to use yellow to brighten up our guest room. What color could be combined with this? My smart effects must be accomplished with spare minutes rather than expensive materials, so I would appreciate a helpful hint along this line .- M. S."

If you really want to make that yellow guest room smart, use touches of brown to add character. I have sketched an idea for you here. Mark your material with little dashes about six inches apart and then make the tassels as shown. For the bedspread, reverse the color scheme, using yellow tassels on brown material. Several rows of the tassels may make a border for spread or curtains instead of an all-over design if desired.

-Weekly News Analysis-White House-Congress Battle May Mean 3d Party for 1940 By Joseph W. La Bine_

EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Congress

. Few have been able to get along with it. None have been able to get along without it. Those executives who know how to work with it most advan-tageously will find it the greatest supfor the accomplishment of execu-tive processes . . . President will con-tinue to be made and unmade in the actions of the senate."

The speaker was Utah's dignified Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, foe of proposed Wagner act amendments, supporter of Sen. Robert M. LaFollette's civil liberties probe. When such a consistent New Dealer makes remarks like that on the senate floor, colleagues know White House and congress are no longer on speaking terms. Senator, Thomas' speech (written at 3 a. m. on a sleepless night) culminated a series of executive-legislative rifts that is frankly alarming proponents of Democratic peace:

Appointments. Last summer President Roosevelt named Floyd Roberts of Virginia as federal district judge. This was "personally offensive and obnoxious" to Virginia's Sen. Carter Glass and his colleague, ed an effort to remove patronage from the hands of congress. Though the senate supported the Byrd-Glass contention 72 to 9, it appeared President Roosevelt was only beginning an effort to discredit his congressional foes by over-riding their nominations for choice political jobs.

UTAH'S ELBERT THOMAS "Few . . . with it; none . . . without it."

As the rebels prepared to throw out Wisconsin's allegedly red-tinted omas R. Amlie, White House in terstate commerce commission nominee, several other startling appointments were announced. A slap at Ohio's Sen. Vic Donahey was the naming of Herschel W. Arant, Ohio State's law school dean, to the circuit court of appeals. Next came Philadelphia's Francis Biddle, also named an appellate judge over objections of Pennsylvania's devout New Dealer, Sen. Joseph F. Guffey. This was also a blow at John Lewis' C. I. O., because the Guffey nominee (Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh) is an ardent pro-Lewis man. In New York the President appointed a Republican federal judge, and in Philadelphia he gave another judgeship to Harry E. Kaldoner, whose legal experience was limited before he joined the cabinet of ex-Gov. George H. Earle in 1934. These were but a few sample Presidential appointments that ruffled congressional nerves. Legislation. Though Democratic house majority leaders have accepted a modified form of government reorganization (defeated last year). and though the President's $552,000,-000 extra defense appropriation will probably pass. White House-congress friendship ends there. Already eliminated is a $100,000,000 appropriation for TVA at Gilbertsville, Ky. The President's request for a new start on Florida's ship canal and the Passamaquoddy tidal project is doomed. While a rebellious senate foreign affairs committee threatens to publicize all its future hearings (as a brake on secret administration plans) the Export-Import bank has been restrained from making large credit loans to foreign nations. This will forestall embarrassment over "unofficial alliances.' While social security's reserve fund is under fire (because the U.S. borrows all reserve funds), the New Deal's vast relief program is endangered by a growing congressional economy bloc. The President's demand for restoration of $150,000,-000 lopped off his deficiency relief appropriation is now sidetracked in favor of a long range welfare study. Virginia's Rep. Clifton A. Woodrum has asked a cut in next year's relief budget to $1,120,000,000 (half the President's request) and assignment of relief control to congressional hands. But relief will probably be settled by adoption of the bill designed by South Carolina's Sen. James F. Byrnes, following last year's senate inquiry. Miscellaneous. Anti-White House sentiment took voice in continuation of the house committee to investigate un-Americanism, under which

I. O. leader. Significance. Since the President and congress seem to be heading has just rejected Japan's ambassadown opposite paths, the best guess holds that Mr. Roosevelt is deliberately inviting a split in Democratic ranks leading to formation of a third party for 1940. But Labor's Nonpartisan league (C. I. O) must be a bulwark of that party, and the anti-C. I. O. slur contained in Judge Musmanno's rejection fails to jibe with these plans. Moreover most debated presidential appointments have been judicial, practically valueless from a political viewpoint. But party-smashing need follow no definite course; damaged feelings could easily be patched up in time for a third party campaign in 1940 -or 1944.

Protesting Mexican expropriation of American-owned oil lands, Secretary of State Cordell Hull has demanded compensation. Meanwhile a false belief has arisen in Mexico City that President Roosevelt sympathizes with the revolutionary regime of President Lazaro Cardenas. Far from sympathetic, Mr. Roosevelt recently called Mexican ambassador Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera to the White House for a seminar on international good taste. The lesson: That sovereign Mexico can expropriate but must also make compensation. As Senor Najera carried this protest home, U. S. oilmen were heartened into offering President Cardenas a settlement proposal: Oil lands would be re-

"Danger on the Rails"

HELLO EVERYBODY! I'm still learning what a terrific beating the human mind and body can take and still survive. The latest one to impress this lesson on me is today's Adventurer—Patrick J. Laffey of Trenton, New Jersey. Pat Laffey, as a boy in Ireland, crawled under a locomotive and was hanging to the undercarriage when the engineer started his train. His description of the heavy steel rods as they started to move, picking up speed, shoving him, battering him-well, read the story!

Pat was just, as he puts it, "a broth of a boy" in 1915, living in Galway, Ireland. On this particular autumn afternoon, he and two companions set out blackberrying. So lovely was the scenery, that they traveled farther from home than they had ever before ventured-some ten miles.

'We dared go no further," Pat says, "lest we get lost in our homeward journey. We were all tired now, so we started home, bringing our collection of berries along."

The boys crossed a few fields, when suddenly they came to double railroad track. Rather than cross any more fences, or fall into any more ditches, they started home along the track. They had walked about half a mile when their attention was attracted by a huge engine which lay on the sidetracks nearby. "To me," Pat says, "who had never seen one before, this huge mass of steel presented one of life's mysteries." The boys watched the aged engineer as he pushed and pulled levers. "How that thing did whistle and shriek," Pat recalls. "I think I hear it now."

Mystified, Pat Climbs Under the Locomotive.

A little later, the engineer left his position and walked down amongst other cars on the track. The engine was still steaming and hissing. "This," Pat says, "was our chance for a final analysis of our mysterywas this huge thing really alive?"

The more they looked at it, the more confused the boys became. They walked around it, saw its dirty, greasy iron bars, its large, shiny wheels. "And now," Pat says, "my race with death occurred. I feel a cold shiver right down my spine now.

"I myself set the trap for the grim jaws of eternity. It was a foolish act on my part, as I learned later. Now, boys, don't get a fainting spell when you read this, but consider yourself in my position. What would you have done?"

Well, here is the incredible thing Pat did. Being greatly interested in the engine, he examined it as best he could; so did his chums. Rather than miss anything, he crept underneath the huge structure. He was just in there, when the engineer returned. He rebuked Pat's two chums for their presence on the property of the railroad. The boys took to their heels as fast as they could, but

It's the Way Thousands Know to Ease Discomfort of Colds and Sore Throat Accompanying Colds

Try it. Then - see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with the Bayer Aspirin be-cause it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And to reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest, most effective way yet discovered. But make sure you get BAYER Aspirin.

Judiciary

A rare privilege is that of the U.S. President who can appoint four Supreme court judges. Already Franklin Roosevelt has named Hugo Black, Stanley Reed and Felix Frankfurter, liberals like himself. Next will come appointment of a new liberal to succeed liberal Justice Louis J. Brandeis, retired at full pay to help his fellow Jews and enjoy old age. Expected is an appointment from the middle west, now represented only by Minnesota's Pierce Butler. Since many plainsmen felt short-changed last December when Mr. Roosevelt appointed Justice Frankfurter, an easterner, a middle west appointment is considered in. cumbent.

After offering the standard de> fense argument that it is a nation's "sacred duty" to arm when the specter of a major war "haunts the world." Mr. Hull staged two surprises. The first, unusual for a diplomat, was a rejection of proposals that the U.S. call a disarmament conference. Next surprise was a common sensical explanation that arms conferences mean nothing when the basic causes underlying war are economic. These, he said, must be wiped out as a prerequisite. Father of the government's current reciprocal trade program and an outspoken opponent of the German barter trade plan (See PAN AMERICA), Cordell Hull may have been hinting for a U.S. lead in plans to settle the world's ills via the economic conference route. Since this could only mean "appeasement" as practiced by British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, most observers thought Mr Hull was not advocating an economic conference, but was instead advertising the merits of reciprocal trade treaties as a cure

Pat, rather than face the engineer's scolding, tucked himself under the engine, never aware of his life being in the other's hands, listening for every breath, hoping the engineer would soon go away.

He did decide finally to go away, but, as Pat puts it, "not without the engine.'

Smoke blew around, irons clattered, brakes shrieked and groanedand there was Pat, gasping for dear life itself. He clung on with his hands and feet until a huge iron compelled him to lose his foothold.

He now tried to save his head and arms from being ground to pieces. The engine pulled along. Pat expected any minute to be mashed to pieces. A thousand thoughts flashed through his mind -how far was he going-would the engineer ever stop-how long could he hold on?

Soaked With Blood, He Sinks Into Unconsciousness.

To Pat death was inevitable; he could see no possible way to avert it, no means of attracting the attention of the engineer. He remembered he began to shout for help, but his cries were only drowned out by that ever-increasing rattle of the engine, He remembers, too, getting a severe blow on his left side-the cuts of which he bears to this day.

He felt himself getting weak . . . wet with blood . . . he sank into unconsciousness . .

Days passed, days for which he can give no account, days with life in the balance. Then finally, on the fifth day, Pat again gained consciousness.

There, beside his bed, stood Pat's parents, friends and neighbors, and, in the middle of the group, the unfortunate engineer himself. Needless to say, all were overjoyed to see this respon to medical attention in a boy they had literally given up for dead.

Pat afterward learned how it came about that his life had been spared. And again, it was just one of those almost incredible flashes of good fortune-or Providence. The engineer had occasion to throw a switch, and while he was on the ground he chanced to look down at the engine's running gear.

Imagine his horror to see Pat's tattered body lying on the ground under the engine. He signaled the fireman in the cab, the fireman's hand shot to the levers and the immense monster of snorting steel screeched to a stop. The engineer lifted out the unconscious form from beneath the undercarriage.

If any of you adventurers ever want a ride on an engine, take Pat's advice, and be sure you get IN one, and not on the rods, because the odds, Pat says, "are against you." Copyright .- WNU Service.

C. Houston Goudiss Helps to Answer the Question: What to Eat During Lent?

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

CLERGYMAN friend of mine once remarked that in his A opinion, Lent lasts far too long. He had reference, I believe, to the fact that in a swift-moving age, people might be more apt to keep Lent faithfully, if it terminated in a shorter period than 40 days.

Many homemakers, I feel sure, would echo his sentiments, but for a rather different reason! Numbers of them, I know, find the six weeks of Lent the most troublesome of the entire year. Their difficulty .

Most homemakers will also want to use eggs more frequently during Lent, because they are so readily available and easily prepared. This is commendable, because besides being a fine source of protein, eggs rank next to milk as a protective food.

Only a few of the many possibilities for Lent have been suggested in this brief review. But surely they give a hint of the many, good and nutritious foods a homemaker can choose on those days when she plans meatless meals. C-WNU-C. Houston Goudiss-1939-51.
