

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Yes, a Queer World Supply and Demand If All Worked Hard The Biggest Brain

How Queer is our world! Fascists, led by Sir Oswald Mosley of the English Blackshirts, who think they ought to change the British government, learned from a mob that fascism does not suit England—yet. The Blackshirts were driven home.

Next day, bands of the Fascists invaded the London Jewish quarter, smashing windows. In the first day's rioting between Fascists and the crowd that does not want fascism, hundreds were hurt.

England is becoming modernized. One of her race track gambling gangsters, murdered "American fashion" in the course of gangster business, was honored with a funeral that would make Chicago or New York stare.

Mussolini does not believe that old "supply and demand" is necessarily omnipotent. While cutting four per cent from the value of Italian money, he forbids any increase in prices, any rent increase for two years. That experiment will be watched with interest. The word "money," most important in the world to many, has less real meaning than any other word in the dictionary, nobody knowing anything about it.

A new law in Paraguay compels every able-bodied man to work, whether he wants to or not. Here men that want jobs can't get them. There men can get jobs, but don't want them.

The general idea is good, but if all able-bodied men had been compelled to work always the human race would still be far back in the dark ages. One of the greatest Greeks said truly that bodily slavery was necessary, because it gave leisure to a few, leisure made thought possible and thought created progress.

If all men had worked hard, by compulsion, there would have been no deliberate thinking. Slavery would be necessary now for the world's progress had not machines taken the place of slaves.

Scientists of the Smithsonian Institution announce discovery by Dr. Hrdlicka in the Aleutian islands, off the coast of Alaska, of a skull that once held the biggest brain on record, excepting that of the Russian novelist Turgenieff, who had a brain cavity of 2,030 cubic centimeters. The biggest American brain belonged to Daniel Webster, 2,000 cubic centimeters.

But brain size and weight are not everything. Beethoven, with a 1,750 cubic centimeter skull, will outlive in importance Webster, the French naturalist Cuvier, and other "big brains."

Adaptation to usefulness is the important thing, it is said that the eye of the eagle is twice as heavy as the eagle's brain.

Wine bottled in Germany hereafter will have, instead of a cork, a plug of German wood.

To help make Germany independent of the outside world, the use of cork, that does not grow in Germany, is forbidden. This will save 10,000,000 marks a year, spent abroad for cork.

German wood, according to authorities, is cheaper, better, resists breakage, acid, alkali, and eliminates cork taste.

One question is, will the wooden cork swell up at the lower end sufficiently to overcome the pressure of gas in a champagne bottle?

At Jonesville, Va., Rev. T. Anderson, in a demonstration of faith, allowed poisonous serpents to bite him three times, assuring his congregation that they could not harm him.

A copperhead moccasin snake bit him twice on the right hand; a rattlesnake once on the left.

Unfortunately Rev. Mr. Anderson, member of the Holiness persuasion, died soon afterward.

We go up and down quickly in the United States, particularly in new enterprises. William Fox, once one of the most energetic, successful of moving picture men, now a bankrupt, tells the court that in 1930 he was worth one hundred million dollars; now he has only "odds and ends," meaning only a few hundred thousands, here and there.

Our South American neighbor, Nicaragua, forbids all slot machines and other gambling devices in that country. All must be destroyed.

Nicaragua's government says such machines teach children to gamble, and their owners are parasites of the worst kind, making a profit of 62 cents on every dollar.

Mormons Are Off the Dole, Says President Grant

SIX months ago the Latter Day Saints church—otherwise the Mormons—inaugurated a program to make every able bodied member self-supporting by October 1. In the great tabernacle at Salt Lake City Heber J. Grant, president of the church, told an audience of thousands that the plan had succeeded and that the drive had taken all the needy members off public relief. The church has consistently opposed "pay without work." In reading his report President Grant took occasion to criticize the Townsend pension plan and government control of crops, and he warned the members to avoid "political entanglements."

Under the church relief drive, land was leased and the needy provided with implements for tilling. Women groups have made clothes and bedding. Members have contributed the financial equivalent of two meals monthly to a special fund.

In scattered storehouses, Mr. Grant reported, supplies have been laid up in generous quantities for distribution among the needy who helped produce them.

Under the program, the speaker declares, "the curse of idleness would be done away with, the evils of a dole abolished, and independence, thrift, and self-respect will be once more established amongst our people."

Social Security Act Is Due for a Court Test

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE C. B. KENNEMER of Montgomery, Ala., issued an order halting collection in Alabama of a one per cent payroll tax to finance the unemployment program. The result, it is expected, will be a clear cut test of the validity of the New Deal's social security act, for lawyers had no doubt the case would be carried to the United States Supreme court. The order was granted the Gulf States Steel corporation of Gadsden, Ala., on a plea that the unemployment insurance program, operated in co-operation with the federal government, violates both state and federal constitutions. A Supreme court hearing would carry the threat of possible invalidation of insurance and pension programs now under development in the several states.

Chicago Meat Packers Cited by Wallace

CHARGES of engaging in unfair practices have been filed against the Armour and Swift meat packing companies of Chicago, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has cited them for a hearing in New York on November 2, for violation of the packers and stockyards act of 1921.

According to Dr. A. W. Miller of the bureau of animal industry, the complaint was based on the charge that the packers had been obtaining business in violation of the law from steamship companies in New York.

Under the alleged illegal arrangement, Miller said, Armour and Swift had arranged a reciprocal agreement by which they sold meat to the ship owners and in return sent their exports abroad in their ships.

Another charge was that the packers had extended credit for longer periods for favored customers than for others.

Test Cases Started Under Robinson-Patman Act

THREE complaints were filed by the federal trade commission under the Robinson-Patman act, naming five concerns, launching the first move to test its powers under this far-reaching legislation which forbids the granting or receiving by merchandisers of discriminatory price discounts in interstate commerce.

The complaints named Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc.; Kraft-Phenix Cheese corporation, Chicago; Shefford Cheese company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y.; Bird and Son, Inc., and Bird Floor Covering Sales corporation, East Walpole, Mass.

Montgomery Ward and Company is named jointly with Bird and Son and the Bird Floor Covering Sales corporation, a subsidiary. The complaint contends that the two Bird companies sold floor coverings to Montgomery Ward and company at substantially lower prices than to competing retailers.

Kraft-Phenix Cheese was charged with discriminating in price between purchasers, with the alleged effect of lessening and injuring competition between it and other manufacturers and distributors of similar products. Lessening of competition between customers of Kraft-Phenix was also alleged, and some of them were alleged to have received favored prices.

In filing its bill of complaint, the commission pointed out that no allegation was made of "bad faith or any subterfuge or secrecy on the part of Kraft-Phenix in connection with its price policy."

Charges against Shefford Cheese were substantially the same as in the case of Kraft-Phenix.

Secretary Ickes Reports Alleged Collusive Bids

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR ICKES referred to the Department of Justice for investigation two new instances of alleged collusive bidding for federal construction material contracts. The charges are against seventeen copper cable and steel tubing firms. The Justice department already has under investigation previous charges made by Ickes of collusive bidding on steel contracts.

The projects affected were the North Platte reclamation development in Nebraska, and the Grand Coulee Dam in the Columbia river basin of Washington.

Many of the bids in both cases, said Mr. Ickes, were identical. However, in each case at least one bidder submitted different and lower figures, and the contracts were awarded.

Former Ambassador Straus Taken by Pneumonia

JESSE ISADOR STRAUS, merchant prince and, until his resignation last August, American ambassador to France, passed away in his New York home at the age of sixty-four. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia, but Mr. Straus had been in ill health for some time, this being the reason for his retirement from the ambassadorship.

Graduating from Harvard in 1893, Mr. Straus began work as a bank clerk. In 1896 he obtained employment with R. H. Macy & Co., big New York department store, and by 1919 was its president, holding that position until he was given the Paris post by President Roosevelt in 1933. He was a Democrat and was a member of the board of overseers of Harvard and of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. He maintained a country estate at Mount Kisco, N. Y., as well as a city apartment.

Italy's Cabinet Votes to Devalue the Lira

FOLLOWING the example set by France and other countries, the Italian cabinet voted to devalue the lira, setting its value at approximately 5.2 cents, as compared with the latest previous figure of 7.6 cents. The cabinet also let it be known that it would take action to prevent rent and price increases; and it voted a new 5 per cent capital levy to which property owners are obliged to subscribe to the extent of 5 per cent of their wealth.

The gold value of the lira was placed at 4.677 grams of gold for each 100 lire. Gold reserves of the Bank of Italy will be revalued on the basis of the new lira with the surplus to be placed at the disposition of the treasury.

French Communists and Fascists Clash

FRANCE may be on the verge of a civil war between Communists and Fascists comparable to the terrible conflict in Spain. In Paris desperate fighting already has begun. The Reds, numbering many thousands, and the nationalists, under orders from Col. Francois de la Rocque whose Croix de Feu organization was disbanded by the government, undertook rival demonstrations; and the result was a day-long series of street battles in which hundreds were wounded. Order was finally restored for the time being by a force of 12,000 republican guards and police.

The Nationalist-rightists said the fighting "was only beginning." Troubles resulting from devaluation of the franc would be severe and numerous, they predicted. Leftists charged the battles were part of a rightist plot to provoke trouble for the Socialist government.

In London, also, there was a big riot in which a hundred persons were injured. Sir Oswald Mosley's Black Shirts, a Fascist organization, planned a parade but Communists and Socialists numbering 100,000 were determined to prevent it and battled with a big force of east end police to get at their enemies. The authorities forbade the parade as scheduled but the opposing mobs got together in various localities and fought desperately. Sir Oswald issued a statement charging that "the British government has openly surrendered to Red terror."

DRAGONS DRIVE YOU

By EDWIN BALMER

Copyright by Edwin Balmer WNU Service

The door-bell rang. Winnie lifted the big bowl to the table, and as she was, with her apron upon her, she went to the front door. "Oh!" said Winnie. "Oh." She reached for her apron and crumpled it in her thin hand...

"You are the one," said Agnes. "I wanted to see." "Me?" said Winnie. "Over him?" "Over him and myself," said Agnes...

"That's it," said Agnes; and no longer could she sit still. She arose, and Winnie arose. "He thinks I won't do it; so I came here."

"What's happened?" She faced him fair and told him. "I had a caller today, Cathal. Agnes Gleniech come to see me over ye?"

One meaning—one, and none other was possible—was declared in what Agnes Gleniech had done this day, and which Winnie had told him. Agnes had broken down the last false barrier between them; it existed in her no more.

from prison. Today, Cathal O'Mara—of no birth and background—had to refuse to take a like case. For banks in the city and about Chicago were failing; great companies and corporations could not meet their debts...

"Fools, they were; for they ate the Cattle of the Sun. Were they fools, do you think?" "What were the Cattle of the Sun?" Agnes asked. "Days?"

"North from the city, he drove; and no doubts dragged upon him. He drove, pilfering his dreams for a practical plan of that which Agnes and he—Agnes and he!—might do."

It was dark. Clouds floated below the moon, clouds of storm-buffet of concealment; but in the dark he saw her white figure before he pointed toward her. He switched off his lights and stepped down. She said no word; nor did he. He grasped her hands, speaking then her name; but his breath went from him; and she whistled.

Great Names of the City—Dropped in Dishonor.

pered there in the dark of the lawn, clinging to him: "You're here—you're here!" He released her so that she could lead him toward the lake. They descended, cautioning each other of the steps, to the shore; and no one else was near.

No lightning threatened tonight. The lake lay calm. Ripples ran up on the beach, which sighed as the sand released the wavelets and let them retreat over tiny shifting shells and stones.

"Hello, O'Mara," Bob Gleniech turned on his chair. "You came awhile ago?" "Yes, sir." The two men looked at each other; and Cathal knew that her father was well aware of why he was there. And it was Gleniech, not he, that avoided it.

"You've Ormstead now, I hear, O'Mara," Bob Gleniech said. "They've charged him with fraud—fraud and larceny too. He's taken for his private purposes, they say—to save himself—two millions. They've caught him; so he's come to you."

times, O'Mara. I feel that even the walls we built must be of paper. You came to ask me something. "Yes, sir. I want to marry Agnes. She will marry me."

"I supposed so; and I suppose, whatever I say, you're both going to do it. Well, one thing: you're not paper, O'Mara. Whatever else you are, or aren't,—you're not paper. When are you planning—this thing?"

"But, she weakened, 'can we?'" "See that great gray crag down there?" Cathal gazed into the valley. It was noonday, and they rested side by side, far up on the flank of their mountain, at the very edge of the snow-line. Above them rose rock and snow; beside them a single stout little dwarf pine clung in a cleft, a brave outpost of the forest below.

Agnes gazed at the great rock, and she followed Cathal's feeling; "Until that falls into the shadow at noon, let us stay! Then we need never count the days. Only, some day that rock will tell us that we must go."

And so they agreed on it. They were far in the west and the north, amid the mighty, majestic mountains; and for five days they had been married. (And Bob Gleniech had stood by his Light One in the service at the house of the minister.)

To be married, to take your place in the procession of life, to realize at last how you had received your life and how, if you willed, you would pass life on—that was a solemn and also an ecstatically happy situation. And there were the mountains.

Lord, that had been our dwelling-place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth. . . . Before these mountains were brought forth! For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

A thousand years ago, no one had ever dreamed of Chicago, and the forefathers of the millions in the teeming city were to beget sons and daughters and die, and they would bear children that would die through six hundred years, before a generation grew that would hear of this America. And the stock-market that now "made" or "ruined" so many men—what was it? A center of scheming through a moment of time.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for October 18 THE SPOKEN AND THE WRITTEN WORD

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1, 3-11: I Thessalonians 2:7-12. GOLDEN TEXT—The Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, Heb. 4:12.

The persecution at Philippi served not to discourage Paul and Silas, but rather to send them forward into new territory with the gospel message. Passing through two cities they came to Thessalonica, then as now a city of considerable importance.

Paul's experience at Thessalonica presents an excellent illustration of 1. How the Word should be preached (vv. 1, 5-8). This section is incomplete without verses 2-4, which are omitted from the printed portion but should be included in the study of the lesson.

Some Christians are content to remain comfortably in church and forget to go out into the highways and hedges, but there are others who have become so accustomed to going elsewhere that they neglect the opportunity for spiritual ministry in the church.

Good hearers are as important as good preachers. How should the Word be received? a. With readiness of mind (v. 11). This is a mark of nobility. The world regards the sophisticated doubter as the learned man, but he is not. Noble is the mind and heart that receives God's truth.

II. Living the Life (I Thess. 2:7-12). Paul did not contradict his preaching by his living. His was a 1. Sacrificial service (vv. 7-9). The man who preaches for his own glory—or gain—is not a true preacher of the gospel.

2. Consistent example (vv. 10-12). The minister of Christ must be a "holy, righteous, and unblemished" if his people are to "walk worthy of God."

Our Place in the World Whatever the place allotted to us by Providence, that for us is the post of honor and duty. God estimates us not by the position we are in, but by the way in which we fill it.—Tyron Edwards.

Disproportionate Votes One of the executives of King Features, who is putting out a new voting test called the Crossley Poll, explains the apportionment variation in election returns in the following language: "Each voter in Nevada counts more than 16 times as much in deciding who shall be the next President as the individual voter in the state of New York. Nevada has only 23,000 families, yet it has three electoral votes; while New York, with 138 times as many families, has but 47 electoral votes.

JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRATS

Offer Proof of Anti-New Deal Charges

We recently made charges in this paper that Mr. Roosevelt and his administration were not Democrats and had no claim to Democratic loyalty. We charged that a continuation of his administration would undermine the economy of the nation and threaten its institutions. We charged that he had opened the sluice-gates of the federal treasury, and, through Boss Farley, had Tammanized the nation. We charged that he had surrounded himself with radicals, and had more nearly discharged their radical platforms than his own. We are offering the proof of our charges through our paper, the Jeffersonian Democrat.

We reassert that we are regular Democrats. We would prefer to vote the regular ticket. But we refuse to put party loyalty above our loyalty to America. In scratching Roosevelt we violate no party pledge, for the primary ballot contained a pledge to vote for the nominees of that primary. Mr. Roosevelt's name was not on that ballot. Furthermore, the Texas law instructs the voter how to cast a mixed ballot, and the Supreme Court has upheld that right.

We ask all true Democrats to weigh the proof before voting for a continuation of government by irresponsible radicals. Unlike the New Deal, we have no ready made organization to spread our propaganda and raise money for our campaign. We will appreciate your support and whatever donations you can make us.

Write us for copies of "The Jeffersonian Democrat", and help us distribute it throughout your county.

USE COMMON SENSE IN CHOOSING LIFE PARTNER

A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

A POPULAR situation in the novels I used to read when I was a little girl was that of the beautiful heroine who was torn between love and duty in selecting a mate.

Our mothers, who belonged to the generation that strictly supervised its daughter's reading, were not enthusiastic about the novels of The Duchess.

"Ballister kisses Molly's exquisite naked throat," The Duchess would say. "Her tumbling gold hair loosens itself and blinds him in a river of perfumed silk."

It was forty long crowded years ago when my mother would pick up a copy of "Molly Bawn" or some other favorite and scornfully, patiently read some such phrase to her shamed and giggling daughters, and yet the stories of "The Duchess" have somehow remained fresh in my mind all that time; there must have been some good in them.

And that the old situation is still a new situation where maids and their hearts are involved, a letter lying on my desk this morning proves. A canny Scotch-American girl named Jeanie is in the same fix Molly was in so many years ago; two men want her, and she doesn't know which one to take.

Thomas is the comparatively young president of a rubber company; he is a splendid, reliable, admirable young man; Jeanie's father is one of his employees. Larry is at present a clerk in a Bank, but his heart is far from clerking. He writes poetry, he has great plans. He writes poetry, he has great plans. He writes poetry, he has great plans.

"I think I WOULD marry Thomas, and have it over, if it wasn't such a SENSIBLE thing to do!" confesses Jeanie. "But with my father anxious for me to do it, and my mother so delighted at the idea, and Thomas so—so darned PERFECT, I just feel like somehow jumping the traces! Tom's first wife was my dearest friend, and his little boy loves me, and THAT'S an inducement, but somehow I feel as if it would be more romantic—more thrilling, to do things against the grain, marry in spite of criticism, take a chance, go crazy for once in my life!"

This girl writes for my advice, and I'm going to give it to her, but perhaps she won't take it. Girls at her age are very apt to go a little "arty," and for a few years the easy hospitality of someone's studio—usually an unsuccessful someone, for successful artists and writers have no time for this sort of pleasant philandering—the gipsy meals and the good talk, the delightful feeling of being Bohemians, and not caring who pays for the red wine, or who is married or not married to who, is all very delightful. A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty, and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

pany stimulating—for just a few years. Then she begins to see that under the smocks and the touselled heads, under the lazy talk of socialism and letters, men are men and women are women just the same. Free love and free divorce and the Bohemian attitude of never cleaning up thoroughly and not caring, are not satisfying very long. To dismiss the possibility of children as both amusing and disgusting is shocking to the woman whose heart and soul are awakening to the miracle and the glory of them; mere physical relationships are not really uplifted by being gilded with the phrases of decadent poets.

In a Bohemian group of which I was a young, awed and pantingly grateful member many years ago there was a nice simple girl of Irish extraction named Brenda. Brenda was extremely sweet and pretty and confiding, and was easily persuaded that marriage vows were a remnant of a convention-bound age. But the day came when she had to tell her lover that she was to go through the greatest experience that ever comes to any woman. He laughed, amused and disgusted, and what he said to her burned into Brenda's honest soul.

"Servant girl talk, darling!" he said. "Am I to drive you in the dead of night to the nearest parson?" Presently Brenda appealed to a woman friend who took her to a doctor "absolutely safe."

There was another beautiful girl in the group, sixteen. Her father was a painter so modern that the world hasn't even yet caught up with him. One of his contemporaries, a jaded, vicious, drinking man with a skin of copper and a whiskey breath, liked Alice, and Alice's dreamy artistic father was not above selling her to Duke, and putting a fat check in the Bank as a result. Alice didn't stand it long; she contracted a hideous disease and took her own way out a few years later, and I lost forever whatever young illusions I had regarding these trumpery Bohemians that flourish in all cities and all groups, and destroy much that is fine and good and promising.

So my advice to Jeanie is to marry Thomas, and thank God that he is as fine as he is, and be a good wife to him and a good mother to little Bruce and to other children. She tells me he loves books and music, and that she does; there are two strong ties, and her mother's pleasure and her father's pleasure will add even more happiness to a happy life. Many a good woman of Jeanie's age would be proud to have one fine man love her, to have the prospect of a home and of his devotion; within a few years Larry's career will be all the justification she needs for turning her back now on what seems the slightly more romantic choice.

Writing poetry and being able to express himself wittily are good things in a man, but with them too often goes the tendency toward drink, and the generally careless attitude toward those obligations and manners and morals that generations of decent men and women have established.

But men and women, generations ago, discovered that nicely-cooked and served meals, clean bodies and clean clothing, beds freshly made, voices controlled, and the relationships between parents and children, husband and wife preserved with dignity and courage all meant civilization. If Jeanie is to take her place and play her part as a useful human being she really has no choice in this matter, especially as her saying that "she can't bear to hurt Tom because he has the most wonderful disposition in the world" indicates that she more than half loves Tom, and would at least feel safe with him. Whatever The Duchess would have advised forty years ago, my advice now is all for Tom, and he and his Jeanie have my best wishes.

Past Cruelty in Spain

Savage cruelty to one another is nothing new to Spain. In the 1880's in one of the many Spanish civil wars of the last century, after a battle in the streets of Madrid when many of the captured rebels were killed as examples, Queen Isabel, not satisfied, sent word to her general to kill still more of the captured.

Her general's reply is worthy of repetition: "Does the lady not understand," he said, "that if we shoot all the soldiers we catch, the blood will rise up to her own chamber and drown her?"

Household Questions

If cream or custard sauce curdles put the vessel in which it is cooking in a pan of hot water and heat well. It will soon become smooth again.

To remove lime which accumulates on the inside of a tea kettle boil a strong solution of vinegar inside of the kettle, then rinse thoroughly before putting in water.

When preparing fruit salad sprinkle bananas, peaches, pears and apples with lemon juice or marinate with French dressing as soon as they are cut. This prevents discoloration from exposure to air.

Flaked salmon and chopped cucumber pickles moistened with mayonnaise makes a tasty sandwich filling.

Sandpapering baby's shoes before they are worn prevents slipping and saves many a fall.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

"A Farmers' Life"
"As He Lives It"
By ED HOLMES
STATION C.E.H. FARM

Well I went to the Fair at Lubbock to see the sights and buy a used car but they were too high so I bought another registered bred gilt. Maybe when I sell her and the pigs I can buy a new car—I said maybe. Until then or no telling when, I'll continue to drive this 27 whippet.

Did you ever try mixing ground milo heads in a tub of water to float off the stems so as to have soaked ground thrashed grain to feed the pigs? If you will do this you will be agreeably surprised to find that you can save a threshing bill, save money on a barn to hold threshed grain and when you mix the stems and what else floats from the ground heads with your cow feed, you have added the necessary bulk to her feed. Nothing wasted and something saved.

If you have noticed that my name would be on the State Ticket as an elector for Wm Lemke, candidate for President of the United States, you were probably as surprised as I was when I heard it. I sure hope pencil marks don't poison for I am satisfied I am in for considerable scratching.

Our father died in 1911 when I was 7 years old and mother raised us kids more or less with an iron hand, to work hard and be honest. Five whippings, not little spankings was the most I remember getting in one day. There were eight of us kids raised to be grown so you see mother continued to develop an already strong constitution.

Since 1930, Alma and I and now 2 babies have worked and tried to be self supporting on this 140 acre farm, a little less than the average farm in the U. S. We were not born with a silver spoon in our mouth and of course were forced to use credit and some of God's creation to produce farm products to become self supporting.

We have gladly co-operated with every Government program because common sense will tell you that as a nation you can go farther with every dollar pulling in the same direction.

Two ways can be more prosperous on this farm, either we must receive more or cut down expenses. I think it is common sense in this world of unemployment to think more of cutting the expenses than receiving more as when we receive more, somebody pays the bill and thus takes his property.

The interest rate is our largest expense so lets see if there is some sensible way that can be reduced.

Thomas Jefferson the author of the Declaration of Independence once said, I quote: "If the American people ever allow private banks to control the issuance of their currency, first by inflation and then by deflation, the banks and corporations that will grow up around them will deprive the people of all property until their children wake up homeless on the continent their fathers conquered."

Since Jefferson's time and not so many years back private banks did get control of the issuance of our currency. Many people will read this that know their children did wake up homeless. It has already happened to some and coming to some more.

All right. When Alma and I wanted a home to enjoy some of God's Creation by making a farm produce some necessary products, we borrowed some money (with the Government stamp on it but when we pay interest, it does not go to the U. S. Government that printed the money but to private bankers that have gotten control of issuing the currency.

A minority of our Congressmen have been fighting to put this back in the hands of the Government. George Mahon, our own representative, voted for the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing Marvin Jones and the Administration which means President Roosevelt. This bill, if passed would have been the starting point in stopping private bankers from collecting the higher interest rate and starting the Government collecting a lower one from producing farmers.

For concrete facts, on this the average farm if this bill had passed we would collect through the low interest rate $115. each year. The Government would collect through the lower interest rate $60. more than the nothing it has been collecting. Private bankers would collect $175. per year less from me, or nothing!

It seems to me these figures force the argument to narrow down to producers and the Government (The People) on one side and the private interest collecting bankers on the other.

Neither Roosevelt nor Landon by their past actions of future promises offer us any hope that they will correct the evils that Thomas Jefferson warned us of.

Lemke by his past Congressional Record and future promises will get this job done.

By being honest toward the family I am trying to support and the other young fellows I know are following the same up-hill road, I will be forced to support Lemke and the Union Party for President.

Why would it be such a crime and where would the dangerous inflation come in if the Government loaned its credit money direct to the producer for a small interest rate instead of printing it for the private banks for 30 cents per thousand dollars, borrowing it back for them, paying the bank interest through the bond route then loaning the money to the producer at a higher rate to pay the entire bill?

Beside the question of debt paying interest, all other issues into the background. Any way ballot to straighten us out bullet.—Ed Holmes.
