil and water conservation on their land to improve and protect it from further wind and water erosion. Much has been done in the 11 years the Penasco district has been in existence, but a lot more is needed to make the job complete.

Farmers who are not as yet cooperators with the Penasco district are invited to see the supervisors or the SCS representative during this week about a complete soil and water conservation plan for their land.

As a climax to Conservation Week in the district, a free barbecue will be served at 6 p. m. Friday, Sept. 19 on the Hope school grounds. All farmers, ranchers, businessmen of the district and their families are invited.

Following the barbecue a 3-reel color movie entitled "My Country" will be shown as well as other movies and a talk on conservation will be made by G. L. Beene, area conservationist. Mr. Beene has charge of Area No. 6 of which the Penasco district is a part.

P. S. The time for the barbecue has been changed to 4:30 instead of 6:00.

Thomas Lee Harrison is now employed at the Tulk ranch.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the preservation of New Mexico's soil and water resources is indispensable to the health and prosperity of the commonwealth and its people, and

WHEREAS, the welfare of all commercial, professional, and industrial enterprises as well as labor is directly dependent upon what can be produced from the land, and

WHEREAS, New Mexico's land and water resources annually produce a substantial portion of the State's income, and

WHEREAS, there are now 60 soil conservation districts in the State, organized for the mutual benefit of farmers and ranchers in controlling wind and water erosion and reducing damages from floods, and

WHEREAS, all available facts and information lead us to believe that each and every land owner and operator within the State should plan his agricultural operations so as to control erosion and maintain the fertility and productivity of his land,

NOW THEREFORE, I, EDWIN L. MECHEM, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO, by virtue of the authority invested in me, do proclaim the month of September, as

SOIL CONSERVATION MONTH IN NEW MEXICO

In accordance therewith, I urge the press and radio, public officials, agencies, schools, public institutions, farm organizations, and all other groups and individuals to bring to the attention of all New Mexico citizens the fact that their welfare and continued prosperity are dependent upon the maintenance of New Mexico's land and the wise use of its water.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

As he thinketh in his heart, so is he. Proverbs 23:7. Read James 4:5-10.

One day on a street corner I heard a man behind me say, "Excuse me, Mister." Detecting liquor on his breath, I replied rudely, "Nothing today." He quickly added, "I don't want money. I want someone to pray with me."

If this man, I thought, had earlier submitted himself to God and resisted his temptations, God would have sustained him. Then he would not have found himself in such pitiful condition.

I told him I would pray with him. The Quaker meeting house near by was closed. We went then to another church in the next block and prayed.

Upon leaving the church, he told me he had been greatly helped. He refused the money that I now offered him.

Only by the grace of God was I able to help him, for my first approach was so rude. I learned a good lesson to be more Christian.

PRAYER

Dear Heavenly Father, we pray for guidance so that we may be more helpful. Help us to give Thee all the glory for any service in Christ's spirit and name we may be able to render to our fellow men. We know that of ourselves we can do nothing. May we keep our thoughts fixed on Thee. In the name of the strength-giving Christ we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Pig Hatchery Idea Is Growing Rapidly

Idea Opens New Era In Animal Agriculture

In recent years many new, significant developments have created much attention for people engaged in the business of producing meat, milk and eggs. But few advancements have become such a topic of conversation as the "pig hatchery" idea.

Based on the idea of the baby chick hatchery which has become an accepted farm service, the pig hatchery proposes the large scale volume production of baby pigs on a commercial basis for sale to farmers as healthy, started pigs.

There are a number of advantages in pig hatchery production as against farm farrowing of pigs. In the first place, most hog farmers should be able to make a profit on started eight-week old piglets that have been castrated, vaccinated, wormed, and deloused.

The above picture is an interior view of a pig hatchery at Forrest, Ill., showing pens on each side of a center aisle with brooders on both sides of the walk. Radiant heating pipes give warmth and dryness to floors. The heat is directed upward by a layer of vermiculite concrete under the pipes.

These "store-bought" pigs, through scientific feeding, breeding and management practices have been carried through the most critical period. Consequently, a feeder should have a minimum of trouble in efficiently converting his corn or other grains into pork without losses.

Advocates of pig hatcheries say another big advantage in buying hatchery pigs is that the farmer can do a better job of raising hogs with less capital investment in buildings and equipment, and with much less work.

Swine producers believe that widespread development of the pig hatchery industry, properly promoted, could do much for pork production on a national level through elimination of heavy death losses and disease prevention and control.

corpus delecti purse or status quo in toto. Look at me spit the lingo! Lat after all, I have got a lot of respect for them. For I have went to court and just did not want justice, and they are the boys that can keep justice from getting you in jail so far that they would have to shoot beans to you with a choke-bored shot gun. I suggest that there be no books kept on them revenue boys in Washington and that would stop the worry, as no one would know how much they take, they are going to take it any way. But, poor things, they have got to keep the higher ups living. And up to standard. It seems to me like the standard of living curis around just a little. the man that eats Tea Bones dont know if a cow roosts in trees or sleeps on the ground. Both Sides Claim Victory

Political strategists of both parties have blandly announced that it's all over but the counting of the votes—that their presidential candidates are dead mortal cinches. That is the traditional attitude of the professionals at this stage of the game and no one with any knowledge of American politics believes for a moment in its sincerity. For, as Senator Lodge, a top Eisenhower man, has frankly said, the Eisenhower-Stevenson contest is strictly a horse race. Both parties will conduct what is known as "sacred campaigns"—that is, campaigns in which they know the issue is very much in doubt, and it is necessary to painstakingly seek every possible vote.

It was inevitable that the first task undertaken by each candidate was to attempt to heal the deep party schisms that were created at Chicago.

General Eisenhower has consulted at length with leading Taft backers, and seems to have won their willing support. Governor Stevenson has done the same thing with the embittered supporters of Kefauver, Russell and Harriman. The top men know that, in both cases, a very high degree of party unity is the number 1 requirement.

It is universally believed that the two candidates will personally conduct high-level and very dignified campaigns, as political campaigns go. The slugging and the dirty fighting, if any, will occur at the lower levels. Judged by their backgrounds, careers, and characters neither General Eisenhower nor Governor Stevenson seem the sort who could lower themselves to ranting and name-calling. If this is true, it will certainly be an important service to national unity in itself.

Governor Stevenson's most difficult task, it is now evident, has been to disassociate himself from President Truman. The President had planned to make one of his driving, whistle-stop campaigns on behalf of his party's candidate; it is now reliably reported that this is the last thing Governor Stevenson wants. There is great significance in the fact that the governor insisted on moving headquarters from Washington to Springfield. He means to be his own man—not the president's or anybody else's.

The Eisenhower campaign got started when the general spoke at the Veterans of Foreign Wars encampment in Los Angeles. The general made an appealing talk, zrief and sincere, in which he offered a 10-point program to create an America "closer to our hearts' desire." His points included: to increase America's spiritual, creative and material strength; to win a just and lasting peace; to build a prosperity not based on war; to protect the earnings of the people from taxes and inflation, and to insure that those who serve in government are Americans of loyalty and dedication. Such goals, he said, are all within our reach.

Afterwards the general was given a medal by the VFW. And his manner of acceptance cast a revealing light on his character and way of thinking—he accepted it, he said, not for himself, but as a representative of all soldiers and comrades.
