Motorcycle Rally Draws Large Crowd Saturday

Motorcycles, Motorcycles and more Motorcycles rolled into Muleshoe Friday night and Saturday for the 11th Annual Motorcyclist Rally in the Bailey County Coliseum. The rally was sponsored by the Muleshoe Roadriders.

"I come every year," said Rick Parish of Lubbock. "This is probably one of the best rallies in the state. They have a very good rally, the whole town supports the riders, when you ride into town and see the sign "Home of the Muleshoe Road Riders." Some of the finest people in the world live in Muleshoe, they all make us feel welcome."

The rally officially got underway with the "Light Show" Friday night at 9.

Registration began at 7 Saturday morning and continued until 12 noon. Numerous riders from several states, both men and women from all walks of life registered for the rally.

If you saw a lot of motorcycles out early Saturday morning, they were probably part of the Poker Run, which got underway at 8 a.m. when the first bikers were out. The last motorcycle was out at 11 a.m.

Fun and games began at 12:30 p.m. Saturday with what else but the "Mule Shoe Pitch". In this event two riders are on the motorcycles, with the back rider pitching mule shoes, trying to ring the post. Sound easy, its a little more difficult than it sounds, the bikes are moving all the while the mule shoes are being pitched.

Following the Mule Shoe Pitching contest, a Soft Ball throw was conducted in the same manner, the second rider was pitching soft balls into large buckets. Again it was no easy task.

At 4:30 p.m., over 60 motorcycles participated in a parade up Highway 84 into downtown Muleshoe.

Awards and prizes were awarded at 5 p.m. with there being a $100 grand prize, going to a pre-registered biker. Muleshoe riders were not eligible to participate in any of the events, due to the fact they were hosting the rally.

MISD Will Sponsor Annual Parent Program

The Muleshoe Independent School District will host the Annual Chapter 1 Parent Program on Friday evening, April 2 at 7 p.m. in the Muleshoe High School Auditorium.

Families whose children are involved in the Chapter 1 program on any of the four Muleshoe I.S.D. campuses are urged to attend and hear a presentation in Spanish by Benito Rodriguez about how to help your students obtain the best possible education through high school and beyond.

"Rodriguez is a nationally recognized expert on parent involvement in education, and we are very fortunate to have him come to Muleshoe to share his wisdom with us," said Bill Moore, superintendent. "Rodriguez is the Parent Involvement Director at El

Chief Says 'Heap Good Medicine For Farmers'

TWO IN A ROW

By Scott Robinson

It seems the more technology our local television meteorologists get, the less accurate they are. They are so wrapped up in this technology that they seem to forget the basics of predicting the weather. And this winter has been a great example.

Maybe the t.v. guys should go back to the basics and take a clue from the Indians, or closer to home "Chief" Weldon Crim.

Crim is the Parmer County farmer, who every spring exchanges his farmer's hat for an Indian headdress. He goes back to his heritage and predicts the coming season's weather by using old Indian tactics.

And let's just say he is a shade more accurate than his television counterparts.

The "Chief", using his old, traditional Indian method, has correctly prognosticated the spring weather for the past three years. And since he began conducting these "fire burnings" in 1983, he has been on the money about eighty percent of the time.

And this year the "Chief" is calling for another good season of moisture, which is good news for the farmers of this area.

The "fire burning" is conducted every year at sunrise on March 22. The "burning" is done by setting fire to a teepee-shaped stack of wood, and watching the direction in which the smoke blows. The wind direction predicts the weather for the spring season.

This year's wind was blowing from the northeast, which calls for a bumper crop season.

Crim is a third generation forecaster, as his grandfather began the burnings around 1910. Upon Taylor Crim's death, Weldon's father carried on the tradition. J.W. conducted the burnings for the next five decades until his death in 1980. Weldon picked up the tradition three years later.

So take it to the bank. The good "Chief" has used an old fashion method to predict another bumper crop.

Sometimes technology is not all it's crack up to be.
EDITORS NOTE: Last week

Crim visited the local elementary schools and discussed the Indians way of forecasting the weather.

Chief Frank Runkles of Post also conducted the ceremonies at precisely dawn Monday, and the spirit of the Comanche Nation blew a north by northeast wind through Post City Park, indicating a good year to come for people of the South Plains.

Despite the sun's failure to break through the clouds at dawn's first moment, Runkles still pointed an eagle feather north by northeast--a sign of a prosperous year ahead. A crowd of about 40 people turned out to observe the Comanche ritual.

"Although the ceremony is viewed as entertaining and an observance of Indian lore, farmers and businessmen alike take the outcome to heart," said Robert Shannon, one of the organizers of the Post ceremony. "They are real serious about this."

Chief Runkles, 83, has been conducting the Tabana Yuan'e, which translates as Sunrise Wind since 1973 for the Post Chamber of Commerce.

According to legend, the direction the wind takes at the crack of dawn on the second day of spring predicts the year ahead. An east or northeast wind signals a very good year, and Cont. Page 6, Col. 1

MASH Needs Your Help

"MASH" needs your help!!! Sharon Grant told the Journal Tuesday morning that the Meals on Wheels organization is very short on funds and since MASH funds go to Meals on Wheels, they need your assistance.

Any business in town who would consider putting a jar on their counter for donations are asked to contact Sharon Grant.

Even though all funds donated at the local restaurants are appreciated, more are needed. Mrs. Grant stated that if a business would put a jar on the counter a board member of MASH would go by and put a sticker on it.

All donations stay here in Muleshoe to feed the local people.

Blood Drive Set Tuesday At First Assembly

The Muleshoe Blood Advisory Board and First Assembly of God Church will conduct a community blood drive with United Blood Services from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 30. The drive will be held in the church fellowship hall, 521 S. First.

Volunteer blood donors help assure a safe, adequate blood supply for patients in area hospitals. United Blood Services is the sole provider of blood and blood products for more than 30 area hospitals, including Muleshoe Area Medical Center.

Only five percent of the eligible population donates. Yet the person who lives to be age 72 has a 95 percent chance of needing blood someday. It takes approximately 48 hours to process a unit of blood. Since it's usually separated into several components, or parts, one donation can help several patients with varying medical needs.

Blood Advisory Board chairperson Glenda Powell urges the public to participate. The entire donation process takes only 30 to Cont. Page 6, Col. 2

Texas Cancer Legal Project Seminars To Be Held

Cancer is a difficult battle. Add potential legal problems and the burden can seem overwhelming. The Texas Young Lawyers Association of the State Bar of Texas has launched the Texas Cancer Legal Project to help low-income cancer patients and survivors get the legal assistance they need.

The project includes TYLA-sponsored training sessions for attorneys to assist cancer patients and survivors with legal matters including: Insurance and employee benefits (including ERISA), the American with Disabilities Act, public benefits and estate planning. The seminar fee will be waived for those attorneys who agree to represent a limited number of clients on a pro bono basis, or individuals may attend for $40.

Seminars will be held at the following locations for attorneys interested in representing cancer

Teel Bivins Reports

What if you wanted to open a hamburger stand, but first you had to get a permit from the "Texas Hamburger Commission"? Also assume that, as an applicant for a permit, you had to prove there was an unmet need for hamburgers in the part of town you wanted to operate in. Then, when you show up for your permit hearing before the Hamburger Commission, you find McDonald's and Burger King protesting your permit because they're already serving hamburgers in your part of town.

Sounds crazy doesn't it? But something like that happens everyday at the Texas Railroad Commission. Applicants who want to enter the trucking business must go before the commission and prove there's a need for them to serve a particular route. Meanwhile, the large corporate trucking firms in Texas routinely pose such applications based on the argument that they're already adequately meeting the need.

These artificial barriers to the trucking business are only part of an antiquated, overly bureaucratic, anti-competitive regulatory scheme that exists in Texas today. The system is forcing jobs outside the state, keeping doors closed to minority and historically underutilized businesses, contributing to air pollution and highway deterioration, and forcing every Texan to pay higher prices for goods shipped intrastate.

When I campaigned for office in 1988, I argued we were in desperate need of reformed trucking laws in Texas. Upon arriving in the Legislature, I was informed by the "Powers That Be" that a trucking reform bill had passed in 1987 and that I shouldn't revisit the issue for five years. Five years have passed, and I've introduced legislation that would--not totally deregulate but--significantly reform trucking regulations in Texas.

My bill would make it easier to get into the trucking business in Texas. If Senate Bill 457 passes, an applicant would no longer have to show the Railroad Commission there was a need to serve a certain route in this state. Rather, the applicant would only have to prove he can carry goods safely on the state highways.

With regard to freight rates, the bill would direct the Railroad Commission to adopt maximum rates. That would allow companies to compete with rates below the established ceiling.

Under current Texas law, a trucker who hauls drill pipe from San Antonio to East Texas on a flat-bed trailer probably would have to return empty. That's because of what could only be described as super-technical permits that are granted by the commission to these specialized motor carriers. Someone who hauls drill pipe can't haul lumber, through their truck could handle it just fine.

My bill would remove these artificial barriers and allow for the free shipment of goods in Texas. An indirect benefit of this provision would be to eliminate an estimated $3 billion miles of empty or deadhead hauls driven each year in Texas.

The reform opponents are the large trucking firms that want to protect what they've got. Their principal arguments against reform are that any changes would jeopardize service to small communities and create unsafe conditions on our highways.

While the reverse has been the case in states such as Florida and Utah that have reformed their intrastate trucking rules, I've nonetheless put sections in my bill that would ensure that small-town service continues, if not improves.

With regard to safety, it should be noted that the Texas Railroad Commission has never withdrawn a permit from any trucker in Texas for repeated safety violations. This bill would direct the commission to adopt standards for revoking the permits of those who repeatedly violate the safety laws of Texas.

If Senate Bill 457 becomes law, Texas will be able to proudly proclaim that it once again has fair and competitive trucking laws, an open trucking industry, less congested highways, cleaner air and lower prices for consumers throughout the state.

Homeowners Would Have Access To Home Equity

Texans would be able to use the equity they have built up in their homes or more than just hot tubs or backyard "cement ponds" under legislation being promoted by the Texas Conference for Homeowners' Rights (TCHR).

Senate Bill, 1126, sponsored by Sen. Jerry Patterson, (R-Pasadena) and House Bill 2150, sponsored by Reps. Debra Danburg (D-Houston) and Robert Eckels (R-Houston), would allow Texas homeowners to use the equity they have in their homes however they see fit.

TCHR is a broad-based coalition of Texas homeowners, lenders, senior citizens, small business owners, parents, and educators who support reform and modernization of the state's homestead laws.

"Texans should be able to use the equity they've built up as collateral to start a small business, send a child to college, or enhance the quality of their retirement years--just as residents of every other state in the nation can do," said Rick Smith, chairman of TCHR and president of Community Bank in Waco.

Under current law, Texas homeowners can use their home equity only to pay back taxes or for home improvements, such as a backyard swimming pool.

"This legislation does not repeal the Texas Homestead Act," Smith added. "It merely gives homeowners a choice on how they want to use the equity they have built up."

The changes proposed by TCHR would retain Texas' claim as the state with the strongest homestead protections, Smith noted.

"I think it's ridiculous that homeowners in Texas cannot do what they want with their own money," Smith said. "This legislation simply gives voters a chance to decide for themselves if they want expanded access to their home equity."

Since Texas' homestead laws are a part of the state Constitution, voters must approve a Constitutional Amendment this November for the changes to become law. Sen. Buster Brown, (R-Lake Jackson) is joining Sen. Patterson in sponsoring Senate Joint Resolution 46 to put the amendment on the ballot. Reps. Danburg and Eckels are sponsors of the House Joint Resolution 99.

"At the very least, we think voters should have the chance to have their say on this important issue," Smith said.

Smith said the coalition has worked hard to resolve problems that seniors, consumers, and other concerned citizens have had with past attempts to reform the state's homestead laws.

"We've really bent over backwards to address their concerns," Smith said. "The consumer safeguards contained in this legislation are second to none in the nation--and that's a big reason why the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) has endorsed this bill."

"We are very pleased to announce our support for this important legislation," said Dr. Roy Ray, Jr., vice chair of the Texas AARP State Legislative Committee. "We believe senior citizens will be more than adequately protected by the provisions in this bill--and will stand to benefit a great deal from it."

Home equity loans have the lowest delinquency and default rates of all types of consumer loans available--including first mortgages, Smith said.

In addition to providing a much-needed source of funds for homeowners, Smith said the proposed changes could be good news for the state's economy as a whole.

"Since the interest on home equity loans is tax deductible, homeowners will save money," he said. "What's more, a University of Texas study shows that these low-interest home equity loans will create more than 192,000 new Texas jobs."

Now every field is clothed with grass, and every tree with leaves; now the woods put forth their blossoms, and the year assumes its gay attire.

Nova "The Lost Tribe" Stone Age Relics? Or Rain Forest Fakers?

As far as the 26 members of the Tasaday knew, they and a few neighbors were the only people on Earth. The tiny tribe lived in caves, gathered wild food, used simple stone tools, wore only leaves, and never wandered far from their remote Philippine rain forest home.

To them, the world beyond did not exist -- that is, until helicopters with government officials, reporters, and anthropologists began arriving.

At least, that was the story. In "The Lost Tribe," Nova asks: Are the Tasaday genuine relics of Stone Age society? Or, as some anthropologists contend, are they rain forest fakes?

Hailed as the anthropological find of the century after their discovery in 1971, the Tasaday soon were hosting curious journalists and scientists brought in at the invitation of their new found protectors, the Philippine government. The tribe appeared to be everything an anthropologist could desire. They lived as equals. They shared their food as one family. They were perfectly adapted to their forest environment and at peace with each other. Indeed, they had no word for "war."

But all access to the Tasaday ended in 1973 with the official explanation that authorities wished to preserve the Tasaday's traditional way of life.

Yanomami: Keepers of the Flame

A pre-Stone Age group of people who live much as they did 6,000 years ago, the Yanomami are believed to be the last culturally intact group of Native Americans. This program documents the recent expedition of Nothing more was heard from them until 1986, when a democratic government replaced the dictatorial Ferdinand Marcos regime. In the chaos that followed, a Swiss journalist, Oswald Iten, searched out the Stone Age celebrities.

He unearthed a scandal. "They lived in houses, not caves, and they told me that they were not a separate tribe but were from the local tribes Monobo and T'boli," Iten reported.

The Tasaday hoax, it was charged, was part of a plot by Marcos to strip tribal people of their land.

Other journalists learned that the Tasaday were always warned of visitors in advance, that their tools were fake, and that their language belonged to another tribe.

But some scientists continue to insist that the Tasaday are genuine. They noted that the Tasaday, even the young, seemed to be unusually at home in their jungle surroundings and betray no familiarity with agricultural plants. If they are acting, some visitors observed, they are astonishingly good at it.

"The Lost Tribe" on Nova will be broadcast Tuesday, March 30th at 7:00 p.m. The program will repeat Saturday, April 3rd at 9:00 p.m. and again Sunday, April 4th at 12:00 midnight.

Bridal Shower Fetes Stephanie Cox

A bridal shower honoring Stephanie Cox, bride elect of Kyle Maxfield, was held Saturday, March 20, 1993 in the home of Sue Bessire.

Stephanie's corsage was embellished with purple African violets, accented with pearls and lace.

Refreshments of assorted breakfast breads and punch were served from a tea table adorned with crystal and silver appointments. Candles in the brides chosen colors of purple and jade were used to decorate the table. Servers were Kimberly Harris and Stacy McElroy.

Guests were greeted by Miss Cox, her mother Marilyn Cox, the groom-to-be's mother Debbie Maxwell, and Sue Bessire, hostess. Other special guests included Marleela Crittendon, sister of the bride-to-be of Temple; Mrs. Matt Nix, grandmother of Stephanie of Sudan; Mrs. James Cox, grandmother from Amherst; Debbie Ridlon, aunt from Lubbock; and Judy Cox, aunt from Muleshoe. Relatives of the perspective groom included Alice Mills and Yvonne Maxfield, grandmothers; Sandra Cowan and Wilma Fox, aunts; Nichole Maxfield, sister; and Misty Maxfield, cousin.

Hostesses presented a pine wood jelly cabinet as a hostess gift.

Warning Signs Of Problem Gambling for the compulsive gambler, the excitement of the big win is as addictive as alcohol or drugs.

"It usually begins with a big winning streak, and the person thinks maybe he or she can win a fortune," said Dr. Lauren Pate, a psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

She cited these danger signals of problem gambling:

- * Neglect of personal, family or job responsibilities in order to gamble.
- * Depletion of finances.
- * Need for increasingly larger stakes to achieve excitement.
- * Gambling to win losses back.
- * Frequent attempts to quit or cut down.
- * Not being accountable for periods of time.

Danger At Home

Home may not be the safest or healthiest place to be. Try as we parents do, there are things that go on that we often overlook.

Children and young people are surrounded at home and school by products that can be dangerous, even deadly. It's indicated that 25% of all Texas students have "Sniffed" or "Huffed" inhalants by the time they reach 7th grade. Besides that, thousands of Texans are treated in hospital emergency rooms every year as a result of accidental poisoning. Like poison, intentional use of inhalants can be fatal.

Be careful-check your home. I've seen some sad sights resulting from kids using inhalants to get high.

Tops Club

Tops Chapter No. 34 met at the Muleshoe Church of Christ Thursday, March 18, 1993 at 6:00 p.m. Leader Laverne James called the meeting to order. The Tops pledge was recited and the fellowship song was sung. Mrs. James led the group in a prayer.

Betty Jo Davis weight recorder, called the roll with 17 members answering with the amount of weight they lost or gained. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Aurora Mata, secretary and they were approved as read.

Best loser for the week is Marian Wilson. Runners up are Linda White, first runner up and Lucille Harp, second runner up.

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the good night song.

LAZBUDDIE BAND STUDENTS COMPETE AT STATE-Several Lazbuddie Band students will compete at the state band contest at San Marcos on May 29, 30, and 31. Erin Jones received a Division 1 rating on the clarinet at the Regional UIL Solo and Ensemble contest held at Texas Tech on February 27. Joanna Gallman received a Division 1 rating on the Xylophone. These two young ladies will be accompanied by band director Theresa Wilhelm and assistant director Becky Jones to the state contest.

Possible Primary Cause Of ALS

Antibodies attacking the nervous system may be the primary cause of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), also known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

"It appears that in ALS the body attacks itself," said Dr. Stanley Appel, a neurologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

ALS involves the progressive breakdown of nerve cells that control muscle activity, resulting in severe muscle weakness and in difficulty in speaking, swallowing, and breathing.

"Antibodies attack the outside of the nerve cells' calcium channels," Appel said. "These channels serve as the opening through which calcium enters the cells."

Changes in calcium levels can damage motor neurons, resulting in loss of muscle control.

This finding encourages the development of new therapies designed to "soak up" the antibodies as well as suppress their production, Appel said.

Labor Pains

Texas is expected to face a serious shortage of nurses by the year 2000.

The crisis in this aspect of health care is acute because nursing schools have neither the resources nor the faculty needed to accommodate the thousands who want to enter the profession. In 1992, more than 6,000 prospective students were rejected, primarily because of a shortage of qualified teachers.

Even if nursing schools had the funds to increase faculty, it's unlikely they could find enough professionals to fill the many vacancies. Qualified nurses are reluctant to return to teaching because hospitals typically pay about $10,000 more annually than they'd make as faculty members.

One survey estimates that each month, 50,000 new positions open for nurses in the nation's health care system.

Some people stay mad over little things.

A key to happiness in life lies in unselfishness.

Microwave Tips

If your microwave has a simmer or slow cook setting, or Auto Roast Code 6, you can often put dishes in the microwave and leave home for six to eight hours.

Best choices are stews, pot roasts, etc.

These dishes can be a meal in themselves. Add half a cup of liquid when simmering. Place temperature probe in liquid, submerged.

Muleshoe Senior Citizens Meet

Senior Citizens met in the Old Depot Monday, March 22, 1993 for a covered dish luncheon. Odessa Shanks called the house to order. Joe Embry asked the Blessing. Everyone enjoyed a very good lunch and a lot of visiting. There were 26 present for lunch.

Odessa called the house to order once more.

Margaret Collins introduced Geary Montgomery, minister at the Muleshoe Church of Christ. He gave a very interesting talk. Geary introduced use to the 4-A's:

- A-No.1-Attitudes
- A No.2-Altitudes
- A No.3-Appreciate
- A No.4-Ambition

Lou Knowles read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Happy Birthday to Mrs. Griswald.

Cards were sent to the sick that we knew about.

A sympathy card was sent to Clara Coffman on the death of her sister in law.

Visitors were Geary and Sandra Montgomery, Joe and Claudine Embry, La Dema Wright and Cap Goodwin.

The meeting was dismissed by Geary Montgomery.

The next meeting will be in April.

pins were also awarded.

Over 50 trophies were awarded for winners in the Poker Runs (inside and out), Field Events and Games, a Bike Show and a 50/50 Drawing.

Special awards went to the Largest Club attending, Long Distance Female, Long Distance Male, Long Distance Two Up, Oldest Rider, Youngest Licensed Rider, and the Hard Luck Award.

Howard Myers of Ft. Worth traveled 417 miles to attend the rally. He stated that this is his second year to attend the Muleshoe Rally. "I had another reason for coming, I'm striving for the Oldest Rider Award," Myers said. Myers is 72 years young. Last year he attended 34 rallies.

Roy Johnson of Levelland is a member of the Christian Motorcycle Association. He stated that he had traveled over 500,000 miles on a motorcycle in the last 20 years, since he lost his left leg. He now travels in a side car.

Although Melinda Mullins of Lubbock isn't a licensed motorcycle rider, she traveled from Lubbock along with her step-father to attend the rally. She explained the Poker Run, you go around to different places and draw cards, hoping to get the best hand.

All in all it proved to be another successful rally.

First Aid For Poisoning

March 21-27 is National Poison Prevention Week. Each year Methodist Hospital's Poison Control Referral Center receives about 800 phone calls concerning accidental poisoning.

To minimize the risk of poisoning, it's important to read the label when using any type of substance. Follow the directions carefully and be especially cautious if any of these words are listed on the label: Danger--means the substance is highly poisonous; Warning--the substance is moderately hazardous; or Caution--which means it is mildly hazardous.

When working with substances, always wear protective clothing specified by the label. Mix or dilute ingredients outdoors in a properly ventilated area.

Always store toxic materials in their original container with the lid securely fastened. Store them away from other materials with which they might be confused, and keep them away from high traffic areas where they might leak or spill.

Also, keep syrup of ipecac on hand, which induces vomiting, and Epsom salt which acts as a laxative. However, only use these substances as directed by the Poison Control Center.

If an accident occurs, remain calm. First, find out what happened to the victim. Some common signs of poisoning are burns or redness around the mouth, a chemical smell on the breath, burns, stains and odors on the victim or the clothing, vomiting or difficulty breathing.

When calling the Poison Control Center or 911 for help, be ready to give the operator the exact location of the accident, the name of the substance ingested, the condition of the victim and the phone number from which the call is being placed.

Because time is of critical importance, and professional help may not be immediately available, be prepared to administer the type of first aid indicated by the situation.

*Swallowing--rinse the victim's mouth with plenty of water. Make them drink one quart of water or milk to dilute the poison. Induce vomiting if instructed to, but never induce vomiting if the victim is having convulsions or is unconscious.

*Inhaling--carry or drag the victim to fresh air and loosen any tight-fitting clothing. Give artificial respiration if the victim's skin is blue or breathing has stopped.

*Eyes--flood the eyes with lukewarm water poured from 3 to 4 inches from the eye, making sure to get it under the eye lids. Continue this procedure for about 15 minutes.

*Skin--remove any affected clothing and drench the skin with water. Then, wash the skin and hair thoroughly. Do not apply ointments, greases, powder or drugs to the affected area.

Texas Department Of Transportation

Internationally, the word's out that Texas has great food, good highways, and friendly natives. So says the winter report of Texas Auto Visitor Survey just released by the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT).

Not only do U.S. citizens know about Texas, but a growing number of foreign visitors also reflect the same opinions on what they enjoyed about the state.

The top city visited by both U.S. and foreign visitors is San Antonio, with the Alamo cited as the top attraction visited by both groups.

Canada led the number of foreign visitors for the winter period, followed by England, Australia, and

West Germany. (Mexico is not included in the survey since Texas is so close to the border.)

"Canada, West Germany, England, and Australia have been strong foreign markets for Texas for some time," said Milton Meharg, director of TxDOT Travel Services. "Using Houston and Dallas as gateways, they come to experience Texas history, culture, and attractions."

The TxDOT winter report covers December 1992 through February 1993, and is compiled from questionnaires completed by visitors stopping by the Texas Travel Information Centers. These travel centers serve as the state's "front doors," where professional travel counselors extend friendly Texas hospitality to some three million visitors arriving by auto from all directions each year. A free copy of the survey may be picked up at any of the 11 travel centers, or by calling 1-800-452-9292.

Waco's Lesson

While no one wishes to criticize law enforcement officers, the tragedy near Waco, Texas, in recent weeks provides a lesson.

The lesson is to keep show biz and TV and print coverage apart from dangerous in-progress police activity. A question about the tragedy at the cult "fort" outside Waco is why the cult leader wasn't arrested by surprise when outside--which would likely have solved the whole problem, eventually.

Another is who decided on the almost circus-like atmosphere and arrangements--did the likelihood of hero stuff in the media figure into that decision?

The huge expenditure of money, the loss of life, the suffering of so many families--are firearms violations (of which there are so much every day) serious enough among members of a cult to justify all this effort and expenditure?

It's, of course, easy to criticize, and all agencies involved in this tragedy have a good record--though we could do with fewer press conferences by FBI types, which seem out of place. Why announce future plans?

Crazy as he may be, the cult leader outthought and outfoxed many fine law enforcement officers. He should have been quietly and unexpectedly seized and tried, if necessary, and still must be held accountable, now the slow, expensive way.

Too Far?

A U.S. marine recently raped a woman, then committed suicide. A teacher in North Carolina fondled a female student and was sent to jail for thirty years. Several male workers have recently lost their jobs because they used vulgar words flirting with females they were attracted to.

Dozens of preachers and priests in recent months have been caught having affairs, ruining their careers. Prominent male actors and politicians are regularly blackmailed because of alleged or actual improper advances to females they were attracted to.

The pitfalls and downfalls of so many males in U.S. society, daily, raises a question whether the pendulum of female protection has swung too far.

Males (of all creeds and colors) are being punished today partly because of the past, when females didn't enjoy equal rights and equal protection; they are now strictly limited in speech and behavior, while few restrictions apply to females.

Our Maker designed the world so that men have a sexual drive, making them vulnerable. The opposite sex exploits this nature, sorely tempting males. Females today go about half naked, to attract males. They're painted up, powdered up and dressed as sexy and revealing as the law allows, to attract males. They know well how to walk, talk and coo.

One needn't favor veils or Arab customs to comment on today's tug of war. But no one can expect all males to properly resist such strong enticement and temptation. When the inevitable occurs, and the male stumbles and falls, responds too vigorously, he alone often pays the price--his reputation or life sometimes ruined.

Is there some more reasonable and fair playing field, neither yesterday's nor today's? Does anyone today dare speak up, for the awful male?

Schools Offer Ginners Opportunity To Improve Skills

Ginners wanting to improve their proficiency and increase their customers' profits should not wait to enroll in Ginners Schools being held in Texas and Mississippi this year.

Course levels I, II and III will be offered at both the South Plains Ginning Lab in Lubbock, April 13-15, and at the USDA Ginning Lab in Stoneville, MS, July 12-14.

"The ginner schools continue to attract the nation's top gin employees," said Kenneth Hood, Gunnison, MS, president of the National Cotton Ginners Association, one of the schools' sponsors. "That's because the courses provide them with the latest information on how to preserve lint quality as well as how to increase efficiency at their gin plants. And the schools offer an optional certification program so ginners can continue their professional development."

The level I course covers maintenance of gin and gin auxiliary equipment, air use and drying, electrical systems and gin safety. The level II course offers advanced training in these areas as well as pneumatics and waste collection, and gin management tips.

Level III students will receive a review of ginning system functions and information on gin air systems, drying and moisture restoration systems, management of seed cotton unloading systems, bale presses and hydraulic systems, and cottonseed handling systems.

Fred Johnson, NCGA executive vice president, said requirements for the NCGA certification program include active NCGA membership, completion of all three instruction levels, the Red Cross standard first aid course certification, written recommendation from an established ginner and satisfactory performance on a comprehensive written examination covering practical aspects of gin operation. Certification applicants also must take additional course work that will be offered at future schools.

Now in the 7th year, the ginner schools are also sponsored by the National Cotton Council, USDA, state Extension services, Cotton Incorporated, other ginner associations and gin manufacturers. For more information, contact Johnson at P.O. Box 12285, Memphis, TN 38182 (901) 274-9030.
