Italy Takes Addis Ababa; the Emperor Flees

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia gave up the hopeless fight against the Italian invaders and fled from Addis Ababa with his family.

Mussolini's victorious troops soon after marched into the capital, the first to enter being a picked regiment representing all units of the Italian army, the Askari, infantry, artillery, air force, engineers, grenadiers, bersaglieri, Alpini, cavalry, marines and Fascist militia-

Haile Selassie men. Their coming was welcomed by the foreigners who remained in the city, for as soon as the negus left, the natives began to pillage, plunder and burn. The business center of the town was speedlly wrecked and the government buildings were stormed and ravaged, these including the treasury from which the state's store of gold was stolen, and the armory. The streets were strewn with corpses and the Ethiopians, crazed by liquor, rushed about shooting at random and gathering up their loot to carry it to the hills.

Only one foreigner was reported killed. That was Mrs. N. A. Stadin, American wife of an Adventist missionary, who was struck by a stray bullet. British Foreign Minister Eden and his fellows in the government must admit as gracefully as possible their failure to check Mussolini and get what they can for Britain out of the African tragedy. Friends of Senator Borah in Utah tried unsuccessfully for a Borah pledged delegation from that state. The Republican state convention in Ogden voted to send an uninstructed group to Cleveland, following the recommendation of the resolutions committee,

The Arkansas delegation also will be uninstructed, though the state convention approved an "expression of good will" toward Gov. Alf Landon.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, who offered himself to the Democrats as a Presidential nominee aspirant merely so that disaffected members of the party might have some place to go, received about one-seventh of the votes in the Maryland preference primary. The rest, of course, went to Mr. Roosevelt. Colonel Breckenridge had made no campaign.

Radicals Control French Chamber of Deputies

FINAL elections in France put complete control of the chamber of deputies in the hands of the revolutionary "Popular Front," a coalition of Communists, Socialists, Radical Socialists and minor left wing groups. The new chamber does not meet until June, and the confusion is so great that there are fears of chaos and financial panic in the interim. Many believe the Popular Front will be unable to form a stable government to succeed that of Premier Sarraut. The lead must be taken by the Socialists, for they now form the largest group in the chamber with 146 seats. The Radical Socialists have 115, the Communists 72 and minor left parties 44. Business Men Differ With Mr. Roper

DANIEL C. ROPER, secretary of commerce, appeared before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at its annual meeting in Washington and warned

"It is the responsibility of all business and industrial enter-

100 prises, said Roper, Sec. Roper "and not of one particular segment of the government to increase its efforts for greater employment. If a substantial measure of increased re-employment does not take place the taxation for relief purposes will come largely from business earnings. There must be re-employment or a longer period of increased taxation."

Roper admitted that the administration had fostered bureaucracy, but insisted that it was occasioned by an emergency, and responsibility for its increase again lay at the door of private business.

Various members of the chamber replied spiritedly. Roy C. Osgood, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, predicted that if the administration embarked on a sound fiscal program that would inspire confidence, business would make rapid strides toward recovery. He criticized the pending tax on corporate earnings as impracticable and a brake on busiss expansion and stability.

Huge New Tax Measure Rushed Through House

WITH extraordinary speed which the opposition considered indecent, the administration's new $803,-000,000, revenue bill was pushed through the house. The vote, 267 to 93, was almost strictly along party lines. The roll call showed 82 Republicans and only 11 Democrats voted against the measure, while four Republicans deserted the minority to cast their lot with the administration.

The bill was handed to the senate whose Sen. Harrison finance committee, headed by Pat Harrison, had been studying it in secret cessions in order to be prepared for the public hearings that opened two days after the house had acted. There had been predictions that this committee would modify the measure radically, but the opposition to it in Democratic ranks seemed to have faded away and its passage by the senate without material change was deemed probable.

As passed by the house the bill pro-

MAJ. GEN. JOHNSON HAGOOD, assigned to the command of the Sixth corps area with headquarters at Chicago, held the command only one day, as a matter of form, and then at his own request was relieved of the assignment and retired from active service. He said he would remain in Chicago several months to do some special work for a mail order house and then would select a permanent residence and write a book telling "how the United States can get a very much better national defense at very much less cost to the taxpayer."

Young Farouk Succeeds to Egyptian Throne

FUAD I, king of Egypt, died of a gangrenous throat infection at his country place near Cairo at the age of sixty-eight. The crown prince, Fa-

King Farouk. Fuad named a regency council of three to govern the country until Farouk comes of age. The young king, who is six feet tall and well educated, hopes to return to England to complete his studies at Woolwich. Egypt elected a new parliament, and though returns are not in at this writing it is believed the Wafd or Nationalist party won a clear majority of the seats. The Wafdists demand a free Egypt, completely rid of British influence and control. The negotiations for the new Anglo-Egyptian treaty were deferred until after the election.

Bringing Back CCC to Its Authorized Strength

D RECTOR ROBERT FECHNER of the Civilian Conservation corps moved to bring the corps up to its authorized strength of 350,000 by ordering state enrollment officers to disregard previous quotas and accept any qualified boy from a relief family.

At the same time, Fechner authorized enrollments in eight southern states omitted from the original schedule, while the War department ordered corps area commandants to report on the number of recruits needed in each Estimating that between 30,000 and 35,000 new members would be required, Fechner attributed slowness of enrollments to improving business conditions. Vacancies also exist for 4,000 war veterans.

Urges New Compact on Neutrality and Rights

THROUGH Secretary of State Hull the United States has suggested the conclusion of a general convention to supplement and clarify existing rules governing the rights and duties of neutrals in wartime. The proposal is made to the nations that will take part in the American peace conference in Buenos Aires this year, but is intended to be open to all other nations in the world.

"April Fool's Tragedy" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

JOU'VE all heard about the girl who plays a man like a fish on I a line. Well, here's a case where that situation was reversed. Distinguished Adventurer Patricia Root, of New York city, has come here to tell the story of how a man once played her like a fish on a line.

What's more, Pat Root isn't a bit sore about it. As a matter of fact, she's darned grateful to the guy. She would have died if he hadn't-well-sort of made a sucker out of her. Fish lines can be pretty tough on fish, but this one meant life to Patricia.

It happened on April Fool's day in 1933-and you can forget about the date, because there's no fooling about this adventure. Pat was visiting in the Virgin islands, way down in the West Indies, and as our story opens, she and five other people were starting out to go tarpon

"But not tarpon fishing as most people picture it," says Pat. "We set out In a boat from the island of St, Thomas to Thatch Cay, a small key about a mile off shore. But there we left the boat, for we were going to do our fishing from the shore.

Pat Began Tarpon Fishing From a Rocky Ledge.

Pat was just fifteen at the time. The others were older. There was John and his wife, Maria, Carl, and two native Virgin islanders, Wilmot and Paul, They crossed the key to a spot where a high cliff ran right down into the sea, There was a little ledge at the base of the cliff just big enough for one person to fish from. And there they fished for the big, hundred-pound fighting tarpon, taking turns with the line down there on that narrow ledge.

It was late afternoon before it came Pat's turn to fish. She clambered down to the ledge and was a bit frightened at the way the waves boiled up, almost to the spot where she was standing.

Says she: "We should never have gone fishing that day. There was a ground sea running and a ground sea has a peculiar motion. None of us had noticed that the ocean was getting rougher. At least, I didn't, until I turned to look up at the others sitting on the top of the cliff and suddenly found myself engulfed in water."

She Was Washed Into the Shark Infested Sea.

A huge wave had leapt up and flooded the ledge Pat was standing on. Before she could catch herself she was washed off into the deep water. "For the moment," she says, "I didn't realize the terrible hopelessness of my position, I heard a splash beside me and saw Wilmot come to the surface. He had jumped from the top of the cliff.

"Wilmot put an arm around me and swam with me toward the ledge. We reached it-clutched to it desperately-but neither of us could climb the sheer, precipitous side of the rock wall that led to it. It was only then that I realized that we couldn't get back on shore

Again and again, Wilmot carried Pat to the cliffside, but each time the dashing waves washed them back. Wilmot's strength was beginning to fail him but he still labored frantically. He knew what Pat didn't-that there were sharks in those waters and there wasn't a moment to lose, Fishing for Human Lives in Storm Swept Waters.

At length, as he reached the ledge for the last time, a wave washed him upon it, but by that time he was too weak to pull Pat after him. She was washed back out to sea while Wilmot, totally exhausted, lay on the ledge until Carl came down and carried him to the top of the cliff.

While Carl was carrying Wilmot back to the clifftop, John, down on the ledge, was trying to reach Pat's outstretched hands. A moment later another wave carried him off into the water, too. The waves were now rising so high that it was dangerous to stand on the ledge. But Carl tried it. No sooner had he carried Wilmot to the top of the cliff than he started down again, this time with a strong tarpon line in his hand. He tossed that into the water. John caught it and looped it around Pat. "It got twisted around my neck." Pat says. "and for a moment I just hung there. A wave covered me and the line fell off. When I came up, I caught it again and twisted it around my

And then began the queerest bit of life-saving you ever saw. Up on the ledge stood Carl, fishing rod in his hand, slowly bringing Pat in toward shore as if she were a fish. That line wasn't strong enough to sustain her weight, so Carl "played" her-reeling in as she rose on the crest of a wave, and letting the line out as she fell again.

The Waves Finally Tossed Her Up to Safety.

Minutes passed while this strange game went on. Pat began to wonder if Carl would ever get her ashore. She was sore and bruised where the waves had dashed her body against the rocks. The thin line wrapped around her hand was all but cutting her fingers in two. "I was beginning to bleed from my arms," she says, "when I heard John shout for help three times. Then there came a long silence. I didn't know it then, but John was done for. A shark had More minutes passed. Pat was gasping for breath-ready to faint from the torture of that cutting line. Then Carl took a desperate chance. Shouting to her to keep up her courage he began to reel in the line. Inch by inch she neared the ledge. It was almost within her reach-she had her hand on it. Then, at the crucial moment, a wave came to her rescue and washed her bodily up on the ledge. Carl carried her back to the top of the cliff, bruised, exhausted and covered with blood. "Since that day," says Pat, "I have forgotten the real meaning of April Fool's day. To me it has become the anniversary of an awful tragedy." C-WNU Service.

February Called Cabbage Month; Later Sun Month

The ancient Saxons called February Sproutkale, or the Sprouting of the Cabbage. Later, this was changed to Sunmonath, or sunmonth, because it was at this period that daylight increased and the pruning of trees began. The word February comes from the Latin, "februare," meaning "to expiate," because, during this month the Roman ceremony of purification took place. Originally, it was the last month of the year, and not until 452 B. C. did February assume its present place. When Julius Caesar reformed the calendar, he gave 31 days to each alternate month from January, and 30 to the others, with the exception of February, which got 30 in leap year thought,"-Christopher Morley.

and 29 every other year. But when Augustus took power, he was unwilling that the month named after him should be shorter than those on either side, so he took a day from February and added it to August. So that three months of 31 days should not run consecutively, he reversed the other two.

won't fly so fast in there as they will in this burning. And we won't be able to see so far, either. . . .

"Well, it's like leap-frog. Come on, chum, let's drag the duffle up!" Again nearly a half hour passed but this time the first contingent brought more helpers and when he moved the box forward to the base of the poplar tree, a handful of bees were trapped there and, when the last had gone, he replenished the supply of honey which served as bait from his bottle. That was a few minutes after eight, just at the time when Nat Bridger, drawn and gray of face, hammered loudly on Tod West's door.

West answered sleepily from above and after a short interval appeared. His greeting, which began with something of his old geniality, petered out "What the devil's up?"

"Enough! I been tryin' to get you for three hours by 'phone but either you slept like hell or-"

"What's up, I asked you?"-jaw quivering. "Well, Young made a get-away. Must 've had help from outside, looks West's teeth clicking as a spasm of fear shook his great frame. "You poor sap!" he rasped. "You poor, simple . . . Bridger protested and West stormed and explanations, excuses, regrets mingled with condemnations.

"I've done all I can. I've notified very sheriff for two hundred miles. He went east. Took my car and drove a tire flat 'nd left it. Chances are, though, he's to hellangone!" On this, something like relief flickered in West's eyes but it was of short duration. This Young was not the sort of man who flees in the face of as flimsy a charge as had been placed against him. He had hoped at the most to keep Kerry in safe confinement until Bridger and the prosecutor tould perfect a case against Holt Stuart which would forever remove from his own breast those cancerous fears. But now . . . "Gone, eh?" he muttered. "Well, you've been made a monkey of by him. How'll folks think of that when they go to vote for sheriff again? I tell you, Bridger, you got just one chance: that's to start things movin' against tuart and not let 'em stop!"

They argued aimlessly at length and when Bridger was gone Tod West paced the room and that fine beading of sweat pricked out on his forehead again. He felt caged, trapped, and yet he could touch no bars, discern no snare or dead-fall immediately about him. Still . . . with this laughing fool of a Young on the loose the rest. . . .

It was sundown, now, with a cool mantle of evening descending on the forest.

"Tough luck, chum!" Kerry muttered to Tip as he finally gave up hope and turned away from his bee box. "They've called it a day. . . . But we can't be far off, now, and unless it rains tomorrow .

He looked anxiously upward. Clouds were riding up from the west. The air felt soft. If rain held tomorrow he would be put to the ordeal of keep ing out of sight and accomplishing nothing. . . . Not a nice prospect.

"May have a wet night," he told the dog. "We can't be far from the cabin

He found a down maple and under its sheltering bole spread his blanket finally and, rifle handy, dog beside him, stretched his tired body. Rain began to fall and in the distance thunder rumbled. His thoughts turned to Nan. to Ezra and Holt; then to West. He drew a long, uneasy breath. . .

He would have been a trifle more at peace had he known that a car, bearing two men, whirled into Shoestring from the southward, lights glaring with intensified brightness in the gas station and one of the occupants,

"What's the road to West's Land ing?" he asked the boy,

"First to the left and straight on, Twenty miles. Look out for the culverts if the creeks is up!" "Thanks!"

The car pulled away and the one who had asked directions said to the

"Mebby so, You've napped, No tellin' what this old coot of a coroner'll him." The rain was heavy but of short duration. Stars appeared, the rumble of thunder retreated and when the sun rose to warm and dry the land, insect life had resumed its activity and Young, biting hard on his pipe stem, down and carefully liberated the confined workers within.

"We're close, Tip!" he muttered. "Close and closer! Look at 'em!" Dozens of bees swarmed about the box, buzzing shrilly. And an hour after the first visitor had called for his portion of honey, Young stood at the foot of a gnarled head, watching the come and go of workers through the hole that gave access to the tree's hollow heart. He did not move much after he had finally located the tree. For long he stood in one place, looking about, searching out what sign he could find. Man sign was there in plenty. Yonder, a white pine had recently been blazed and pitch globules glistened in the sunlight. Brakes had been trampled down; here a seedling maple lay crushed into the duff, its leaves not yet

At the base of the tree lay a saprophyte which, until recently, had been growing on the scarred portion of the trunk. He could see where the bracketlike growth had been attached two feet above the ground. He picked up the fungus and on its pale, tan velvety surface showed the print of a heel, even to the nails, dark brown against the buff. Some man had used that bracket in starting to climb that tree!

On his knees, he searched. The rain had not struck here with great force. Small bits of bark and lichens, with a fresh look, were there. The protruding end of a small limb, long since dead and all but absorbed by the expanding trunk, bore bits of thread, as If a gurment had been scrubbed over it. . . . Yes, someone had climbed this

Honey and money! . . . Money and Yonder went a trail; faint, yet readable to Young's eye. Not a game trail, either; he found the illy defined outline of a boot sole there. Stooped over, he followed. Broken, withered brakes told that someone had gone this way weeks before; broken brakes, still fresh, attested to a more recent pass-

The sign ended before a pair of imestone boulders, tilted together, forming a small cave.

"Oh-oh!" Another stone had been set against this opening once; now it was gone, rolled yonder.

He lay on his belly and shot his flash-light into the small cavern. . . Granules glistened on the stone; he touched them with his finger and ooked closely. Black, brittle, glittering flakes they were. . . . Lacquer from a japanned box?

His mouth was very dry, now, and e rolled quickly to his side to stare at the tree. A box the size of the one he had dug up yesterday never could have been concealed in the hollow of the beech; the opening was too small. on Townline, but wouldn't dare risk But a box had been hidden here, and a man had climbed the tree, . . . And honey had daubed the man who handled both box and crowbar. . .

"I'm a son-of-a-gun!" he cried, "I'll be a . . . " And on his feet there his face showed, for just an instant, a flash of admiration for the ingenuity which had laid out this course. . . If the course he now suspected actually had been followed.

He had been right about the cabin on Townline. It was a short mile there and he covered the distance at a jog trot, Tip close behind. He halted at the edge of the clearing to look and listen and then went forward without hesitation.

From an insect net above one of bunks, he cut a portion; he found a pair of old leather gloves; a workman's denim jumper; a hank of stout cord. From the tool cache he took an ax. a cedar saw, a splitter and two wedges. These, with his rifle, made a burden of consequence and by the time he reached the tree again sweat bathed his excited body.

From the netting he improvised a veil, adjusting it over his hat and tucking the edges into the neck of the jumper. He put on the gloves, tied the jumper sleeves tight about his wrists and picked up the ax. "Tip. . . . Yonder!" He gestured in command. "Away back and lie down! There's going to be a lot of hostility here in a minute!" He waited until the dog had obeyed and then sent the bit of the ax deep into the beech.

He was right about the hostility. Not a half dozen blows had been struck before they were upon him in a cloud, buzzing angrily, seeking ways through his veil and garments for countless stingers. But Kerry was well protected and swung his ax steadily, eating a great gash in the trunk. Oh, one or two got to his wrists, and now and again he felt a burning prick on the shoulders when his jumper stretched tight. But that was as nothing, in this interval of suspense. The tree sagged and shivered. It snapped and swayed. He struck three more swift blows and stepped back as it came down with a mighty, swishing roar and crash.

He had dropped the ax as the beech toppled. Now he took up the saw and, standing in a cloud of furious bees which hovered over the entrance to their fallen store-house, he sent the teeth singing through the stout wood. Swiftly, his supple body swung to and fro, stoutly his long, strong arms drove the avid blade. The forest rang with the sound. . . . Rang with the sound which would have covered even the noise made by a frantic man, crashing through brush, running intently, breathlessly, his hat gone and face scratched and clothing torn; heedless, apparently, of everything except making speed carried his bee box forward, set it and clinging to the rifle he carried across his chest.

No, the man was not close enough to have the sounds of his progress reach Young. But he was close enough to hear the ringing echo of that saw. He drew a hand across his face to wipe away the blood and the sweat and tried to still his breathing to listen. His trembling lips shaped a word and "Well, I'm tryin', ain't L. But what scar in the trunk, twice as high as his ing like a cat, rifle held at ready. . . . in Collier's Weekly.

As he approached the source of those from that of sawing to blows of a sledge on metal, he bent forward a trifle and went even more slowly, more quietly. . . .

. . . . . . . West's Landing and its environs had experienced two long evenings and one long day of an excitement pitched to a point never before attained there.

And now the second day was beginning. Work was forgotten where it could be and before Mel Knight's store was gathered a group which argued and debated and orated and broke short anything it happened to be saying when another arrived, just on the chance that he would be the bearer of fresh incident.

Holt Stuart was in jail. Nan Downer, it was said, had brought in a lawyer from outside yesterday and the three had been together in Nat Bridger's office for long but no attempt to secure Stuart's release had been made as yet.

Kerry Young had escaped during the first night of his imprisonment and not been heard from since, though the search was frenzied.

Frank Bluejay was gone somewhere in his rattling, tattered flivver and men combed the blueberry country for sign or word of him.

And across at Downer's headquarters, old Ezra Adams sat behind the locked door of Nan's office with the articles he and Young had brought from Townline, refusing to budge, denying Bridger admittance, waiting for something . . . one knew not what! Oh, it was something to talk about, all right, all right!

Tod West had been in and out saying little, going into long, heated but confidential talks with the sheriff. "He's givin' Nat hell!" the wise ones opined. "Tod's anxious to see things go right in this country, you bet! Leave it to Tod; he'll give good ad-But this last was a matter of habit.

Even when men said it and others agreed, they were making reservations, was easy to determine. Somehow, Tod West wasn't the figure he had been. . . . And now came young Logan De-

Priest, walking across the trestle from Downer's. He was a lad with mild blue eyes and pimples on his face and fuzz on his chin. "Well, Logan, you got it all settled over there?" a wag asked. "Dam' right! Dam' right we have!"

the youth replied importantly. Something about his manner tugged at the interest of those who heard and saw, and yet . . . Logan was not to be taken seriously. "I s'pose you've found Young 'nd Bluejay 'nd know what Ezra's got hatchin', eh?" "Dam' right! Dam' right, I do!"

"A lot you know!"

"Betcha I know more'n any of you uns! Betcha million dollars, I do! "Take you. Bring out the million!"

"You think you're funny!" The pallid eyes flared indignation. "You think you're smart, you do! Well, lemme ast you this: you know who them dudes was that druv into our place after th' rain las' night? You don't? I know dam' well you don't! Well, I do. . . One of 'em 's a corporal 'nd one of 'em 's a sergeant 'nd they're detectuffs!

"Gwan!" So commented one, but others lost their smiles and drew

"Betcha two million! You know it all, you do! Betcha five million!" He spit and nodded. "Why, Miss Nan, she gits me up to put their car away, she 'Nd after I'd done it, I seen 'em all in th' office. They had a coal oil lamp there 'nd was all bent over, cause th' storm put th' lectric lights out; all bent over th' table 'nd sayin' as how they couldn't do nothin' 'til mornin'."

The scoffers, now, were even edging closer, and another had come from behind young DePriest: Tod West, this, halted in his evident intent to enter the store, looking, listening.

JESUS INSPIRES HONESTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10; 45-48, GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not steal -Exodus 20:15. PRIMARY TOPIC - A Visit From

JUNIOR TOPIC-Why Jesus Visited Zacchaeus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR.

TOPIC—What It Means to Be Honest.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT

TOPIC—Taking Religion Into My Busi-

"Jesus entered and was passing through Jericho" (v. 1), one of the most noted cities of Bible history. It had been the stronghold of the Canaanites, standing squarely across the Jordan, taken by the marching pitcherbearers of Joshua (Josh. 6), the city where Rahab experienced salvation through her faith (Heb. 11:11-31). It was fitting that Jesus should pass through the Jericho of his own day, for a new victory was to be experienced through faith-the conversion of

1. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4). This man, a tax-collector for the Roman power, had heard that Jesus was kind to publicans; for had he not had mercy on Matthew? Curiosity seized him; he must see what manner of man Jesus was. Who can know how many have been led to find Christ through the exercise of curiosity. The citizens of a city are drawn to a church or a tabernacle through the growing interest of a revival campaign. Curlosity widens, becoming the initial motive in many who later have faith in Christ to the saving of their souls.

1. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3). His infamous business was a handleap, at least in the eyes of the populace. The very fact that a Jew should hold office under the hated Roman power would make him extremely unpopular. His riches condemned him. The fact that he had acquired much wealth in this calling pointed to extortion in the collection of taxes. He was unpopular; he was pushed aside.

The shortness of his stature (v. 3) was a handicap, but not so great a one as his spiritual state. He doubtless had been pushed about much of his life and had built up an attitude of mind that now manifested itself.

2. His persistence (v. 4) stood him in good stead. If too short to see, he was not too timid to climb. He had been obliged to climb all his life. Always obstacles placed before him he had brushed aside, or had climbed over them, if a desired goal lay beyond. Now, the goal was a sight of Jesus, and he climbed. Though the rich man of town, he would not let pride keep him from the undignified act of getting up among the branches of yonder tree, for Jesus was to pass by.

II. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5,

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him, as always he is looking for the seeking soul. With no word that would embarrass or humiliate him. Jesus bade him come down from the tree, and declared his intention to go with him to his home. How wonderful is grace, that regardless of one's past life Jesus will receive the seeker as a friend and enter into fellowship with him, Zacchaeus did not hesitate, but made haste to come down, and with joy opened his door to the new-found Friend,

III. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10). His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground. 1. What the crowd said (v. 7) was characteristic; they murmured and said that Jesus had gone to be guest of a man who is a sinner. They could not think of his sin in the past tense, but said is instead of was. Jesus forgives and forgets. He "came to seek and save that which was lost," and he "remembers our sins against us no more forever."

2. The proof of conversion (v. 8) was immediate and satisfying. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half his goods to the poor. If he before had been a grafter, he was now a generous giver. He was ready to untangle the skein of tax irregularities. While God forgets the past, he nevertheless expects the forgiven sinner to make restitution where possible.

IV. Honesty in God's House (vv. 45-48).

If honesty must be exacted from publicans and sinners, much more should it be required of those who have to do with the worship of God. It is easy to condemn those who made capital out of the requirements of temple worship in Jesus' day; it is not so easy to condemn those who use the Church of Christ as a stepping stone to personal profit and political preferment. "Judgment must begin at the house of God" (I Pet. 4:17).

A Firm Faith A firm faith is the best divinity, a good life the best philosophy; a clear conscience the best law; honesty, the best policy; and temperance the best physic-living for both worlds is the wisest and best life.

God's Promises I believe the promises of God enough to venture an eternity on them .- Watts.

Giving and Getting So many people think that love is "getting," whereas love is "giving."

Fair Speeds to Completion.

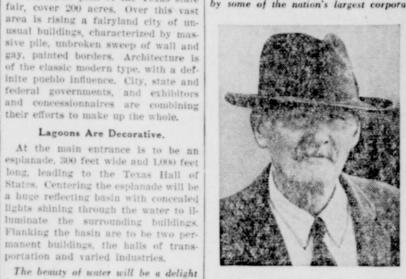

This the Texans are doing in a big way. Three shifts of men, working night and day, are putting the finishing touches on the buildings, exhibits, parks and amusement areas so that they will open complete and on time. Anyone who has doubts that this can be done need only be reminded of A Century of Progress, the World's fair which had a two-years' run in Chicago. The night before opening day, Chicago citizens, peering over the fences for a preview, went back to their homes heartsick in the conviction that the fair was still months from completion, They returned to the grounds in the for yet another lake will appear in the

For the nature lover, the hall of horticulture will be near approach to heaven. It will be surrounded by flower gardens where hundreds of varieties of roses, wild flowers and other floral gems will be growing. Strolling the gardens, the visitor will be able to hear the music from the symphony shell on the lagoon nearby, where outdoor programs will be given daily during the

In the hall of transportation and petroleum will be the displays of the great automobile and airplane manufacturers, as well as the oil companies. by Texas' leadership in the production

Midway Takes Shape.

No matter if he misses many of the cultural and educational exhibits the average visitor never fails to find his way to the Midway of a world's fair. At Dallas the seeker after entertainment will find it plentiful. Already nearing completion are the German Black Forest village, the English village, the famous Old Globe theater of Sixteenth century London, and other gay spots which were outstanding hits of the World's fair in Chicago and will probably be repeated in many world's fairs to come.

The visitor's comfort will by no means be overlooked by the hospitable Texans. Already steps are being taken to shelter he world's fair wayfarer, especially the visitor from the cooler regions of the North, from the Texas sun. Six hundred large trees have been planted for their shade value as well as the natural beauty they will add to the scene. Also of dec orative importance are the 50,000 shrubs which will be set out before opening day.

Leading among the show attractions is the "Cavalcade of Texas," a vast pageant which will be produced on a stage 350 feet across and 200 feet deep, and will dramatize the history of the Lone Star state, beginning with the landing of the conquistadores in 1519. Many of the 300 actors in the extravaganza will be descendants of the heroes and heroines whom they will impersonate.

Largest of all the exposition buildings is to be the $1,200,000 Texas Hall of State, a native white limestone structure with an elaborate court which was dedicated on San Jacinto day, April 27. Its historical wing will house hundreds of fascinating treasures of the revolution and the days of the republic which followed, its exhibits continuing chronologically through the entire period of statehood up to the present day. The Hall of Heroes will pay tribute to the men who founded Texas, while other sections of the building will be devoted to displays of the social #### and industrial life of the state. Plan Diversified Exhibits.

Of the buildings constructed by the exposition itself, the most important are the halls of transportation and vared industries, which will house exhibits of the character indicated in their names, and the buildings of the farm center, five in all. In these latter structures will be conducted livestock, agricultural, poultry and food shows, and related exhibits.

Exhibits in the exposition will fall into several major groups, such as agriculture, livestock, science, arts, industry, education, history, domestic arts and home planning, electricity and communications, transportation, petroleum and mineral resources, natural history and aquatic life,

Hundreds of fine specimens of southwestern game and bird life will be mounted in habitat groups in the hall of natural history. The aquarium of the exposition, one of the largest in the United States, will be stocked with myriad varieties of salt and fresh water fish, in 66 different tanks and pools.

In another building, the great aircooled exposition auditorium, which seats 4,600 persons, will be found almost continuous entertainment, including grand opera, musical comedy, celebrated orchestras, folk festivals and pageants. Each night a southwestern utility company will present some outstanding Broadway musical show or stage play. Another utility has built

Stage coaches, covered wagons, Spanish armor, frontier rifles, long horn cattle and buffalo will be among the colorful properties. It is said that the pageant will far outdo even the magnificent "Wings of a Century," pageant of transportation which played to more than 2,000,000

Unique among theatrical effects will be the "curtain" between scenes. This will be nothing more than a vast sheet of fine water spray, 100 feet high, with colored lights playing upon it to produce the mood of the scene to follow. So large is the stage, even great battle scenes will be enacted.

ings is to be the $1,200,000 Texas Hall of State, a native white limestone structure with an elaborate court which was dedicated on San Jacinto day, April 27. Its historical wing will house hundreds of fascinating treasures of the revolution and the days of the republic which followed, its exhibits continuing chronologically through the entire period of statehood up to the present day. The Hall of Heroes will pay tribute to the men who founded Texas, while other sections of the building will be devoted to displays of the social and industrial life of the state.

Plan Diversified Exhibits.

Of the buildings constructed by the are the halls of transportation and vared industries, which will house exhibits of the character indicated in their names, and the buildings of the farm center, five in all. In these latter structures will be conducted livestock, agricultural, poultry and food shows, and related exhibits.

Exhibits in the exposition will fall into several major groups, such as agriculture, livestock, science, arts, industry, education, history, domestic arts and home planning, electricity and communications, transportation, petroleum and mineral resources, natural history and aquatic life,

Hundreds of fine specimens of southwestern game and bird life will be mounted in habitat groups in the hall of natural history. The aquarium of the exposition, one of the largest in the United States, will be stocked with myriad varieties of salt and fresh water fish, in 66 different tanks and pools,

In another building, the great aircooled exposition auditorium, which seats 4,600 persons, will be found almost continuous entertainment, including grand opera, musical comedy, celebrated orchestras, folk festivals and pageants. Each night a southwestern utility company will present some outstanding Broadway musical show or stage play. Another utility has built

Unique among theatrical effects will be the "curtain" between scenes. This will be nothing more than a vast sheet of fine mood of the scene to follow. So large is enacted. Dallas itself is being beautified in anticipation of a great influx of summer visitors. Fifty street cars and a number of buses are being added to the transportation systems to handle the crowds. Civic plans include the establishment of adequate housing facilities. Permanent guests are being asked to move out of the hotels, and managements are pledging definite numbers of rooms for exposition visitors. At Southern Methodist university dormitory rooms will be opened to summer guests, and at the Hockaday School for Girls dormitories will be held open part of the summer for guests. Hundreds of private homes have listed rooms which will be available to the traveler. The city's department of information is ready to offer what services it can,

TWA Feels Texas Rush

DALLAS, Texas—Transcontinental-Western Airways officials report a tremendous traffic increase on their cross-country flights due to the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas. Although the Exposition, a $25,000,000 World's Fair, does not open until June 6, the pre-exposition business already is having effect, TWA heads said. The line has direct "feeder" connection to Dallas, their coast-to-coast route.

No Price Raise for Fair

DALLAS, Texas. - Managers of Dallas hotels have agreed there will be no price increases for rooms or meals, during the Texas Centennial Exposition, June 6 to Nov. 29. Years of popularity for Dallas as a convention city, led to this decision, a spokes-man said

The Big FARMALL 30 is the Tractor for Large Acreages in Row-Crop Farming

TOR large-scale, row-crop tools, grain harvesting equipfarming, we recommend the McCormick-Deering Farmall 30 Tractor. It has all of the exclusive features that made the original Farmall so popular. Its engine provides smooth, abundant power for all drawbar, belt, and power take-off work. The Farmall 30 pulls a 3-bottom plow, operates 4-row planters and ment, and other machinery.

Let's get together on a demonstration of the Farmal! 30. Besides this model, there are the 1 and 2-plow Farmalls; the 10-20, 15-30, and the new W-30; and two sizes of Trac-TracTors in the McCormick-Deering line.
