Big July Fourth Celebration Planned

Stanfield, Stegall, Prater Kicks Off The Entertainment

An enthralling line up of entertainment is scheduled for the big July 4th Celebration here in Muleshoe. To kick off the festivities Jana Springfield will highlight entertainment at Joe Rhodes Boot Shop on July 1st. Following will be Red Stegall on July 3rd and Colt Prater on July 5th.

Ms. Stanfield's songs of love and life have been recorded by artists as diverse as Andy Williams and Reba McEntire. With all this success, she looks back fondly on the days when she gathered up her dreams and moved to Nashville.

"At first I thought I'd get a job as a songwriter," she says. "I tied every place that was hiring songwriters...Burger King, Dairy Queen, Wendy's..."

Things have picked up considerably since those early days. She has been featured on the Nashville Network, and her debut album has just been released. Each song on the album showcases the power, clarity and range of Jana's captivating voice.

Ms. Stanfield's talents and interests are as diverse as her music. No stranger to the limelight, Jana first supported her music habit as a television news reporter in her home state of New Mexico. In Nashville, she does regular television features about the area's most interesting people and places for a PBS show called "Tennessee Crossroads." She is the host of a radio comedy show called "The Bones Alternative Theater," and has dabbled in stand-up comedy. "Just in case the need arises," she says, "I also know how to buck-dance."

Jana's ability to use words and music to share her infectious enthusiasm about life keeps her in demand as a speaker and performer. Whether it's in a concert hall, a coffeehouse, or a church, Jana uses her music, her insight and her sense of humor to touch the heart of anyone who's willing to listen.

The entertainment career of Red Stegall has covered a period of 25 years and has spanned the globe from Australia to the Middle East. He has performed for heads of state including a special party for President Reagan at the White House in 1983, and for government officials in eight Middle Eastern countries. As a native Texan, Stegall enjoyed a career in Agricultural Chemistry after graduating from West Texas State University with a degree in Animal Science and Agronomy.

He spent eight years as a music industry executive in Hollywood, Calif. and has spent the last 12 years as a recording artist, songwriter, and television and motion picture personality.

His office is currently outside of Fort Worth, where in addition to his entertainment activities, he is currently involved in the production of motion pictures and television shows.

Although Stegall is best known for his Texas Swing dance music and such songs as "Here We Go Again", "Party Dolls and Wine", "Freckles Brown", and "Lone Star Beer and Bob Wills Music."

If you ask him where his favorite place to play music is, Stegall might say some famous stage in Nashville, California, Spain, or Germany--or he might say some lonesome cow camp in West Texas.

He has had over 200 of his compositions recorded both by himself and other artists. Stegall also wrote the title song to the National Finals Rodeo telecast along with songs written for the following movies: Vanishing Point; Drive-In; Shadows on the Wall; Savannah Smiles, and Dark Before Dawn.

He has produced 26 consecutive records on the national charts and released a total of thirteen albums.

Each year, Stegall has averaged performing 200 days, for the past 15 years, including over 100 major rodeo performances and an equal number of major fair appearances.

He has completed tours of Germany, Spain, Australia, the Middle East, and South America.

Stegall represented the United States government twice; on a tour of eight countries on the Middle East in the spring of 1986, and a tour of South American countries in the spring of 1991.

He has appeared on stage at several hotels.

As a television personality, he is a regular on NBC series, Music Country USA; host of two television pilots, (which he produced); numerous appearances on syndicated television shows such as Hee Haw and Nashville on the Road; four years host of the national televised National Finals Rodeo; host of the Winston Pro Tour on ESPN for the 1985 season; four years co-executive producer of the Academy of Country Music Awards Show; numerous television and radio commercials.

He had a major role in the motion picture Henji The Hunted which was released in the summer of 1987. He also had a role in the motion picture, Dark Before Dawn.

Stegall is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Pro Rodeo Hall of Champions; Honorary Member of the Cowboy Artists of America; former Chairman of the Board of The Academy of Country Music.

He produced the motion picture Big Bad John, starring Jimmy Dean, Jack Elam, Ned Beatty, Bo Hopkins, and directed by Burt Kennedy.

Stegall has been the co-host of the College National Finals Rodeo for the Freedom Sports Network

Earth's Fourty-Ninth Annual Rodeo Date Set

Festivities for the 49th annual Earth Rodeo will begin with a parade at 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 18. A $100 prize will be given to the first place winner in the Business Floats. Second place will receive $50 and third place $25.

Following the parade, the area Lions Clubs will sponsor a Hamburger Supper at the arena.

Show time begins at 8:30 p.m. both Friday and Saturday night. Admission will be $5 for adults and $3 for students, under 12.

A Rodeo Dance will be held each night. Admission will be $5 or $3 with a Rodeo Ticket.

Entries will be taken from noon until 6 p.m. on June 15. Entrants under the age of 18 must have their parents signed consent. According to information released by the Rodeo Officials, The Earth Roping Club or Rodeo Producer will not be responsible for any accident or property damage which may occur.

Added to this year's entertainment will be a Wild Cow Milking Contest. For entries call (806) 257-2252. Buckles will be awarded to the winning team.

There will also be a Stick Horse Race, for children six and under. Entrants need to take their own stick horse.

TCRA approved contestants Jackpot One Go-Around will include: Calf Roping, with a fee of $60; Bareback Riding (open), $60; Saddle Bronc Riding (open), $60; Girl's Barrel Race, $60; Bull Riding (open), $60; and Team Roping, roper's choice, $100.

Enter two times, Girl's Break-Away Roping, $60. Slack will be Friday night after the show.

Added events this year will include Novice Bareback, $30; Novice Saddlebronc Riding, $30; and Novice Bull Riding, $30.

Two 20X Bailey hats (pastel colors available) donated by Joe's Boot Shop in Muleshoe will be given away. One hat will be drawn for each night. The ticket stub from the gate makes you eligible for the drawing.

A Trophy Buckle will be awarded to first place winners in TCRA events.

Rodeo stock will be furnished by C-T Rodeo of Lubbock.

If you enjoy rodeos, fun and excitement, the Earth Roping Arena is the place you want to be on Friday and Saturday night, June 18 and 19.

Barbecue Grill To Be Given Away July 4th

MASH and Meals On Wheels will be giving away a Barbecue Grill on July 4. The grill was donated by J.C. Gatewood.

For every one dollar donation you will be given a chance to win this grill.

You may make your donation at Joe's Boot Shop, where the grill is on display; Muleshoe State Bank, First Bank, Poyners, Highinbothams, and Western Drug. Tickets will be available, tomorrow, Friday.

According to Sharon Grant, you do not have to be present to win.

Women Leading-Women Doing Seminar Set

"Women Leading...Women Doing" will be the theme of an all day Regional Seminar Saturday, June 26 sponsored by the Muleshoe Jennyslippers, Women Associates of the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

All area women are encouraged to attend. The fun filled informative day will begin with registration at 9 a.m. with the program beginning at 10, in the Bailey County Coliseum.

Dan Henson, president of R.C. and D. (Resource Conservation and Development Funding) will be the speaker for the morning session.

Following a salad luncheon, there will be a mini-seminar on Women Doing Investment Planning.

There will be door prizes, entertainment and demonstrations.

For more information you may contact Nancy Kidd or Billy Downing.

Rotary Club Views Film On Dallas Cowboys

Charles Marow was in charge of the Rotary Club at noon Tuesday, in the absence of their president, David Tipps.

Visitors were welcomed and the program was turned over to Bob Finney.

Finney showed a film of cuts, and highlights of various Dallas Cowboys football games on their way to the National Championship.

In 1981 the Cowboys only won one of 16 games and two seasons later, in 1992, after a lot of trading, the Cowboys were one of the youngest teams in the NFL. According to the film they were probably the most talented.

The 1992 Championship was the first title they had received since 1985.

This was the first time that the Dallas Cowboys had won the championship in ten years.

Following the film the meeting was adjourned.

Team Approach Sending Stroke Survivors Home

An aggressive team approach not available a generation ago is sending stroke survivors home, where they can often care for themselves, says a rehabilitation expert at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"Both of my grandfathers died as a result of strokes and all the families could do for them was let them lie on the sofa at home," said Dr. Susan J. Garrison, an associate professor of physical medicine and rehabilitation at Baylor.

There was not much that could be done in the 1950's to help people like Garrison's grandfathers. Typically, elderly patients were institutionalized or required much assistance at home from their families.

"Our goal today is to make stroke survivors as self-sufficient as possible," said Garrison, who works with stroke survivors.

Garrison becomes involved with a patient as soon as the initial danger has passed, after physicians pinpoint the area of the brain damaged by the stroke. Knowing this allows the doctor to determine which functions might be regained with therapy.

"Interviews with the patient and family members also help us to know what type and how much function has been lost. It is an important step towards getting the stroke survivor back into mainstream living as quickly as possible," Garrison said.

A physical therapy plan is designed to teach patients how to use healthy limbs while the affected muscles regain strength. A team of therapists helps patient regain the use of muscles, limbs, and language when speech has been affected.

Recovery usually begins with a physical therapist manually moving the patients' muscles or limbs to show them what the movement looks and feels like.

A common problem is loss of feeling in the arms or legs. It may be difficult for patients to tell how much, or even when, a limb is being moved.

Patients can be taught to know what movement feels like through the use of functional electrical stimulation. A low-voltage current stimulates the muscle so the patient will learn what it feels like when the limb moves. This helps determine the amount of effort necessary to walk or move an arm or wrist for instance.

"It takes an enormous amount of exercise and determination on the part of the patients," Garrison said. "There is frequently pain and soreness from moving muscles and joints in ways they have never been moved before."

"Anybody who has experienced soreness and pain from exercise can imagine what a stroke survivor must go through, only magnify the work and the pain several times over," she said.

As dexterity is regained in affected joints and limbs, an occupational therapist helps patients relearn certain basic functions.

"This means learning new skills, such as using another hand to eat, or even just using other fingers on the same hand to hold a knife or fork. It may involve relearning how to move arms and legs as strength returns," Garrison said.

Speech therapists can teach stroke survivors how to make the most of speaking abilities. Simple things like making a vowel sound may be difficult depending on what muscles in the neck and head areas have been affected.

"Therapists, nurses, doctors and family members with a positive attitude can send stroke survivors home with basic skills and the confidence to care for themselves," Garrison said.

Frank J. Silhan Services Held

Graveside services for Frank J. Silhan, 73, of Morton were held Tuesday, June 14, 1993 at Littlefield Memorial Park Cemetery, with Rev. Clarence Tedder, Pastor of Bula Baptist Church officiating.

Burial was in Littlefield Memorial Park Cemetery, under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home, Morton.

Silhan died at 5:05 p.m. June 12, 1993 at Morton Manor Nursing Home.

He was born March 11, 1920 in Weinhert, TX. He married Lucy "Joyce" Joyce Whitley on Sept. 27, 1952 in Littlefield, TX. She died in 1987.

Mr. Silhan had been a resident of Morton, Texas since 1920, moving here from Weinert, TX. He was a farmer and member of Littlefield Baptist Church.

A brother Felix Silhan preceded him in death in 1987.

Survivors include two sons, Robert Silhan of Littlefield, TX and Larry Silhan of Houston, TX; two daughters, Debra Lamar of Morton, TX and Kari Runyan of NY; four brothers, Eddie Silhan and Johnny Silhan, both of Morton, George Silhan of Seguin, TX, and Benny Silhan of Pep, TX; two sisters, Martha Fain of Austin, TX and Ella Marek of Littlefield, TX; and eleven grandchildren.

Ozona Site For First Logo Sign Unveiling

Tiny Ozona, on Interstate 10 in West Texas, will be the site of the state's first business logo sign.

The blue signs advertising nearby gas stations, restaurants, lodging and campgrounds will be similar to those in 37 other states.

Texas' first such signs will be unveiled at 9 a.m. June 17 at a site east of Ozona.

The Texas Transportation Commission in September approved the state's first logo sign for placement along Interstate highways in counties with fewer than 20,000 people. Interstates cross 35 such counties in Texas.

"Not only will the signs raise money for Texas transportation, they make travel on Interstates safer," said Arnold Oliver, executive director of the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT). "Too often, travelers can't see a business sign until it's too late to exit. The logo signs will guide motorists well in advance."

The logo signs were authorized by the Texas Legislature in 1991. The contract to erect the signs went to Texas Logos, Inc. Businesses pay a rental fee to display their logos, and TxDOT will receive 5 percent of these fees.

Governor's Conference For Volunteer Leadership

The Governor's Office of Community Leadership will hold the 17th Annual Conference for Volunteer Leadership in Austin, Texas.

With a new focus on volunteer leadership, the Conference will provide training and networking opportunities for volunteer managers, community affairs directors and leaders of volunteer groups. Workshops will offer nuts and bolts skills in basic programs development, leadership training for experienced managers, board development, communication skills, fund raising information, corporate volunteer development information and presentations on current issues in community services. Volunteer managers and leaders from nonprofits, corporations, public agencies, religious organizations, community groups, schools and youth programs, health care and environmental organizations and volunteer membership groups, are encouraged to attend.

The Governor's Awards for Volunteer Service will be presented at the Awards Luncheon. Nominations are being sought for individuals, families, groups and businesses which have performed outstanding volunteer service during the past year. Deadline for submission on nominations is July 30, 1993.

Conference registration is $55.00 before September 6, 1993 and $65.00 after. For more information, a Conference Brochure or Awards Applications contact Debbie Rash at (512)475-2615.

Ira Magaziner, Clinton health aide:

SCAC Holds End Of School Picnic

The Student-Community Action Club (SCAC) held its traditional end of school picnic recently to honor prospective 1993-94 members of the club. This special meeting was held May 20, 1993 at 5:30 p.m. at the Muleshoe Civic Center with Mandy Shipman and parents acting as hosts. Food for his hamburger cook-out was furnished by members of the club.

Those present enjoyed volley-ball and the activities before eating the hamburgers with all of the trimmings.

A business meeting was then called by the president Stacie Harris. The chaplain, Summer Wiley gave the opening prayer followed by the secretary Amanda Ashford reading the minutes of the last meeting. The treasurer, Aida Martinez gave the treasurer's report.

Each prospective new member was then introduced by each one giving his or her name, school classification and a favorite interest. Prospective members are Holly Donaldson, Keetha Glover, Angela Crawford, Brooke Garrett, Crystal Howe, Tami Latham, Jesus Flores, Ryan Clapp, Jenna Glover, Nathan Noble, Andy Wilson, Mason Conklin, Brian Box, Rebecca Warren, Leah Bruns, Andra Lee, Brook Sinclair, Chad Montgomery, Shawna Delaney, Brenna Wheeler, Julie Gilliland, Bryan Field, and Crista Trussell.

A report was then given about the auction bake sale which the club sponsored over Channel 6 and KMUL radio on May 8. Proceeds from this successful venture will be used to furnish the little girl's bedroom of the Jane's Ranch House at the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

It was reported by the Treasurer that the club cleared over $1200.00 on the auction. The success of the auction bake sale was due to the cooperation of the club members, parents, and others who furnished the delicious baked goods, supporters who donated other articles to auction, the graciousness of the Rennels and Channel 6, and KMUL and the community which supported SCAC by wholeheartedly bidding on items offered for sale. Club members were reminded to express appreciation to all who made this such a tremendous success. A shopping trip will soon be planned to buy furniture for the little girl's bedroom.

The next order of business was to elect officers for the 1993-94 school year. The following were elected:

President: Donna Puckett, Vice-President: Kristen Weatherbie, Secretary: Emily Harris, Treasurer: Shane Schuster, Reporter: Brook Sinclair, Parliamentarian:

Stephanie Quintana, Historian: Jeanne Cox, Chaplain: Mason Conklin.

The sponsors, Barbara Milburn and Jean Allison then presented each of the outgoing senior officers a small gift in recognition of the outstanding job he/she did last year.

Outgoing officers honored were: President: Stacie Harris, Vice-President: Mandy Shipman, Secretary: Amanda Ashford, Treasurer: Aida Martinez, Reporter: Rebecca Green, Parliamentarian: Dustin Wilhite, Historian: Jodie Thomas, and Chaplain: Summer Wiley.

An installations of new officers meeting will be held in August. The president then adjourned the meeting.

Lee Greenwood To Headline Cattle Barons Ball

Superstar Lee Greenwood has been signed to headline the 1993 Cattle Barons Ball, co-chairman Diane and Bill Lowell have announced.

The popular event, which benefits the American Cancer Society, is scheduled from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. June 19 at the V-8 Ranch southeast of Lubbock, the Lowell's said. The theme for this year's bash is "Starry Skies, Dazzling Dancers, Southwestern Magic."

Baron's tickets, which include a private reception and bus service, a special gift, preferred seating in the Baron's circle, dinner, dancing, and entertainment, are $250 each or $2000 for a table of eight.

Wrangler tickets are $125 per person or $1000 for a table of eight. These tickets include bus service, dinner, dancing and entertainment.

Persons throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico are urged to support the major fundraiser for the American Cancer Society, the Lowell's said in announcing Greenwood.

Chartered buses will be departing from Plains National Bank at 6:30 p.m. and will continue at intervals. There will be no private parking at the ranch.

In addition to the appearance by Greenwood, dance music will be provided by the Lubbock band, "Phoenix". Hosts are Sam Arnett and Jack and Arlette Flygare, Jeanne and Dave Knapp are assistant co-chairman for the ball.

Greenwood is one of the most popular entertainers in America today. "Love's On The Way," his latest Liberty album, contains one of the finest collections of songs he has ever recorded, says producer Jerry Crutchfield.

The album contains a breadth and depth of subject matter and his featured vocals have never been better. The album kicks in with "Before I'm Over You" and follows with "In Other Words" and "Final Touches" to name a few. He also has included the pop classic, "Linda Lu".

The versatile star, who plays 10 instruments (woodwinds, piano, guitar, saxophone, and keyboards), has recorded many instantly recognizable vocals since he made his recording debut in 1981 with "It Turns Me Inside Out". He quickly followed that hit with a string of charter-toppers: "Ring On Her Fingers, Time On Her Hands", "She's Lying" and "Ain't No Trick (It Takes Magic)".

In 1983, Greenwood's "I.O.U." became a signature song for him and in 1984 he recorded "God Bless The U.S.A.", which has become one of the most played songs of all time. He was a smashing success with the song at George Bush's inauguration, as it was followed by a gigantic fireworks demonstration.

His awards have run the gamut, including Best New Artist and Male Vocalist of the Year, among others. In 1984, Greenwood took home a Grammy for Best Male Performance and in 1991, he was a Grammy nominee for his hit duet single, "Hopelessly Yours," with labelmate Suzy Boggess.

The native of California resides in Nashville.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
We have two teenage daughters and my friends think I am very old fashioned because I insist on being at home at night when they are supposed to come in or when they have guests.

The girls say it is not necessary because they know right from wrong and know how to behave. Well, I have tried to make them understand that it is not because I don't trust them but I do this not only to protect them from bad situations that might occur if they were alone, but to give them the assurance that no matter what happens, I will be there waiting for them and there will be no questions as to when they are expected home. I think this gives the girls a scapegoat when others try to persuade them to go places they know they are not allowed to visit or to do things that will not be noticed the following day.

What do you think about this?

Mother--Conn.

Answer:
I think you are wise mother and will find out that the things you give up today will probably save you a lot of trouble and headache later on.

-Louisa.

SPC Summer Bluegrass Workshop To Feature A Variety Of Activities

Charles Sawtelle, one of the most distinctive guitarists on the bluegrass music scene today, will be a special guest for South Plains College's annual bluegrass Workshop Week, scheduled for July 25-30.

Registration deadline is July 10.

The annual event has traditionally attracted bluegrass music fans and musicians from throughout the nation and overseas. About 60 people are thus far signed up for this summer's round of activities, which include instruction on banjo, mandolin, bass, fiddle, and guitar, concerts, jam sessions, a cookoff, gospel sing-a-long, guitar repair, music theory and other topics. This year's participants are signed up from such varied places as Colorado Springs, Colo., Rochester, N.Y., Gresham, Ore., and Moorpark, Calif., as well as Austin, Houston, and Fort Worth.

The workshop is taught by members of Country Gazette, a premiere bluegrass band headquartered at SPC, Gerald Jones, experienced in recording and live performance in Dallas, and special guest Sawtelle. He is a founding member of the bluegrass group, Hot Rize and is also an experienced acoustic music sound technician.

Cost for five days of instruction and activities is $225 a person. Meals and lodging will also be available in SPC's residence halls at a cost of $110 per person based on double occupancy. Water and electricity hookups for recreational vehicles are available on lighted, level sites within walking distance of workshop classes. Cost for an RV hookup is $10 per day. Meals may be purchased in the college's dining hall at an additional package price of $60.

Instructors are Alan Munde on intermediate and advanced banjo; Gerald Jones on beginning banjo; Dawn Watson on mandolin. Steve Garner on bass; Ed Marsh on fiddle; Joe Carr an Charles Sawtelle on intermediate/advanced flatpicking lead guitar styles; and Dave Hardy, beginning guitar.

The workshop schedule includes sign-in and registration at 3 p.m. July 25, orientation from 7-8 p.m. that night and a jam session at 8 p.m. Other activities throughout the week will include music theory for bluegrass pickers, instrument workshops and lessons, singing and harmony workshop, private lessons, ensemble workshops and lessons, singing and harmony workshop, private lessons, ensemble workshops, vocal workshop, masters of bluegrass and a student showcase concert.

Special events will include a cookout and jam session at 6 p.m. July 26, group singing at 8 p.m. July 27, tour at 7 p.m. July 28, country dance with lessons at 8 p.m. July 28, and free concert by County Gazette at 7 p.m. July 29.

The instructors are experienced in their field. Munde, a fulltime music faculty member at SPC, was a founding member of Country Gazette, and has recorded many top-selling albums of banjo music.

Steve Garner has performed with Byron Berline, Buddy Spicher and Billy Foster. He toured one summer with SPC's country music road show, Country Caravan, and later worked in a nightly music show in Custer, S.D.

Joe Carr, also a fulltime faculty member at SPC, began his professional career with Toanoke before joining Country Gazette. He served as emcee for the group in addition to playing guitar. In addition to his recordings with Gazette, he has made several fiddle, guitar and mandolin teaching courses available.

Dawn Watson, a member of Country Gazette and a fulltime bluegrass music faculty member, has taken top prizes in mandolin contests, including the 1989 Arizona State Championship. She later moved to Nashville and worked with the touring band Petticoat Junction and studied with mandolin picker Bobby Clark.

Dave Hardy, guitarist with Country Gazette, performed with numerous championship bands in the west and has been a winner of the songwriting contest at the National Flatpicking Championship in Winfield, Kan. for two years in a row. He has a master's degree in educational psychology and has been a professional educator for 15 years. He is an instructor in SPC's learning center.

Fiddler Ed Marsh, originally from Virginia, is one of the longest tenured faculty members in SPC's bluegrass music program. He has extensive experience in bluegrass fiddling and teaching.

Registration for the workshop may be completed by returning a registration form and returning it to SPC. A deposit of $100 must accompany registration in order to reserve a seat in the classes.

For more information, contact the SPC Continuing Education Office at South Plains College, 1401 College Avenue, Levelland, Texas, 79336, or phone SPC at (806) 894-9611, ext. 341.

A Study in English

"You want to be what?" demanded the driver.

"Don't lose your temper. I had to look in the dictionary myself before I found out that procrastinate means put off."

Microwave Tips

How far into food do microwaves in a microwave oven penetrate.

They vary with different foods but the maximum is 1 1/2 inches and the minimum about 3/4ths of an inch. They cause no chemical change in food; they produce heat through the vibration of food molecules, produced by these electromagnetic waves (microwaves).

Fat and moisture are drawn to the surface, but the surface doesn't become crisp; it browns only with long-cooking foods.

Perfect Attendance Awards went to Fourth Graders: Joe Adair, Jennifer Castorena, Jose Gonzales, Bobby Guerrero, Fidel Lira, Michael Lopez, Kourtnee Marr, Lupe Nunez, Lisa Ramirez, Christopher Seymore, and Chyla Torres.

Waltz Across Texas Dance Set

The next "Waltz Across Texas" dance will be held Saturday, June 19, 1993 at 8:00 p.m. at the Lamb County Ag Center on Hwy 385 in Littlefield, Texas.

Providing outstanding country western dance music will be the "Blue Denim Band" of Lubbock. This popular band which boasts seven accomplished musicians, plays regularly at the Lubbock Club and Hillcrest County Club.

Admission to the dance is $4 per person, $6 per couple and $10 per family, children under 10 are admitted free.

Drinks and snacks will be available at the concession stand. NO alcohol allowed.

This dance is sponsored by the Littlefield Arts and Heritage Committee. The proceeds go to provide a successful FREE July 4th concert by Waylon Jennings. This year he will have Willie Nelson performing with him. The concert will be Saturday, July 3, 1993 at 8 p.m. at the Lamb County Ag Center. Fans will need to bring blankets or lawn chairs for seating.

A hospitality hour for Singles will be held prior to the dance June 19th at 7 p.m. at the Lamb Co. Ag Center. Area single people of all ages are invited to come and get acquainted and plan other events for the summer. Sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres and drinks will be served.

Call 806-385-4996 or the Waylon hotline at 806 395-6172 for more information.

Art Of Caring Photography Contest To Be Held

Caring Institute invites amateur and professional photographer to enter the sixth annual Art of Caring photography contest. Award-winning photographer Yousuf Karsh, ABC-TV Director of Photography East Coast, Brent Peterson, and actress Susan Sullivan will head the panel of judges that will select the three entries that best capture the essence of caring.

The purpose of this project, sponsored by the Caring Institute and the Eastman Kodak Company, is to inspire the creation of images that speak from heart to heart and convey the message of caring.

Winning photographs will be exhibited and will appear in Caring People, Caring Magazine, and in publications of the Caring Institute. Those images judged most imaginative and which best capture the essence of caring will be recognized and rewarded ($200, First Place; $150, Second Place; and $125, Third Place.) Ten honorable mention finalists will also be designated.

There is no entry fee, but each submission must be accompanied by a completed entry form. Photos may be either color or black and white. All photographs must be 8"x10". To obtain information on the contest and an entry blank, please send a self addressed, stamped business envelope to: Art of Caring, Caring Institute, 519 C Street, NE, Washington, DC 20002. All entries must be received by Friday, August 6, 1993.

The Caring Institute, a nonprofit organization, is dedicated to the promotion of integrity, community, and service to others. Working toward the goal of a more caring society, the Institute sponsors various programs in addition to the Art of Caring, to include the National Caring Awards, the establishment of the Frederick Douglass Museum and Hall of Fame for Caring Americans, and Caring Clubs for students.

Museum And University Seek Help In Locating Documentation

The History Department at West Texas A & M University and the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum at Canyon plan to mark the 60th anniversary of the beginning of the New Deal with a museum exhibit and two-day conference at West Texas A & M.

In preparation for the project, the Museum and the History Department at WTAMU Canyon wish to locate individuals who participated in New Deal programs in the Texas Panhandle-Plains region from 1933 until 1942.

Information especially is needed to compile an inventory of projects conducted by various New Deal agencies, including the National Youth Administration (NYA), National Recovery Administration (NRA), Farm Security Administration (FSA), Civilian Conservation Corp (CCC), Works Progress Administration (WPA), Public Works Administration (PWA), Civil Works Administration (CWA), Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and the Shelterbelt Project.

"We also are looking for photographs of New Deal projects and related artifacts. These items include tools, posters, documents, clothing, quilts, furniture, or anything else pertaining to the New Deal. The Museum may wish to photograph or borrow such objects for the exhibit," said Bill Green, Curator of History for the PPHM.

If you participated in New Deal programs or have photographs or other materials relating to the New Deal in this region, please contact: Dr. Bill Green, Curator of History, Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Canyon, Texas 79016 or call (806) 656-2264.

Entitled "A Visual Legacy: The New Deal on the Texas Plains," the exhibit will open at the Museum September 4, 1993 and close January 16, 1994. The conference on the campus of WTAMU October 1 and 2, 1993, concludes with a tour of surviving New Deal sites.

Pass It On

You've worked hard to get where you are today. If you're like most people, you've put years of careful effort into building and maintaining your estate. And, like most people, you probably want to have your estate distributed among your family and friends after you pass away.

Unfortunately, estate taxes may take a big bite — with rates as high as 50 percent. Probate and administrative fees may consume another 5 to 10 percent. And the estate your heirs receive may be quite a bit smaller than the one you left. It doesn't seem fair, does it?

Fortunately, there are a number of strategies you can use to make certain your estate goes to the people you want it to. Some will even help your heirs avoid estate taxes and probate.

Come to our FREE workshop on estate planning. We'll show you how you can pass on your estate to your heirs. Instead of the probate court and tax collectors.

In April of 1991, the Texas Legislature named Red Steagall as the official Cowboy Poet of Texas.

Panel Appointed To Refine Cotton Industry's Plan

The National Cotton Council of America has created a special strategic planning committee to refine the U.S. cotton industry's long-range plan for competing in a rapidly-changing global environment.

Formation of the committee, which is comprised of Council officers and leaders representing all seven industry segments, was announced at the spring meeting of Council directors in Washington, DC.

"Our aim is to either reconfirm goals or identify new ones that will enable the Council to accomplish long-range objectives toward ensuring industry profitability," said Council President W. Neely Mallory.

"The appointment of this committee should not be seen as a signal of any skepticism about the effectiveness of our current program," Mallory said. "I can't imagine a program that better equips us to operate profitably in today's environment. However, given the change that is inevitable, I think it is prudent for us to develop the best possible understanding of the environment in which we will be called on to operate in the years ahead."

The Memphis warehouse said some of the fronts on which change already is affecting the industry and is likely to do so in the future include: new leadership in Washington, federal government allocations for agriculture, environmental demands, new trade agreements, political reform around the world and new production and processing technology.

Former Council President Tommy Funk, a Harlingen, TX producer, will chair the committee.

Galveston Gears Up For First Summer With Alcohol-Free Beaches

GALVESTON, TEXAS ... The City of Galveston is gearing up for the annual throngs of summer visitors with an approach designed to keep its beaches safe and fun. Galveston City Council recently passed an ordinance prohibiting the consumption of alcohol on all beaches from 16-Mile Road to San Luis Pass from June 1 through September 30. The City Council also voted to prohibit driving on the 18-Mile Road Beach in order to return the beach to pedestrians and to improve public safety.

The Galveston Park Board of Trustees, in a related decision, recently voted to ban alcohol consumption from its Stewart Beach Park, with the exception of licensed concession areas. The ban will be in effect year-round. The Park Board will also sponsor family-oriented entertainment, such as volleyball tournaments and sandcastle competitions at Stewart Beach throughout the summer.

Also on the drawing board is an ambitious plan to replenish the severely-eroded beaches along the Galveston Seawall. The area to be restored runs from 10th to 61st Streets, and will extend 300 feet out from the Seawall.

Galveston's temperate weather and 32 miles of sandy beaches attract swimmers, fishermen, sailors, and families on outings throughout the year, and the island's municipally maintained beaches provide a variety of facilities to accommodate them.

Security on Galveston beaches is provided by the Galveston Police Department, Galveston Park Board and Galveston County Beach Patrol. Lifeguards are on duty at Stewart Beach Park and R.A. Apfel East Beach Park.

Stewart Beach Park

Galveston's principal beach park and recreation area, located at the intersection of Broadway and Seawall Boulevards, attracts a young crowd of sun-bathers and fun lovers. Stewart Beach boasts an outdoor pavilion containing concessions, gifts shops, showers and restroom facilities. Attractions include volleyball courts, a water slide, bumper boats and cars, go-carts, miniature golf, and a children's playground.

The consumption of alcohol is not permitted, except within licensed concession areas.

Parking is $5 per vehicle. For more information, call 409/765-5023.

R.A. Apfel East Beach Park

R.A. Apfel East Beach Park is a sprawling beach with sandy dunes located at the east end of the island. The park is a popular spot for jetty and surf fishing, as well as birdwatching. Bait camps, restaurants, and an 11,000-square-foot pavilion featuring a gift shop, concessions, showers and restrooms are available to visitors. Alcohol is permitted within legal limitations.

R.A. Apfel East Beach Park is the site of the annual AIA Sandcastle Competition, which inspires imaginative feats of sand sculpting by area architects. This year's event is scheduled for Saturday, June 12.

Take Broadway to Seawall Blvd.; turn left, then right on Boddeker Drive. Admission is $5 per vehicle.

Season passes, available at $35 per vehicle, permit unlimited access to Apfel Park now through December 31. Passes are on sale at the Galveston Park Board of Trustees office, 2102 Seawall Blvd., and at Apfel Park. For more information, call 409/763-6564 or 409/763-0166.

Seawolf Park

One of Galveston's most popular attractions, Seawolf Park offers history, fishing and fun. The site once served as a quarantine station for immigrants entering the United States. Today it features a collection of military hardware, including the World War II submarine Cavalla and the destroyer escort U.S.S. Stewart, both open to visitors.

Anglers can try their luck from dawn to dusk at the fishing pier or along the rocks. Flounder, trout and redfish are likely catches. Bait is available for purchase.

A three-level outdoor pavilion provides concessions, catering for private parties, and a vantage point for watching shrimp boats, pleasure craft, cargo ships and the Bolivar Ferry. A nearby playground provides fun for children.

Seawolf Park is located on Pelican Island. From Broadway, head north on 51st Street. Park admission is $3 per vehicle. Admission to the submarine and ship are $2 for adults and $1 for children. Fishing is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Alcohol is permitted within legal limitations.

Dellanera RV Park

Dellanera RV Park is designed for day visitors as well as those traveling in recreational vehicles and campers.

The park is located on FM 3005 at Seven-Mile Road, at the west end of Galveston's seawall. Dellanera provides 1,000 feet of sandy beach complemented by 50 full RV hook-ups, day parking, showers, laundry facilities, grocery store and recreation areas. Alcohol is permitted within legal limitations.

Day parking is $3 per vehicle. For more information or reservations, call 409/740-0390.

Visitor Information

For further information regarding Galveston's beaches, contact the Galveston Island Convention and Visitors Bureau at 2106 Seawall Boulevard, Galveston, Texas 77550; 409/763-4311, 800/351-4236 (Texas) or 800/351-4237 (outside Texas).

BTU Energy Tax Will Ask Agriculture To Shoulder An Unfair Burden

When Washington starts talking taxes, it doesn't take long for the powers that be to set their sights on agriculture. Right this minute the new Administration is taking aim. Once again some folks who don't know much about agriculture are determined to put an unfair burden on the people who earn their livings from farming and ranching.

I'm talking about the Clinton Administration's proposed Btu tax. Btu stands for British thermal units-but, believe me, it's not about taxing the British. It's about increasing agriculture's energy bill by some one BILLION dollars or about 2 percent of total net farm income.

For Texas nurserymen it will mean higher greenhouse heating bills--especially in north and northeastern Texas--and higher costs for fertilizer and other chemical inputs.

Put simply, the Btu tax is based on heat content of fuels. It's like taxing food on its caloric content. The higher the calories, the higher the tax, or in this case, the more Btu's in a fuel, the more it is taxed. It will mean paying 7 1/2 cents more for a gallon of gasoline, 8.3 cents more for a gallon of diesel, 2.3 cents more for a gallon of propane and about 4.6 percent more for each kilowatt of electricity. Prices for fertilizer, chemicals and other energy intensive farm inputs will also increase. The average Texas producer can expect a minimum price tag of $2 an acre in direct energy costs.

Somebody must have told the President farmers work for free. Somebody must have convinced him that agricultural producers don't send their kids to college. They don't have mortgages to pay. They don't have the right to a fair and reasonable profit.

The Btu tax is simply one more example of agriculture being asked to bear its unfair share. We are willing to do our part. Certainly that is the responsibility of every American citizen. But agriculture represents only a small percentage of the country's population. It should not be singled out to carry such a heavy load. Increasing agriculture's production costs will only serve to weaken the industry's economic growth and reduce U.S. competition in international markets just as these markets become more competitive.

This is not just a bad tax, it's a bad and confusing tax. It's a tax that will require another bureaucracy just to administer it. Then we can pay more money to finance the bureaucrats who are collecting more of our tax dollars. It just doesn't make any sense.

How many Americans can even explain what a Btu is? And how many will understand what this tax means until it's too late and the bills come in?

Agriculture has taken some mighty big hits in recent years, and this won't be the last. In addition to the Btu tax, the Clinton Administration wants to cut an additional $500 million in farm payments. That means agriculture's total bill will come to $1.5 billion.

The Clinton administration believes it can raise $71.4 billion over five years with this tax proposal. It claims the proposal will help to reduce the country's deficit. But I believe this tax is regressive and inflationary--a threat-not an answer-to our economic recovery.

The new folks in Washington say that these new taxes are part of a fair and balanced package that will show long-term deficit reduction. But who really believes that is the case? Congress will pig out on this new money. It has never used the money from any tax increase for deficit reduction. The Administration has already proposed $295 million in new spending for this year, and this is even before the bill for the health care package come in, which could be over $100 billion.

It's up to all of us to let Washington know how we feel before the vote is taken, before the decision is made. It is not too late. It may be hard to defeat the Btu tax, but no battle was ever won without firing the first shot. It is important to write our congressman and senators. If we're willing to be heard, there's an outside chance to influence the outcome on the energy tax.

More than 200 years ago, there was a patriotic silversmith named Paul Revere. As you recall, he earned his place in history by alerting his neighbors: "The British are coming."

Well, they're coming again. Not by land. Not by sea. Not marching in with easy-to-spot bright red coats. But sneaking into our lives disguised as a "friendly" energy tax.

A friendly tax that can suck the life out of agriculture. A friendly tax that can destroy the agrarian way of life that those patriots fought for. A friendly tax that should be shot down with musket balls, not accepted with a resigned handshake.

Our forefathers whipped the British once for us. And we must do it again for ourselves--and for our kids.

News From Baylor College of Medicine

Contrary to some myths, there is sex after 60 says, a psychologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"Sexual expression can continue to be a part of life into our sixties, seventies and beyond," said Dr. Naomi Nelson, an assistant professor of neurology at Baylor. "We know in terms of etiquette how to eat soup in a restaurant, but we don't know what society says is an appropriate expression of sexuality among older people."

Nelson says people get caught up in social customs and behavior and miss the big picture of what it's like to be a sexual being all of their lives.

A major obstacle that many aging people need to overcome is the perception that they will lose the physical ability to have an active sex life. There are physical changes but, Nelson said, sex can still be a part of a healthy, active person's life.

Doctors say some older men might have a slower arousal period, but that doesn't mean the libido or desire has decreased. There may also be a less forceful ejaculation. This is not a sign of trouble as much as it is a sign of normal aging.

Women may also experience dryness during arousal as they age, which may be a sign of the normal aging process.

"Men and women should not be frightened by such changes," Nelson said. "Although, it is also a good idea for elderly men and women to talk with their physicians and discuss their concerns."

It is generally accepted that the more physically active people are sexually, the better their sexual organs will function.

"Physical changes are not the only barrier to being comfortable with sexuality," Nelson said. "The elderly need to fight stereotypes about sexual attitudes and behaviors and have frank, open discussions with their mates."

Even though some elderly couples may still have a sex drive, they often do not feel comfortable talking about sexuality with their partners. Nelson's advice is to stop thinking of sex as something to be enjoyed only in youth.

"Stop thinking of sex as something in the past. Think of sexuality as a part of life, and, as long as you still have life, live it to the fullest," Nelson said.

Study Links Reduced Infant Deaths To Benefits Of Texas WIC Program

A recent study has credited participation by pregnant women in the Texas WIC program (the Special Supplemental Foods Program for Women, Infants, and Children) with reducing deaths of babies born to Medicaid mothers. The Texas Department of Health (TDH) administers the WIC program.

The Mathematica Policy Research, Inc. studied infant mortality among Medicaid recipients' newborns in Texas, Florida, Minnesota, North Carolina, and South Carolina. The babies of Medicaid mothers who also participated in WIC were less likely to die in infancy than were the babies of mothers who have Medicaid who did not have WIC's help.

"This study is further proof that WIC works, that WIC is a win-win program for kids and for taxpayers," Debra Stabeno said. Stabeno is chief of the TDH Bureau of WIC Nutrition.

"Earlier studies have shown that taxpayers save $2.44 in Medicaid costs for every dollar we spend on WIC in the first two months of a baby's life," Stabeno said. "This new study shows that the WIC Program not only ensures the health and development of our most vulnerable infants and children, it actually saves lives."

Among the babies of Medicaid recipients, the study estimated that infant deaths of WIC participants occur about one-fourth to two-thirds as often as infant deaths of non-WIC participants. In comparing infant mortality in the two groups, the greatest difference appeared among the babies' deaths occurring within the first 28 days.

In Texas, the study tracked all Medicaid births from January

Advanced Criminal Investigation Course Scheduled At SPC

An advanced investigation course for law enforcement officers is scheduled June 28-30 at South Plains College.

Classes will meet 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily in the SPC Petroleum/Law Enforcement Technology Building, room 115. Cost is $24 a person.

Registration deadline is June 25.

The course is designed to help the student develop investigative techniques in areas of unusual criminal activity, explained Larry Nichols, associate professor of law enforcement technology at SPC. "Students will participate in investigative learning techniques of covert operations, organized crime, surveillance techniques, pretext interviews, collaboration of witnesses and co-defendant testimony, and they will be exposed to the equipment involved in these techniques," he said.

Students will receive 24 hours of credit from the Texas Commission of Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education.

A minimum of 10 persons is required for the course.

For more information, contact SPC's law enforcement office at 894-9611, ext. 291.

through June in 1988. The statistics suggested that 103 more Medicaid infants during that period might have died had their mothers not had WIC assistance during pregnancy.

Funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, WIC provides nutrition education and vouchers for foods rich in calcium, iron and protein needed by childbearing women, their babies and children younger than 5.

Since 1988 in Texas, WIC's monthly enrollment has increased from 250,000 to about 543,000. Stabeno announced that TDH recently received federal funding for WIC to serve 85,000 more Texas women and children.

Residents Have Opportunity To Help Brazos River Authority Ensure Water Quality

Residents of the Caprock area will have an opportunity to help the Brazos River Authority ensure water quality when the basin's citizen advisory subcommittee meets.

Project advisory groups will be formed at this meeting to assist the Authority's water quality staff. Dale Pahmiyer, project administrator, said the project advisory groups help the Authority's water quality staff find the best approaches to water quality issues. The Texas Clean Rivers Program and volunteer citizen monitoring program will also be discussed at the meeting.

Project advisory groups within the basin will be selected based upon meeting participant's interests in one of the following Clean Rivers programs: volunteer citizen water quality monitoring, public awareness and involvement, groundwater, water conservation and data analysis.

The Brazos River Authority contracted with the Texas Water Commission in 1992 to assess water quality in the Brazos River Basin. Clean Rivers Act funding has allowed the Authority to expand its long-term water quality programs. Steering committees involving local citizens and industry representatives help the Authority identify key local and develop programs to maintain the basin's quality standards.

For further information, contact Cynthia Bothwell, the Authority's

Dr. David R. Smith, Texas Commissioner of Health said, "As a physician and as the health commissioner, I have seen the difference WIC makes in the lives of Texas' youngest citizens. WIC helps women to have healthier pregnancies with fewer premature births. Their babies are likely to have higher birth weights."

"Also," he said, "WIC mothers tend to get prenatal care earlier in their pregnancies--a factor directly affecting the health of newborns."

Stabeno added, "Everyone benefits when kids get a better nutritional start. WIC is committed to serve every eligible woman and child in Texas."

field operations manager, or Pahmiyer at (817)772-6010, or Dan Hawkins, director of water utilities at (806)767-2595.

The Brazos River Authority was established in 1929 by the Texas Legislature and given responsibility for conserving and developing the surface water resources of the entire Brazos River Basin. The Authority is governed by a 21-member board of directors appointed by the Governor for six-year terms, subject to confirmation by the Texas Senate. Based in Waco, the Authority is self-supported by revenues from its own operations.

Plague Found In Texas Squirrels For First Time

The bubonic plague--the same disease that killed millions of people in the Middle Ages--has flared up in Texas wildlife again. An estimated 40 tree squirrels in the Mulberry Canyon region south of Merkel have died from the disease.

They were a feral (wild) cat that probably ate one of the infected squirrels, a raccoon, and a rat flea. Texas Animal Damage Control Service trappers have confirmed the disease in four coyotes in that region, Thomas said.

The disease seems to be confirmed to that area for now, said Bradley Hicks, a health department zoonosis control specialist in Abilene.

The last major animal die-off was a 1988 prairie dog outbreak in a 14 county area in the Permian Basin from Borden County to the Big Bend. Since that time, sporadic cases have been found in carnivores tested by ADC trappers.

Health Department officials were alerted to the most recent outbreak when a Taylor County rancher, who asked not to be identified, found a weak squirrel atop a chicken coop.

After several members of the family had handled the squirrel, the rancher became concerned that it might have an infectious disease. He contacted the health department on March 23, and he and his family were referred to a physician for preventative treatment. Health officials then scoured a half-mile area around the site, finding only empty nests and no tree squirrels, leading them to believe that this was a major die-off.

They do not know what introduced the plague bacteria into the squirrel population, but believe it was transported through neighboring nests through fleas. "We hope to find the cause," Hicks said.

As long as the infected animals stay out of populated areas, the danger to humans is minimal, Thomas said. "The problem arises when a cat eats a squirrel or other rodent that is positive, then shows up at your back door. The fleas on that cat will jump on you or a family pet, anything that walks by. "Animals that appear to be sick should not be handled, he added.

"Plague is the same disease it was back in the Dark Ages," said Guy Moore of Austin, team leader for the health department's plague surveillance. "The difference is that our knowledge and treatment have changed. Our sanitation is better, and we have antibiotics."

Moore was quick to point out that the risk to the general public is small. Nevertheless, individuals do contract the deadly disease, primarily through contact with animal carriers.

Three human cases of plague have been reported in Texas over the past 12 years. A fourth case involved a rancher from New Mexico who contracted the disease in Texas.

People in two of the cases, a hunter from Ector County and the New Mexico residents, died because the disease was not diagnosed as plague. The other West Texas residents, received timely medical attention and survived.

The disease usually occurs in human as a result of a bite by an infected flea or by handling an infected animal, Moore said.

Bubonic plague is the most common form of the disease in man. It gets its name from the bubo, or lump, that occurs in the groin, armpits, or occasionally, the back.

Symptoms appear usually within 2 to 6 days after exposure and include a white coating on the tongue, fever, rapid pulse, and nervousness.

Left untreated, bubonic plague is fatal in about 60 percent of the cases. The disease happens so rarely that physicians may confuse it with meningitis, venereal disease, or influenza. Prompt treatment is highly effective.

The plague swept through large regions of the world at least three times in the last 1,500 years, each time killing millions. More than 100 million people died of plague in Arabia and Egypt in 542 A.D. The disease became known as the Black Death when it swept across Europe in the 14th century, killing 25 million people, or one-third of the population. The first known U.S. epidemic occurred in 1900 in San Francisco and killed 118 people.

Plague-infected rodents have been found in 14 western states, as far east as Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas, and northward to Alberta, Canada.

The health department has been working since 1977 with the Texas Animal Damage Control Service to monitor the disease, which spread from New Mexico into West Texas during the 1970's and has been found as far east as Erath County near Dallas-Ft. Worth.

With this last outbreak, Moore said, "it is definitely moving east and will continue to move east." Pet owners, especially in the Abilene area, urged to be vigilant about flea control on their pets and in their yards and homes. Hunters and campers should be wary of cleaning infected animals or setting up tents near rodent burrows.

Cancer Information Center Awarded $4.74 Million

Whether it's 9 a.m. in El Paso or Oklahoma City, telephones at the Cancer Information Service (CIS) begin ringing each Monday through Friday until it's 4:30 p.m. in Brownsville or Tulsa.

And thanks to National Cancer Institute (NCI) funding, the six CIS telephone lines will ring non-stop into 1997.

The NCI, the federal government's primary cancer research agency, awarded The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center a $4.74 million contract to continue operation of this successful public education program based in Houston.

The CIS at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center is one of 19 regional offices located at NCI-designated Comprehensive Cancer Centers, such as M.D. Anderson, and other major hospitals across the U.S. It will serve the 20 million residents of Texas and Oklahoma.

"I am extremely pleased to see that this successful and important program has received the support and acknowledgement it so richly deserves," said U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston. "An educational and informative program such as this is one of the vital keys to increasing public understanding of this most feared disease."

The CIS provides access to state-of-the-art cancer information in English and Spanish through its telephone service and community outreach programs.

By dialing 1-800-4-CANCER, callers in the two states are connected automatically to the CIS in Houston. Information specialists answer questions on cancer prevention, detection, diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation. NCI publications written in English and Spanish also are mailed free to the caller as a follow-up to the discussion with the information specialist.

To help callers address the physical, financial and emotional challenges presented by the disease, the CIS maintains a resource directory of more than 3,000 cancer-related services and programs in Texas and Oklahoma.

"One of the great things about the program is that we help callers locate resources for assistance in their own community," said Jo Ann Ward, CIS coordinator. "Cancer is one of the most difficult challenges a person can face in life. We strive to help callers make the ordeal less stressful."

To help residents learn how to prevent cancer or detect the disease early when treatment is most successful, CIS outreach coordinators work with private and public health care agencies and the media to promote educational messages and materials which address specific cancer problems in their geographic region. Special efforts target high-risk populations including African American, Hispanics and Native Americans.

More than 315,000 callers from all backgrounds have called the CIS since its inception at M.D. Anderson 16 years ago. CIS community outreach programs, such as health fairs and community presentations, have reached another 129,000 people since 1976.

Nationwide, the CIS responds to more than 500,000 requests annually for cancer information. The majority of calls to 1-800-4-CANCER come from cancer patients, their family and friends, health care professionals and the general public. The CIS staff uses a variety of resources to respond to inquiries, including NCI's Physician Data Query data base of current information on the early detection and standard treatment of cancer. The data base also provides a nationwide listing of NCI-approved clinical trials that study new ways of treating cancer and may provide patients with more options.

As important as the information is, callers also find support from the information specialists to whom they speak. As one woman from Garland, Texas, wrote in a thank-you letter to the CIS, "I want to send you special thanks for your care and concern. It meant a lot to me to have someone LISTEN and give me some calm advice."

The trouble with modern life is that it takes too much time.

LUBBOCK, Friday, June 11, 1993

By Shawn Wade

High Plains producers were on the receiving end of scattered rain showers during the past week that will be mostly beneficial according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

The only exception to the beneficial label may be the area around Ackerly, Texas in Northeast Martin and Southeast Dawson counties where locally heavy rains totaled five to eight inches in some areas.

One or two isolated reports of hail in addition to the rainfall have also been recorded. It is fair to say that some acres can be expected to need replanting as a result of the past weeks weather, however an accurate picture will probably not emerge until next week according to PCG officials.

The good news for many dryland producers in southern High Plains counties was the arrival of any rain at all. Most reports indicate that the rainfall totals may be just enough to get some "dry planted" acreage to a stand. Producers who did receive enough rain to get a stand will still need additional rain before the resulting dryland stands can be considered safely established.

The irrigated side of the High Plains crop is in good shape according to John Gannaway, a cotton breeder at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. He adds that overall the area has gotten off to a fairly normal start with the usual mixed bag of crop conditions existing in the area.

Gannaway says that an overall rating for the 25-county area would still be fair to good at this time. Planting activity will likely begin to taper off in the next few days and will likely become predominantly replanting operations.

Hardest hit by the dry conditions are primarily dryland producers in the western edge of the High Plains. Many whose crop insurance planting dates have already passed are now in the process of getting claims filed so they can get back in the field and plant a secondary crop such as grain sorghum.

Without a general rain across this area several thousand acres of dryland cotton will probably go to alternate crops.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — With State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison going to Washington as Texas' junior U.S. Senator, Comptroller John Sharp said last week the time is right to make state government more efficient by merging the treasury with his office.

It's not a new idea. Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock suggested it almost 15 years ago when he was state comptroller. And auditors on two occasions suggested to Sharp that the offices should be merged.

Sharp said he rejected the recommendations because he didn't want to be accused of engaging in partisan politics. Sharp is a Democrat; Hutchison is a Republican.

Sharp said he and Gov. Ann Richards recently discussed merging the agencies. "Ann asked me, if Krueger doesn't win, how many folks it would take to operate the state treasury. We could cut it 75 percent, probably more."

But the suggestion received a cold reception from Hutchison, who called the treasury "the most efficient agency in state government. The state treasury was set up as a constitutional office by our founding fathers because they understood our system of checks and balances — even if our state comptroller doesn't."

Since the treasury is established in the Constitution, abolishing it would require a two-thirds vote by the House and Senate and approval from Texas voters.

With the defeat of Bob Krueger, Richards' interim appointee to the U.S. Senate, she must decide who will replace Hutchison. Whoever she appoints will have to run for re-election next year.

Meanwhile, the names of some of the governor's close friends surfaced last week as possible replacements for Hutchison. They include Mary Beth Rogers, Richards' former chief of staff and a former deputy treasurer; Cathy Bonner, executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce; Pam Reed, a member of the Texas Water Commission; and Mary Scott Nabers, Krueger's successor on the Texas Railroad Commission; and Paul Williams, Richards' current chief of staff.

Bush Eyes Governor's Race

George W. Bush, the former president's oldest son, may challenge Gov. Richards when she tries for a second term next year.

"Put me down as interested," Bush told The Dallas Morning News recently. "She's got a high personality cult following, and she's funny and witty and charming at times," he said, but added that Richards has yet to be challenged on tough issues.

The managing general partner of the Texas Rangers, said another consideration is whether or not his brother Jeb Bush enters Florida's gubernatorial race.

Governor Vetoes Gun Bill

Surrounded by two people paralyzed by gunshot wounds and uniformed police officers, Gov. Ann Richards vetoed the controversial concealed weapons bill four days after lawmakers went home.

Proponents of the measure said the governor's action likely will be remembered in her re-election campaign.

By the time the bill reached Richards' desk it simply called for a non-binding public vote on the right to carry a concealed weapon.

"This bill would spend $60,000 to do a public opinion poll for gun interests. I cannot in good conscience waste taxpayer dollars to conduct a poll that will accomplish nothing and diverts attention from the real issues of crime such as drug abuse and prison overcrowding," Richards said.

But a House author of the measure promised to resurrect the bill in the 1995 legislative session. "It's an issue that is not going to go away," said Rep. Bill Carter, R-Haltom City.

Carter also disputed the governor's estimate that the referendum would cost $60,000. The vote would have occurred on the regular Nov. 2 election day so it would simply have required adding a line to the ballot, he said.

"Killer" Bee List Grows

Presidio County has been added to a list of 52 counties under a bee quarantine after the discovery of Africanized bees there.

A swarm of the "killer" bees was found in a trap near Marfa. Federal agriculture officials later confirmed the bees were Africanized. Beekeepers may not move hives out of the quarantine area.

Other Highlights

State Comptroller John Sharp praised the Texas Legislature for approving 85 percent of the savings proposed in his "Against the Grain" report. Sharp said the savings will total $3.8 billion over the next two years.

Nearly 20 percent of American homeowners have refinanced their mortgages in the past 18 months and an additional 14 percent are considering the move, according to a survey by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Joe Betsy Allred, 87, wife of former Gov. James V. Allred, died last week in a Wichita Falls hospital after a brief illness. Gov. Allred, who was elected in 1935, died in 1959 while serving as a U.S. district judge.

Texas banks posted record first-quarter earnings of $863 million, second-highest in the nation, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said. Only New York banks, at $1.9 billion, had higher earnings.

SPC Second Summer Registration Dates Announced

EAST WIND WEST WIND

Pearl Buck—The woman who embraced the world.

In December, 1938, a radio broadcast from Stockholm sped some surprising news around the world. That year, the Nobel Committee's coveted prize for literature was awarded to American-born author Pearl Sydenstricker Buck. With this announcement, the 46-year-old author stepped into an international spotlight, eventually becoming one of the most popular American authors of all time. Pearl Buck still holds the distinction of being the only American woman ever to receive the Nobel Prize for literature.

East Wind, West Wind is a 90-minute documentary film chronicling the rich and dynamic life of Pearl S. Buck, who used her fame as a writer to call attention to many important issues of her day.

East Wind, West Wind follows the path of a missionary child, born in West Virginia at the turn of the century and raised in rural China, who became one of the most popular writers of the 20th century. A blend of oral history and historical footage forms an intimate and intriguing portrait of this multifaceted woman.

East Wind, West Wind airs Wednesday, June 23rd at 8:00 p.m.

Green Gold:

FROM THE MAYA TO THE MOON

Green Gold: From the Maya to the Moon traces the phenomenal influence of the three New World treasures — corn, potatoes, and chile peppers — on human history. These plants from the Americas have played major roles in both nurturing and undermining entire societies. Green Gold also highlights ongoing efforts to preserve and promote their precious genetic diversity, seen by many as a requirement for global food security.

In the past, overdependence on food crops with a narrow genetic base has had disastrous consequences. The Irish potato famine, the United States' corn blight and massive chile wilts, and the sudden disappearance of the Mayan civilization, possibly due to a failure of the corn crop, all serve as painful reminders that we must not allow history to repeat itself. Today, "new explorers" are looking at the original sources of corn, potatoes, and chile in hopes of finding genetic clues that might help ensure a stable food supply for ourselves and our children.

Green Gold highlights the life's work of internationally recognized plant explorers, molecular geneticists, anthropologists, authors, and ethnobotanists. Paul Bosland, New Mexico State University plant breeder, is featured in the documentary as he hunts for wild chile varieties in Guatemala.

Green Gold: From the Maya to the Moon airs Wednesday, June 23rd at 9:30 p.m. It will repeat Sunday, June 27th at 12:00 noon.

Sissy Spacek and William Hurt in
"Verna: USO Girl"

Great Performances begins winding down its gala 20th Anniversary Season with a special encore presentation of one of its most popular productions: 1978's "Verna: USO Girl." Filmed on location in Hammelberg and Baumholder, Germany, the telecast stars Sissy Spacek and William Hurt and is based on Paul Gallico's celebrated World War II short story. Spacek is unforgettable as Verna, a rather untalented young girl who dreams of being a star. She joins a second-rate USO troupe headed by Howard Da Silva and Sally Kellerman, a Catskill comic and smokey-voiced chanteuse, respectively. Verna clumsily sings and dances her way into the hearts of the Armed Forces behind enemy lines. Verna is everybody's favorite — particularly the favorite of a handsome young captain, played by William Hurt, who wants to marry her. "Verna: USO Girl" was aided by the USO and the US Army. Hundreds of GIs stationed in Germany are featured in the telecast, as are a group of World War II standards, including "I'll Get By," "You'll Never Know," and "Since You Went Away," which are sung by the cast and integrated into the action. Great Performances "Verna: USO Girl" will be broadcast Wednesday, June 16th at 8:00 p.m. on KENW-TV.

"Vengan a la carpa!" "Vengan Todos!"

"Come to the tent show!" "Come everyone similar to Charlie Chaplin's tramp. But even more important, the "carpas" provided a unique medium for exploring the political and social problems experienced by the local community. The "carpas" crafted a bicultural, bilingual sensibility that celebrated the ethnic diversity of the U.S. Southwest. Set in 1938, the film explores racial tensions in the Southwest, while it reveals the mediating role of the "carpa." "La Carpa" on American Playhouse will be broadcast Wednesday, June 16th at 9:30 p.m.
