AGGIE BRIEFS

By Finley R. White

The school kiddies may have a grin on their faces because school has opened, but believe me the parents don't have. The kids have 4 or 5 wrinkle smiles on their faces, and besides that they have the kids corralled for 5 weeks.

The rains were late coming, but they don't get here too late to help some. Cotton and feed should be a better staple and grain because of the rain and the wheat range land will be greatly benefited.

Wheat Seeding Time
Some farmers got enough rain to plant wheat this time it seems to be somewhat different. It is told that compliance will be checked this fall and if we are to have over seeded we will not be out of compliance and no chance of blowing up wheat next spring.

If you have any volunteer wheat you'd like to leave for grazing that is permissible. Volunteer wheat for grazing will not count as long as it is plowed under by April 1939.

If you don't have any volunteer wheat to leave for grazing and you would like to seed some wheat in excess of your allotment you can do this by adding to your wheat seed at least 25 percent by weight of barley or rye. Remember if you expect to use what for pasture it must contain at least 25 percent by weight of barley or rye. If you do this you will not be caught napping when compliance time comes again.

Subsidy Payments
We have just heard over the Grape Vine Telephone that our subsidy payments should be here September 15th. The bad part of this telephone message was that it was cut off before we found out what September 15th—1938 or 1939?

Practically all subsidy papers have been signed up and sent to the State Office. The "regulars" have been gone for 2 or 3 weeks and the late 4000 group haven't gone so long.

Cotton Marketing Quotas
We are busy day and night trying to get our marketing quota for you fellows in the field. You will be notified individually soon as we are ready for you to come in and get your marketing quota. Everyone will have to have a marketing card before he can sell any cotton. Those who stayed within their allotted acres will get a white card and can market, tax, and sell all they make. Those over will get a red card and will sell only their allotment tax free. All over that draws $10.00 per bale penalty.

NOTABLES TO APPEAR AT TRI-STATE FAIR
W. Lee O'Daniel and his Hillbillies will "pass the biscuits" at the Tri-State Fair here, Sept. 19. And every day during the exhibition week cinema celebrities and other notables will attend. "This is the sixteenth year of the Tri-State Fair and the association is spending more money than ever on attractions," said Ray Pinkney, president.

There will be an improved midway, with many free attractions, including a death-defying loop, Butler Brothers rodeo and "Cavalade of Hits," a spectacular show in which the association has taken rain insurance.

Northcutt Brings In First Bale Cotton

LET THE CRITTERS DO THE WORK

By T. C. Richardson, Secretary Breeder-Feeder Association

At this season crops are maturing and harvesting is ahead. A great deal of labor may be saved by turning livestock in the fields and allowing them to feed themselves. Under proper handling there is little waste of grain, and animals get the benefit of green forage that would not be saved otherwise and which adds to the value of the grain by helping to balance the ration. If fields are not already fenced, a temporary fence of 32-inch woven wire will confine sheep and hogs, and with a few stanch posts at wide intervals, small stakes driven into the ground will support it. It can readily be rolled up and moved several times, and when it becomes to badly bent to stand up in a temporary fence, it is still good for permanent use where solid corner posts permit tight stretching.

Hogs are well known to be the best gleaners of grain, with sheeps next. If crops are harvested by cattle it is always advisable to follow with hogs. The cheapest pork, both in labor cost and the amount of grain required to make 100 pounds of meat, is produced by a combination of green pasture, hogging down feed crops, and the self-feeder. Carl P. Thompson, extension swine specialist of Oklahoma voices the experience of the best hog men when he says that it is doubtful if a farmer can afford to raise hogs unless they can run on pasture a good part of the year.

Besides the labor saving element it is good for the health of both hogs and sheep to get off the permanent pastures and on the cultivated fields, where internal parasites are less prevalent. It is best to confine the animals to a space that can be cleaned up in ten days to three weeks, rather than permit them to roam at large for a month or more. In the final stages of grazing, grains will be slowed up by their walking over large fields in search of foods, and there will be more wastage in the long run. It goes without saying that shade and water must be easily and continuously accessible to the animals while hogging down or sheepling off crops. Experiments have shown that a bushel of grain goes a great deal farther in meat production if the animal can drink when thirsty instead of waiting for periodic waterings several hours apart.

Mineral mixtures and protein supplements are usually not indispensable if hogs have access to good pastures and legumes, or skim milk, but experienced hog men say protein supplements always pay. Corn and cowpeas, corn and soy beans, corn and peanuts, make good fattening rations when hogged down together. With corn alone it is advisable to supply a mineral mixture and a protein supplement in self-feeders. Either wood ashes or air-slaked lime and salt in equal parts is good, and bone meal may be profitably added under some conditions. Charcoal is commonly used and hogs like it.

The protein supplement may be based on cottonseed meal, linseed meal, peanut meal or tankage. The experiment stations of the Southwest have worked out formulas for protein supplements for their respective states, according to the availability and adaptation of the materials. Cottonseed meal is available everywhere in the Southwest, and may be safely and profitably fed to hogs by following directions furnished by extension hog specialists and county agents who keep up with experimental results.

Enough feed goes to waste on most Southwestern farms to produce all the pork and beef or mutton the family could use. Pasturing the fields is the only way much of this waste can be turned to profit, and the most economical way of harvesting and selling crops that are adapted to harvesting by animals.

Let the critters do the work.

ROY RAISES CHICKENS

Roy Waldrop of the Antelope 4-H Club has fifty baby chicks for his 4-H project. He got them a day or two before the coldest days of spring. He realized the necessity of the chicks comfort, so he put them in the cellar and kept a lamp burning so as to keep them warm. By this method he raised forty-two of the fifty chicks, which is pretty good. He raised more than any other of the 4-H members.

Silverton Gin Starts Ginning Thursday Morning

A. R. (Bert) Northcutt hauled the first bale of 1938 cotton to the Silverton Gin Company here, Wednesday morning. Mr. Northcutt's cotton is of a good grade, and picking is going ahead within a few days.

The cotton was raised "below the cap rock" and is a week or so ahead of any cotton on the Plains, although it is expected that Plains cotton picking will start some time next week.

The Silverton Gin opened up Thursday morning on the Northcutt cotton, and as a trial run to make certain that everything is running smoothly. The gin has undergone extensive repairs this season and, according to Boots Bryant, is in better shape than in the two years he has operated it. New feeder-cleaners have been installed, and other important repairs and changes made.

The gin force this year will be Bill Bryant, Bill Williams, Claude Laudermilk, Nig Baird, Shorty Bingham, Frank Hunt, and in the office will be Ep Baker and Boots Bryant.

Cotton this year, is expected to make less than half as many bales as last year, although the rain the first of the week helped the crop considerably. Last year the Silverton Gin Company turned out 3,376 bales.

GULF STATION RE-OPENED HERE BY TED ROUSSIN

Ted Roussin, who for some time has been operating the Texaco Station on Highway 86, has gone back to the Gulf Company and has re-opened the Gulf Station north of the Silverton Hotel.

Alvin Redin has taken over the Texaco Station and will operate it in connection with his wholesale agency. Redin will be assisted by Coy Chappell.

Roussin came here some two years ago and operated the Gulf Station. He built up a good business on Gulf Products and one of the largest stocks of accessories in this section. He has had considerable trouble housing the stock in the new location and has accessory shelves from top to bottom of every wall. He will still continue as authorized Firestone Tire dealer for Silverton.

TRIPS FOR "TOP" 4-H'ERS TO CHICAGO ARE ASSURED

Prize educational trips are again assured for a delegation of Texas 4-H club boys and girls to the annual National Club Congress, announces the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Over 50 club members have annually won these rewards. The trips are for clubsters who make superior records in their projects and other activities. This year's Congress—the seventeenth—again will be conducted as a feature of the International Live Stock Exposition to be held in Chicago, Nov. 25—Dec. 3.

The latest offer of a trip for Texans is provided by Armour's Livestock Bureau, and is valued at $100. It will be awarded by State Club Leader L. L. Johnson of College Station for the best baby beef record. Gordon Grote of Mason won the trip last year.

TELLING THE WORLD ABOUT OUR TEXAS

Telling the world about Texas, a national advertising program to inform national industrial executives about the States natural advantages and manufacturing opportunities, was under way today under leadership of the Texas Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development.

Taying full advantage of the wide spread interest in Texas created by the Centennial and Pan American Expositions, the program will focus interest on the many opportunities for business and manufacturing development offered by the State. Jesse McKee, chairman of the Five-Year Industrial Campaign Committee of the Institute, announced. Appointed today to handle the national campaign about Texas was Tracy Locke-Dawson, Inc., Dallas advertising agency, which directed advertising for both the Centennial and Pan American, and worked with the Dallas Chamber of Commerce on the Industrial Dallas campaign which attracted national attention some years ago.

"National advertising about Texas will place the State among the many states and sections now using this means of getting new businesses and residents," Mr. McKee explained. "Among those already using this method are New York, California, the New England States, Pennsylvania, Washington, Nebraska, New Jersey and among the southern states, Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Carolina. Texas must advertise itself if it is to profit by the current movement of manufacturing plants to southern states."

"Emphasis will be laid in the advertising on the highly specialized research facilities and statistical service offered free to companies and investors interested in Texas by the Texas Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development," Mr. McKee said. The Institute, founded 18 years ago, has gathered a tremendous amount of information about every section of Texas from which it will prepare specialized reports without charge for interested manufacturers and industrialists.

SUCCESS NOT FAILURE

On the tomb of Joseph 11, at Vienna, these melancholy words are chiseled: "Here lies a King, who, with the best of intentions, never succeeded in carrying out a single plan." Do you think of Moses as having failed in carrying out his great plan? He did not lead his people into Canaan. Another was chosen to finish his task. But what did he accomplish for his people? He transformed a multitude of dispirited serfs into a conquering host. Into a people who had fallen away from the religion of their forefathers he installed renewed faith in a righteous and holy God. An undisciplined rabble he accustomed to habits of law and order; and laid for it the foundations of a system of civil and religious jurisprudence with which his name became indelibly associated. He rose superior to all discouragement, and lived to bring his countrymen to the confines of the promised land, and to commit them to a leader, whom he had trained to continue and crown his work. This will be our thought in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning. At the vesper hour we will think of such thoughts as are necessary for a real revival. The Fall is now here let us all begin to go to Church.

Twenty-nine Men Out For Football

SIDELIGHTS

By MARVIN JONES
Member of Congress from Texas

The farm bill has several important features which, until recently, have not been much discussed.

One of these is the authority that is given the Secretary of Agriculture to file application to correct the discriminations against farm products in the freight rate schedules of the country.

For years some of us have been working on this matter, and I am glad to note the interest that is now being taken in Texas and other states on this important question.

Discrimination
When farm implements, iron and steel, and other manufactured commodities, are shipped abroad, reduced freight rates are allowed to the point of export, whereas on most farm commodities, especially cotton and wheat, little if any export rate reductions are allowed.

As industry has these reduced export rates, why should not the same reductions be given wheat and cotton as a matter of simple justice?

Examples

When farm machinery is shipped, the following rates prevail:	Domestic-Export rate
Indianapolis to Galveston	1.04 44
Indianapolis to New Orleans	.75 44
Chicago to Houston	1.05 47 1/2
Chicago to New Orleans	.80 47 1/2
Moline, Ill., to Houston	1.02 47 1/2
On iron and steel, the following rates prevail:
Chicago to San Francisco	1.02 40
Gray, Ind., to New York	.47 34
Pittsburg, Pa., to New York	.33 20

In other words: 2 plows shipped from Moline, Illinois, to Houston, Texas, loaded on the same platform, unloaded on the same dock: The one to be used by the Texas farmer pays a freight rate of $1.02 per cwt.; the one being shipped abroad pays a freight rate of 47 1/2 cents per cwt.

The excuse for lower freight rates on manufactured products going into export is that by shipping the products abroad, factories are enabled to run full tilt and thus to sell their products even at home cheaper than if they ran part time. I am not prepared to say that there is not some merit to this contention.

But if it is wise and just to give a lower freight rate on manufactured products from the industrial areas to the point of shipment, when going into export, in order to dispose of the surplus, why doesn't the same reasoning apply to farm products going into export in order to dispose of the surplus of those products?

Other Discriminations

Not only do the discriminations which are illustrated above prevail throughout the country, but there is another discrimination in the complete freight rate structure applying to the entire Southwest area: The freight rates generally prevailing in the Southwest area are 79% above the average of the freight rates prevailing in other sections of the country. This is unjust and unfair. Ten years ago I made a speech in the House of Representatives, complaining of these discriminations. I appealed to the old Farm Board to begin the fight. I appealed to the farm organizations. Finally, we were able to include a freight rate provision in the last farm measure, thus taking a step forward in the long fight for equality.

I am very much encouraged by the fact that the National Emergency Council's report recognizes this unfair freight structure and is lending the weight of its influence toward bringing about a correction of these manifest discriminations. Nothing could do more for the building of the Southwest than to correct these unjust rates and give to the farms and factories of our section an even chance with other parts of the country.

THANKS, FRIENDS

I want to tell you that I am really grateful for the many kindnesses you did for me and my family while I was in the hospital. When a man is flat on his back, he really is thankful for friends. I will remember it a long time.

Practice Starts In Earnest This Week With Light Team Out

With only two lettermen to build from, Coach Aulton Durham's football boys face the hardest season in years. From last year's strong team, only Hank Brown and A. J. Rowell are left this year. Twenty-nine boys are working out now for the team, and despite inexperience seem to be developing into a nice squad.

Durham says that the boys are all willing and are hard workers. In fact he says that the boys on the team this year are going to be scrapping, football minded boys, or they won't be there at all. His idea is that a little man doing his best, is better than a big man who loaf. The boys are undergoing a more strenuous training and conditioning than in previous years, and this week are beginning actual football training.

Here are the boys and their weights—the 1938 string will be chosen from this group:

A. J. Rowell, center	167
Hank Brown, fullback	156
Grady Martin, end	157
Carleton Gardener, end	128
W. L. Perry, guard	127
Minyard Long, end	127
Billie Gregg, guard	98
Thomas Olive, tackle	154
Jack O'Neal, tackle	178
John Bain, tackle	165
Conrad Henderson, guard	142
Alton Walker, halfback	150
Alvie Boyce, guard	121
Gene Arnold, guard	120
James Davis, guard	103
John Crow, center	121
Hubert Tillery, halfback	144
Bob Brooks, quarter	115
John Quillen, halfback	157
O. C. Rampley, halfback	157
Charles Francis, tackle	150
Fred Brannon, guard	122
Elmo Baird, halfback	134
Bruce Burleson, quarter	123
Leo Gresham, end	117
Billy Rampley, guard	124
J. W. Rowell, guard	124
Pascal Garrison, end	128
Jack Shaffer, mascot	82

The 1938 schedule includes seven conference games, six of which will be played at home. Unless a game is secured for an earlier date, the first game will be played September 30. The season's schedule follows:

Sept. 16	Open
Sept. 23	Lakeview (Tentative)
Sept. 30	Dimmitt at Silverton
Oct. 7	Matador at Silverton
Oct. 14	Lockney at Silverton
Oct. 21	Estelline at Memphis, nite
Oct. 28	Spur at Silverton
Nov. 11	Quitaque at Quitaque
Nov. 18	Paducah at Silverton
Nov. 24	Turkey at Silverton

FARMERS URGED TO KEEP ADEQUATE RECORDS

Running a business without records is like running a clock without hands," T. R. Timm, farm management specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, recently told the 430 Texas whole farm demonstrators in the course of a radio address. "It is running, but you can't tell whether it is gaining or losing or in what direction it is going."

Whole farm demonstrations aim at improving the efficiency of all the farm and home operations, and record keeping is an essential part of the plan developed by the Extension Service and first put into operation in 1937.

"If nothing else, record keeping causes farmers to pay closer attention to the business and of their enterprises," the economist said. "If a seaman notices a leak in his boat he quickly plugs it. All too often a farmer cannot find a leak in his business without records."

Studies made by several states show conclusively that a farmer's income tends to rise as he continues to use books, he pointed out. Among the many reasons assigned to these income increases are that a farmer will not keep on using equipment or continue a type of farm operation if his records show the enterprise is losing money.

THREE-FOURTHS INCH RAIN FALLS SUNDAY NITE

Silverton and vicinity received a nice rain Saturday night and Sunday night—84 of an inch, according to the Silverton government gauge. Perhaps an eighth of this amount fell Saturday night—the most falling during Sunday night.

The rain was valuable to every farmer, however, it should have been three times that much. Several farmers report more rain than the Silverton gauge registered and many are ready to start wheat sowing.

The Floydada Country Club is staging a Golf Tournament this week. Entrance fees are $1.00 and several nice prizes are being offered, says the Floyd County Hesperian.

COMPULSORY VACCINATION

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, in a statement issued at Austin this week, urged all local boards of health and boards of education to pass regulation making mandatory smallpox vaccination and diphtheria immunization for all school children before they are allowed to register for the fall school term.

"School children are exposed to so much infection during the school year that where a definite preventive against a disease is known, parents should be urged to take advantage of this knowledge. Vaccination may save a period of prolonged absence from school, doctor's fees, and even life itself. It is foolhardiness not to require that all school children be rendered non-infectious from the communicable diseases, smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid, before they start to school this year," Dr. Cox stated.

The Texas State Department of Health wishes to recommend that the various local school boards adopt such regulations, taking further into consideration that lack of action on their part may soon mean the difference between a successful school year or a prolonged illness, failure or death. 238 children died from diphtheria in Texas during 1937.

"It is further to be urged that parents take their children to the family physician for a physical examination before school opens. Defects may be found which can easily be remedied and will prevent future illness. It has been demonstrated that almost all the physical defects of children are comparatively easy to correct—insuring the child of its normal strength and an ability to keep up with its school work without undue effort.

Parent Teacher organizations, the public health personnel and the local medical organizations are strongly in favor of pre-school examinations and vaccination. In this campaign against unnecessary death and disease among the school children of Texas, the State Health Department lends its full support.

March of Time Study Club

The March of Time Junior Study Club held their first meeting Thursday, September 1 at the High School.

Mrs. Anna Tidwell, president, opened the meeting. After a short business session the meeting was turned over to the program leader, Miss Anna Lee Anderson.

The theme for the year is "The Fine Art of Living." The first program was "Family Relations" Those having parts were Mrs. Roy Hahn, Mrs. True Burson, and Mrs. Tony Burson.

Mrs. Wayne Crawford and Mrs. Hermun Ely were welcomed as new members.

The next meeting of the club will be September 15 with Mrs. Marvin Tull as leader. The program title: "Life More Abundant."

Modern 'Holy War' Threatens Over Domination of Palestine

By Joseph W. LaBine

Races

Tiny Palestine is far smaller than the average American state, yet its city of Jerusalem is a religious shrine for Christians, Jews, Arabs. From a Biblical start, Christianity spread over the earth, largely deserting its birthplace. Hebrews also left, driven by the hated Arabs who later fell under Turkey's yoke. Not until the World War was this yoke thrown off with Great Britain's aid. If Arabs expected Great Britain to hand them Palestine on a silver platter, Lord Balfour outfoxed them. In November, 1917, the foresighted foreign secretary saw Russia persecuting the Jews, possibly foresaw a coming European revolution against them. So Palestine was favored as a national home for the wandering Jew and in 1923 Great Britain was granted a mandate over the land.

Had Lord Balfour's foresight included Jew-hating Adolf Hitler, he might have been less anxious to guide Palestine's destiny. Since 1923, Holy Land Jews have jumped from 75,000 to 375,000. Arabic population meanwhile standing at 325,000. Led by a Zionist world organization, zealous Hebrews have fostered such projects as Tel Aviv, all-Jewish city just outside Arabic Jaffa.

In 1929, Arab resentment boiled over into riot, again in 1936. This time worried Britain investigated, finally decided to place Jews on one side of the River Jordan, Arabs on the other. Since Arabs got the biggest share and Jews the most fertile share, neither was happy. Upshot was a new series of riots, starting early last July and continuing unbroken ever since. Last week, as harried British troops swept up after Jaffa's latest bombing, the world wondered how peace could ever come back to the Holy Land.

Jews recall that when Moses led their ancestors into the "promised land," some stayed on one side of the Jordan, some on the other. Thus they want more land, yet insist—publicly, at least—that Arabs can remain. Arabs recall the Holy Land has been their home 1,300 years, stonically threaten to fight unto death protecting their heritage.

Politics

What they lack at Washington, D. C., Republicans made up during a week-end of blistering heat and fried chicken at Washington, Ind. Their host was Homer E. Capehart, vice president of Buffalo's Rudolph Wurlitzer company, whose farm was covered with tents until it looked like a circus. Attending were Republicans from 11 states.

Day before, G. O. P. "strategists" met in Indianapolis behind closed doors, emerged with no comment except that they expected 70 more seats in congress after next November's election. Then, headed by Chairman John D. M. Hamilton and New York's Rep. James W. Wadsworth, they headed south to Mr. Capehart's circus tents.

To entertain 25,000 ardent Republicans, Ringmaster Capehart spent $25,000, fried 4,500 chickens, baked 40,000 clams and roasted three truckloads of corn. Said he: "I am sick and tired . . . of hearing business men and men of all other groups complain and talk against the New Deal and then do absolutely nothing about it."

Said Mr. Hamilton, who seemed content with talking about it: "Instead of hurling meaningless epithets at those who disagree with him, let Mr. Roosevelt explain to us why we have almost 13,000,000 unemployed, a number no less than in the very depths of the world-wide depression of 1929-32."

At dusk the second day, speech-weary Republicans headed for home. But Franklin Roosevelt could not fail to heed the Capehart show. Next week, Indiana enthusiasm showed signs of invading 47 other states.

Business

His crop control program bogged down under bountiful harvests, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace discovered early last month that this year's wheat would more than fill America's granaries. Only wheat was export, and wheat-consuming nations are this year being offered more grain than they want by a dozen wheat-producing nations. To compete on the low-priced export market, to meanwhile give U. S. farmers a fair price, Secretary Wallace realized that subsidy would be necessary.

From Washington went invitations to grain dealers for purchase of wheat that the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation will sell abroad. Subsidy payments to producers, expected to be 15 or 20 cents per bushel, will come from $25,000,000 now available from customs receipts. To avoid throat-cutting, Secretary Wallace sought an export agreement with Canada, which also has large surpluses. Meanwhile came word of heavy exports from Poland and Argentina, giving promise of a badly glutted world market.

Foreign

As leader of Czechoslovakia's autonomy-seeking Sudetens, Konrad Henlein is admittedly nothing more than Adolf Hitler's mouthpiece. So anxious observers look behind the mouthpiece last week when Konrad Henlein told Sudetens to "fight back" against "attacks" by the Czech government. Thus arose the latest crisis in a series of crises that has kept Europe jittery all summer.

At little Lanark, Scotland, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon made the bold assertion that Adolf Hitler must not start a war over Czechoslovakia, else he might find Britain on his neck. Coming from a member of Neville Chamberlain's dictator-worshipping cabinet, that pronouncement sounded strange. But soon Sir John's boldness was explained. Said he:

"You will have read the striking speech made the other day by Mr. Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, when he laid stress on . . . the necessity for . . . friendly co-operation. What he said, and what President Roosevelt said a few days later in Canada, must awaken a responsive echo in many British hearts."

Since Franklin Roosevelt had promised to help Canada in the event of invasion, Great Britain was clearly relying on a far-fetched hope of U. S. support. Two days later, it was plain the bluff had worked. Backing Britain came France, Russia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia, each warning Germany to keep its hands off Czechoslovakia.

War

Important goal of Generalissimo Francisco Franco is the Almaden mercury mines of southwestern Spain, where an offensive began August 1. Last week revived Loyalist troops closed in on Rebel Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's advance positions at Cabeza del Buey, regaining practically all land lost since the insurgent drive began. But Loyalists received bad news, too. In the Strait of Gibraltar, a 1,650-ton destroyer was waylaid by four insurgent warships. Twenty were killed, 14 wounded, and the ship limped to port in hopeless condition.

● Still 100 miles from Hankow, Japanese invaders captured Luan and Suklafow on the Peiping-Hankow railroad, while defending Chinese recaptured three important towns on the upper Yangtze river. Meanwhile, in Washington, a U. S. foreign policy association predicted continuation of the Sino-Jap conflict until the U. S. shuts off supplies.

People

In 1994, an unconventional American actress named May Yohe married England's Lord Francis Hope, owner of the famous Hope diamond. In 1902, May Yohe tired of English royalty, eloped with Capt. Bradley Putnam Strong, son of a one-time New York mayor. In 1914, May Yohe married again, this time Capt. John A. Smuts. Last spring, the once notorious May Yohe was found on WPA rolls. Last week, aged 89, May Yohe died at Boston.

● At Orange, Conn., John Coolidge, son of the late President Calvin Coolidge, entered politics for the first time by getting himself elected delegate to Connecticut's Republican state convention.

Labor

In medieval days, a plagued ship might carry disease from port to port. Last week, a plagued boxcar carried industrial paralysis through San Francisco's wholesale district. Cause of this strange epidemic was a shipment of school supplies which union warehouse employees said was loaded by strike-breakers. At five classifications of warehouses—public, grocery, liquor, drugs, hardware—San Francisco's boxcar was shunted to sidetracks. At each stop workers refused to touch it, employers retaliating by closing shop, discharging workers and abrogating contracts. After five days of wandering, this four-wheeled Nemesis had caused 2,000 workers to lose their jobs, had closed 153 plants.

● Fortnight ago, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor talked with Franklin Roosevelt about the Wagner labor relations act. Outcome was a mutual agreement to amend it, providing more equitable consideration for both employer and employee. If this decision pleased William Green, it displeased C. I. O.'s John L. Lewis, who was comforted a few days later by re-appointment of Donald Wakefield Smith to the National Labor Relations board.

Thus satisfied, labor's two warring factions began wooing each other. David Dubinsky announced his International Ladies Garment Workers, now on the fence, would try once more to bring C. I. O., A. F. of L., together. William Green announced his willingness to puff a peace pipe. But overnight these gestures were nullified.

At Cincinnati, C. I. O.'s United Mine Workers and Kentucky's Harlan County Coal Operators association signed an agreement whereby Harlan county's mines will become a closed shop, whereby C. I. O.'s civil charges against mine owners will be dropped. Last month these same operators were prosecuted by the federal government for violation of the Wagner act, the trial ending in a hung jury.

Since C. I. O.'s new pact freezes out A. F. of L.'s Progressive Mine Workers of America, William Green found cause to fire a blast not only at John Lewis, but NLRB and the justice department as well. His charges: (1) that the pact forces A. F. of L. miners to join C. I. O. or get out; (2) that the justice department is playing ball with John Lewis by dropping its criminal charges against Harlan county operators; (3) that the pact conspires to violate the Wagner act.

To land-grabbing Mexico, Secretary of State Cordell Hull has sent two notes protesting seizure of $10,000,000 in American-owned farm land, $200,000,000 in American-owned oil land. Latest of these protests was a downright lecture to Mexican President Lazaro Cardenas, who would lose national prestige by back-tracking, who will lose conservative support if he fails to back-track. Though Mexico guardedly admits liability, she refuses to pay, indeed is unable to pay until her grievous economic condition improves. Last week, as observers wondered whether U. S. Ambassador Joseph Daniels had been negligent in allowing an altogether too-complex situation to arise, Cordell Hull heard that $25,000,000 more American-owned property had been seized. Included, said unofficial reports, were 80,000 acres of Publisher William Randolph Hearst's ranch.

● At Washington, Franklin Roosevelt announced the U. S. would gladly reduce armaments if other nations would reduce theirs. Next day the U. S. navy department drafted tentative plans for 18 new ships.

Last November, Capt. George E. T. Eyston came from England to Utah's Bonneville salt flats, there drove an automobile 311.42 miles per hour. Fortnight ago, Captain Eyston returned with his huge new Thunderbolt to race once more. While American Automobile association officials checked him with an electric eye, Racer Eyston zipped through the 13-mile northward run, hitting nearly 350 m. p. h. on the checked mile. But the electric eye failed on his southward run, so Thunderbolt set no record. Three days later Captain Eyston tried again with more luck. This time his black racer, whose tires must be changed after each run, whose thick aluminum cowlings are punctured by the terrific spray of salt, averaged 345.49 m. p. h. for his round trip.

President's Supporters Catch Brunt of Opposition Criticism

Roosevelt Personally Under Direct Fire of Enemies Only Twice; Interference in State Primaries Now Subject of Bitter Controversy.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—It has been a matter of frequent reference among observers how President Roosevelt's supporters or subordinates, or spokesmen for him, have caught the brunt of opposition criticism. Mr. Roosevelt personally has been under the direct fire of his enemies on only two occasions. He played his political cards so that, when some plan blew up, it was some subordinate or supporter whose neck was found out too far. The President, of course, found himself as the target when he proposed packing the Supreme court with six additional justices of his own choosing and when he sought reorganization of the government, but, generally speaking, the Roosevelt prestige has avoided damage, until now.

Which brings us to the bitter controversy over presidential interference in state primaries, and the second stage—Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that it was a violation of public morality for Republicans to enter a Democratic primary. This controversy is the most heated and has the broadest implications of any of the three in which the storm centered about Mr. Roosevelt's own head. It is likely to be the most far-reaching in its result. The Roosevelt prestige is bound to be damaged whether he wins or loses when the score finally is totaled, and, as far as can be seen now, he will not be able to avoid it.

I remember having written, when the President made his cross-country trip in the dual capacity of President and head of the Democratic party, that it appeared difficult to dissociate the two capacities. I predicted at that time, two months ago, that there were germs of trouble in such an attempt. It was not long before the germs were growths. Mr. Roosevelt's pat on the back for Senator Bulkley of Ohio, and his bold command to the Democratic voters of Kentucky to send Sen. "Dear Alben" Barkley back to the senate brought a shower of ripe verbal eggs onto the head of either the President or the head of the Democratic party. I did not know which personality was naming the favorite Democratic candidate in the primaries then, nor do I yet know. From all of the information from those states since, I gather that the voters in the primaries did not know whether they were voting to support the President of the United States or the head of the Democratic party.

Pat on Back for McAdoo, Face Slap for O'Connor

Then, on to the Middle West and the Far West, the pat on the back for Senator McAdoo, who has opposition for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California; and, next, in Georgia where Mr. Roosevelt uttered the now famous "God bless you, Walter—but you're no liberal!" to Senator George, to be followed by a direct endorsement of Lawrence Camp for the senatorial nomination against Mr. George. Later, Mr. Roosevelt gave a vicious political slap in the face to Rep. John O'Connor, in New York, and attacked Senator Tydings in Maryland by saying that Representative Davy Lewis ought to have the Democratic nomination.

In addition to these direct interferences in state primaries, Mr. Roosevelt's subordinates—men like Relief Administrator Hopkins and Secretary Ickes—horned into primaries in Iowa, Oregon, Idaho and elsewhere. They were well licked in Iowa and Idaho, and it was the result in the latter state that has brought up the second stage of the controversy.

Idaho's Senator Pope used to say that if any constituent wanted to know his position on a given question, it was necessary only to inquire whether the President was for or against it. Apparently, the voters in Idaho did not like that; they preferred a senator to vote their views rather than one who consistently voted the President's view. Anyway, they nominated Representative Clark, in their Democratic primary. He had something in excess of 3,500 more votes than Mr. Pope.

The licking administered to Senator Pope did not taste well to the President or the coterie of New Deal advisors. Senator Pope obviously did not like it either, and he did the childish thing of emitting a loud and noxious squawk that the nomination was taken from him by Republicans. He said they went into the Democratic primary and gave Representative Clark their votes in sufficient number to override the will of a majority of the Democrats in the state. Senator Pope went to Hyde Park, N. Y., to weep out his story to the shoulders of Mr. Roosevelt, but it has not been made clear whether it was the shoulders of the President of the United States or of the head of the Democratic party. Anyway, there was weeping at Hyde Park.

Takes Important Second Step in Controversy

And after that meeting and when the tears were wiped away so there would be no sniffing, Mr. Roosevelt took the important second step in the controversy. He denounced the Republicans as having "violated public morals" by voting for Mr. Clark in a Democratic primary, although if the ballots were secret as the law requires I have been unable to figure out how either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Pope knew that it was the Republicans and not the Democrats who brought about Mr. Pope's defeat. Anyway, Mr. Roosevelt—either as President of the United States or as head of the Democratic party—condemned such terrible things as Republican votes in a Democratic primary. Such a course of action, the President or the head of the Democratic party said, constituted an attempt to destroy the direct primary system. It apparently did not matter to the President or the head of the Democratic party that Mr. Clark had campaigned as a Democrat while Senator Pope was sounding off as a 100 per cent New Dealer.

I have been wondering, since the Hyde Park condemnation of the Republicans, how Mr. Roosevelt's position in the two phases of his course can be reconciled. It never has seemed to me to be so terrible for the President or the head of the Democratic party (if the President be a Republican) to state his views about candidates. Probably, the presidential office ought not to be used that way, but I can't get so excited about it as some writers and some newspaper and some politicians have done. I am inclined to regard such action as the purest of politics and politics is a game and the voters have to recognize that it is a game. There has been a lot of meaningless gushing going on about Mr. Roosevelt's course that just fails to impress me at all.

But, on the other hand, there is an old, old quotation: Consistency, thou art a jewel. In remembering and applying that thought, it appears to me that Mr. Roosevelt has gone off the deep end of the pool without an inflated rubber tube for an arm rest. Indeed, isn't it a rather silly thing, an utterly stupid piece of business, to claim the right to interfere on his own part and tell the common, ordinary garden variety of voter that he can not take a position because he once played on the other team?

Is Roosevelt's Forgettery Working Well These Days?

Further, I am wondering whether Mr. Roosevelt's forgettery works so well that he fails to recall his appeal in 1932 and again in 1936 for Republicans to follow him, elect him as the savior of the country. It seems to me if it is sauce for the goose, the old gander can eat the same food.

Further, there is a bit of logic about the whole thing that ought to be examined. Take the state of Georgia, for example, where the Democratic nomination means election. A Republican in Georgia would be sunk without a trace, as far as selection of someone to represent him in congress is concerned, if he wanted to have his real choice recorded. His only course, if he preferred one Democratic candidate to another, would be to enter the Democratic primary and vote for one of those candidates. Assume that the Republican voter lives in Idaho. If that voter felt that neither of the candidates for the Republican nomination for the senate measured up to his ideas, why should he not be allowed to vote in the Democratic primary in order to express his preference? It might well be that a Republican voter in Idaho would feel that the Democratic nominee had a better chance of being elected in November than did the Republican nominee. If he felt that way, it appears to me that he would be showing good sense, common horse sense to express his preference on that side of the fence. I believe Mr. Roosevelt's record would look very much better at this point if he had extended his congratulations to Representative Clark in Idaho, and promised him the support of the Democratic national committee in the forthcoming election, as was done by National Democratic Chairman Farley. Surely, that would have been sportsmanship and the attitude of a good loser.

It may be, however—and this is an implication from the indications of the day—that Mr. Roosevelt is trying deliberately to force a re-aligning of voters throughout the country. He may be seeking to drive radicals into his camp—in case of a third term urge—and the conservatives into another camp.

'The Nurse and the Thug'

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's a holdup story with a different twist—a tragic one, for, we learn from Augusta C. Gores of Dale, L. I., "The gunman confessed to Judge Savarese he was about to assault me." Had it not been for the coincidence related below, Augusta's adventure would have had a different ending.

Augusta, who is a nurse, was attending an invalid patient in Garden City on the night of April 4, 1936, at 11:20 p. m., she alighted from the Metropolitan avenue trolley a block and a half from the house at which she was employed.

The road at that point happens to be very lonely, inasmuch as John's cemetery is but a block away. Augusta felt rather crestfallen that reason as she was walking that distance from the trolley.

Suddenly, ahead of her, she saw a lengthened shadow, trailing in the same direction. SOMEONE WAS COMING ALONG BEHIND HER.

She looked back to make certain, and, sure enough, a man was following along toward her. Augusta felt the man might be following her she figured she would cross to the opposite side of the road in order to see whether the man would actually follow her.

He did. Augusta looked back once more as she was crossing as she did, the man crossed also. He, too, was looking back, whether the road behind him was clear. "I was not mistaken," Augusta says.

No Chance to Escape by Running.

Fear came over her. Fighting for control, she realized in a panic, that she must suppress her blind desire to outrun the man, to hope lay in that course, she must use her wits instead.

Behind her the footsteps grew louder. At last, unable any longer to restrain herself, Augusta turned. Not a foot away from her was the man. She attempted to turn back to the avenue, as there were no cars going through, but the fellow prevented her from doing so by her to go on ahead of him and obey his orders as he had her with a gun and would use it on her if she screamed or made any attempt to call for help.

The drunken thug was getting rough, and Augusta began to tremble.

At the same time, Augusta says, the man pressed his body against hers so that she might feel that he had a gun.

The man wore a leather jacket, and had his hand in his pocket, concealing the weapon. This was enough for Augusta, thoughts of flight vanished. She knew she must somehow talk her way out of this situation. But she knew in the next instant that she had no choice. The man was under the influence of liquor, and he past the reasoning stage.

Augusta Invented a Husband.

As the man began getting rough, Augusta told him desperately she expected her husband along any minute, and that her husband was a police officer. "You'll be in for an awful lot of trouble!" she warned the persistent annoyance, hopefully.

Augusta adds in parentheses: "I happen to be a widow." She thought by manufacturing this story the man might go away. He became rougher, boasting that he could handle the situation. Augusta, seeing now how drunk the fellow was, began to tremble in fear.

And despite her rising panic, she knew that her one hope lay in just one thing—SHE MUST NOT LET THIS FELLOW KNOW HOW FRIGHTENED SHE WAS OF HIM.

To scream was useless; there was no one who would have heard her cries. Augusta's one hope lay in holding off her annoyance until one should happen along.

The man was powerful, and Augusta was powerless against his drunken strength. In vain she wrestled to free herself from his grasp. He was just about to overpower her when, turning down the street, Augusta saw the headlights of a car.

Her Savior Was a Policeman.

The thug had his back turned. Augusta, recalling her feeble efforts of a few moments back, cried out: "Here he comes now!"

The instant's attraction was enough. While the thug wheeled to see as he thought, the approaching police officer (Augusta's fictitious husband) she pulled away from him and threw herself into the headlights!

The car was traveling at a pretty good clip, and the driver told Augusta afterward that he did not see her until he was almost on top of her, and actually came very close to running her down.

Augusta leaped on the car's running board, begged the driver to stop, to help her, explaining that she was the victim of a holdup.

By this time the thug was making his getaway. He was making good headway, WHEN SUDDENLY AUGUSTA HEARD A SHOUT.

And here's the strange coincidence. The very man Augustus had stopped in the car proved to be a police officer in plain clothes, who was coming home from a prize fight. He was a tall, strong, husky man, but he must have been just as effective as if he had been an imaginary husband she had tried to scare the thug with. Because the next scene in this drama shows the thug up before the judge, Augusta was commended by the court upon being able to hold the man off long enough for help to come.

Apes Test Coins

As protection against the wave of counterfeit coins in Siam, merchants of Bangkok and other cities have installed large apes as coin testers. Every coin received is given to the ape, which puts it in its mouth. If it is good, the animal drops it into a receptacle behind him. If it is bad he throws it on the floor, chattering loudly. How they know the difference is a mystery, but they are said always to be right.

Honored With 'Great Graves'

Among certain tribes of Indians in Colombia and Ecuador not long ago, the depth of a person's grave was gauged by his former standing and influence, says Collier's Weekly. While ordinary individuals only rated an eight-foot burial, important men such as chiefs, fighting doctors and rainmakers were honored with "great graves," often sixty feet deep.

Park's Fame Due to Volcanoes

South Dakota is unique in its session of the only national park whose fame is due to its volcanic cave was first found because of a strange whistling noise of air in caused by the passage of air into out of its original entrance. The phenomenon is believed to be due to changing temperatures in the cave, as the direction in which the wind blows through the cave depends upon atmospheric conditions.

Mount Rainier Third in Height

Washington's Mount Rainier, 406 feet high, is the third highest in height in continental United States, being topped only by Mount Whitney in California and Mount Elbert in Colorado. Rainier is the tallest of the huge extinct volcanoes which dominate the Cascade range of mountains. Its normal Mount Shasta in northern California, is 390 feet lower.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York. He finds him proudly successful but deeply preoccupied. He tells Hale of his death while insane, invites him to the summer to Halcyon Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises to be "useful" as his secretary. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Ainsworth, an unpopular college mate, who leaves him with a commission of unpleasant mystery. He is at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, who questions about the message. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna Kneeland's elderly sister, and her daughter, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a soiled envelope, "This place dangerous." Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Spencer, nervous young son of Casper, beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, and the house.

He studied young Kneeland. He was four years old when they first met, a yellow-haired rather plump child. He had developed a brown-haired rather delicate young man, with ordinary features, a weak mouth, and an expression set up in equal parts of boredom, anxiety and irresolution. Hale suspected that the boredom was a mask for the other emotions. His head eyes were like his father's. It plain that he had inherited none of the older man's driving energy. Hosanna had been warning companions at the table against the food she had set before her. Now she developed her

"Bread!" Hale heard her say. "I've always been taught that it's the staff of life. Instead, it's rank on it. I would never serve it if I wasn't so funny about it. He actually suggests our bread. He would eat bread three times a day if I'd give it to him. I don't. It's very bad for arthritis. I never touch it myself. As for starches and sugar and what I never touch them, either, wouldn't offer them to others when I'm here if Ruth and Mr. Spencer didn't make such a fuss about their meals. They seem bent on destroying their health."

Ainsworth looked at Mrs. Spencer. "I don't care much what I eat," Mrs. Spencer said wearily. "It's as good as dead as long as it's in the life at Halcyon Camp I don't care why it should be ruined by your Hosanna. Your brother is as well known as a good provider. He knows how to prepare it. He buys. Why you can't leave it in peace while we're eating it, and plugging into these distressing details, I shall never understand."

It was certainly amazing company had joined. Hale dismissed the attention and ceased to listen to Hosanna. He had always been treated in unusual types of human beings. He realized that most of these men and women were unusual. Not Miss Hosanna, of course, appearance and manner she ran to her New England form, though her admiration and affection Mrs. Spencer Forbes seemed more than their object justified.

Mrs. Spencer Forbes was an easily minded type. She was the burned woman of the world, whose opportunities for burning were growing with her years. She must suffer. She was still as greedy for excitement as she had been at thirty probably more so; but she had a strong stock of common sense that kept her even while it resented the normal. Joan Kneeland was robustly told himself. He expected that she was not very different. Neither was her cousin Herbert. Ainsworth was a straight card, liberally making himself objectionable to everyone. Craig was a healthy eight-tenths scientist and a healthy human, a good doctor of coldly impersonal type. He was quite as impersonal with Joan Kneeland as he was with the rest of the group. Even with her, he was not that of a normal man, a charming girl. It was what was it? Watchful? That was word. He was conscious of her time, even when he was talking to others.

In his manner with Mrs. Spencer Forbes was also interesting. It was simple, accustomed, even a trifle used. In a different man it would have seemed indulgent. There was nothing in it she could reasonably object to, but it was clear that very plain that most of the states of Halcyon Camp were less or more on another's nerves. Mrs. Spencer Forbes was especially irritated by Craig and Ainsworth. Miss Hosanna also disliked them both, possibly in sympathy with her friend. Hale could recognize her Ruth's caustic comments on the two young men when women were alone. Joan Kneeland disliked and despised Ainsworth and was doubtful of Craig. Hosanna despised most of the others and at moments appeared to despise his cousin's feeling about Craig. Hale had already learned from their talk that Herbert and the young psychiatrist had been close friends for years. That was interesting, because there must be five or six years difference in their ages. Herbert was only twenty-two. Craig must be about his, Hale's age. He had dropped enough in his dinner-table talk to show that he was in his second year of practice. He was professionally obsessed, inordinately ambitious. It was hard to understand the close friendship that was said to exist between him and Casper Kneeland's only son.

Thus Hale summed up his companions in the first hour he was with them. He did it by the cold light of reason, with no hunches now to help him. The instinct or premonition he had felt on approaching the house had died. The setting of the big dining-room was very pleasant. The guests around him were unusual enough to interest anyone. Like Ainsworth, he should have been at peace with the world, but he was not in quite that ideal state.

Young Kneeland had cast off his depression and was talking now, rather well and with more interest than he had yet shown. He was a nice-looking chap, with that new animation in his face. He was smooth-shaven, immaculate, and he wore his evening clothes with accustomed ease.

After dinner Hale, Craig and the cousins played contract. Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Aunt Hosanna played backgammon, the former with an eloquent look at Hale which informed him that this diversion was not her choice. Ainsworth, pointedly ignored by his companions, read and smoked under a reading lamp. Miss Hosanna alone gave him a kind word as the party ebbed away from him.

"When Casper is here we can have two tables," she promised. It was the triumph of hospitality and breeding over mere human nature. Her pale blue eyes hardly touched his face as she spoke to him. She liked him no better than the rest did.

Hale was glad he had not let his contract game grow rusty in Spain. He had played there a good deal, with some fellow-engineers who were experts. He liked playing with Miss Kneeland. It gave him opportunities to look at her and to meet her lovely eyes. Also, she played a good game and had a fine sporting spirit. She had not turned a hair when, earlier in the rubber, he had heavily "set" her and himself by over-optimism.

The game broke up at half past ten. He was not sorry. The day had seemed long. The party separated almost at once, its members seeking their individual rooms upstairs. Hale was glad to get into the quiet of his quarters. The windows facing the sea were wide open and a salt breeze came in, mingled with the sound of pounding waves.

His bed was ready for him. The silk cover was folded back over the footboard. The pillows were inviting. The upper sheet was turned over a light blue blanket. No soiled little billet-doux waited for him this time.

He was on his way from his bathroom to his bed when he heard a light tap on the door. He slipped on his dressing-gown and opened the door. Ainsworth, very wide awake and still fully dressed, strolled into the room.

"Saw a light under your door and thought I'd pop in," he said. "Got any cigarettes? I forgot to bring some upstairs."

Hale forced a smile and pointed to a box on his smoking table. "Hope I'm not disturbing you," Ainsworth purred as he helped himself.

"Not at all. Sit down." Ainsworth sat down, lit the cigarette and ostentatiously relaxed. Hale had no choice but to sit down, too, and show decent courtesy to his unwelcome visitor. He did not speak. If Ainsworth had any purpose in this untimely call let him get it off his chest. Hale filled the interval by selecting and lighting a cigarette.

"Well, what's your opinion of us?" Ainsworth drawled. "You're a reasonably interesting group," he said when he was ready to speak.

"Granted. But what do you really think of us?" "You do me too much credit, Ainsworth. I don't form definite opinions so quickly."

Again Ainsworth proved that he could not take a snub. "Give me some offhand ones, then," he invited. "Let's have your first impressions."

"Oh, well, they're rather chaotic. I find Aunt Hosanna very cordial and hospitable. Mrs. Spencer Forbes mildly amusing, young Kneeland rather pathetic, Craig self-absorbed and scientific."

"And Miss Kneeland?" That was a purr. "Lovely and charming, of course."

"Of course. Do you happen to know that she's quite an heiress?" "No, I didn't know that."

"She had almost a million before the crash. She inherited it from her father, who struck oil out in Oklahoma, and died soon afterward, apparently of the joyful shock. Uncle Casper has had the handling of the estate, so some of it may have disappeared during the depression. But Joan is of age now. I fancy she has enough left to make herself and a deserving young husband quite comfortable."

He waited a moment. Hale made no comment and Ainsworth went on.

"Young Kneeland wanted to be the deserving young husband. She wouldn't have any of that. This may explain the pathetic quality you discovered in him."

"I don't think I care to talk about Miss Kneeland's private affairs," Hale said stiffly.

"All right. Just thought I'd give you a tip. Great opportunity for ambitious youth. Craig is in the running, too, but only mildly. I don't think he has much chance. You've got a pretty clear field, it seems to me."

Hale set his teeth. "I'm afraid you didn't get my meaning, Ainsworth," he brought out between them. "I said—"

"That you didn't want to talk about Miss Kneeland. I know. All right. But there's one more interesting fact you ought to know. If Joan Kneeland dies before she marries, young Bert gets practically her entire estate. Her father made that provision originally, and it seems that she repeats it in her own will."

Hale remained silent and Ainsworth asked conversationally:

"Is there any objection to talking about Mrs. Spencer Forbes?" "Only the lateness of the hour," Ainsworth laughed.

"I always envied you your way of putting things. You can make a snub sound almost suave. But I'm not sleepy."

Ainsworth shook his head at him. "That isn't as subtle as your usual methods," he said reproachfully.

"But I want to tell you about Mrs. Spencer Forbes. You don't appreciate it, old man, but I'm trying to put you wise to conditions here. Mrs. Spencer Forbes, for example. There's tragedy for you."

"Why?" "She's down and out. It's the old story. Good family, fine position, plenty of money to begin with. Nothing left now. Supposedly she lives in a back room of some New York lodging-house. In reality she's here most of the time, sponging on the Kneelands. Casper Kneeland stands it because he's impressed by her social position. He likes to be shocked by her talk, too. Miss Hosanna encourages it because she's fascinated by the creature. Always has been, it seems. The one big friendship of her life—and a mighty lopsided affair it is. All Ruth Spencer Forbes cares about is a snug haven and plenty to eat and drink. Once in a while, as a matter of form, she goes back to the lodging-house for a week or two. That must be pretty ghastly for her."

"Your manly sympathy for her doesn't show much when you and she are together," Hale commented. Ainsworth laughed.

"No, we hate each other," he admitted, "even though we speak the same language and have known each other all our lives. Just the same, it's damned interesting to see her wriggling on the hook."

"That's rather your specialty, isn't it? Watching people wriggle?" "Yes," Ainsworth said simply. "There's a grand and glorious opportunity for it right here at Halcyon Camp. That's why I'm staying on. Besides, there will be an added interest now in watching you watch them wriggle. I'm quite looking forward to that."

"All right," Hale laid down his half-smoked cigarette. "Ainsworth, you won't mind if I ask you to clear out, will you?" he added. "I've had a long day and I'm all in. Con- valescent, you know."

"I know. But you'll brace up here," Ainsworth predicted. "Did anyone tell you we bathe on the beach at eleven? Private beach. All to ourselves unless Mrs. Nash and her cub show up. They often do. She likes this beach better than her own, and God made the Kneelands to be imposed upon. That's the real reason we're all here. You, too, old man. I'll toddle now. Good-night. See you at breakfast."

Hale closed the door behind him and threw open the third window of his room. A place Ainsworth had been in seemed to need special ventilation. He went again to a front window and stared out over the sea to calm his nerves. As he looked two figures detached themselves from the sheltering trees at the left of the house. One almost immediately turned back into the woods. The other moved toward the house. He looked at it idly. It was not yet midnight. Probably some of the servants had been having a moon light rendezvous. Hale stiffened. The figure approaching the house was nearer now. It was not anxious to be seen. It kept as close to the trees as it could, but Hale recognized it. It was—could it be? Miss Hosanna? Yes. Her plump figure was a mistake and now he saw her face, quite clearly in the moonlight.

Her companion had been a man not one of the guests at Halcyon Camp, but a stranger. He had been a lean fellow, with a narrow, unpleasant face. There was something furtive about the meeting. The man might have been a servant, but there was no man-servant at the Camp in addition to Banks and Joe. What was he, and why was Miss Hosanna meeting him in a lonely wood toward midnight?

Abruptly Hale decided that it was none of his business. He threw off his dressing-gown, switched off the electric light, and jumped into bed. A few minutes later he heard soft quick footsteps passing his door and going further along the hall. Miss Hosanna, no doubt. But what the devil had the woman been doing with that unwholesome human specimen she had met?

Hale awoke to an impression of gorgeous sunshine and a singing sea. He had slept from two on without turning, and he felt like a fighting-cock. He looked at his watch. Half past eight. He sprang out of bed, hustled into the bathroom, and made a quick toilet. If Kneeland had been in Camp he wouldn't have thought much of a new employee who showed up at nine o'clock on his first morning. It was exactly nine when Hale entered the dining-room.

He found it empty save for Rose, who looked very smart in a fresh pink uniform. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Her companion had been a man not one of the guests at Halcyon Camp, but a stranger. He had been a lean fellow, with a narrow, unpleasant face. There was something furtive about the meeting. The man might have been a servant, but there was no man-servant at the Camp in addition to Banks and Joe. What was he, and why was Miss Hosanna meeting him in a lonely wood toward midnight?

Abruptly Hale decided that it was none of his business. He threw off his dressing-gown, switched off the electric light, and jumped into bed. A few minutes later he heard soft quick footsteps passing his door and going further along the hall. Miss Hosanna, no doubt. But what the devil had the woman been doing with that unwholesome human specimen she had met?

Hale awoke to an impression of gorgeous sunshine and a singing sea. He had slept from two on without turning, and he felt like a fighting-cock. He looked at his watch. Half past eight. He sprang out of bed, hustled into the bathroom, and made a quick toilet. If Kneeland had been in Camp he wouldn't have thought much of a new employee who showed up at nine o'clock on his first morning. It was exactly nine when Hale entered the dining-room.

He found it empty save for Rose, who looked very smart in a fresh pink uniform. (TO BE CONTINUED)

One Nation Indivisible

Picture Parade

WHEREAS young America consumed more than it produced, the America of 1938 approaches self-sufficiency as the farm buys from the city, the city from the farm. Each is dependent on the other. When farmers above harvested a bumper crop near Devers, Texas, the implied surplus threatened wages of Detroit automobile workers at right. And this year, new surpluses brought further complications. The cotton surplus alone was 13,000,000 bales. Apple growers had a surplus of 51,000,000 bushels at the start of the year. Milk production was higher in the early part of the year than in any corresponding period in the last seven years and granaries and warehouses bulged with lavish nature's excess production.

Here is an illustration of this "indivisibility." Farmers above deliver cattle and crops to great cities for distribution throughout the nation. And from cities, farm machinery (below) and automobiles flow in steady streams to the farms. Wages of industrial workers must be paid from the sale of their products. And the farm is a major market for products manufactured in the factories of our major cities.

To enable them to buy factory goods, farmers are co-operating with experts in finding new uses for crops, and putting chain stores to work buying surpluses and selling farm products to city workers.

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream? Are you cross and irritable? Do you scold those dearest to you? If your nerves are on edge and you feel you need a good general system tonic, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with reliable Pinkham's Compound. It helps nature build up more physical resistance and thus helps calm quivering nerves and lessen discomforts from annoying symptoms which often accompany female functional disorders. Why not give it a chance to help YOU? Over one million women have written in reporting wonderful benefits from Pinkham's Compound.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—all to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Entered as second-class mail matter at the post office at Silvertown, Texas in accordance with an act of Congress on March 3, 1879.

Be just, and fear not; let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's, thy Gods, and truth's.
—Shakespeare

I HEREBY RESOLVE—that this line shall remain in the Briscoe County News until our city managers start a little constructive work toward surfacing our streets, or at least until the death of Yours True-ly. Dated this 9th day of June, 1938. (I've been wanting to know for a long time, how long a mototype slug will last.)

WHITESIDE HAS thrown up his hands. Everyone knows that they moved Lake Whiteside down the street in front of the Fowler Motor Company. And now he is disclaiming any part of it. He even goes so far as to say that the place I mentioned is "Childress Park."

SECRETARY IKES in telling that there would be no more PWA money for Texas said, "Texas got in as soon as the flag went down, and has been standing there with her arms wide open for every bit she could get." He shows figures showing how much Texas has received over the other states in this district.—BUT he overlooks the fact that Texas has several times the area of any two of the other states—also the fact that Texas was willing and able to put up the "other 55 per cent."

I'D LIKE TO personally conduct Mr. Ickes on a tour of Briscoe County and show him the marvelous buildings and improvements that we have received. Our concrete highways, and our glassy streets—of course though, it has never been proven yet that the Free State of Briscoe is actually, legally and lawfully attached to the Great State of Texas.

I MET CECIL Terrell and Miss Gladys Jo Peek in the Whiteside Store yesterday. I just can't say why, but methinks that I caught a faint whiff of orange blossoms. Howsomever, you never can tell about Cecil. I've always figured him to be a city slicker myself.

GOOD NEWS FOR Silvertown motorists! Another road hazard gone! Jimmy Cline's gone to college.

AND SPEAKING OF road hazards, Gilbert Richardson was telling of making the drive across the canyon to Claude. He said that Keith Pearce told him he could save thirty miles that way so he tackled it. "Boy," he says that is one son-of-a-such. There's hills over there that when you start down you lose sight of your radiator cap, till you get clear to the bottom." And when he went up he said that he backed up the hill so that in case something happened he could see where he was going. He killed his engine and had to set his brakes. The car just rared up and stood there on its hind wheels. Before he could guide the car any further, he had to get out and lean the front wheels back up against the road. —Page Bob Burns and his uncle!

FOOTBALL TIME IS here again. What we are going to have in the way of games won, I don't know, but one thing we are sure of having is a bunch of fighters. These old kids are really getting in shape. My prediction is that we will have very few injuries. The coach says that he's going to have every man ready and able to play 48 MINUTES of football. And that is half of the battle. If a boy does not think enough of himself and his team to lay off his cigars, candy, (yes, and liquor)—we don't need their touchdown anyway.

MEN, LET'S BACK these kids better this year. Let's organize us a little pep club of our own, and back up our rooting with a little more concrete stuff than talk. I'm not so far away from football yet but that I remember just how much it means to meet a fellow on the street and know that he's for you tooth and nail.

THESE KIDS THIS year have not asked for a single donation. They skipped an outdoor camp without a whimper. What do you say we do something—let's call ourselves the "Root Owl Club"—and let's show the boys that we appreciate some touchdowns and blocked punts, and so forth!

THE AMERICAN FARMER is losing and has lost much of his export markets on cotton. No wonder there is a growing surplus. We have experimented with this and that kind of controlled acreage—with the result that other countries, Brazil and Mexico for instance, have learned to grow cotton cheaper, and a better grade than we, ourselves have been able to do. From Mexico comes over a million bales of good staple cotton, almost 40 percent as much as Texas will raise. Brazil is doing the same thing. Not only have we lost our foreign markets, but we are losing our domestic markets, for that Mexican cotton comes to Texas and right on to New England factories. What will we do with our Texas cotton?

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES show that 35 percent of unemployed Texans are farm owners, farm tenants, or farm laborers. Most of these are from 14 to 32 years of age, and dependents. What has acreage reduction had to do with this situation?

RIGHT IN OUR city, and in the neighboring city of Quitaque, right now there isn't a house to be had, and few rooms for rent. Has the controlled acreage plan had anything to do with this housing shortage? How many folks do you know in town who are farmers? Or would be if they could find a place to farm?

THIS COUNTRY USED to offer all sorts of inducements to attract residents to the Plains. What have we to offer now? We aren't even keeping our own boys and girls on the farms. We are moving them out to the cities. For what? I don't know, do you? With things as they are, this country can't grow. Farm population is following farm production—it is being reduced.

W. LEE O'DANIEL hit it on the head when he said, "hard work is the only sound basis for recovery." No amount of legislation in the world will do it.

SOME SPEEDING

Since the Corrigan influence has invaded Texas, even traffic enforcement is reversed. Captain Frank Albright of the state police reported he was closely followed by a truck while pursuing a speeding automobile on a highway near Austin. As the officer increased his speed the truck driver did likewise. Finally the officer flagged both vehicles to a stop and arrested the

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC and particularly residents of the counties of Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, and Dawson, State of Texas:

You are hereby notified that the Livestock Sanitary Commission has ascertained that Hog Cholera is epidemic within the following described district: Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, and Dawson Counties, and this epidemic is the direct result of the movement of sick hogs, from various states and counties within the State and through public sales yards.

THEREFORE, under authority of law a quarantine is hereby declared upon all premises within the above described district prohibiting the movement of any hog or hogs into said district from any other state or county within the State, excepting hogs consigned to recognized slaughtering establishments having Municipal or Federal meat inspection for immediate slaughter, and excepting hogs entering said area in compliance with Texas Interstate Regulations, to-wit:

(a) Hogs for purposes other than immediate slaughter must be accompanied by a health certificate issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry showing them to have been properly immunized with either the simultaneous or the Dorset-McBride-Niles serum method and to have been dipped or sprayed in or with a disinfectant approved by the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture under the supervision of the Veterinarian issuing the certificate.

(b) Health certificates shall show the approximate weight and the amount of serum injected into each. (c) Hogs shipped for purposes other than immediate slaughter must be transported in clean and disinfected cars, and not handled through public stockyards and chutes at point of origin, enroute or at destination; And prohibiting movement of hogs through public sales, prohibiting the movement of hogs within the said area excepting hogs moved to recognized public stockyards, and hogs for immediate slaughter to recognized slaughtering establishments within the area unless accompanied by a written permit from the Livestock Sanitary Commission, and prohibiting movement of hogs out of said area, excepting hogs consigned to public stockyards under Federal supervision, hogs consigned to slaughtering establishments under Federal supervision, and apparently healthy hogs consigned to another state in compliance with state of destinations regulations, and prohibiting the movement of any hogs out of a herd of hogs within the said area.

This quarantine is to be in force and effect on and after the 15th day of April, A. D., 1938 and until released by the Livestock Sanitary Commission of the State of Texas.

Firestone CUTS THE COST OF TIRE SAFETY

NOW YOU CAN BUY A FIRESTONE GUM-DIPPED TIRE AS LOW AS $7.60
4.50-20

RIGHT now when you use your car more than at any other season of the year—when you want and need greater protection against blowouts, punctures and skidding—Firestone provides this three-way safety at NEW LOW PRICES. Now that it costs so little to make your car TIRE-SAFE car owners everywhere should replace dangerously worn tires with NEW, SAFE Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, built with these patented and exclusive construction features:

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber, counteracts tire-destroying internal friction and heat which ordinarily cause blowouts. Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord.

Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread, another patented Firestone construction feature, protect against punctures.

Scientifically Designed Non-Skid Tread made of tough slow-wearing rubber, assures safer stops and longer non-skid mileage.

With the low first cost, the extra safety and the long mileage of Firestone Convoy tires, you can no longer afford to take chances on unsafe tires. Join the Firestone Save-A-Life Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Convoy Tires—the safest tires that money can buy at these low prices.

SAUL: MORAL FAILURE

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 10:21-25; 15:20-23; 21:3-6. GOLDEN TEXT—To obey is better than sacrifice. 1 Samuel 15:22.

Moral failure is the direct result of disobedience to God. This follows from the fact that the moral order established in the universe was established by God. He, then, is the One who knows the right way. "God is always right, and when we are against God, we are always wrong. To walk a road leading away from God is to travel straight to ruin, and this is what Saul did" (Wilbur M. Smith).

The story of Saul's choice as king, his personal qualifications for leadership and his ultimate disgrace and death, is one that should give pause to every young man or woman who has been afflicted with present-day ideas that brilliance of mind, quickness of wit, and apparent worldly success, apart from obedient submission to God, are satisfactory ends in themselves. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 16:25).

I. "There is None Like Him" (10:21-25)

Saul was chosen of God to be Israel's first king. God Himself had been their king, but they in their willful unbelief wanted to be like neighboring nations. And the choice of both God and the people fell on Saul, for there was "none like him among all the people."

Never has a man been privileged to enter more auspiciously upon high office. Physically he was well-equipped, head and shoulders above the people (10:23). Mentally he was fitted for leadership. He was humble (9:21). He was spiritually right (10:6-9). He had a tolerant and kindly spirit (11:13). He was a successful military leader (ch. 11).

For two years all went well, but then came the crisis which proved that all was not as it should be, when Saul presumptuously took the place of Samuel as priest and made an offering (13:9-13). This was later followed by his disobedience in sparing Agag.

II. "To Obey Is Better Than Sacrifice" (15:20-23)

God had commanded that there must be utter destruction of the Amalekites and their possessions—something like the burning of a disease-infested house—a wiping out of a king and people who were condemned of God. We may not fully understand this act of God, but if we know Him we will not doubt that it was in accordance with His infinite wisdom and love.

Saul chose to disobey, later contending that it was done because of the people, that sheep and oxen had been spared for a sacrifice to the Lord. Samuel cuts through his hypocrisy and declares that God wants obedience rather than sacrifice. This is a lesson that many who profess to follow the Lord have not learned.

"All the sacrifices and ceremonies of religion are to aid and promote obedience, not to be a substitute for it. Disobedience can never be made a virtue, even though attended by thousands of sacrifices" (Stanley). The church or the individual who denies or disregards the teaching of God's Word and attempts to make up for it by sacrifices and ceremonies declares to the world that there has been a departure from true faith in God. Obedience is a virtue all too rare.

III. "The Battle Went Sore Against Saul" (31:3-6)

This quotation from verse 3 relates to a particular battle, but it may well be applied to the entire battle of Saul's life. Having once begun the downward path of presumption and disobedience, the descent became rapid.

The man to whom God had given a new heart and upon whom He had poured out His Spirit fell to such a low state that we find him in 1 Samuel 28 consulting a witch, a spiritistic medium, seeking opportunity to speak with Samuel, who had already gone to his reward.

Spiritism is an evil current in our day, and therefore it may be well to point out that while mediums do seem to have the power to simulate the dead, they bring this about through familiar spirits (1 Sam. 28:7), that is through communication with evil spirits. The dead do not actually return, but they are represented by demonic agents. When the witch of Endor called on her familiar spirit, God intervened and actually brought Samuel from the dead to the great surprise of the witch. No Christian should ever have anything to do with Spiritism. If he does he indicates that his spiritual life is at very low ebb and that he is in real soul-danger.

The death of Saul writes a tragic end to a promising life, destroyed not so much by outside influences as by the moral decay within. The wise man said that as a man "thinketh in his heart so is he" (Prov. 23:7). It may not show today or tomorrow, but eventually the heart that is wrong leads to a life that is wrong. "Keep thy heart with all diligence: for out of it are the issues of life" (Prov. 4:23).

Snow Crystals to Embroider on

By RUTH WYETH SPEAR

A LETTER comes telling a story of mats a clever designer for her dressing room. The problem was to make fit spaces of unusual size, room color scheme was white and a design of white brodered snow crystals on blue linen was what she wanted. Here is the way she achieved a charming result.

The linen was cut the size and narrow hem cut with a warm iron. The hem then backstitched in white of six-strand mercerized cotton. She wanted the arrangement of the snow crystals to be helter-skelter—just as would fall; so she took a few of coins and tossed them on the linen. There was a piece; a quarter; some nickels and pennies. After several tosses she drew around coin where it fell.

Still using three strands of white cotton she took four across the marked circle and brought the needle out in the center, as shown here in step 2, and better to take a tiny stitch to bring the stitches together. The long stitches, the larger ones, were embroidered over the long stitches, the larger ones being more elaborate than the other as illustrated here. The used is shown in step 3. Hand-Knits Combine Style, Service for Campus Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STURDY and protective from the elements were things knitted in the "long, long ago" pioneer days, but they lacked the esthetic. But modern knits! It is as if knitting in this day and generation had become a magic art whereby designers have dramatized the theme to a point of high styling such as our faithful ever-knitting great-great ancestors ne'er dreamed could be.

Back to college in a knit bolero frock such as the stunning model to the right in the group illustrated will cause one's sorority sisters to voice a chorus of oh's and ah's of admiration. It's worth the experiment, just see if it isn't! A bumpy crocheted cotton lends itself beautifully to this knit design because of its resiliency and smart rough surface effect. Boleros come in so "handy" and you can wear this one separately with other frocks if you wish. You'll like the flattery of the figure-molding dress that, together with the bolero, forms as stylish a costume as ever might be.

With fringes all the rage this year you will be right on your toes come autumn if you wear a trim sports outfit as shown centered in the trio. It is knit of a nubby crocheted cotton and what endless wear one does get out of these cotton crochets! Wash them and wash them and it never fazes their good looks. Then, too, being handknit, they have style and distinction. It is not only that the fringe that finishes the edges is definitely fashion correct but it gives opportunities for interesting color combinations. The jacket fits snug around the waistline to give a neat line, which is a highly important styling item—that of the fitted defined waistline.

Wouldn't any school girl, business woman, debutante, clubwoman—wouldn't any member of the fair sex that goes motoring, or treks about town love a handknit coat as here pictured? It sure is an inspiration to start knitting needles clicking. It is knit of a nubby crocheted cotton in a striking plaid patterning with immense patch pockets of the darker color. They will tell you at any fancywork department where you get the yarn as to effective color combinations. You can make this colorful coat up very quickly if you get it with a will. Grand to wear to the early autumn games!

Here are a few general items in regard to latest knitting trends. The tendency this season is to knit entire suits or ensembles, the exquisite simplicity of which achieves a smart tailored look. Interesting skirts are ribbed around to simulate pleats. Wear gold jewelry with your new black knit frock. Sweater jackets are "dolled up" with silver buttons of hand-wrought type. Knit combined with woven fabric is very popular, as for instance a cloth jacket with knitted sleeves. Plain skirt with bright sweater is popular schoolgirl formula.

Sweater and Skirt

Little fashion-correct "Missy" in this picture is dressed in her new sweater and skirt outfit ready to answer first-day-of-school roll call. It's the smart vogue this season for little girls to companion a suspender skirt of handsome wool with a sweater of exact color match. In this instance the skirt of fine Arlingcrest wool (comes in interesting colors of Scandinavian influence) has a novel suspender-fashioning that widens as it buttons to the skirt belt.

Muffs Match Hats

Muffs that match hats are among the latest fads to tempt women seeking the unusual in costume accents. Many different decorative fabrics such as matelasse crepe, embroidered wool and velvets are being used for these as well as the numerous fur fabrics. The hats are of the turban type, always high and often draped. The muffs are variously shaped, depending upon the fabric. Fur materials, for example, are cut very simple, while the decorative materials are draped, twisted and bow-trimmed.

Don't Be Deceived By New 'Doll Hats'

It's a fact that doll hats are gay deceivers. They look so impossible off the head you can think you can't possibly wear them. But you can! And to your amazement you will find them actually becoming. Step in to your favorite milliner's, try on a few, and you will find they are irresistible.

Just now the shops are displaying little black velvet types that pose over one eye with a head strap at the back which holds them firmly into place.

Veil Tied Over the Face
That is the way smart Paris women are wearing their veils—tied over the face. They are wearing veils to a far greater extent abroad than we in America are doing.

Huge Jeweled Pendants
The latest is to suspend a handsome antique-looking pendant from a thin necklace. Earrings are very much in evidence, too, and they also favor the pendant motif.

Jet Embroidery
See the hat and bolero "sets" of black velvet that are embroidered in jet. Newest thing out!

MILK IS FAVORED AS POULTRY FEED

Stimulates Birds' Appetites in Hot Weather.

By Dr. W. C. Thompson, Poultry Husbandman, Rutgers University, WNU Service.

Because hot weather tends to lower feed consumption of poultry flocks, resulting in lower egg production, anything which stimulates the appetites of birds is of value in summer. For this purpose there is probably nothing better than milk.

Milk can be fed in the liquid form as either buttermilk or skim milk for drinking purposes when available in sufficient amounts. One hundred birds will consume between 35 and 40 pounds of liquid milk daily if they do not have water available, and a large quantity is needed when milk is used in this form. Ordinarily, it is not feasible to give birds milk only and, when a limited supply is available, it can be given the birds for a portion of the day, with water provided after the milk has been consumed.

The semi-solid or paste form of milk is very satisfactory for summer feeding, as it is palatable and the birds will consume it in rather large quantities, even under adverse weather conditions. When first used, it should not be fed to the extent of more than about 2 pounds for each 100 birds daily, but this can be increased gradually until 4 or 5 pounds can be fed without any detrimental results.

Milk in paste form is probably one of the best summer feeds for poultry. It is even somewhat superior to dried milk, unless the latter is used in a moist mash. Increasing the dry milk content of a dry mash does not usually produce any beneficial effects, because the birds do not increase their dry mash consumption during the summer, with the result that the increased milk content is of very little benefit. As a matter of fact, dry mash consumption is noticeably decreased during spells of hot weather.

The use of an increased quantity of milk in the proper form should be continued until late September, or until such time as more satisfactory weather conditions prevail.

Flies Not All to Blame

For Drop in Milk Flow

Don't blame the flies for the drop in summer milk production, says H. R. Searles, extension dairyman, University Farm, St. Paul. Your feeding practices may need overhauling.

Summer is the low-cost period for the dairyman, and if cows go down in production when pastures begin to get short, he is losing an opportunity for profit.

The ripe mature grasses have about the feeding value of wild hay, and the dairyman can supplement these through a variety of ways. Second crop hay can be pastured, with some care to prevent loss from bloat when pasturing legumes.

Then, points out Searles, there is always regular barn feeding, which is practiced by the good dairyman every summer. Alfalfa or clover hay, if available, is cheaper than grain. Searles explains that the best dairyman of the state feed hay right through the summer, even when grass is plentiful. Feed what the cows will eat twice a day, he says. For the fresh, high-producing cows, a few pounds of grain will be needed, however.

Where hay is not available, about a half winter ration of grain will give excellent results. If there is a fair supply of grass, the ration can be any one of the farm grains available—corn, oats or barley. But where there is very little grass, the ration should be supplemented with its regular high protein feed, such as linseed oil meal, corn gluten meal, soybean meal, or cotton seed meal, up to 10 or 20 per cent of the grain mixture.

C. Houston Goudiss Enumerates the Nutritious Values of the BANANA

Explains How Our Most Satisfying Food Fruit Helps to Maintain Health at All Ages.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

BEFORE the discovery of the vitamins and before we knew as much regarding the body's mineral requirements, interest in food was centered around proteins, carbohydrates and fats. Fruits which in general supply little protein and fat, and widely varying amounts of carbohydrates, received scant consideration as a source of essential nutrients.

But with our steadily increasing knowledge of vitamins and of the importance to the body of a long list of essential mineral elements, fruits have assumed a commanding place in nutrition. And those who follow the primary rule of a well balanced diet and serve fruit twice daily have been rewarded with increased health and vigor.

In addition to their minerals and vitamins, fruits are valued because of their bulk or cellulose which helps to insure regular health habits.

The Most Economical Fruit

Many homemakers consider that fruits as a class are among the more expensive items included in the food budget.

But that statement is far too general and indicates a lack of information concerning the comparative nutritive values of the different kinds of fruit. For example, it has been said of the delicious and economical banana, that it gives more nutritive as well as money value than almost any other food.

Fruits, in general, are frequently divided into two classes; they are known as flavor fruits when they contain 80 per cent or more of water and as food fruits when the water content is less than 80 per cent. Bananas are a food fruit of the first order!

Ripe bananas are rich in carbohydrates and furnish the body with splendid energy values, with a minimum tax on the digestive system.

Double Fuel Value

When fully ripened, this fruit provides quick energy because a certain amount of its sugars are almost immediately absorbed by the body. On the other hand, several hours must elapse before the remaining sugars are completely assimilated. Thus, eating bananas provides a continuous supply of energy for a considerable period. They not only help to promote rapid recovery from fatigue but also furnish a continuing supply of energy which keeps one from becoming hungry again too soon after a meal.

The edible portion of one average-sized banana weighs about 3 1/2 ounces and provides 100 calories. It takes almost the same weight of white potato to yield the same number of calories.

Bananas a Protective Food

Bananas take an important position among the protective foods, because they are a good source of four vitamins, A, B, C and G, and contain a total of 11 minerals. They leave an alkaline-ash following digestion.

Fully ripened bananas are easily digested and are mildly laxative.

Valuable in Child's Diet

Bananas deserve a prominent place in the child's diet from infancy to maturity. Some baby specialists prescribe mashed and strained ripe bananas as one of the first solid foods to be introduced in the infant's diet. The Bananas are always in season and are usually most inexpensive. It is desirable, of course, that only fully ripened bananas be eaten raw. That is because their constituents vary with the degree of ripeness.

Bananas are picked when they are green and hard, and the carbohydrate content is almost entirely starch. As they ripen, the starch is converted into easily digested sugars.

In fully ripened bananas—those in which brown flecks appear on the yellow skins—the starch has almost entirely disappeared and the flavor has been developed to its highest point. The all-yellow banana is also ripe enough for eating and it is likewise firm enough for cooking. Partially ripe bananas—those which are yellow with a green tip—may be cooked and served as a vegetable or as dessert.

Considering their availability, ease of digestion, high food value and economy, bananas deserve to be classed as one of the staple foods in every well planned dietary.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. R. McK.—When peas and beans cause discomfort, owing to their tendency to form gas, they can frequently be eaten without distress in pureed form.

Miss M. L. A.—Both sweet and white potatoes contain vitamins A, B and C; but sweet potatoes are a much better source of vitamin A than white potatoes.

HEALTH SAFEGUARDS

Facilities for attending to every medical emergency, from a finger-scratch to childbirth, will be provided at the New York World's Fair 1939. There are to be 10 first aid stations on the grounds, a large corps of physicians and surgeons, nearly 100 nurses, 10 motor ambulances and a mobile X-ray truck to speed to the scene of any accident.

THE "UNCONSCIOUS" ARSONIST

The crime of arson is universally condemned. The deliberate setting of fire can have no justification in any case, and the person committing it is properly given severe punishment when apprehended.

It would be a fine thing for the country if some of that condemnation were extended to the man who causes fire because of his own ignorance, carelessness or stupidity. For the grim harvest reaped by the "unconscious arsonist" is infinitely greater and more serious than that of the fire-bug. He doesn't do it on purpose, of course—but that's a frail excuse indeed when lives and property are destroyed.

Certainly the man who carelessly discards smoking materials in dry woods that are ready to explode into flame at the touch of a spark, is deserving of little public sympathy. Neither is the man who wantonly permits hazards to exist on his property and endangers the property of everyone else in the community.

In some European countries, notably France, the law provides that if a fire starts on anyone's property through the fault or negligence of the owner, he is financially responsible for the damage done to other property. There's a small chance of passing such a law here—but the principle it represents is worth thinking about. Most of the hazards that cause fire can be easily eliminated. And the argument that many of us don't recognize hazards when we see them isn't valid. Ignorance of fire dangers, like ignorance of the law, should not constitute an excuse.

Are you an "unconscious arsonist"? It's easy to say "no"—but can you be certain that's the right answer?

MANSFIELD
Cushion Balloons
for new fast cars.

Cord-Lock makes them 31% SAFER

Mansfield Cushion Balloons are built the Mansfield way—three ways differently from other tires. They have Cord-Lock construction that gives a 31% greater safety factor in the sidewalls—anchored-in piano wire beads, seven times stronger than actually needed—wide, flat, tough Duro-mix treads that wear like iron and grip tight on slippery pavements.

MANSFIELD
EXTRA MILEAGE Tires

Add to this the fact that Mansfield Cushion Balloons are the "low cost" tires of the day—that they give consistently longer mileage on all makes of late model cars. When you ride on Mansfields, you know you have safety, service and savings of a new order. Every Mansfield Tire gives you more mileage than you pay for.
