AGGIE BRIEFS

By Finley R. White

About 2 or 3 weeks ago we got a letter to cotton farmers calling for bale numbers and weights of cotton produced in 1937. In response to this letter has been most gratifying to the office, but there are still a few fellows who have not responded to the letter. You who have not turned in your bales and weights are reminded that this little job will be attended to if you expect your 1933-37 cotton base to be established as it should be.

The bill that was passed for the payment of the subsidy called for immediate payment. We take it August 25 to September 15, if possible. What is the best way to get ready so as to fire both barrels when the time comes?

Wheat Harvest
This week finds every body and girl as busy as that old prospector on the tin roof. Twenty-four hours isn't too long for the hands to work while the wheat is in. This season comes a year—and some years it even gets here at all.

The combines that not "under the sun" are rapidly being put to work for beginning the harvest. The time this goes to press all-around will have started. The yields reported so far from 4 to 16 bushels per acre. The test is running around 75 percent.

Some of us are still wondering about the loan on wheat is going this year—if any. So far no word has been announced. It is possible that the loan will be made shortly after harvest—when everyone has sold their wheat.

Grasshoppers
The time and replanting of crops has given the grasshoppers a few days of grace. Far more has been too busy to even think of grasshoppers to say nothing of them.

There will be several tons of grasshopper bait on hand and we want you to know that it can be used easily. It doesn't take long to put out a few hundred pounds either. Bait may be used in the late afternoon and early next morning while the grasshoppers are being greased up.

Let the hoppers eat up what they try to save a sorry crop—both jobs can be run together.

Farmers Short Course
About 2 weeks remain now to complete our plans for the Farmers Short Course at M. College. The dates are June 7 and 8 for 4-H Club girls and July 13, 14, for the men and women.

Reason for having short course in two sections this year is to take care of more here-to-fore the boys and girls and men and women have been at college together.

Over 6 thousand are too hard "herd" together—So they are split this year.

One who plans to make reservations at once. Reservations can fill the bill and at the same time will be educational. We have at least 10 men and about 20 boys making reservations.

Don't forget the 4-H Club at Antelope Flat Friday.

STATION UNDER WAY FOR PANHANDLE
Panhandle service station under way this week on now occupied by the warehouse. The new building is being built in front of the house and is an attractive building with stucco walls.

Building is being built under Bill Thompson and is being supervised by Kemp Thompson.

Progressing rapidly and that the new station occupied some time next week.

McGRAW FAVORS LEGAL PUBLICATION REGULATION

First of the political candidates to answer the Texas Press Association's inquiry of Saturday as to his position on legislation requiring and regulating legal publication. William McGraw, candidate for governor, today explained that he has always favored such a plan. "Both as an ex-newspaperman and as an advocate of economy in government, I am in hearty accord with the Texas Press Association's program for enactment of a law requiring that legal notices, tax notices and understandable reports on county receipts and expenditures be published in the legitimate newspapers of each community," McGraw said. "If I am elected governor I shall sponsor such a bill. When the voters of the county are kept fully informed on their government's business, there is not much chance for waste or extravagance to creep in."

PHONES IN AMERICA HALF WORLD'S TOTAL

China, British India and Russia, which together have half the earth's population, have only three-fourths as many telephones as New York City, a recent survey of telephone usage throughout the world showed.

With only six per cent of the world's population of 2,000,000,000 persons, the United States has a total of more than 19,500,000 telephones, or more than half of the world's telephones, the study shows.

Compared with the figure of 19,500,000 telephones for the United States, on January 1, 1937, Germany had 3,431,074 telephones; Great Britain, 2,791,597; France, 1,481,788; Canada, 1,268,228 and Japan 1,197,129.

More Road Work Coming Soon To This Section

County Judge W. Coffee, Jr., spent Monday in Austin in conference with the State Highway Commission, as a representative from Highway 86 Association. This association composed of men from Briscoe, Swisher, Castro, Parmer and Hall Counties has been highly instrumental in getting the Highway Commission to direct their attention to road needs in this section.

The Commission announced several new projects for this section in the near future. First they reported very favorably for a WPA project to connect the Caprock job to the eight miles of contract paving which is to extend east of Silverton about seven miles. They also approved a WPA project for hard surfacing Highway 86 five miles east of Tulla. A contract will be let soon for paving eight miles of Highway 207 north from Floydada toward Silverton.

Of course, as usual, the Commission set no absolute date on when these projects will be started—but gave the impression that the work will get under way sometime during the summer, and that the eight mile strip through Silverton will be advertised for bids in July.

When the above projects are completed, Highway 86 will be completely paved through Briscoe County with the exception of about eight miles west from Silverton to the Swisher County line, and it is hoped to make a winter job of the remaining gap between here and Tulla.

The Caprock job is progressing nicely. Mr. Street says that more work is being done there, and at less expense than any other similar project in the state. The caliche taken from the hill is being rapidly spread from the Quitaque paving west and already nearly two miles of caliche, 12 inches thick has been put on the road. About four feet more is to be taken from the Caprock hill.

INTEREST RATE ON FEDERAL LAND BANK LOANS REDUCED TO 3 1/2 PERCENT

The Continuation of the temporarily reduced interest rates on Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans, as a result of recent congressional action, will apply to all interest payable prior to July 1, 1940. A. C. Williams, President of the Federal Land Bank of Houston, said today. On Federal Land Bank loans through active national farm loan associations, the temporarily reduced rate will be 3 1/2 percent a year. Mr. Williams said the temporarily reduced rate of 4 percent on Land Bank Commissioner loans, made through the land banks, will also be continued until July 1, 1940.

He explained that the temporary interest reduction provided by Congress does not change the contract interest rate, that is, the rate written in the mortgage at the time a loan was made. The contract rate on all Commissioner loans is 5 percent. Mr. Williams said that under the law, as now amended, both land bank and Commissioner borrowers will resume interest payments at their respective contract rates on July 1, 1940. Farmers who obtain new loans through an active association at the 4 percent contract rate will get the benefit of the 3 1/2 percent rate for all interest installments payable prior to July 1, 1940, and after that will not have to pay more than the 4 percent contract rate for the balance of the term of the loan, which may be for as long as 20 to 30-odd years.

An Investment For The Future

Once upon a time—there was a business man who was just rocking along, doing a nice business, and getting by. But as his competition got stronger, and conditions changed, he saw that his business was going to slip badly, perhaps go on the rocks altogether—unless he DID SOMETHING.

And so—he took stock of himself, his equipment, and his competition and their equipment. He found that he was lacking, and took proper steps at once to improve himself and his equipment to try to get on par with his competition. And he found that after his improvements were made, although he had to borrow a little money to make them, that he not only held his old business, but he got new business, and he went ahead happily, and prosperously.

We have the case of Silverton, Texas. We are rocking along, doing a nice business,—and getting by. But conditions are changing, and competition is getting stronger. We will have, within a few months, a paved highway through our town. And we have a mess of rough, swampy streets to join it. It takes no expert to find what we need to do to hold our own. If we are to go ahead instead of back, we MUST improve our city equipment by paving several of the business blocks.

Our competition lies in nearby towns—towns that already have the paved streets. Our new highway work is going to bring that competition miles closer, unless we make our town as convenient for our customers as other cities.

Let us make this investment for the future of Silverton. Let's start doing something, not only to hold our old customers but to get new ones. Let's make our town go ahead happily and PROSPEROUSLY.

A Week Is Gone

With a week gone of the summer "dollar bargain on the Briscoe County News, subscriptions are coming in to the office fairly well—but not well enough.

If you haven't renewed, your paper, don't put it off much longer. We think that the offer may last about a month.

Have you noticed that your paper is on the average, considerably bigger than it used to be. Almost every week ten pages, or 70 columns of live news and ads.

In actual paper in 1937, we sent out to each subscriber, almost 65 cents worth of paper—which (on the dollar rate) leaves 35c for finding the news, printing, and mailing.

If there are features that you would like to see in the paper, let us know about them. We want you to want this paper—and if you do—now is the time to buy it.

WHEAT GROWERS FACE POSER IN LOAN DECISION

Under the farm act, a wheat loan must be offered at the rate of 52 to 75 percent of parity if the June 15 price of wheat is below 52 percent of parity or the July crop estimate is above normal domestic and export needs. It is generally agreed that the loan will be offered on both counts.

"The amount of the loan will have a long time bearing on the welfare of wheat growers, and they should study the matter from all angles before they ask for a loan on any definite level," W. E. Morgan, economist in agricultural planning of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College, has pointed out.

With the parity price of wheat at $1.15, the loan may vary from 60 to 85 cents per bushel. "The loan rate on wheat this year will have a bearing on the price of the entire crop," Morgan said, "So we must think, not only about the 200 million bushels put up for loans but also about the price on the other 750 million bushels of wheat."

"We have a carryover of around 200 million bushels, and it is estimated that the winter wheat crop will be 760 millions and the spring crop another 250 million. That gives us a total supply of about 1,200 million bushels.

"The normal domestic consumption and export of wheat is around 750 million bushels a year, so we will have some 450 million bushels to store. We can figure on exporting between 80 and 100 million bushels.

"The prospects for the export figure holding up are pretty fair, but if we put the loan far above the world price of wheat, we will shut off our exports. That would mean that we would face a carryover of some 500 or more million bushels of wheat in 1939."

The decision wheat growers must make, according to Morgan, is whether to ask for a high loan and let the future take care of itself, or ask for a loan at a level which will allow foreign markets to absorb some of the potential 1,200 million bushels supply of United States wheat.

Persons who have filed claims for unemployment compensation and then found work should cease filing claims with the Employment Service. The Unemployment Compensation Act was created only for those out of work and if a claimant finds a job he is no longer eligible for unemployment benefits.

CONNALLY WINS FIGHT FOR NEEDY FARMERS

Part time work for needy farmers was made possible under the relief set-up by an amendment offered by Senator Tom Connally and adopted by the Senate last week. Farmers, who have met with crop losses and other misfortunes and who are in need, will be permitted to supplement their farm incomes by working part time on rural relief projects without being put on the relief rolls.

"We all know," remarked Senator Connally, "that the great bulk of all the relief money in the WPA goes into industrial areas, to the cities. In the extreme drought section, a portion of which is in my State up near the Colorado and the Kansas lines, we have the condition that when there is plenty of rain it is a very fertile country, and the farmers make good crops; but in recent years they have been suffering from terrible drought. It ought to be the purpose of the Congress to keep such a man out on the farm and let him carry on his own business; but many of them are going to leave the farm unless they can supplement what they are making by working short periods of time on the WPA. Under present WPA rules a farmer cannot be hired to work on a country road for a single day unless he is on relief rolls. This amendment will remedy that situation."

Senator Connally was active also in obtaining the passage of the "Russell Amendment" in the Senate to the Relief Appropriation Bill which provides $212,000,000 to apply in bringing the price of farm products toward parity. Under this amendment those farmers who are taking part under the 1938 Farm Act will receive from the government ten cents per bushel in the case of wheat, two cents per pound in the case of lint cotton, five cents per bushel in the case of corn, one cent per pound in the case of tobacco, and one-fifth cent per lb. in the case of rough rice.

WHY BE A CHRISTIAN

I heard of a man who said he was going to decide the question of becoming a Christian in a reasonable way, and that he would write down on one piece of paper all the reasons why he should become a Christian, and on another why he ought not to be a Christian, and then weigh the matter in a rational way and decide like a reasonable man. And so he began. He wrote first the reasons why he ought to be a Christian, and his pen just flew across the paper and up on the other side until it was full of reasons; and then he began with the reasons why he ought not to be a Christian. He put down the figure one, and there his pen stopped. He could not think of single reason why he ought not to be a Christian. Can you. This will be our thought at the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning. The Vesper service will be held at 7 p. m. Note change in time.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—It is perhaps just as well that Crosby Gaige is a bachelor. He drags home 200,000 patent models, including a corpse preserver, hog-catcher, burglar alarm, an early Hoe printing press, a dentist's chair, a machine gun, an egg-beater, an engine, a steamboat, a pretzel-bending machine—and so on, and so on.

The patent office models had been gathered by the late Sir Henry Wellcome and kept at his estate in 3,251 packing cases. Mr. Gaige bought them.

A friend of this writer, remembering with remorse he hadn't bought a birthday present for his wife, stepped into an auction room. He became confused and bought ten barrels of tin cookie cutters. It almost broke up his home. Mr. Gaige will have no such trouble.

Mr. Gaige was born the son of the postmaster at Skunk Hollow, N. Y., and became a Broadway theatrical producer, with a 300-acre estate at Peekskill on the Hudson, where he indulges his taste for knickknacks such as the above, but with more discrimination than this ensemble suggests.

He is a gourmet, with 300 cook books in his kitchen, has a de luxe machine shop where he makes art objects, is a master of viticulture and a maker and connoisseur of beautiful wines.

He has cattle folds and breeds blooded cattle, a printing plant where he prints typographical knock-outs in limited editions, a huge library with 5,000 reference books, and is distinguished both as a bibliophile and a cook—one of the best cooks in the world, his friends say.

All these concerns are merely extra-curricular. In his 29 years on Broadway, he has hit off his full share of successes, built three theaters and kept steadily out of the red. In Columbia university, he wrote the 1903 varsity show, "Ilkusa."

He got a job with the late Elizabeth Marbury, famous play broker, reading plays at ten cents an act. He saved his money and headed into the show business with a fast running start.

His life is the fulfillment of every commuter's dream. He is of clerical, almost monkish mien, of somewhat austere countenance, with octagonal pince-nez and, like all epicures, abstemious in all things—saving such things as patent models.

He wears red, white and blue suspenders and is very fussy about his handkerchief pocket. He always has the tailor sew a button on it.

AN ATTACK of laryngitis gave Margaret Sullivan her big start. Lee Shubert saw her in "Three Artists and a Lady" at Princeton, and d rushed back-stage with a contract.

"You have a voice just like Ethel Barrymore," he said. She explained that it was merely laryngitis, but the excited Mr. Shubert wouldn't listen. There was nothing to be done about it, so the helpless girl was signed for five years.

That was a bit of luck which, in Miss Sullivan's career, offsets embarrassing entanglements in some of the most elaborate flops in current stage history. Today, she is at the peak of her career as critics turn cartwheels and back flips over the new film, "Three Comrades," and Miss Sullivan's performance therein.

Her story has none of the up-from-poverty success routine. She is the daughter of a proud family of Norfolk, Va., a descendant of Robert E. Lee. Her journey to Boston to study dancing was indulged as a passing whim, but there was considerable family eye-rolling when she switched to the theater and began adventuring in summer stock, on Cape Cod and way points.

Her father got her home once, but only for a short time. It is to be hoped that her story won't be widely circulated around Hollywood. It would start all the extra girls sleeping in a draft.

YARNELL DEFIES JAPS

American Admiral Refuses to Remove His Warships From the Yangtze River . . . Congress and Politics

Here Japanese soldiers with fixed bayonets are seen rushing a Chinese position in a part of Suchow which the Japanese artillery had reduced to flaming ruins. There, as elsewhere, the defenders practically destroyed the city before retreating.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Japan's Demands Rejected

AMERICAN warships will remain in the Yangtze river and will go to any place where Americans are in danger. This despite the demands of Japan.

Naval officials of Japan asked that all foreign warships leave the Yangtze river area between Wuhu and Kiangsi because the invaders were about to start an offensive toward Hankow, provisional Chinese capital. But Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, rejected the demand sharply.

Further, he at once planned an inspection trip up the Yangtze and through the war zone, and he did not ask Japan's permission.

These three "principles" of American naval operations in Asiatic waters were set forth by Admiral Yarnell in his note to the Japanese: The United States navy will retain complete freedom of movement on the Yangtze, and will proceed to any place where Americans are in danger.

The American command will not change the color of its warships, which are painted white, to conform to any color scheme suggested by the Japanese.

The United States does not regard the warning of Japanese naval officials relative to the Yangtze as relieving the Japanese "in the slightest degree" of responsibility for damage or injury to United States warships.

Chengchow, once a prosperous railway center, was still held by the Chinese, but had been reduced to ruins by Japanese shells and bombs and by the Chinese themselves in pursuing their "scorched earth" policy.

Japanese air raids on Canton continued by day and night. Perhaps 10,000 persons had been killed there, many thousands were injured and the metropolis was shattered. A great portion of the population fled from the city.

Perfume by Chemistry

Modern chemists like Theodore Hoffman (above) have improved on the ancient art of perfume making, an art old as the pyramids, by using synthetic materials to produce odors which man cannot extract from flowers. For example, it takes almost a ton of roses to make one ounce of rose oil. But the odor is now produced in laboratories. And the ultra-sweet musk, once obtained only from the Tibetan musk deer at $500 a pound, is today available for any perfume. Compounding new bouquets is part of Theodore Hoffman's job. Paper tapers are dipped in basic perfumes. When twirled through the air before the nostrils, the blended tapers indicate how this particular bouquet will smell after it has been compounded. These preliminary laboratory tests must precede actual manufacture of the perfume. Not the least incongruous part of this business is that delicately scented perfumes are made by burly workmen in overalls!

Upper photo shows coumarin crystals being broken up to be used in a bouquet which imparts the "new-mown hay" odor. Coumarin appears naturally in certain plants, is segregated and crystallized. Photo immediately above shows borneol crystals being swirled out of a liquid in a centrifugal still. Borneol is the main ingredient of incense in India. Oddly, perfumes are a mixture of pleasant and unpleasant odors.

Perfume, adroitly used, plays an important part in every modern woman's life. Once a luxury available only to the wealthy, it now brings charm to rich and poor alike. But most foolish is the woman who uses it too freely; perfume is meant to be subtle.

Chemicals today; tomorrow, perfume on a thousand boudoir tables.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—A considerable bloc of railroad officials do not want any more government help in the form of loans. They think more borrowing merely increases the interest they are already groaning under, and making the future blacker instead of brighter.

They are strongly in favor of permitting such railroads as cannot now pay their bond interest to go through the wringer. Of course this does not include borrowing from the government to retire existing bond issues. For example, if a bond issue of $10,000,000 should fall due next month for railroad A, and this bond issue bears interest at 6 per cent, while the government is willing to lend railroad A the ten million at 4 per cent, then the road will save $200,000 in interest charges every year from now on by taking advantage of the RFC offer.

That is quite a different thing from borrowing money for no other reason than to pay bond interest, and thus keep out of the hands of receivers. In this latter case, which is typical of most of them, the railroad would be in a worse fix next year than this, so far as interest charges are concerned. Next year it would have to pay as much interest on outstanding bonds as this year, and in addition would have to pay interest on the money it borrowed from RFC to pay the interest this year.

There are plenty of reasons for the present difficulty of the railroads, but most of them are not susceptible to much change. The only improvement, apparently, can come from increased traffic, and this can come only with better times. Even that is threatened here and there by the development of more and more rivers for navigation. It is not important, from the standpoint of the railroads, that these rivers may never actually handle much traffic. The important thing is that the development of the rivers for traffic will prove an ample excuse for shippers in that territory to obtain rate reductions on heavy products from the interstate commerce commission.

Also the Berry case may create an existing very warm glow in Tennessee politics. Ed Crump's police down Memphis with special state police pointed by Governor Browning ago for the nomination for governor but he has turned on him, the gubernatorial battle as overshadowed the senate fight.

Prospects for the St. Lawrence seaway, despite the beauty of what could be done, are in the note to Canada by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. It is revealed by conversations with senators as to the probability of treaty involving the idea being treated.

It might not be difficult to get senate approval for a St. Lawrence development, including the features of the valley development, if only phase of navigation should be out. The privately owned, of course would fight it. Abru have not shown themselves successful in blocking legislation, and there is not much chance that they would be successful.

Some of the railroad men who do not wish to increase the present debt load of their properties are not averse, however, to advertising to the country the tremendous burden the roads are bearing in taxation, not only federal but state, county and local.

The next political question involved in the "purge," now that the Iowa contest has become history, is what is to be done about Tennessee. Senator George L. Berry has from the administration standpoint, "stuck his neck out" and is sure to face attempted reprisals.

Never was any senator closer to the White House at the time Major Berry took his oath before Vice President Garner. He had worked for President Roosevelt in a dozen different capacities. He had been put in the senate, on appointment by the persuasive powers of the President. In fact, Browning had very different ideas when the vacancy in the senate occurred through the death of Senator Nathan L. Bachman.

But all that has been changed. The split began, apparently, about the time Senator Berry discovered that David E. Lillenthal, of the TVA was not as friendly as had appeared. Or perhaps Lillenthal had been sincere in his friendship but was compelled to change his attitude.

At any rate Berry thought Lillenthal was treating him fairly, and bitterly resented the implications of Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, the latter plainly implying, as he later testified, that Berry was just trying to hold up the government, and get some millions of dollars for "worthless marble" submerged by the TVA development.

Berry lost his fight before a tribunal, but, much worse, he was deprived of the money he expected, but he was maligned in public hearing by the TVA commission investigating committee. Berry had expected A. E. Morgan to back him. In fact he probably had some admirers of A. E. Morgan who hoped the "Berry marble" would prove very effective in giving public opinion against Lillenthal.

But the senator was shocked beyond measure when Lillenthal actually joined A. E. Morgan in attacking Berry, thus taking the sting out of Berry's springing this particular point against Lillenthal, virtually out of the corner.

Howard came to an impasse in the game, gathered up the cards, and shuffled them. He started to deal, but stopped with a card poised. The outside door of the house had opened a few inches. Through the crack a pair of eyes gleamed. Very little more of the face could be seen, for the hat was well pulled down and a bandanna handkerchief covered the nose and mouth.

Sherm Howard had time for a moment of fervent regret. How had he happened to forget to bolt the door, with his forty-four lying in the cupboard a long five yards away from him?

The door opened farther and a little body slid through the widened crack into the room. The eyes of the self-invited guest did not lift from his host while a brown hand closed the door and pushed home the bolt.

Howard's stomach sagged as if from a weight of ice-cold lead. His mouth went dry. The man standing with his back to the door was Morgan Norris.

Norris grinned evilly. "Didn't expect me, did you, Sherm? Figured some of yore boys had dry-gulched me up in the hills. But I'll bet you are real pleased to see yore old friend."

The fat man pulled himself together. "What you doing here, Morg?" he asked. "Don't you know this whole county is out looking for you?"

"Including all Sherm Howard's willing lads. Sure I know it." The desperado limped forward. "But I dropped in because I knew you'd hate for me to pass through without thanking you for sicking the boys on me."

The man was in bad physical condition. A blood-stained handkerchief was tied around his head. Another served as a bandage for his arm. He looked travel-worn and haggard.

But he was undaunted. Never in his wicked, ribald lifetime had he seemed more master of the situation. Howard expected that the fellow had come to kill him. Morg must have met one of the boys and learned that Howard had thrown in with his hunters.

"What's all this crazy talk about me sicking the boys on you?" Howard asked. "You ought to know better than that. Fact is, you've played the devil, Morg. I thought you had more sense than to pull the dumb thing you did. This country won't stand for doing harm to women. You ought to know that too."

"Don't preach at me," Norris snarled out of the corner of his mouth. "Get me food, and water to wash my wounds. But first off, I want a drink."

The heart of the big man lifted. "Sure," he said. "Surest thing you know."

He heaved himself out of the chair and waddled across to the cupboard. Beside the bottle lay the forty-four he had unwarily separated himself from when he reached the house. This he pushed down between his trouser-belt and shirt. The bottle and a glass he brought back to the man at the table.

Norris poured a large drink into a tumbler. He held it in his hand and slid a menacing look at his host.

"I saw you get that gun," he said, lifting his upper lip in a jeer. "Fixin' to gun me if you get a chance, you damned double-crosser. Well, you don't get it." Norris raised the glass. "Here's to a short life and a smoky end for traitors, Sherm."

He poured the liquor down at a gulp.

Coldly Howard defended himself. "Your information is not straight, Morg. Where did you hear I had turned against you?"

"I heard it from a ledge back of Coal Creek," Norris told him harshly. "Yore boys were camped just below. I heard 'em talk. Didn't know who they were at first. I found out you'd sent them out to get me, by crikes."

"Why don't you use your bean to think with, Morg? Of course I sent them after you. After you had gone crazy, I had to make a bluff, didn't I? I had to make out we were all hunting you to save our own bacon. Talk about me throwing down on you. What have you done but throw down on every last one of us?"

Howard spoke impatiently, irritably. He wanted to talk the young killer into a frame of mind less deadly, and the best way to do this was to put him in the wrong.

"What you mean, throw down on you?" the fugitive asked sulkily.

"You know what I mean, Morg. When you took that girl with you to the hills you set this whole district ablaze against us as well as you because we are your friends."

"Lou ran off with her first," Norris said.

"With her own consent. That's different. Where is the girl, Morg? What did you do with her?"

"I didn't do a thing," Norris growled. "Are you aiming to fix me up some food? Or ain't you?"

"Don't push on the reins, Morg. I asked you a question."

Norris gave information, very reluctantly, for what he had to tell hurt his inordinate vanity. "I turned her over to that double-crossing son-of-a-gun who calls himself Jeff Gray," he said.

The opaque eyes of the big man rested on him. "Tell it to me, Morg," he ordered.

"I'll tell it while you make me some supper," Norris told him. "Me, I could eat a government mail-sack. Haven't seen grub for nearly two days."

The young desperado helped himself to a second drink, then sat down and pulled off his boots. He was careful not to turn his back to Howard. Sherm began to knock together some food, always with his eye on the other.

Norris told the story of what had occurred, edited in such a way as to protect his self-conceit. He said that three men had attacked him at his camp in Wild Horse basin and that he had fought them until the revolver was shot from his hand. He had made his getaway on foot.

"You didn't walk all the way from Wild Horse," Howard said, after he had broken a fourth egg into a frying-pan.

"Most of the way," The outlaw looked down at his swollen feet. High-heeled cowboy boots are not made for walking, and he had been tortured cruelly during the long hours of tramping. "I roped a bronc at Walker's in the night and found a saddle in the stable. Most of the day I lay holed up in the rocks."

"What with yore wounds and all you must have had a hell of a time," Howard suggested.

The young man looked at him, fury in his eyes. "I'm sayin' so."

"If they shot yore gun from yore hand, I reckon you're not armed," Sherm said, very casually.

The killer watched him through slitted lids. "Don't you bank on that, Sherm," he drawled, his words dripping warning.

Howard said lightly, "I was thinking I'd have to fix you up with a gun if you had lost yore own." What he had been thinking was that if Norris was unarmed, he could pump lead into him and take the credit for killing the man.

tired, was under a reaction from great fear and excitement that left her a rag.

While they ate their food and drank their coffee the line-ride did the talking for all three. He was garrulously happy at the termination of the adventure. Against all likelihood their luck had stood up. Eagerly he asked questions, and got monosyllabic answers. After a time he protested.

"Begorry, you'd think this was a wake and not the luckiest hour of the year," he snorted. "We ought to be thanking God you're safe again."

"I am," Ruth answered wearily. "Ye don't look as if it," he retorted.

"I'm—tired out," she said, in a lifeless voice.

Looking at her shadowed eyes and white haggard face, Sorley felt remorse at his sharpness. "You'll have a good sleep tonight and be rested tomorrow," he said gently.

They packed, saddled, and rode down the creek for a few miles. Sorley chose for a campground a little mesa three or four hundred yards from the stream. No fire was lit, and the night was cold, as Arizona nights in the high hills are likely to be. Pat made a bed of pine boughs for Ruth and tucked her up snugly in two blankets.

"One of us will be on guard all night," he explained to her. "Don't worry about a thing, but let go of yoreself and slip off to slape like a good gir-rl."

She promised that she would, adding with a smile, "You've been awfully good to me, Pat."

Sherm Howard was alone in the house. He had spent the evening at the Golden Nugget and had come home to sleep, but he knew that was not going to be possible for many hours yet. He sat at a table, a small coal-oil lamp at one corner of it, looking down savagely at the solitary layout in front of him. There was no pleasure for him in the game. While he dealt and played automatically, the undercurrent of his mind was absorbed by the difficulties confronting him.

A heavy gloom lay on his spirits. He was in a jam and knew it. Fifty times he had gone over the facts and anxiously looking for an out, and he had not been able to find one. Until the situation had resolved itself one way or another, he could be sure of nothing.

Howard came to an impasse in the game, gathered up the cards, and shuffled them. He started to deal, but stopped with a card poised. The outside door of the house had opened a few inches. Through the crack a pair of eyes gleamed. Very little more of the face could be seen, for the hat was well pulled down and a bandanna handkerchief covered the nose and mouth.

Columbus' View of Porto Rico
 Christopher Columbus had the right idea about Porto Rico, America's island possession at the gate way to the Caribbean. Returning to Spain from his second voyage to the new world in 1493, it is recorded he excitedly told the queen about the little island of Porto Rico. She asked him what it looked like. The explorer crumpled a sheet of paper and tossed it on the table. "It looks like this, your majesty," he said.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers More Advice About Reducing

Describes the Perils of Unscientific Methods for Losing Weight

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City.

MY RECENT discussion of reducing in these columns brought many letters, indicating that the modern woman is, fortunately, weight conscious. This is an encouraging sign. For it shows that you are alert to the dangers of overweight, which not only destroys beauty but may indirectly contribute to heart disease, kidney disorders and diabetes, which take their greatest toll from among the heavyweights.

teeth, or leave out foods rich in iron and copper and interfere with the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood.

One of the most common and most serious errors is to omit all bread, potatoes and cereals, in the belief that carbohydrates are "fattening foods." Carbohydrates are required by the body in order to utilize the fats in the diet, and when reducing, they are also necessary to burn up excess fatty tissue.

Just as fire cannot burn without air, fat cannot be utilized in the body without the presence of starch or sugar. When the diet contains insufficient carbohydrates, fat burns incompletely, resulting in the dangerous acetone type of acidosis.

Guard Against Unscientific Reducing Methods

Some of these letters caused me great concern, however, because they indicate that in spite of my warning against unscientific methods of weight reduction, many women still cling to the idea that there is some magic in the various pills, powders, capsules, saps, salts and mechanical devices that are sold at fancy prices and hold out alluring promises of speedy reducing without dieting or exercise.

It is bad enough that most of these fail to reduce. For they may delay the day when the victim of overweight will undertake a sound and scientific program of weight reduction that will effectively take off weight—thus improving appearance, benefiting health and increasing the chances of longevity. But what is far more serious is that some of these preparations may endanger health or cause lifelong physical impairment.

Dangerous Drugs

Drugging is particularly to be condemned, and no one should attempt to reduce by this method except under the advice and watchful eye of a physician. There are many invalids today who would be happy and healthy if they had not attempted to take some "reducing medicine" without consulting a physician.

One preparation that is still bought by foolish women—in spite of repeated warnings against its use—may even result in permanent blindness.

Almost equally objectionable are excessive purging—which may leave you a wobbly wreck—and fasting, which is even more dangerous to women than men.

Don't Diet Without Direction

A carefully regulated diet will not only maintain normal weight, but will banish overweight by forcing the body to burn its own excess fat as fuel. Having heard of this scientific principle, many women frantically and foolishly attempt to prescribe their own reducing diets—often with disastrous results.

There is always the possibility that one may omit calcium-bearing foods and thus impair the

Questions Answered

Miss L. T. B.—Though it lacks fat and vitamin A, skim milk is a rich source of calcium and phosphorus, and also furnishes high grade protein. A quart of skim milk, plus one and one-half ounces of butter is the equivalent of a quart of whole milk.

Mrs. J. M. T.—It is impossible to generalize regarding the diet in asthma. This condition is due to allergy, and the symptoms are produced by different foods in different individuals. Almost all protein substances are capable of causing distress.

Mrs. G. B., Jr.—There is absolutely no truth in the false notion that aluminum cooking utensils may adversely affect health. Numerous experiments have demonstrated that they are perfectly safe.

Miss A. G.—One tablespoon of cod-liver oil provides about 100 calories, which is equal in fuel value to one slice of bread, one medium potato, or three-fourths of a cup of cooked macaroni.

Little Boy Blue, come blow your horn, There's a Government Agent counting your corn.

Another is lecturing the old red sow, On the number of pigs she can have, and how.

Pa's gone to town to find out what He can do next month with the old meadow lot.

Ma's at the radio, hearing them tell, How under the New Deal there ain't no hell.

Aunt Mame's in Washington a-drawing down pay From the PDQ of the AAA. The hired man quit when the work didn't please

And got a job trimming government trees.

They'll be telling you soon, if you don't take care, Where you can live, and what you can wear.

How much you can pay for your pants and your shoes, So this is no time to be taking a snooze.

Little Boy Blue may be buried deep Under red tape, but I hope, not asleep. —Anon

Cord-Lock makes them 31% SAFER

Mansfield Cushion Balloons are built the Mansfield way—three ways differently from other tires. They have Cord-Lock construction that gives a 31% greater safety factor in the sidewalls—anchored-in piano wire beads, seven times stronger than actually needed—wide, flat, tough Duro-mix treads that wear like iron and grip tight on slippery pavements.

MANSFIELD EXTRA MILEAGE Tires

Add to this the fact that Mansfield Cushion Balloons are the "low cost" tires of the day—that they give consistently longer mileage on all makes of late model cars. When you ride on Mansfields, you know you have safety, service and savings of a new order. Every Mansfield Tire gives you more mileage than you pay for.

—LIBRARY NOTES—

"The Tin Soldier" By Temple Baily

Author of "Contrary Mary", "Mistress Ann", etc.

A man who wishes to fight for his country but is bound by a tie he cannot in honor break—that's Derry. A girl, who, because she loves him shares his humiliation and suffering, and helps him to win through—that's Jenn. And how through heartbeat and sacrifice and misunderstanding they are able to attain a great happiness—that's the story. A story that not only gives you joy in the reading, but leaves with you a very pleasant memory.

A Griffin in China By Genevieve Wimsatt

Into this volume which is less one of travel than one of observation, the author, has brilliantly depicted the most interesting of things Chinese. She gives us a glimpse into the lives, habits, hopes and aspirations of all social classes—not tedious or moralistic, picturizations but sympathetic ones with no attempt to do other than paint colorful word pictures. The host of illustrations in the volume tells many a story which words prove inadequate to express. The author's style is a sprightly one yet she provides us with a large fund of accurate and unusually interesting information, charmingly presented.

"Boys Life of Will Rogers" by Harold Keith is a book that older boys and all other members of the family will enjoy reading. The author has not attempted to give us an idealized Will Rogers, but has portrayed him just as the human, lovable and real, character who was distinctly American and who will always have a place in the hearts of the American people. You can get your Bible or other treasured books rebound at the Silverton Library.

How Much Will It Cost??

If your car uses too much oil or the bearings are loose, or any other ailment, come in and we'll give you an accurate estimate of the cost for a guaranteed job.

We handle and will equip your car with COIL piston rings for "oil burners" and they eddie cox do the job right.

Underwear For Houses

GIVES 3-COAT PAINTING VALUE AT 2-COAT COST!

Sensational Paint Development Makes Paint Wear Seasons Longer, according to home owners ---

Now you, too, can say "goodbye" to old-fashioned primers that lose their oils in the wood... lose their hold on wood and let pigment wash away in every rain! Cook's paint chemists now give you an undercoat that is like a seamless sheath of shatterproof glass for your house! Unlike any paint primer you ever used before, Superwhite Primer made by an utterly new process which causes it to STAY ON top of wood, masonry and plaster to hold the oily part of the paint on the surface to repel weather as only oil can do! With one coat of Superwhite Primer as the UNDERCOAT FOR WEAR, one coat of Cook's fine House Paint as the topcoat for wear, you get the equivalent of a 3-coat job at 2-coat cost!

Superwhite Primer
This magic-like new primer actually grips the wood so tight you can't flake your finished paint job off with a knife! You have to cut the wood to lay it bare! This is the paint that coats ALL surfaces uniformly—wood, brick, cement and stucco. It is the paint bargain thrifty home owners have been looking for... 3-coat painting value at 2-coat cost!

Cook's Fine House Paint
Like being given 2 to 6 extra seasons of paint wear," users when they use Cook's fine House Paint over Cook's Superwhite Primer. This long-wearing house paint doesn't flake, crack, peel or check when properly applied over Superwhite Primer. It spreads farther, covers better and wears far longer than ordinary house paint. 18 beautiful colors and white.

What Shanghai Is Like

Shanghai's Skyline From the Race Track.

Huge, Picturesque Shanghai and Its Famous International Settlement

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

WHILE the major battles between Japanese and Chinese forces have raged of late in the northeast province of Shantung, Shanghai still has reminders of the conflict which swept through the city last year.

In accordance with arrangements of long standing between the Chinese and foreign governments, the latter maintain units of their troops at several points in China, one of the most important of these being the International Settlement in Shanghai.

Excepting occasional stately junks with eyes painted on either side of the high bow to enable them to "see their way," there is little to suggest the Orient on the way up the Whang-poo river in Shanghai. Before the dock is reached, however, China obtrudes itself upon the sight and its odors penetrate the nostrils.

From a downstream wharf it is a half hour's ride in a tender to the customs jetty in the city. Wharves, warehouses, and factories line the shores.

Immediately beyond the Japanese docks in Hongkew appears the curve of water front upon which three consulates now stand.

Beyond lies the mouth of Soochow creek, the crowded stream which meanders tortuously through the city. It bristles with the floating homes of innumerable Chinese—Chinese who are born, live their entire lives, and die on the sampans which huddle together in its murky water. Babies, toddling too near the gunwales, sometimes topple in, and, having been fished out, are set casually to dry. Water dipped up over the side is used by the women for cooking rice and vegetables; clothes are washed in it; and it imparts that certain flavor to tea.

A sampan gaily pavilioned and festooned in red indicates that a wedding will soon take place.

English had first foothold there. Great Britain was the first of all the nations which now have such valuable commercial interests in the city "above the sea" to recognize the vast potentialities of the little fishing hamlet on the muddy shores of the Whangpoo.

In 1842, emerging victorious from the so-called "Opium war," she concluded with China the Treaty of Nanking by which Shanghai and four other coastal cities were established as treaty ports.

Within two years the United States and France, realizing that Shanghai's geographical position made it the natural outlet for products of the rich Yangtze river valley, followed suit and signed trade pacts with China. Ninety-six years ago, when the foreigners first obtained areas for settlement, land on the water front brought only $200 (Mex.) an acre. By 1935 an acre of Bundside property was valued at more than four millions.

An amazing variety of traffic throngs the Bund, that splendid waterfront boulevard which is the center of Shanghai's bustling activity.

Fine Buildings on the Bund. Imposing buildings, reminiscent of London, line the Bund; banks, business houses, newspaper offices, clubs. The conveyances of the East, rickshas, handcarts, and wheelbarrows, bearing an unbelievable variety of loads, make way for lumbering double-decked buses, trams, and sleek foreign cars.

The Chinese have proved remarkably adaptable in adjusting themselves to contact with English-speaking nations. They have adopted automobiles, foreign clothes, jazz, and golf. The natives of the treaty ports have evolved a bizarre speech based on English with which they can communicate satisfactorily with the stranger.

Since the average occidental resident of Shanghai will not take the trouble to learn the local dialect, the natives used pidgin, or "business English." In fact, two Chinese from different provinces often resort to this jargon, for each is almost sure to have difficulty in understanding the dialect of the other.

In pidgin English one word often does duty for three or four. Thus "my" signifies also "I, me, mine" and their plural forms. "My no savvy," of course, means "I do not understand." "What thing have got?" is to say "What have you?" When the supply of butter is exhausted your cook will come to you with the complaint, "Butter have finish, missie."

There is the tradition of "face" which governs the duties of each employee within ironbound limits. Your cook will not mix cocktails. He leaves this to the number one boy, who, in turn will not clean shoes or run errands. These tasks are the coolie's "pidgin." The wise foreigner does not attempt to change customs which have existed for centuries.

Chinese servants are justly famous. As a class they are unsurpassed in loyalty, industry, patience and cheerfulness. They sometimes wonder at the strange customs of the foreigner, but they bear with him.

Night Life in the City.

Even during "trouble" the famous night life of this cosmopolitan city of Asia continues with vigor. At such times private entertaining is somewhat curtailed. Pity the poor hostess whose guests have been caught by the curfew and who has them on her hands until dawn!

Hotels and night clubs offer the usual diversions, profiting by the increased trade which results from the enforced stay of those who are caught by the curfew. At such times, as well as under normal conditions, the conservative old Palace hotel on the Bund and the Cathay, its up-to-date counterpart across the street, present pictures of gaiety at cocktail time.

The bar at the Cercle Sportif Francais, the popular sports' club in the French Concession, is noisy with sprightly conversation in a half dozen languages. Chinese boys in long white gowns, their black pantaloons bound tightly about the ankles, move silently through the crowd with chits and laden trays.

The 20-story Cathay hotel offers diverse amusement. The glittering shops in its arcade are stocked with Peking rugs, jewel jade, silks, and curios. For swank one dines in its grill under the lofty black pyramid which surmounts its roof. The orchestra which plays in its air-conditioned ballroom pleases even blasé American tourists, and imported singers and dancers entertain the guests.

Chinese dance halls have opened in large numbers in the last two or three years. The native musician has not yet become a master of American syncopation, and the orchestras are usually Russian.

A modern young Chinese in foreign clothes, complete with horn-rimmed glasses and brilliantined hair, executes elaborate steps with his slender, narrow-eyed companion. She is gowned in high-necked brocade, dainty, exquisite. Sometimes as she sits sipping her drink, she renews her make-up with the contents of a compact.

Until well into the Twentieth century Chinese women of the better class were not seen in public. When they did leave their homes, it was only in sedan chairs, concealed from the eyes of the world. With the influx of Western ideas of women's freedom the Chinese woman emerged from her isolation. Foot-binding, possibly an expedient for keeping women at home, not only went out of fashion but became illegal.

Women Go Part Way Modern.

The transition period had its amusing aspects. Today the emancipated Chinese woman has her hair permanently waved, smokes, works in offices, frequents night clubs, and drives a car if she has a mind to. But with all her modern ideas she still is reluctant to adopt foreign dress. She wears silk stockings, discards her flat, embroidered satin slippers for uncomfortable spike-heeled shoes, but she resolutely clings to her long gown with its stiff, high collar and straight lines. The gown may be split to the knee as are modish gowns in the Western world when the designers so decide, but her modesty still forbids her to expose her throat.

The majority of Chinese shops flaunt gay red banners bearing in gold characters the description of goods carried within or announcements of bargains. These banners have almost entirely disappeared from Nanking road, but they hang in profusion the full length of the congested cross streets in the heart of the city.

Lesson for June 26

SHARING SERVICE WITH THE LIVING CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-8, 14-16, 19, 20. GOLDEN TEXT—And they went forth, and preached everywhere...

PRIMARY TOPIC—At Work With Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Living Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.

Easter again? No, the calendar does not say so, nor have we forgotten that we observed Easter ten weeks ago, but quite properly we study the resurrection story again today...

It is difficult to think or write about the living Christ without using superlatives. Our lesson for today brings before us the most important truth that the world has ever heard—"He is risen!"

I. The Transcendent Truth (vv. 1-8). "Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified; He is risen. He is not here" (v. 6).

The world anxiously awaits news, and, hoping almost against hope, it longs for good news. This is the good news—the Gospel—the all-important tidings that the Son of God who had taken upon Himself not only the form of man, but the sins of mankind as well...

This truth becomes the chief burden of the messages of the disciples as they soon went everywhere proclaiming the Gospel. See the sermons recorded in the Book of Acts (2:24, 32; 3:14, 15; 4:10, 23; 10:40; 13:30).

II. The Impassable Barrier (v. 14). "He upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not..."

The tragic consequence of unbelief is that it shuts the door, throws up a barrier to God's blessing that is virtually impassable until God himself gives grace to believe...

III. The Supreme Commission (vv. 15, 16, 19, 20). "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation" (v. 15).

The great commission of Christ is still the "marching orders of the church," but how slowly we have marched. The writer of these notes was recently startled by statistics revealing anew that "Christian" America is rapidly returning to the status of a mission field...

The command of Christ is that we should go to these pagan communities in our own land with the gospel, and surely it is our double shame that there are still lands where Christ has never been preached...

If we will go He will indeed work with us (v. 20) and accompany the message and ministry with divine authority and power. Who will go?

Star Dust. Goofy Comedies. The Sheik Is Funny. Resless Holiday. By Virginia Vale.

LOOKS more and more as if goofy comedies were the wane. First Carole Lombard said she'd have no more of them. Now Claudette Colbert who helped to start the cycle with "It Happened One Night," has balked.

It was planned that she would do "Husbands Necessary?" when returned from that European tour, but instead she'll go to work on "Midnight," which is romantic dramatic and everything but of "It Happened One Night" was revived recently in New York and a lot of people who'd thought how funny it was but missed it the first time round a chance to see it.

And the revival of Valentino's "The Sheik" seems to have been ill-advised. Any picture that old is bound to be funny nowadays. And the revival of movie-goers that has gone up since the days of Valentino couldn't understand why he had been such a world-beater.

of them reared with laughter thought Agnes Ayres, the one, a bit too fat—though in her she was considered stream-lined. However, no matter what the folks thought of that picture the other Valentino revival, "The Son of the Sheik," they thought mobs to the theaters and to the box offices.

looks as if George Arliss had been dumped into returning to Hollywood, thanks to Samuel Goldwyn. Arliss has a picture called "The Son of the Sheik," based on the life of the many famous men who had to leave their homes because of political trouble. Arliss would play the role of a squashed scientist.

Other Brothers will, at last, see "The Miracle," with Betty Hutton in the coveted role of the heroine. Ever since it was so successful a dramatic spectacle—in London in 1911 and in New York in 1912—there has been talk of doing it on the screen. Now, with Max Baer, its original producer, available, they are ready to start.

When Bob Burns ducked away from Hollywood for a rest, preparing to take the Bing Crosby radio program for the summer, he did so well in posing a spot in it. He and his wife went to New York, but so besieged people that left and returned to Buffalo—wanted to see her Niagara.

And the couple caught up with them again. They might try wearing a mask, if he wants to rest!

Margaret Tallichet, a comparatively newcomer to the screen, will team up with the leading woman, "As You Are." When and if "With the Wind" reaches the screen she will be seen as Kareen, younger sister of Scarlett. Tallichet tried the summer theater in the East last year.

AND ENDS—Nancy Carroll has been on the screen again in "The Goes My Heart." Judy Beebe has a srenched shoulder, the result of an automobile accident. Judy Beebe won't have the kind of trouble that Jackie Coogan has when he goes up; his parents have arranged to put his earnings in a trust fund, keeping $200 a week for themselves. Sierid Curtis' husband threatened to humiliate her by getting a job in a gas station. Lots of wives wouldn't see any humiliating about that.

Old Lloyd's new picture, "Professors," will be released simultaneously at special showings in New London and Paris.

CONTROLLING INSECTS

With garden vegetables beginning to show up in this section, Mrs. Lillian B. McClure, home management supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, is warning all gardeners to stand against insects which annually infest gardens and which, unless destroyed, damage or completely destroy garden truck.

There are two distinct types of insects which invade and attack plant life. They are commonly classified as the biting and the sucking insects. Biting insects are combated by applying poisonous chemicals to parts of the plants attacked so that each insect will take some of the poison into its stomach when it swallows the plant particles. The sucking insect is destroyed by physical contact with the poisonous chemicals, ordinarily applied to plants in dust or spray form.

The most commonly used control mixtures are Paris Green, Bordeaux mixture, and nicotine sulphate. These chemicals are among the most inexpensive ones and can be purchased at any drug store or seed house, with instructions for mixing. Mrs. McClure warns gardeners about the use of Paris Green. She says it should not come in contact with anything which cannot be thoroughly washed or peeled before eating.

The Farm Security Administration is encouraging all borrowers to raise bigger and better gardens as a very definite step in rehabilitation and health. Mrs. McClure also suggests that persons desiring to obtain complete information about methods of control for all plant insects and plant diseases write for bulletins now available from their state Extension Service, through their county agents or State Agricultural College.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

By John Craddock

A better feeling prevailed last week in business and agricultural circles. Farmers, especially in the west, were cheered by the fact that the price of wheat which two weeks ago dropped to 67½ cents a bushel, was back to the 75-cent level. With America's wheat crop estimated at one billion bushels, this rise means $80,000,000 more for farmers. Cotton rose too, more than $2 a bale, on reports of heavy rain damaging the crop. Great Britain ordered 400 airplanes from U. S. firms, practically assuring capacity operations in this industry for at least two years. Auto manufacturers said that it may not be necessary to close Detroit plants for two months this summer, as previously expected. Renewal of confidence is seen in the fact that railroads last month ordered 6,114 new freight cars. In April only three were ordered.

While retail business promises to be dull this summer, there is good reason to look for a sharp expansion in the fall. President Roosevelt has asked the PWA to prepare a list of projects costing about $6,000,000,000 which can be begun by the end of this month. Once the government pump-priming ball gets rolling, it is believed that an average of $200,000,000 a month will be spent for the balance of 1938. Opinions differ as to the ultimate value of such a program for achieving lasting recovery, but there is little doubt temporarily it will greatly stimulate mass buying power and fore retail trade.

The three McCormick-Deering Farmall Tractors—F-12, F-20, and the F-30 shown above—handle planting and cultivating of all row crops as well as the general-purpose work from plowing to belt jobs. All Farmalls operate on No. 1 distillate with unexcelled efficiency.

Ask us to bring a Farmall out to your farm for a demonstration.

You will find it has everything you want — safety, mileage, blowout protection, new design, new smart appearance — all at a remarkably new low price. And when you see it you will agree that Firestone has again set a new all time high in tire value with these outstanding features.

New High Quality — First choice rubber and cotton selected that conforms to Firestone's high standards and rigid specifications.

Long Mileage — Safe, silent tread design made of tough, slow wearing rubber that assures long mileage. Sturdy bars and rugged notches give protection against skidding.

Blowout Protection — Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone Patented Gum-Dipping process. Every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber which counteracts internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

PUNCTURE PROTECTION — Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of Gum-dipped cords under the tread protects against punctures.

NEW LOW PRICES — because Firestone saves money by controlling rubber and cotton at the source, and by more efficient methods of manufacturing and distribution. These savings make possible the extra values at these new low prices!

DON'T MISS THIS opportunity to save money. Let us put a set of the new large size, rugged, long wearing Firestone Convoy Tires on your car today, then your car will be ready for trouble-free summer driving!
