GIE BRIEFS

by Finley R. White

When we call moisture is short of a miracle worker. Only makes wheat "shoot" it actually makes long laden out into a full field. Anyone who doubts this look at our wheat and a look at any wheat moisture received thus far Briscoe County stands right at the mark. If we strain hard in March or early April but a little more rain we have a awful good chance to another good wheat crop. Don't go spend this wheat (its harvested).

to Easter". A busy traveling hurriedly about his business, away from his home, received a letter from his wife, which he placed in his grip along with other letters, intending to read it later on. In the continued of the trip the letter escaped his hand and was unread. On his home his wife who was waiting for his things came at the unopened letter. She burst into tears. "I know you are, husband, she sobbed, but look like you're getting too to read my letters". In the activities of the twentieth century it does seem as though of us are in the same plight of God's message. We are too busy to read what he has written to us. ### GRASSHOPPER INFESTATION ANTICIPATED FOR 1938

Egg counts made by county agricultural agents and Federal and State entomologists during the fall and winter indicate that Texas may expect a severe grasshopper infestation in the late spring and early summer of 1938, according to R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

Surveys conducted by Reppert have led him to anticipate a much more severe infestation than was suffered in 1937.

In 9 counties, he expects that almost all susceptible crops will be attacked by the insects, in 7 counties half to three-fourth of the crops are endangered, in 17 counties the anticipated infestation will be from 30 to 50 percent, and in 48 counties the insects are expected to affect from 4 to 30 percent of the crop.

In addition, Reppert expects infestations of varying degrees in 23 counties in which complete surveys were not attempted. Major outbreaks are indicated in the upper Panhandle and in north and north central Texas, with probable damage in the middle valleys of the Brazos and Trinity rivers.

The control measure hinges upon putting out poisoned bait as the grasshoppers emerge, and before they have had time to spread and multiply, Reppert pointed out. The 1937 control campaign returned more than a hundred dollars for each dollar spent, and saved crops valued at more than 6 million dollars.

It is estimated that there is a probable need for 14,000 tons of bait in the 1938 control campaign, or approximately six times the amount used in 1937. Plans have already been made for the distribution, mixing, and application of this material.

SANTA FE CARLOADINGS

Santa Fe Railway System carloadings for the week ending February 26, were 17,545 compared with 19,401 cars in the same week last year. Received from connections were 4,487 car compared with 6,646 for the same week last year. Total cars moved were 22,032 compared with 26,047 in the same week of 1937. The Santa Fe handled a total of 22,349 cars in the preceding week this year.

DO YOU WANT TO JOIN THE MARINES

Often young men in civilian life, who have a desire to go to the Naval Academy and follow a career as an officer in the United States Marine Corps, find they are qualified in all respects except one; it is impossible for them to get an appointment. However, the young enlisted man in the U. S. Marine Corps finds this situation quite different for, if he can satisfy certain requirements, as to educational qualifications, age and service, he need only pass the entrance examination to be admitted to the Academy, it was pointed out here Friday, by the Officer in Charge of the Marine Corps Recruiting Office, Dallas.

Applicants for the U. S. Marine Corps are considered daily at 822 Allen Building, Dallas, and those accepted are enlisted and sent to the Marine Corps Base, San Diego, California, for training. Young men between the ages of 18 and 25, white un-married and without dependents, of good moral character, not less than 64 inches nor more than 74 inches tall and with a fair education are considered for enlistment. Applicants under 21 years of age must have written consent of parents or guardian, sworn to before a Notary Public.

Full information and application blanks are furnished on request at U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Office, 822 Allen Bldg., Dallas, or by your local Postmaster, it was stated.

JOINT BIBLE CLASS MEETS

The Methodist and Presbyterian ladies met in joint Bible study last Monday at the Methodist church with 12 members present. Mrs. W. Coffee directed the lesson which was a continuation of the parables taught by Jesus from the book of Matthew.

An interesting round table discussion of each parable was enjoyed. Mrs. Gordon Alexander will direct the next lesson which will be at the Presbyterian church the second Monday in March.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Bomar spent Wednesday in Lubbock with Mrs. Bomar's parents.

Boys Turn Pugnists To Earn Money for Sweaters

The largest crowd this writer has seen at a school program, enjoyed a night of lively entertainment of fighting, and tumbling, at the High School Tuesday night.

The program was staged for the benefit of the football sweater fund and $54.60 was taken in which will be used to pay the balance on sweaters for the 1937 football squad.

Boxing exhibitions were the highlights of the night and several good matches were staged. No decisions were given in any of the bouts. The first fight was between two bantams, Bob Brooks and Shirley Pitts. It was fast and both the little men were in there swinging every minute.

Charles Dunn and Raymond Hunt were paired off at 125 and 139 pounds respectively. Charley ran out of wind and absorbed several stiff punches. In the same weight class W. L. Perry and Bruce Burleson tangled with very little to say in favor of either. Several knockdowns this fight.

For plain slugging and plenty of it the bout between Orice Mills and Goose McGavock was top rate. Both boys were very tired boys at the last bell.

The only knockout of the evening was scored when Guinn Williamson, 97, knocked out Lewis Johnson, 180. There was something snaky about this bout. Most sport writers thought it was fixed beforehand, as young Williamson jumped on a chair and tossed the sleep producer.

As middleweights, Datis Martin and Len Lee battled away in a friendly fashion that makes one wonder what there is in friendship anyway. The first two rounds were probably Date's and the last Len's. Several knockdowns.

Buster Allard, 163, and Jimmy Blackwell, 155, tangled in a way that didn't even look friendly. Allard took the first round easily and Blackwell worked on his body the second in a way that made the round even. Blackwell took the last round by virtue of more endurance. Buster looked to be a very tired young man.

The final bout between Stud Chitty and Cranberry Allred almost deprived the Briscoe County News of a linotype operator. Very much action the first round, with Allred joining in with a flock of canaries and singing a sweet refrain that was enjoyed by the crowd very much. Less action the second round. Stud turned his head to wave at a lady friend and Allred let him have one behind the ear that caused a deep craving for smelling salts. The third round was featured by both fellows patting faces with strong punches that would have upset anyone's lipstick. The round ended with both fighters harmlessly wandering about the ring, apparently looking for a pack of cigarettes.

Cal Farley's Maverick Club staged an hour of singing, tumbling, diving and so forth by Amarillo boys from sixty pounders to 180 pounds. They were pretty good looking youngsters.

They made the trip to Silverton for their gasoline which amounted to $3.00. Mothers of the football boys furnished eats for them after their performance.

FLORAL CLUB MEETING

The Floral Club will meet Friday, March 4 with Mrs. Daniel and Mrs. Crawford in the home of Mrs. Crawford.

Mrs. Sanders will have charge of the lesson on refinishing furniture. All are asked to bring quilt scraps, needle, thread, scissors and thimble, so we can piece a quilt.

SCOUTS GO ON HIKE

Ten Boy Scouts enjoyed a day of hiking in Coon Canyon last Saturday. The boys left here at 9 o'clock with haversacks strapped to their backs and walked to the Canyon, a distance of 7 miles, arriving there at 11:30. After cooking and eating their dinner, they spent three hours exploring the Canyons and returned home by 6 o'clock. Those enjoying the outing were John Ed Bain, Jack Burleson, Guinn Williamson, Charles Quillen, Buster Harris, W. L. Perry, Rex Douglas, Bruce Burleson, Alford Allen, and Marvin Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cox of Lubbock visited last week end with Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Jackson. Mrs. Cox is a sister to Mrs. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Allday and two children from Merkel moved here this week. They are living in the Floyd Woods house in the east part of town. He will be connected with Mr. Douglas Northcutt in the oil business.

Clay Plant In Operation

$20,000 Clay Plant Coming Up To Expectations

The new $20,000 clay plant which was built here this year was finished last week and is working full time now. The firm name has been changed to the Silverton Clay and Products Company, according to J. L. Webb, manager of the concern.

The new equipment was started up for the first time last week and for several days worked under considerable difficulty, owing to the wet weather and to making adjustments on the new machinery. This week, however, things have been ironed out and the plant is running smoothly, turning out about a car of finished clay a day. Twelve men are at work, with two more on the trucks. The old plant is out of production temporarily, but will be opened up again soon.

The new plant is a real outfit. The clay is dumped from the trucks into huge pits on the outside of the building and is carried by elevator to bins above. From these bins the clay is fed out to the grinder, regulated by photo-cell light, to another elevator, which carries it to the top of the building where it starts down through screens, of varying meshes. It is separated and sent to the loading bins where it is sacked and loaded on the car. Each car averages about 1,000 100-lb. bags.

Mr. Webb is well pleased with the work being done by his new plant and says that every month brings new calls for the finished product from new refinery customers. He hopes to have more men at work as the season advances, and will probably work two shifts of men a day.

LIBRARY NOTES

"The Prodigal Parents"

By Sinclair Lewis

If you are a father or a mother with young or grown-up children; if you are a young man or a young woman looking into the bewildering world beyond the shelter of parents or college; if you are curious about human problems to day—Sinclair Lewis' new novel will absorb you and entertain you with his genius for dramatizing thoughts that are on the threshold of every mind, he writes with affectionate sympathy of the problems of the successful man of fifty-five, his son and daughter, his wife, his business.

Fred Wm. Cornplow, shrewd middle-class realist, gradually wakes to find that his children think of him as intellectually obsolete, as a convenience, as a walking bank account, to whom they need return neither affection nor thoughtfulness. He finds that his wife, Hazel, loves him as he loves her but that she is their ally. He discovers through the intrusion into his own life of a family of shiftless relatives and of a young girl far too good to love his son, that he has to look for the first time clearly into his own heart and mind. He has to make a decision about himself and the people he has loved all his life. That decision and his escape from eternal servitude make a novel that stands beside "Main Street", "Babbitt" and "Dodsworth". There are a million bewildered Fred and Hazel Cornplows and their demanding sons and daughters in America to day.

"The Prodigal Parents" looks into their minds, strikes savagely at times with all Sinclair Lewis' irony at stupidity and malice, but always with the saving grace of tenderness and humor.

Those from here who visited Albert White in the Lubbock Sanitarium last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. H. Roy Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buchanan and son, Taylor Williamson, Alton Strickland, Roberta McMurtry and members of the immediate family. Mrs. White returned home Sunday, she had been with Albert since his operation Thursday morning.

Kelsay and Sherman Re-elected for Another Term

Opposes R. E. Douglas, in His First Political Race

The Briscoe County News this week brings to you the announcement of Mr. Keltz Garrison, who is asking that you consider him for the office of County and District Clerk.

Keltz, as he is known to everyone is another candidate who is strictly a Briscoe County Product, as he has made his home here all of his life. He graduated from the Silverton High School, and has spent two years at Texas Tech in Lubbock. For the past three years he has been employed at the County Agent's office here. It's very few farmers in Briscoe County who don't know him well enough to say "Hi Keltz", when they see him across the street.

This is his first venture into politics, although he has had considerable experience in clerical work of various kinds. Here's his personal message to you:

In making my announcement for the office of County and District Clerk, I just want to say that, I've lived in Briscoe County all my life, went to Briscoe County schools, married a Briscoe County girl,—in other words I'm a home fellow, asking for an office that I feel well qualified to hold.

I've had three years of detailed work in the County Agent's office; however, this is the first time that I have been in a political race.

If I am elected, I'll make just one promise, and that is, "I'll handle the office in a business-like manner, and do the best I possibly can, with your help and cooperation." That's my platform, on which I am asking for your vote and support. I'll be seeing you personally soon.

Yours sincerely,
Keltz Garrison

PIMIENTO BISQUE

THE soup described below is delicious. It has a delectable flavor and the rich color of the pimientos gives just the desired red touch to the finished product.

- 1 can cream of celery soup
- 1 cup milk
- 3 pimientos
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 slices of onion
- 1/4 tsp. paprika

If canned condensed soup is used, prepare according to directions on the label and then add 1 cup of milk. If canned ready-to-serve cream of celery soup is used, pour the contents into a pan and add the cup of milk. Rub the pimientos through a sieve and add to the soup. Add salt, onion and paprika and heat until the soup is hot. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Remove the onion before serving. Serves 6.

What Is Proper Use of Furniture Polish?

In a recent investigation, it was proven that many, many homemakers use furniture polish incorrectly—pouring it on a dry cloth, for application to the furniture! This is a gross waste of the housewife's time, energy and her polish! And the latter is usually blamed. We refer, of course, to oil polish—for this type is best to clean, beautify and preserve the furniture. The best oil polish is not greasy, because it's made with a fine, light-oil base. The polish should be applied on a damp cloth—thoroughly moistened with water, then wrung out. Saturate this cloth with the polish—spread on—and rub lightly. The "wet" of the cloth smoothly distributes the polish—and the finish absorbs, receives it evenly! This correct procedure takes the "labor" out of polishing—and requires far less tiresome rubbing! A dry cloth is then used to easily work up the glow, which is even and uniform—the desired effect! This—and only this—is the proper way to use a good oil polish!

Conquering "Hazard Zones"

Picture Parade

On a hundred battlefronts, scientists seek ways of combating hidden dangers that menace health and happiness—the unconquered "hazard zones" of everyday life. Prof. John M. Lessells of Massachusetts Institute of Technology (left) and Dr. Miller McClintock of Harvard university's traffic research bureau, declare rainy, slippery pavements are the "hazard zone of motoring." Professor Lessells, authority on friction, believes he can eliminate this evil by—in effect—placing a battery of windshield wipers under the car!

Above photo illustrates the "hazard zone of motoring." But every other phase of everyday life has its "hazard zones," a few of which are illustrated below. How many can you identify? Answers given by number below.

"Hazard zones" explained: (1) the "hazard zone" affecting millions of children improperly reared in metropolitan slum districts; (2) the "hazard zone" of floods, still unconquered despite great engineering progress; (3) the "hazard zone" of medicine, the common cold from which no one is yet immune; (4) baseball's "hazard zone," the pitch that sometimes hits a batter, like it hit Mickey Cochrane last year; and (5) the "hazard zone" of fire fighting, rural areas out of the fire apparatus' range.

Another "hazard zone," undeclared war. Example: "Panay" sinking.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for March 6

SERVING WITH WHAT WE HAVE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Such as I have give I thee.—Acts 1:4. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus went home to Nazareth. JUNIOR TOPIC—On a Journey for Jesus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving With What We Have. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Serving With What We Have.

One of the difficulties we mortals face in dealing with spiritual things is that we interpret things in the realm of the spirit according to the principles and measurements of the physical world. We are quick to say "We cannot" on the basis of logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God operative on our behalf would enable us to say "We can," and having left God out of our thinking we find that indeed we cannot.

The lesson before us presents two pictures from our Lord's second visit to his home country, Nazareth. On His first visit they had tried to thrust Him over the precipice, and He in all the glory and poise of the Son of God had walked through their midst and gone His way. Now He comes again with His disciples. We then see how His home folk virtually made the power of the omnipotent God impotent because of their unbelief. On the other hand we see the weakness of men made mighty because of obedience to the command of God.

I. The Paralysis of Unbelief (vv. 1-6).

The world, the flesh, and the devil have brought forth a dark list of wicked things, but perhaps the most destructive and distressing of all is the foundation sin of unbelief. When we think back to the underlying reason for any sin or weakness in man it will be found that there is a failure to believe God. Men do not believe what He says about sin and its penalty, nor do they believe Him when He offers them grace and strength for victory.

At Nazareth the unbelief which limited the Son of God revealed itself in two questions—

1. "Whence hath this man these things?" (v. 2). They could not deny His mighty works so they turn their attack on His person. "Is not this the carpenter?" (v. 3). Essentially this was envy, "the difficulty of acknowledging the superiority over themselves of one of their own number" (Morgan).

We are ashamed of the attitude of the men of Nazareth, but we follow in their footsteps. Heavy among the burdens a Christian worker must bear is the unbelief and ridicule of his own people. Because a man has sold us groceries, or painted our house or driven a taxi in our town we cannot see how he could ever be a preacher or a missionary. Well, he can, and it is such folk that God often calls. 2. "What is this wisdom?" (v. 2). The wisdom of Jesus was the wisdom of God (John 7:16). But how could they know that? How can we know? In John 7:17 Jesus gave the answer: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." We see then that the reason for their unbelief was really an unwillingness to do the will of God. The controlling motive of their life was wrong. Had they been moved by a desire to do God's will, and a purpose to live in accordance therewith (even though there might have been failure in that earnest effort), they would have known that Jesus had His wisdom from God.

The principle is just as true today; no man will long be in doubt who really wants to do God's will in his life.

II The Power of Divine Commission (vv. 7-13).

Just as unbelief hinders even the Son of God, so faith in God and obedience to His command makes of weak and poorly equipped men the mighty servants of God. In fact, their very dependence on Him for all things sets them free to devote themselves fully to the ministry of preaching and healing.

Note that they went "two by two." We have forgotten that divine plan, and often send men into remote and dangerous pioneer work—alone. Man needs fellowship; he needs counsel and control.

Consider also how they were to learn to trust God for their daily sustenance (vv. 8,9). They suffered no lack (see Luke 22:35). These rules for the life of religious workers were modified later (Luke 22:36), but the principle remains the same—the man or woman who is not ready to depend on God for everything had better not set out to follow Him. It is a blessed and delightful life!

The same is true of the power given the disciples. They ministered in the days of beginning of the Gospel and God gave them special powers which are not needed in our day. But it is still true that the power for service which we so much need today must come from God. All our labors are in vain without His blessing. "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it" (Ps. 127:1).

TIPS to Gardeners

Seed Treatment

SEEDS are sometimes treated to hasten germination or to combat disease. The following practices are recommended by Harold N. Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Institute.

For more rapid germination: Chip or nick the seed coat of the following flower seeds: Lathyrus (perennial sweet pea), the lupins, moonflower, all morning glories, and annual sweet peas. Be careful not to damage the interior of the seed.

Remove the tough outer shell of abronia (sand verbena), castor bean, nasturtium, and momordica.

Soak the following flower seeds in water for 12 hours: Canna lily, Job's tears, sweet pea, all morning glories, and momordica.

For preventing disease:

Soak the following vegetable seeds in hot water at exactly 122 degrees F. for precisely 30 minutes to combat black rot and black leg: Broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower and collards.

Make it up in a pretty, small-sized printed percale, and trim it with rows of old-fashioned rick-rack.

Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way

WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub. It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no dosing—no risk of spoiling appetite, or disturbing a delicate digestion. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child. You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to begin...

Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning, the worst of the cold is over.

VICKS VAPORUB

Citizenship
A natural born citizen of the United States does not lose his citizenship by living abroad, no matter how long he stays there, unless he renounces it by becoming naturalized in the country of his choice.

BE SURE OF YOUR SEEDS

YOUR seeds need not be one of the uncertainties of gardening, thanks to the work of the unique Ferry-Morse Seed-Breeding Institute. Here's how the Institute's seed experts produce dependable, prize-winning Ferry's Seeds:

First—seed stocks are perfected by generations of breeding and selecting to develop desired characteristics and to eliminate weaknesses.

Second—every year, before Ferry's Seeds are packeted, 50,000 tests for germination are made—and samples are tested for truthness to type.

Choose vegetable and flower seeds you can be sure of—from the Ferry's Seeds display in your favorite store. These seeds have been selected as suitable to your locality. 5c a packet and up. Ferry-Morse Seed Co., Detroit, San Francisco.

I LOOKED INTO MY crystal ball this morning and see nothing at all to write about. Not even anything to gripe about. And can't gripe, things are running pretty smoothly. John Thorns actually hints that I'm a real dyed-in-the-wool chronic griper.

WHICH REMINDS ME of a little story I'm going to tell on that gentleman, whenever I find out just how touchy he is on that English brogue.

THAT FIGHT NIGHT they staged this week was pretty good. Some of these old kids act like they really like to fight. And when they got through mauling each other they grinned and ran out together. Boxing is great stuff for the self control.

SHERMAN WAS THE referee and according to what I heard about one bout wasn't very fair. It was the one between Stud Chitty and Cranberry (the great) Allred. Some wag hollered and told Cranberry to "get in there, he ain't a hurtin' you"—and Cranberry hollers back, "Well take this darn Sherman out of here then for there's somebody besting my ears down."

SEVERAL OF THE boys are going to Flomot next week and test themselves in the manly art of self defense. Remember the old Bible saying boys, "It's better to give than to receive."

BOY, OH, BOY, for the life of a South Texan. Just heard from the Blockers. They were in Old Mexico and had just been to a bull fight. Joe should have been right at home—he's not bad at throwing the bull himself. Tell me Joe, do they have to pin the bull's shoulder to the mat?

MRS. KIRK SAYS she is having a sign painted for the cafe—"Don't be a piker. Spit on the ceiling—anyone can spit on the floor."

KELTZ GARRISON announced this week for County and District Clerk. It's his first stab at a political office. I've did my best for both the Clerk candidates—ran the announcement, took the ten bucks, and told them both that I hoped they'd win.

SIDELIGHTS

By Mervyn Jones
Member of Congress from Texas

Interest is being revived in legislation to take the profits out of war. The Military Affairs Committee of the House now has legislation of this character under consideration.

It was my privilege more than fifteen years ago to make a speech in the House of Representatives urging that legislation along these lines be enacted. So far as I know, it was the first speech made on that subject in the House.

Many men made money during the World War. The morning after war was declared, the munitions makers and those engaged in making the essentials of war were much better off financially than they were the night before. The values of their stock and properties had been greatly enhanced by that declaration. On every side, men made money out of contracts with the Government. The Government could not stop to haggle over prices. The securing of supplies in that momentous time was far more important than the price.

Young men were drafted for the military and naval service. Why should not the same method have been used with reference to the property and plants of those engaged in the manufacture of the supplies essential to the waging of that war? A law should be enacted now, to be automatically operative upon the declaration of war, whereby when young men are drafted, munitions plants and factories making war supplies should be subject to draft on the Nation's own terms, just as is the manhood of the country.

Such a plan in my judgment, do more to promote peace than any other so-called peace proposals.

Tax Exempt Securities
Interest is also being shown in abolishing tax exempt securities. For many years I have advocated hat both the nation and the several states stop the issuance of such obligations. Several years ago, I introduced an amendment to the Constitution that would do away with the further issuance of securities of this kind. I believe that the adoption of such a policy would be helpful in many ways.

I feel that this situation would be much improved if the Government would control its own currency and credit by taking over and operating the twelve Federal Reserve Banks or a central bank of issue. There is no doubt of the authority of the Congress to coin money and regulate the value thereof. In fact, this is made the specific power of the Congress by the Constitution. While this legislation is handled by committees with which I am not connected, I have repeatedly urged that this course be taken.

Crop Loans
Provision has been made, and the funds are now available, for crop and feed loans. While these loans are not made in large amounts, they have proved very helpful in financing farmers who are in need of credit to make their current crops. A very large percentage of these loans is repaid in the country as a whole the losses have been very small, and great assistance has been rendered in this manner.

National Forest Lag
Ranking first in many things, Texas slips a long way down the ladder to twenty-fourth place in national forests. There are only 614,000 acres of National Forest land in this state, as compared to more than 19,000,000 acres in California, Idaho and Alaska.

FUEHRER STIRS EUROPE

Demands Colonies, Threatens Czechs and Says Germany Doesn't Fear War . . . Anthony Eden Resigns

Chancellor Hitler delivering the sensational speech in which he defied the world, declaring Germany was not afraid of war. Above him is seen General Goering. This is a radiophoto from Berlin.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Hitler Defies the World

POLITICAL turmoil spread over Europe after Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, in an address to the reichstag, declared his intention to make Germany one of the most powerful nations in the world, gave warning that it was re-arming and did not fear war though it desired peace, and demanded the return of Germany's lost colonies. Furthermore, Hitler upheld the aggressive actions of Italy and Japan, and asserted that Germany would not tolerate ultimate victory of the loyalist faction in Spain over Franco's rebel forces.

Adolf Hitler

The fuhrer told with gratification of his success in compelling Chancellor Schuschnigg to give the Austrian Nazis representation in his cabinet and to permit them to act as a political party. He gave no assurance that the independence of Austria would be preserved. He openly threatened similar action against Czechoslovakia unless the Germans in that country were granted "political liberty."

Hitler's speech might be summarized as a declaration that Germany will ignore Great Britain, France and other western powers in carrying out her international policies, will continue her efforts to destroy the last vestiges of the general settlement which followed the World war; will insist that the "have not" nations must be restored to a basis of equality with the "have" powers, and is prepared to defy any combination of powers which may be formed against her.

Here are some of the other things Hitler told the reichstag: Germany refuses to accept "credits or other promises" in substitution for the colonies taken from her by the treaty of Versailles.

Reports of dissension between the Nazi hierarchy and the Reichswehr are "nonsense" and in his new role as supreme commander of the Reich's armed forces he has decided to "strengthen the army to prevent the menace of war."

Germany's relations with Great Britain can not be improved so long as British statesmen and newspapers attempt to meddle with what the Reich regards as its own internal affairs.

Germany has no intention of returning to the League of Nations.

Halifax Succeeds Eden

REFUSING to go along with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in his plans to "buy" a friendly settlement with Germany and Italy, Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary who has fought the ambitions of European dictators for two years, resigned from the cabinet. With him went Viscount Cranborne, the principal foreign undersecretary. Viscount Halifax was appointed to succeed Eden temporarily. This change was in effect another triumph for Hitler, was especially regretted by France, and threatened to precipitate a serious crisis for the British government.

Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council and former viceroy of India, is a personal friend of Hitler and an insistent advocate of immediate friendship with Germany and Italy, even at the cost of great concessions by Britain. He was sent to Berlin not long ago to talk over matters with the Nazi leaders.

Eden told the house of commons he had resigned rather than with Italy in the face of Mussolini's "rife, hostile propaganda" against Britain and Italy. Chamberlain boldly told the house of commons that his government would begin negotiations with Italy at once in hopes of obtaining a friendly settlement. He put forward a four-power peace plan designed to eliminate the dangers of war in Europe. As members of the pact, he advocated Germany, Italy, France, and Britain.

Chamberlain went to Buckingham palace and gave King George his account of the events leading up to Eden's resignation, and then summoned Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, to a conference. With them were Halifax and Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs. It was learned that the break between Chamberlain and Eden came to a climax a few days before when Grandi and the prime minister had a conference concerning the basis on which negotiations might be opened for a general understanding between London and Rome. Some British leaders feel that agreement with Mussolini for Mediterranean security would give Britain a stronger hand in dealing with Germany on the question of colonies.

French Worried

PREMIER CHAUTEMPS and other high French officials saw, in Hitler's words concerning German minorities in other lands a definite threat against Czechoslovakia, a military ally of France, whose security the French are bound to defend. There are about 3,000,000 Germans in that country.

From Prague, the Czech capital, came word that Czechoslovakia would not even negotiate with Germany regarding autonomy for those Germans and would not yield to coercion as did Austria. Officials said that if negotiations are Hitler's aim, they would be regarded as "infringement of Czechoslovakia's sovereignty, and therefore not acceptable."

As for the prospective British-Italian agreement, the French government was fearful that Chamberlain's overtures to Mussolini would take a course that France could not follow without risk of alienating its own Socialist and Communist elements. The government, however, was determined to keep unbroken its close relations with Britain.

For Price Increases

BEFORE going to Hyde Park for a short vacation, President Roosevelt announced two moves designed to restore prosperity. He declared the administration's economic policies are being directed toward a limited increase in prices, to be achieved without inflation or any substantial increase in the cost of living.

He ordered the Reconstruction Finance corporation to renew its lending to industry and the railways. The President specifically mentioned farm prices as needing to be increased. On the other hand, he said certain other prices, such as those in the building industry, have remained at a high level for the last few years.

No specific monetary action is contemplated to increase those considered too low, he added.

Earle Wants Toga

GOV. GEORGE H. EARLE of Pennsylvania announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, standing on his record as governor and continued support of the Roosevelt administration.

"If elected a member of the senate, I shall continue my services on behalf of the principles which have marked the Roosevelt administration and my own administration in Harrisburg," Earle said.

NEW YORK—A bequest of $1,000,000, left to Harvard university by Mrs. Agnes Wahl Nieman, will make it possible for newspaper men to go to school at Harvard.

Scribes Get Free Course at Harvard

It might be better if they would go to school to John Stewart Bryan, handsome, fluent, and erudite head of the committee which will pick the candidates for the Harvard sabbatical years.

Mr. Bryan is publisher of the Richmond News-Leader and president of the College of William and Mary. He talks rapidly and interestingly on poetry, politics, history, philosophy, the classics and humanities. If Mrs. Nieman had engaged him to do $1,000,000 worth of traveling and talking to newspaper men, instead of giving the money to Harvard, the light shed in the dark caverns of journalistic minds surely would have matched any possible Harvard effulgence. And, like Erasmus, Mr. Bryan loves to travel and talk.

The glow in Mr. Bryan's own mind was imparted partly by Harvard and partly by the University of Virginia. Of the southern aristocrat, he practiced law in Richmond and then engaged with his father, the late Joseph Bryan, in energetic co-management of the family newspaper, then the Richmond Times. The elder Mr. Bryan had established a tradition of independence which his son has maintained.

With the passing of such free-swinging journalists as Halstead Greely, Watter-son, and, more recently, Fremont Older, Mr. Bryan remains one of the few distinguished exemplars of that kind of spark-plug journalism.

Example of Spark Plug Journalist

He was president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association from 1926 to 1928.

Sixty-six years old, he still keeps up with his horse-manship, taking all the jumps until a few years ago.

He is caught up in an incredible whirl of directorates, public and civic posts, clubs, philanthropies and social and political activities—all with time to talk.

MME. PAUL DUPUY, whose French chateau is now occupied by the duke and duchess of Windsor, was the first publisher to introduce American comic strips in France. The French liked the comics, but they wouldn't take the columnists. Mme. Dupuy found they liked to do their own interpreting and shied away from omniscience in all forms.

She is the American-born widow of Paul Dupuy. When M. Dupuy died in 1927, he left in her hands the biggest string of newspapers and magazines in France.

In the French tradition, in which the widow quietly assumes command of the cafe or shop, she picked up the vast publishing business, managing it at first from a sickbed, as she was convalescing from a long illness.

The publications included the Daily Petit Parisien, with a circulation of 1,800,000; Dimanche Illustré, a Sunday newspaper in which Mme. Dupuy introduced the first Sunday supplement in France; La Science et la Vie, comparable to the Scientific American; Omnia, an automobile journal; Le Republicain des Hautes-Pyrenees, a provincial daily; Nos Loisirs, a women's magazine; Agriculture Nouvelle, a weekly, and several others.

Mme. Dupuy was Helen Browne, blonde and beautiful daughter of William H. and Mary C. Browne of New York. She attended the Anne Browne school for young ladies at 715 Fifth avenue, New York. Studying in Paris, she met M. Dupuy, son of the founder of the Petit Parisien.

They were married in 1907 and have two sons and a daughter, the Princess de Polignac. For many years, their marriage has been cited as one ideal international romance—a bit of background which is, no doubt, of interest to the duke and duchess as they move into her charming old Chateau de la Maye, near Versailles.

Dog Nips Traffic Policeman While a policeman on traffic duty in Buenos Aires, Argentina, was calmly directing cars and politely answering pedestrians' questions, a dog appeared apparently from nowhere, jumped up and bit him severely on the wrist. The canine had touched an electric light cable blown down by a storm, and frightened by the shock had attacked the nearest "enemy," which happened to be the policeman.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—Small movie exhibitors are hoping for action now that the bill of Sen. Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia to stop block booking and blind selling has been favorably reported by a senate committee. Although the house hasn't done anything on it yet, definite action seems probable unless it gets lost in the shuffle. The independent exhibitors have been telling congress that they are under constant criticism, are losing money and losing their show houses.

Testifying before a senate committee in favor of the Neely bill, the little theater men lay all their troubles on "the big eight." They mean the eight big motion picture producers. The big eight owns about all the big chain theaters. Each year the producers make a few good pictures and a lot of pictures which are not so good. They reserve the good films for their "affiliated" theaters and force the rest on the little independent men, according to the latter's complaint.

This is how they do it, the little exhibitors say. The producers draw up a year's contract in which the little exhibitor agrees to take a certain group or "block" of pictures. In the block are listed two or three first-class films, to be made by good directors and competent players. The rest are merely labeled class A, B, C. The contracting exhibitor never sees them. In order to get any good films at all he must take a lot of stuff he doesn't want. Even a variety of news and other shorts, loaded with free advertising for women's wear and summer and winter resorts, goes with the lot. This method of doing business is called "compulsory block booking and blind selling."

For several years the independent exhibitors have been fighting the "BB and BS." They've had several bills before congress, and have lodged numerous complaints with the Department of Justice. But something always prevents action.

Subverts Morals

The neighborhood exhibitors contend that a huge motion picture monopoly subverts the morals of the nation by making racket pictures and sex pictures, when they could just as well make quality film. High-class pictures, they contend, have proved entertaining to the intelligentsia and the rank and file alike.

The "big eight" has two answers to the charges. More or less privately its claim is that the profit it makes from the not so good pictures is necessary to support the high-grade pictures. There would be none of the good if it weren't for the bad, in other words. And publicly, every time the little men go to Washington and start making things hot, the big men announce a new set of reforms, and suggest some more conferences.

Meanwhile in North Dakota the independent exhibitors' group got a law passed prohibiting the showing of pictures by theaters which belong to the producer that made the pictures. Paramount, which is strong in that region, is suing the governor and the attorney general, but the little fellows are swarming like hornets to help the state win.

Last Naval Resort

Suicide squadrons of high-speed torpedo boats, to be steered by human pilots head-on against enemy ships, are boasted by Germany and Italy. England probably has them too. Buried in Admiral Leahy's testimony before the United States congress in favor of a mightier navy is mention of a $15,000,000 item for experimentation with small destroyers. The admiral declined to discuss the matter. Naval observers would like to know if this country too will call for a volunteer death squadron.

In time of peace, definitely no. It would be against the glory and tradition of the United States navy. The suicide boats, say navy men, are the unshamed last resort of an inferior sea power. The mere admission of the existence of such devices is the admission of the fear of defeat. Sending men to certain death, for any cause whatever, is a barbarity wholly repugnant to the navy.

And navy men maintain that the torpedo boats are impractical. The United States fleet will fight its battles far out at sea, perhaps 2,000 miles. The sleds could not be used in usually choppy open water. In Europe, where sea fighting will be at close quarters, it's a different story.

But in the heat of war involving us, no one can say what might be done. If an enemy fleet should succeed in reaching our shores, it would be imperative to attack it with the most destructive weapons obtainable. A few dozen or a few score men sacrificed in torpedoes, made more deadly with human minds and eyes, would seem to be a low price to pay for victory in the face of national disaster.

Human Sacrifice

Would men volunteer for a work of such hopeless finality? Opinion is they would particularly if stirred

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Hell Underground" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Here's a detective who had a hobby. And because he had a hobby, he caught a man. And because he caught a man, he came mighty darned near losing his life. The way I've set that down makes it sound a little like that nursery favorite of yours and mine, "The House That Jack Built." But as a matter of fact, it's "The Story That Jack Told." Fellow Adventurers, meet Jack Shea of New York City. And listen to the yarn he's going to spin us.

In the spring of 1922, Jack was working for a well-known detective agency. He told me the name, but he wants me to leave it out, because—well—detective agencies don't like too much publicity about the cases they handle. This agency sent him out on a case for which he was specially adapted.

Jack's hobby is fungi—you know, mushrooms, toadstools and the like. The job he was to do was to run down a fellow named Fritz—last name also omitted by request—a fellow six feet two inches tall, light complexion, military bearing and—like Jack—interested in fungi.

Found His Man in a Michigan Mine.

Jack traced Fritz to an address in Camden, N. J., and from there to St. Louis, Mo. From there the trail led through Chicago, Milwaukee, Hancock, Mich., and finally ended in Calumet, Mich., where Jack was that Fritz was working in a copper mine called the Quincy shaft.

It was the spring of 1923, a year after he had started, when he finally got to the same town his man was in. But still he didn't know what the man looked like. He got a job as assistant timekeeper at the mine and began looking the miners over.

Then, one day, Jack found a bed of fungi down in the mine shaft. He picked up a handful of them and carried them to the surface. He tried them around until he saw a man who answered Fritz's general description eyeing the fungi with interest. He stopped Jack and told the species was poisonous and shouldn't be eaten. Then Jack was pretty sure he had his man spotted.

Ready to Bring It Down on Jack's Cranium.

Jack stood talking to the man for a while. They got along great because they had a common interest. Before they parted they made an appointment to go down into the mine on the following Sunday to look for fungi. They took one of the stationary engineers into their confidence and he agreed to lower them down in a mine car.

Down 7,200 Feet Into the Earth.

That Sunday they met at the mine entrance at 10:30 a. m. The stationary engineer—a fellow named Barry—was there, too. They climbed into the car and were soon at the bottom, 7,200 feet below the surface.

"We explored the bottom of the mine for about a quarter of a mile," says Jack, "with carbide lamps on our hats and wearing rubber coats. The temperature was about a hundred degrees, since the farther you go down the warmer and more humid it gets. When we had been there about twenty-five minutes and had found a few specimens of fungus, we returned to the car for the trip back.

"As we got into the car I noticed a copper ingot lying on the floor and wondered how it got there. Those ingots weigh about forty pounds apiece and come in a size that can be conveniently stacked along the railroad sidings for shipment. I took the top seat, way up in the front of the car. Fritz took the second seat from the rear end where the buttons which signalled the engineer were attached. The car started moving and went half way up the slope, drawn by the metal cable from above. Then it stopped suddenly. I didn't know it then, but Fritz halted it with a signal."

He Was About to Brain Jack.

When the car stopped Jack turned to look at Fritz. That move saved his life. For there was Fritz, the copper ingot in his hands, holding it high above his head, ready to bring it down on Jack's own cranium. Somehow he had found out that Jack was a detective out to get him—and he was going to get Jack first if he could.

"I ducked," says Jack, "and the ingot hit me a glancing blow on my left shoulder. I was stunned for a minute, nevertheless. My sense of time, but I must have fought on automatically, for when I came to again I found myself half out of the car gripping the edge with my fingers. Fritz was trying to break my grip and throw me over the side.

"Usually I carried a small automatic revolver, but this time I had orders to bring my man back alive and hence carried a different kind of weapon. It was a .25 caliber gun loaded not with ordinary bullets but a cartridge that carried a chemical compound instead of a bullet. When it heated it flowed over the flesh in a good imitation of blood. I got that gun out and fired it. It gave a loud report and sprayed Fritz's hands with the concoction. When he saw that he said, 'Stop—I'm shot' and gave up the battle."

Fritz didn't know he actually hadn't been shot until he was back on ground level again and Jack had him safely locked up in a mine shaft room. Later he was taken to the local jail and, later still, extradited to the state that wanted him for trial. "He was sentenced to jail for twenty years at hard labor," says Jack, "but that doesn't half make for the forty years' growth he scared me out of."

Royal Dreams Typified by Palms

The desire of every man to be a king is typified by Rio de Janeiro's great number of royal palms. Dom Joao, king at the beginning of the Nineteenth century, had planted the first seed of the royal palm himself and ruled that the tree was to be exclusively his. To preserve his monopoly he ordered every seed from it gathered up and burned, but the residents of Rio who wanted to imitate royalty bribed his slaves to sell the seeds. As a result royal palms soon sprang up everywhere.

Deep-Red Rubies From Siam

Many of the best rubies have been found in Siam in the provinces of Krat and Chantaboon, where are located the principal ruby mines of that country. The stones are usually found in detrital matter about 20 feet below the surface. The ruby-bearing gravel is less than a foot in thickness and lies between a clay bed and a heavy covering of coarse sand. The usual color of the Siam rubies is dark red, running almost to a blackish shade of .

Doulton Ware

Doulton ware was non-existent in the early years of the Nineteenth century. The pottery works were established by John Doulton of Vauxhall in 1815. It was afterwards carried on by Doulton and Watts who some years later transferred to High Street, Lambeth, England. The application of art to pottery by the Doulton company began in 1820 and during succeeding years the art was gradually perfected.

ving 20 minutes they listened round while she talked. At first Margarida Fonseca seemed a volcano on the verge of eruption; while she protested with a volume of startling volume, to no avail did she deign to clear her brow, her clenched fists, a gleam of admiration in her eyes and at last the Joyce had seen only one transformed her expression.

felt. What though the voice of the preacher was the voice of habit, precise in intonation, humdrum in intent; it could not lessen the surge of emotion which took possession of the hearts of his hearers, choked their throats and turned dry eyes luminous. To the sight of the men and the woman present and in the sight of God no longer were Joyce and Dirk arrayed in whipcord and saddle-stained moleskin, nor yet in silk or broadcloth. They were clothed in light, their faces bathed in a glory from within which presaged a devotion beyond any that lips alone can pledge.

The ambassador put his arm around Joyce, kissed her and stood looking down into her eyes. "My dear, I've never given away a sweeter bride to a more lovable boy." He turned his head to look at Dirk. "What now?" he asked. "When do you intend to return to your job?"

"That's up to Joyce, sir," said Dirk. "I've married her. I mean the whole of me has married her."

"No more than I'd give to have for a friend," said Joyce from her heart. "Oh, Margarida, please my friend."

"No," said Margarida, tossing her gray mane of hair. "Impossible I detest you gringos—all of you and all you stand for. Your utterable pride in dynamics as true and only end of man! Your labels on everything pertaining to the soul! You jeer at our eyes' market; what about your eyes, weighing gold against bush- of injured hearts? I could go on an hour, but enough is enough. The end we'd have to arrive at truth. I love you, chica, my little one, and I've always wished I might have a tiger just your size for you. You're adorable."

Dirk's telephoning from the embassy now bore fruit. Pablo entered and whispered to him, withdrew and a minute later came back accompanied by a respectable though threadbare individual. The newcomer seemed nervous, at odds with his surroundings and the company in which he found himself. He had the look of a man whose world has yanked from under him, leaving him floating in air out of reach of help from heaven or hell. He regarded the ambassador, Joyce and even Margarida Fonseca's resting presence with lackluster eyes, then turned to Dirk.

"I'm the Reverend Ellerton," he announced in the ghostly voice. "I understand you sent for me, Mr. Van Suttart, but I'm at all sure—not at all sure—"

"Sit down, sir," said Dirk, "and let's talk the thing over. This is more or less a family gathering. The ambassador isn't an ambassador this afternoon; he's acting as father. As for Licenciada Margarida Fonseca, one of the highlights of the Mexican girl, she's a very dear friend of the girl whom I wish to marry, Miss Joyce Sewell. Surely you'll help us out."

"That's the trouble," said the lost soul doubtfully. "I don't have to tell you, do I? My charge is gone, have no rights, civil or otherwise scarcely the right to live. I'm on sufferance. That's what I mean. I'm not at all sure—"

"Are you in good standing with your church at home?" broke in the ambassador.

"I don't follow you," said the ambassador testily. "Send a battalion to keep her in," continued the general with slow emphasis. "In short, the president suggests that the government support the Mexican-born senorita Joyce Sewell in the lawful possession of her property, subject only to such restrictions as the national law provides, by every means in the power of the republic. As a first step he has directed me to dispatch at once a sufficient force for the capture of General Dorado—bandit, bootlegger of illicit gold, and purloiner of a battery of howitzers."

"Directed you?" asked the ambassador with emphasis on the pronoun. "Why not General Onelia?" "Ah, Onelia. The president ordered his instant arrest, simultaneously with my reappointment as minister of war. Incidentally, the traitor is no more."

"You mean Onelia's dead?" cried the ambassador. "Through his own fault," asserted General Sebastiano sorrowfully, "and only in the last half-hour." Then he added in explanation, "our regrettable national habit of ley de fuga—shot while attempting to escape from his guards."

Margarida advanced with hand extended. "Mr. Minister," she rumbled, "let me be the first to congratulate you on the re-assumption of the portfolio you know so well and the honor of our country." She marched onward and turned in the door. "I trust both your excellencies will keep me in mind as a good lawyer though an honest woman."

Dirk went out with the clergyman; the ambassador withdrew, arm in arm with the minister of war, each aglow with plans for a rapprochement that would bring glory to both. Joyce, the small cause of weighty matters, was left alone. Standing at a high window she watched their excellencies depart but turned at the sound of a footstep. She and Dirk hung poised for a breathless moment with the room between them. Slowly they moved forward. The days they had spent together seemed to lengthen into years, reaching back into a common childhood and knitting the innermost fibers of their being. Their hands touched, clung, and as they looked deep in each other's eyes the same fear was born in them, the same silent cry: "This is I; if I lose you I'm lost, torn, maimed." Then his arms opened and she crushed herself against him.

"Oh, Dirk! Darling! Dirk!" "Don't worry," he whispered thickly. "I feel it too, Joyce. We won't lose each other, we can't. I love you—all of me loves all of you. Nothing ever can happen to one of us again."

She raised her face, blinding with its incandescence. Their kiss opened the floodgates of the heart and swept their veins with fire. Life with its inevitable pitfalls stretched far and wide before them, but one thing they knew: this was the top-most pinnacle of surrender. Never could they give again what now they gave, never step back out of that world of love to which all other loves are but an echo.

Three young men singers have become big radio favorites in the past few weeks and by next year radio executives figure they will all be top-ranking stars. John Carter, who replaced Nelson Eddy on the Charlie McCarthy hour, is an ex-farmer and vaudeville dancer. Felix Knight, who in addition to his own Sunday morning program has been appearing with Leo Reisman's orchestra, comes from Florida, via Hollywood, and is much too young to have had any career other than singing. Glenn Darwin, the richly-toned barytone whom you have probably heard on the Magic Key program, was a famous soprano at the age of nine. He made a record of "Ave Maria" then that is still held up as a model of perfection to choir boys.

Fred Allen used to work in the Boston Public Library, carrying books to the folks who requested them. Eddie Cantor was errand boy for a sausage factory. Phil Baker was secretary to a motion picture producer, Walter O'Keefe was a real estate salesman, and Bob Hope was an automobile mechanic. Joe Penner was a piano salesman and Bob Burns was a plumber's helper. It was an old piece of pipe that he had left over from a job one day that inspired him to invent the bazooka.

ODDS AND ENDS—Bill Cody, Jr., son of the popular Western star, plays Nelson Eddy as a child in "Girl of the Golden West." . . . Fanny Brice and Constance Collier wandered into an art exhibition and bought fifteen hundred dollars' worth of pictures painted by Darryl Austin, an impoverished WPA worker. The first dollar went for tickets to their last pictures. . . . Grace Moore will replace Laurence Tibbett as soloist on Andre Kostelanetz' concert of American Music March 30. . . . After three years of conducting the orchestra for "Town Hall Tonight," Peter van Stueden will join the staff as Fred Allen's delivery of jokes.

Historians Given Unpublished Letters
Written by Explorer Meriwether Lewis

Hitherto unknown—or unconfirmed—sidelights on the life of Meriwether Lewis, co-explorer with William Clark of the Northwest, have been revealed with the bequest to the Missouri Historical Society of unpublished letters written by the great explorer and scout, according to a St. Louis United Press correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

Scholars have been working on the letters and documents, which were given to the society by the late Dr. Meriwether Lewis Anderson, a descendant of Lewis. Anderson died at Richmond, Va.

Included in the group are numerous letters written by the explorer to his mother. One, written in 1795, when he was twenty, was in a semi-apologetic tone for his seeming inability to stay home. He had enlisted with some Virginia troops at the time, and wrote:

"So violently opposed is my governing passion for rambling to the wishes of all my friends, that I am led intentionally to err and then have vanity enough to hope for forgiveness."

"I do not know how to account for this Quixotic disposition of mine in any other manner or its being inflicted by any other cause than that of having inherited it in right of the Meriwether family."

He asked his mother to forgive him on that basis; then promised to let her know of his whereabouts "by every opportunity."

STAR DUST

GROWN-UP motion picture players feel terribly neglected these days. They figured that when the first excitement over the animated drawings that make up "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was over they would come back into the limelight again.

But along came the world's beloved blockhead, Charlie McCarthy, in "Goldwyn Follies" to distract attention from mere humans, and next "The River," a picture without any actors whatever became the talk of the entertainment world. Now mere children have romped in and taken all the attention away from their elders.

Judy Garland, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's fourteen-year-old singing star, is enjoying huge success on a personal appearance tour, and the even-younger Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis of "Tom Sawyer" have captivated several cities they have visited. They had the great thrill of being received informally at the White House, they visited Mark Twain's home town to place a wreath on his grave, and in between times they saw the sights of New York.

June Lang, Ethel Merman, and Cesar Romo to have been flying all over the country attending openings of "In Old Chicago" and audiences were so appreciative of the opportunity to see players face to face that Twentieth Century-Fox plans to stage gala openings for many of their pictures in the future. You won't have to go to Hollywood or New York to attend openings with the stars in the future.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WE HAVE been hearing a good deal about American handcrafts lately. Of course, quilts have always been important among our needlework handicrafts. So many readers have written asking me for more of the old fashioned embroidery stitches that were used in making crazy patchwork that I have collected dozens and dozens of these quaint stitches from old quilts. Some of them are so attractive and colorful that it seemed a pity not to use them for modern decorative purposes.

This gay little double house effect built upon blanket stitches with chain stitches flaunting from all gables was the invention of someone's great-grandmother and I couldn't resist using it for a luncheon set of light blue linen. It originally adorned a light blue satin patch in a quilt and all the other colors indicated here in the sketch are the original colors.

All the strands of six-strand mercerized embroidery thread were used for the luncheon set. The mats were hemmed first and then the blanket stitches were taken through the hems to make a firm edge as shown at the lower right. All the other stitches used are clearly illustrated. Just the edge stitches without the little houses were used for the napkins. Many more authentic old patchwork stitches are illustrated in a new leaflet which is free upon request with the booklet offered below.
