TAXES ON STEEL DWARF NET EARNINGS

Taxes levied on the steel industry in 1938 were $14,879,000 more net earnings, according to a report released by the Iron and Steel Institute. Total taxes on the industry for 1938 amounted to $98,600,000, exceeding by nearly 18 percent the amount of net earnings remaining to the industry after all other taxes of operation had been paid. The levies paid were the equivalent of a year's pay for 83,000 wage-earning employees. In sharp contrast, taxes in 1929 were less than 21 percent of net earnings before taxes, while in '37 they took 42 percent of such earnings.

College Station Estimates Crop 25 Per Cent Normal Acreage

Briscoe County's 1939 wheat harvest, such as it is, will start here the last of this week, or the first of next. Dry windy weather is ripening the scattered fields of grain at a fast gait. The harvest will be a small one, probably less than last year. According to the county agent's office there were 40,000 acres of land planted to wheat in the fall of 1938, and it is expected that about 25 percent, or 10,000 acres will be harvested.

There is no way of obtaining an accurate estimate on the yield per acre, but about seven bushels per acre will perhaps be close.

The loss in acreage is accounted for largely by the dust storms of the early spring which forced many farmers to plow up their wheat land to prevent blowing. Several of these farmers were protected by the government crop insurance plan, and have already collected their "harvest" money. Word from the state supervisor of crop insurance in the effect that Briscoe County leads the state in number of policies paid.

There are a few farmers who have good wheat and who will start their harvest within a few days. B. D. Tindall west of town is expecting a fair yield and may be the first farmer near here to start. Fred Mercer, says that all of his wheat will "pay to cut."

Local elevators have been busy the past few days getting their elevator equipment in shape for harvest. Watson Douglas of the Plains Mill and Elevator Co., got out on a limb far enough to predict that about thirty cars of wheat would be shipped from Silverton.

HILL - - HAMILTON
Choosing 3:30 o'clock Thursday morning as their wedding hour, LaNelle Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hamilton, and Bailey Hill, son of Mr. R. M. Hill, were married at the home of the Rev. J. H. Hamblen, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Abilene. Rev. Hamblen read the ring ceremony.

The bride wore a frock of powder blue chiffon with white accessories, with a corsage of sweetheart roses. For "something old," Miss Hamilton wore a gold bracelet that belonged to her aunt, Mrs. E. L. Hamilton, and "something borrowed" was a white chiffon handkerchief of her sister's, Lorraine Hamilton. The bride's sister, La Wanda, served as her only attendant. She wore a frock of navy blue and white with a sweet pea corsage.

Darris Egger of McAdoo was Bailey's best man. Following the service the bridesmaids were hosts for a reception. Eileen Odum and Ledlene Hamilton presided at the refreshment table to serve punch and a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and bridegroom. Roses centered the lace-laid table.

Immediately after the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to New Mexico, visiting the Carlsbad Caverns and other points of interest. Upon their return they will make their home in Silverton where Mr. Hill is engaged in farming and ranching.

The bride was graduated from Abilene High School in 1938, and attended McMurry College where she was a member of the Alpha Theta Nu sorority. Bailey was graduated from Silverton High School in 1934 and attended McMurry college last year. Bailey is one of the leading members of the Methodist Church here. He also teaches the Young People's Sunday School Class.

CLAUDE CROSSING

Shown above is a scenic view on Tule Canyon, at Claude Crossing. The road can be seen as one enters the canyon, and past the "castle-like" rock the road can again be seen as it winds out of the canyon, on toward Claude.

Tule Canyon is one of the most picturesque spots in the Panhandle. The above picture has been given wide-spread publicity in daily papers, but many times has been wrongly labeled as being in Palo Duro Canyon. A road (not shown) beyond the rock, winds down the canyon proper and to favorite camping and fishing spots. The view shown here is just one of many which could be seen from the proposed projection of Highway 207 north from Highway 86 to Claude, and the oil fields. Economically the road is important, as it would make a saving of about 70 miles on every round trip from the south plains to the oil fields. Over five million gallons of gas, oil, and distillate are hauled per year to the south plains.

ENGINEERS VIEW PROPOSED DAM SITE ON TULE CANYON

Engineers Adams, Smith and Noah were here Friday and visited the Tule Canyon inspecting likely locations for a huge government dam to be built in this vicinity in the near future.

A large delegation of Silverton business men were on hand to greet the engineers, and show them through the Canyon, under the leadership of H. T. Gill, who knows very foot of the territory. The inspection trip was combined with pleasure to the extent that coffee and eats were on hand for everyone. Several of the local "boys" put on their birthday suits and went swimming.

The engineers, while seemingly very interested, were noncommittal as to future plans. A dam properly placed on the Tule would make a lake with a shore line of probably twenty miles.

LAST HALF OF 1938 TAXES DUE THIS MONTH

According to an advertisement running in this week's paper for N. R. Honea, tax assessor and collector for Briscoe County, the last half of the 1938 taxes must be paid on or before June 30, to avoid the payment of further penalty.

Considerable saving may be made, says Mr. Honea, if the delinquent 1938 taxes are paid during this month. The penalty of 5 percent now, will be increased to 8 percent on July 1st; in addition interest of 6 per cent will be added as well as $1.00 costs.

Of course, Mr. Honea and his office force, will appreciate it if you do not wait until the LAST day to pay up. Any day this month will produce the desired results.

THE ARTIST OF THE SOUL

Somewhere there is a story told about a statue of Jesus sculptured by a German artist named Retzsch. It was the face of Jesus the sculptor was concerned about. For many years it had been his thought by day and his dream by night to chisel out of marble a face that in itself would reveal the identity of his subject to the world that looked upon it. He first sought to mold the face in clay, and if he could succeed in this, he would then cut it in the white marble of Carrara, imperishable for ever. And when the mold was ready, without the cross or crown of thorns of any of the usual emblematic marks to reveal its identity, he asked a little child who it was. She replied, "The man who said, Suffer the little children to come unto me." A smile of inexpressible satisfaction played over the great artist's features. His dream was realized and carefully he wrought it into marble. A triumph of art. We will think further of this story next Sunday morning in the Presbyterian Church.

AGGIE BRIEFS

Sudan and Sweet Sorghums Harvested For Seed

Sudan and sweet sorghums harvested for seed was classified as soil-depleting under the 1938 Program and will be classified as soil-depleting under the 1939 program. However, when sudan and sweet sorghums are grazed or cut for hay or silage the acreage will be considered as neutral acreage.

It has been brought to the attention of the County Committee by the State Committee that the abuse of the above regulations will likely cause all farmers in Texas to lose the opportunity to raise hay crops on neutral acreage. Therefore, the County Committee will handle this matter with utmost care. Where sudan and cane are cut for hay after the seed matures the committee will require a statement from the producer stating that it will not be threshed for seed and producers who sell hay containing matured seed to another producer should have an agreement with the one purchasing the hay that the seed will not be threshed because threshing of seed will cause the crop to be classified as soil-depleting and charged against the soil-depleting acreage of the farm on which it was grown.

Correction of Last Week's Aggie Briefs

The statement which read as follows, "Wheat, barley and rye will not be considered soil-depleting acreage if pastured out before maturity," should have read, "Mixtures of wheat with 25 percent or more barley or rye if pastured out before maturity will not be considered as soil-depleting acreage."

1939 Price Adjustment Payments

To date Briscoe County has received $24,863.60 on Wheat Parity Payments. This amount has been paid to 366 producers. This represents the bigger proportion of the wheat producers in Briscoe County and the remainder will be paid just as quickly as we can get our applications in line for pay, which we are doing as fast as we can.

Wheat Insurance

Gone with the wind are a number of wheat crops in Briscoe County, but not without something to show for it—thanks to federal crop insurance.

According to information assembled in the Briscoe County Agricultural Conservation Office by the County Committee, to date 62 producers have had indemnity losses approved which assures them of 44,394 bushels of wheat.

The County Committee who supervises crop insurance along with AAA work in the County have checked the results of a few of the wheat farmers who have crop insurance protection on their farm for 1939 to insure their income from many unavoidable hazards which beset wheat culture.

Mr. Tull's policy guaranteed him 75 per cent of the average production of 345.4 acres. The insurance had cost him a premium of 328 bushels and collected an indemnity of 2,179 bushels.

L. W. Francis of Silverton insured 235 acres at a premium cost of 246 bushels and collected an indemnity of 2,179 bushels.

While premiums and indemnities are figured in terms of bushels of wheat, farmers may pay or be paid in the cash equivalent if they choose. Most of the farmers who have had losses so far have asked for cash equivalent and have already received their checks. You can readily see from the above information that the 137 farmers who are carrying wheat crop insurance this year are going to receive at least 75 per cent of a normal crop which has cost them a very small amount compared with the benefits which will be received in Briscoe County in 1939 from Federal Crop Insurance. So far Briscoe County leads the state in the amount of total indemnities collected.

We consider this an unfortunate circumstance, however, we are thankful that the farmers in Briscoe County are wide awake and (Continued on back page)

The work of constructing four miles of pavement from a mile west of Silverton, east three miles, will be completed by the end of this week, according to Mr. Bradshaw, who is in charge of the work for the Austin Construction Company. The road is receiving the oil coat and asphalt treatment this week, which will wind up the work.

The road is built of selected ground caliche, eight inches deep and 34 feet wide. It has been rolled and rolerolled until as the topping goes on, it is as smooth as concrete. The asphalt itself will be 22 feet wide. According to State Highway officials, the pavement will be one of the best to be found anywhere.

Considerable trouble has been experienced by the construction company in the building of the road. Weather conditions have not been ideal, with several heavy rains causing additional rolling and other work to be done. Traffic has been very hard to handle. Drivers getting past the barriers have caused no end of trouble. In spite of this, the Austin Construction Company has built a real road.

The WPA job east of this four-mile strip lacks less than two miles of being finished to the Cap Rock. The grade and fill over the cap has been opened for traffic and work of topping the caliche base from the cap to Quitaque will be started soon by the Uvalde Construction Company. Within a short time a paved road to the east county line will be a reality.

See Hope for League Rebirth Under New Russ-British Pact; Must Get Rid of Avenol First

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

INTERNATIONAL: Rebirth?

Once the white hope of world peace, Geneva's League of Nations buildings are today what one correspondent calls "a stately mausoleum haunted by the ghosts of brave men."

Black marks on the League's record include Manchuria, Ethiopia, Spain and China. Each succumbed amid ineffectual, insincere League sanctions which were enforced against aggressor nations only if individual signatories found it "convenient."

LEAGUE'S AVENOL He "forgot" Albania's plea.

Reached a new low. When Albania protested its seizure by Italy, the secretary "forgot" to circulate its SOS among signatories.

However, even as the League grows more decadent under Avenol leadership, hope rises for a rebirth of its collaboration machinery.

BUSINESS: Middleman

Favorite butt of pro-chain store and pro-operative movements has been the wholesaler, who in popular notion is excess baggage in the U. S. distribution system.

Trend

How the wind is blowing... ARMAMENT—Soviet Russia has ordered a 50 per cent increase in her 1939 national defense budget to keep abreast of Germany and Italy.

RUBBER—J. M. Slattery, Fisk vice executive, predicts 50 per cent increase in world rubber consumption during next 10 years.

GASOLINE—In 1938, U. S. gasoline consumption was 1 per cent above the previous year, although motor vehicle registrations were 1 per cent less than 1937.

JEWELRY—A new Berlin ghetto decree places still more drastic restrictions on areas to be inhabited by "non-Aryans."

the $38,500,000 which U. S. consumers paid in distribution costs for their merchandise during the peak year in 1929. Individual figures and percentages of the distribution cost: Wholesalers... Basic conclusions were that wholesalers did not earn excessive profits in 1929 (groceries, 1.3 per cent; confectioneries, 2.2 per cent; dry goods, 2.7 per cent), and that they remain an essential link in the distribution machine.

When he began investigating un-Americanism last year, Texas' sincere Rep. Martin Dies won deserved criticism for letting his committee listen indiscriminately to anyone with an ax to grind.

Biggest threat, inspired by Italo-German success and fostered by depression-made malcontents, are the U. S. Fascists. This spring Fascism reared its head when Mr. Dies revealed a strong anti-Jewish movement led by Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley retired anti-New Deal army officer; Dudley P. Gilbert, New York financier, and such Ku Klux Klansmen groups as Knights of the White Camellias, led by George Deatherage of St. Albans, W. Va.

Greatest handicap to an impartial investigation of un-Americanism is the very stumbling block Mr. Dies encountered last autumn, namely, ax-grinding. Best example, though in this case probably popular with Mr. Dies, was the arrest of Fritz Kuhn, "Fuehrer" of the violently Nazi-German-American Bund, charged with grand larceny and forgery in shortages of $15,000 from Bund funds.

FUEHRER KUHN "... a lot of nonsense."

that Kuhn participated in Hitler's Munich speech in 1923, has organized 94 active Bund branches and has done nothing to merit confidence of the U. S. critics looked suspiciously (though probably unfairly) at the two men responsible for his arrest.

Said Mr. Dewey: "The indictment shows Kuhn is just a common thief." Answered Fuehrer Kuhn: "It's a lot of nonsense."

A Banner Fiction Serial By HAROLD CHANNING WIRE

Art's thumb jerked backward. "I want to know who is that girl! And is she married to that Jasper?" Following the thumb, Breck looked through the open doorway, seeing a section of tourist pasture fence. Irene and Toby stood there, coaxing horses with bunches of grass.

"Who is that fellow?" the Senator asked, riding on to the corrals. "A cowboy," Breck answered. "Owns a herd north of here." "Safe enough, I suppose? He looks like a pretty determined customer."

Breck considered. "Safe enough for Irene," he said then. "I only hope the boy doesn't take it too seriously." He might have told Sutherland more, but felt the time had come for him to explain things to Irene herself.

That night he went to their camp with a Dutch-oven supper of roast meat, potatoes and carrots that he had left buried in the coals all day; and after the meal, passed time with before them when they came into Rock House. Breck's thoughts returned to Irene, and a little later were materialized by two figures sitting on a boulder where the meadow creek began its descent. The trail led close to them. Irene looked up, waving one hand as her father passed. Art Tillson kept his eyes on the stream.

"Who is that fellow?" the Senator asked, riding on to the corrals. "A cowboy," Breck answered. "Owns a herd north of here." "Safe enough, I suppose? He looks like a pretty determined customer."

Breck considered. "Safe enough for Irene," he said then. "I only hope the boy doesn't take it too seriously." He might have told Sutherland more, but felt the time had come for him to explain things to Irene herself.

"How long have you been there?" he asked.

stories of his work, waiting until he was alone with Irene.

"Now," she said, facing him from her seat across the fire when all others had finally gone to their tents, "I know what you're going to do. You're going to lecture me. Save it."

"Why should I lecture you?" Breck asked. Irene gave a little shrug, half impatience, half the manner of a naughty child.

"All right," he agreed, "it is part of my job. But not the way you put it." He knew he could talk to her openly; she would not betray his confidences.

"All right. But I need a derrick to hoist me on that animal!" Half an hour later when Breck and the Senator rode west toward Kern River, Irene was still in camp.

He had planned this trip for the double purpose of putting direction signs along the trail, and doing a little missionary work on Sutherland. They rode into a beautiful part of the country, rugged, thick with giant fir, often coming over ridges that raised unlimited vistas of the Sierra roof.

But it was a trail that had not been worked for three years. Fallen trunks and slides of earth repeatedly blocked it, forcing them to dismount and lead their horses along the mountain slope. Covertly, Breck watched the Senator. He had tourists' knees, that once bent, refused to straighten. The continued climbing off and on became exasperating.

"What the devil's wrong here!" he burst out at last. "This is worse than no trail at all. Hasn't it ever been cleared?" Breck halted, hooking one knee about his saddle horn. "Not for some time, Senator. A shame isn't it? They tell me this used to be camper's paradise. But, thunder, no one can get into it now."

Sutherland glowered along the particular trunk that sprawled its hundred foot length in front of him. "Why not put a gang of men to work? They could open it." "Who would pay them?" "Why, the government, of course."

"On seventy-eight dollars?" "What do you mean seventy-eight dollars?" "That's exactly the amount my chief was allowed for trail work this year."

"The devil it was!" Breck laughed, and deciding to let that one point sink in, wheeled his horse toward home. Their shadows were lengthening heels. He did not go out and she went directly to the corral where Art had brought up her horse. Breck understood the game. Perhaps Irene could not cope cowboy fashion, though she knew how to canter well enough, having been taught that by various young men on the social paths of Flintridge. Now she was sweetly helpless. Art saddled for her, readjusted her stirrups, let her put one dainty boot on his knee in assisting her to mount. Then he handed up a leather quirt, the braiding of which must have taken half the night.

Side by side they moved out across the meadow, heading toward a level spot beyond the stream. Breck left his cabin. The Senator came down from his camp to meet him. "Well, my boy," he chuckled, "your treatment worked. I'm not nearly as stiff this morning. Where do we go today?" Breck had intended a trip into country where Sutherland could find golden trout, but now canceled it. "I'm sorry. I'll have to put off our ride. My horse has cast a shoe and I might as well go over the whole bunch at once."

He felt it unwise to leave the station as long as Irene was nearby, courting trouble. His fear was not for her. She could freeze a man when the time came. Yet if Tillson realized she had deliberately made a fool of him, there was no telling what his vengeance would turn.

"Anything suits me," the Senator answered genially. "I'll take Mary for a walk up the canyon. The fish can wait."

"Tomorrow, maybe," Breck suggested, but gave even that with mental reservation.

When Sutherland had gone back to camp Breck tied his stock under a pine and went to work. He had attempted the job only once before, and that was at headquarters with Sierra Slim's help. Now he had no envy for the village blacksmith.

At times when he straightened from bending over a hoof, he glanced off across the meadow. Irene's lesson was progressing. He saw her loose short distances with Art close at her side.

Breck finished with Kit, then began on Custer, and as the big gray objected, his whole attention was given to the job. When he did look up again, Irene and Tillson were not in sight. He stepped out from the cutting out most of the outside noises. The walls are further lined with soundproofing materials, and the heavy carpet is underlaid with thick felt. Entrance is through a vestibule which closes when the "quietness hunters" pass through a door from it into the room proper.

The long supporting rods do not touch the roof. They are connected with steel springs set in rubber to prevent them from acting as sound and vibration conductors.

A person with indignation in this room does not have to tell his friends what is the matter. His stomach can be heard rumbling.

One result of this kind of work is super quiet electric fan blades. There's not a single entirely flat area on their faces. Neither do their curves at any cross section equal those of any other area. Their greatest width is almost at the tip.

tree and surveyed the meadow, following with his eyes up a narrow arm that disappeared behind a ridge of rock. For a moment he stood doubtful. Perhaps he was making too much of the whole affair. He strode back to work.

It was half an hour later when two figures came from the gap and turned toward his station. Immediately Breck saw the unusual distance between them. Irene rode in the lead. Art held back. They kept that position across the meadow and at the stream Irene swung up to the camp alone.

Art loped into the tourist pasture, brought out his mules and saddled them. Then he lashed on the salt bags, drawing cinches savagely and cursing any animal that moved. With packs secured, he flung himself into the saddle and pushed his train in a fast walk north toward Sulphur Creek.

"And that," Breck wondered, "means what?" It could mean much, and he knew the waste of time in trying to guess. One thing he felt would follow now. Irene would come back to him. She usually did. Give her time.

He cooked his noon meal, loitered in sight about the cabin, then went back to finish his shoeing. Goof was the last. Breck had three shoes on the mule and the fourth fitted, when a small voice behind him said:

"You don't know how poetic you look! The village smithy!" He dropped the hoof and turned. Irene was perched on a log.

"How long have you been there?" he asked. "Hours. I thought you would never look around."

Breck picked up the hoof again and tacked on the shoe. "Where's Arthur?" "That cowhand?" Irene corrected. "Oh, he couldn't stay any longer. Had some important business tonight." She drew her shoulders together in a little disdainful shrug. "I can't stand a brag."

Breck bent the nails and clinched them, then finished off with the rasp. He wanted to let Irene continue of her own accord.

She did presently; moving nearer and sitting on the anvil. "He was an interesting fellow. But he misunderstood my motives."

"Of course," Breck agreed. "How could he know that you were doing it mostly for me to watch?" "Why, how can you say that!"

Before answering, Breck released Goof, picked up his tools and put them in the box. Then he sat down beside her. "Irene, we're not children."

Suddenly she put both hands on his arm, laughing. "You are, Gordon! Just a big boy. You're not really disturbed, are you?" Breck frowned. "You haven't helped matters by sending Tillson off like that."

"Poo! I'm not afraid of him." "That isn't what I mean." "You're afraid of him?" Irene smiled.

Breck ignored it. "I don't like to have things more complicated, that's all." "He's just a big brag, Gordon. I found that out. And my woman's instinct tells me a brag is usually harmless."

"Not this one," Breck asserted. He paused midway in rolling a cigarette, then crushed the paper in his hand. "What did Tillson brag about?" "Oh, what a man he is in these mountains. How many cows he owns and how he is the big boss here. Except for a brother, who is boss too. He can even forecast events, like—oh I can't remember. I was tired of it by that time."

THE SAFE DIET FOR GOOD HEALTH AND VITALITY

By Ruth J. Cooper
Consulting Home Economist
Breeder-Feeder Association

Good health depends upon proper nutrition. Proper nutrition depends first, upon the availability of the food supply. This takes us right back to the Breeder-Feeder Movement, or balanced feeding program, which is the basis for Southwestern economic independence. Secondly, proper nutrition depends upon the proper selection of these food products. Whether you are a producer or a consumer, both phases of the problem are of equal importance. Good health and vitality are the direct results of proper nutrition.

But, what is proper nutrition? Briefly the needs of the body are: (1) Calories for heat and energy, (2) Protein to build and repair the body tissue, (3) Minerals to regulate body processes, to build bone, blood, etc., (4) Vitamins to promote growth and protect health, and (5) Bulk to aid in elimination of body waste. Proper nutrition means the selection of a diet which supplies all of the daily needs of the body with a small reserve supply.

The Texas Extension Service working with other scientific specialists, set up a Texas Food Standard as a guide to proper nutrition for rural people. This standard has been broadened for use of urban families and is being suggested as the "Safe Diet" by nutritionists, dietitians, home economists and teaching groups throughout the Southwest. The following standard is a safe guide in evaluating the daily menu, and attaining proper nutrition through an adequate, balanced diet.

- The Safe Diet:
- Daily
- 1 quart of milk
 - 1 egg
 - 1 Serving lean meat
 - 1 Serving potatoes or rice
 - 1 Serving green or yellow vegetables
 - 1 Serving other vegetables
 - 1 Serving citrus fruit or tomatoes
 - 1 Serving other fruit—dried, canned or fresh
 - 1 Serving whole grain products
- Bread and butter at every meal
Some sweets
Cheese three times per week
Dried peas and beans three times per week
Liver once a week
Water daily—six to eight glasses

This "Safe Diet" has meat once a day and specifies liver once a week. More meat could be used with more safety because, of all the foods, meat offers the most in food elements, satisfying qualities, and in palatability.

In our urge or need to economize, we have skimped too much on meat. Had this not been the case, perhaps the results might have been different. We are told that the diets of the Southwest are dangerously inadequate, that only twenty-five percent of our people are today enjoying diets supplying a small reserve strength over and above the daily needs. Rural people can grow their own and need not lack for all the elements of a good diet—meat included.

Better dietary habits improve health, better health raises economic and social standards; the route to security and economic independence lies through both producing and consuming a "Safe Diet" on the farm as far as possible.

Milk Is Rich In VITAMINS
Milk is an unusual food in that it contains some of all the vitamins. It is an outstanding protective food. Dr. E. V. McCollum, of Johns Hopkins University, says:
"The people who have made liberal use of milk as a food have, in contrast, attained greater size, greater longevity and have been much more aggressive than the non-milk using peoples and have achieved much greater advancement through their side in literature, science and art."

Yours true'y

A preacher's pious look will not cover a poorly prepared message.

OLD TACK is always giving us the dope on weather cycles in the Panhandle, this year will be dry because some other year back in history was dry too . . . well I was talking to J. E. Daniel, who came here 47 years ago this month. He says that he read a government report many years ago telling of these weather cycles. When J. E. came here it was just following a dry cycle. In the early 90's a wet cycle began, and continued until about 1926, or about thirty years. Since that time, he says, we have been in a dry period, which now has stretched out to 13 years. Well, according to the old government report, cycles are of equal length. We had a wet period of about thirty years, and now are in for one which will be about that long. Which means, according to Mr. Daniel, that we are due for about 18 more years of dry weather, excluding local rains, until the next wet spell . . . eighteen years is a mighty long time.

NEW VERSION of an old story: The three bears were walking in the woods. Papa Bear sat down on a cactus, and raised up with a big "Ouch." Mamma Bear sat down on a cactus and raised up with a medium "Ouch." Baby Bear sat down on a cactus and just sat there and never said a word. Mamma Bear said to Papa Bear, "Oh, my goodness, I'll bet we have raised up one of those awful DEAD END KIDS!"

NEVER IN MY life was I so surprised at receiving the above little squib from the niece, Punkin Monroe. Why the last time I saw her her mind was as pure as the driven snow . . . you have seen this snow after it has been driven over about 200 miles of West Texas prairie haven't you?

EXTRACTS FROM a letter from the one and only Worth Hamilton Alexander, the great: "I am now night manager of the Postal Telegraph here" (repeat this phrase at least six times) . . . "I have decided not to get married. Why should I get married and make one woman miserable when I can stay single and make lots of them happy . . . seems like to me that I sure am a killer diller with the women. I have already had one marriage proposal but declined . . . I went deep sea fishing yesterday and caught two big fish. I got sicker than anybody ever got before though and gave my breakfast to the fish that were left in the sea. I was generous and gave them all the food I had in me. The water was 400 feet deep, but did that scare me? Heck no, I was too sick . . ."

SUNDAY, THE TWO big Hahns and the one little Hahn Grove across Claude Crossing and on over into the San Jacinto community. I do believe that that farming section is one of the best I have ever seen. Every farm home, nearby, has a nice lot of trees around the place, a lawn, and the buildings with a good coat of paint. Some of these homes would do justice to any town home. Why is that? Are they prosperous over there? Or are they just more interested in their homes or what? I don't know why, but they've got it.

WE DROVE ON over to Tulia and went out to see the $130,000 dam three miles northeast of that city. It is a beautiful structure, and with very little of the structure hidden from view. In fact I am reminded of a squib I saw somewhere where a candidate was speaking of nearby dam, which had just been built. He said, "We have a dam by a lake site, but we don't have a lake by a dam site."

Now please don't try to give us a dollar and a half this week, or you will feel bad next. And by the way there are a gob of papers running out in July and August. I'VE MADE SOME picture post cards here at the office of some views over on the Tule. Come in and get a dozen or so, and help boost our scenic spots.

WHY GO TO COLLEGE?

This is a question that has been argued for lo these many years. The question like all of its type is no nearer solution today than it was in the early days of American Colleges. You can still hear fathers saying such outmoded phrases as the following, "I ain't going to send my boy to college. They don't give them nothing but book learning; I didn't have none and I guess I'm doing all right." For his daughter he will say, "There ain't no point in getting her head all filled with that foolishness, it'll keep her from being a good wife to some man." That man fails to understand the value of modern education. It is in the face of such sentiment that the educational institutions of Texas have had to march. Can they be blamed then if their growth has been to a certain extent slower than in other states?

It would be unwise to send every child in Texas to college. The outcome of such a plan would be to flood the market with college graduates, or to cause a great deal of heartaches to students who, lacking the ability to graduate, failed out. It is far better not to send a student to college who is weak in school than to send him and force him to stand the disgrace of failing out of school. This has a more telling effect on his character than if he does not go. Business colleges provide an excellent opportunity for students who do not desire the purely cultural fields, but who are adept at the practical side of life.

The matter of picking a career is an unfortunate feature of our system. Many parents make the mistake of deciding what little Mortimer will be when he is cutting his first teeth. And in spite of the development of all his talents in a field other than the one which they had chosen, they send him to college when he reached the proper age to study in the chosen field. He does poorly in his work. They send him letters scolding him for not taking advantage of the splendid opportunity that they are giving him. Do you call it an opportunity to take castor oil? Perhaps the subject that they have chosen for him is that distasteful to Mortimer. Mortimer becomes disgusted with their attitude. Someone tells him how to change his subjects to the field he wants without telling his parents. Mortimer tries and gets so far along in this new field that if he were forced to go back to the field that his parents had chosen, he would lose many hours of work. He is allowed to continue in his new field. The sympathetic understanding between parents and child are forever shaken by this misunderstanding. Let the child pick the field that he wants. Only a happy worker can be a satisfied and prosperous worker. Parents should remember this fact when they peep over the edge of the cradle at two day old Mortimer, and exclaim in a properly parental phrase, "He'll be a lawyer like his daddy."

To the June graduate, go to college and if you are not sure, what you want to take—make a judicious investigation into your likes and dislikes, and try to match your course of studies to them. Do not take law because your best friend is. Or medicine because your best friend is. Or history, although you hate it, because you think that is easy. Choose the field that you are good in and like to work in.

EXPORT SUBSIDY

Secretary Wallace's widely-discussed Arkansas speech on the proposed cotton export subsidy, when summed up and stripped of its trimmings, meant that an export subsidy would be the cheapest way to stimulate foreign demand for American cotton without knocking the props from under the cotton farmer's income.

At least that is how George Slaughter, chairman of Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee, interpreted the Secretary's remarks.

One of 18 Texas Agricultural leaders who attended the Little Rock conference at which Wallace spoke, Slaughter said cotton farmers cannot afford to give up the commodity loan program which has kept the bottom from falling out of cotton prices, but that the loan has "put the skids under our export trade" by pegging the price of American line slightly above the world level.

If it were not for the government loan, cotton which has been selling for around 8 cents this year probably would have dropped to 6 cents, Slaughter surmised, staple consequently has undersold Uncle Sam's product by about 2 cents.

"We can't stand to give up the loan," he said. "We must uphold the price so far as practical at which the farmer sells his cotton, and continue to get maximum returns from the domestic market. "But we must let foreign buyers have our cotton for the same price that our competitors quote, or we will continue to lose export markets."

The farmer would get the same price for his cotton whether it was produced in this country or exported, according to the plan. The government simply would make up the difference between the domestic price and the world price, by paying exporters a bounty to place the staple on world markets at competitive prices.

"This would not contradict the reciprocal trade agreements program," Slaughter thought. "The plan is not to undersell foreign staple, but is merely to erase the disadvantage under which we have operated in world markets, and put our cotton on an equal footing with that of the rest of the world."

STATE HIGHWAY MAPS ISSUED

Julian Montgomery, State Highway Engineer, announced that the Spring Edition of the 1939 Official Map of the Texas Highway System was issued Saturday.

New features include the designation of National Forests in light green, reproduction of colored photographs of the Main Building of the University of Texas and a scene in a citrus grove in the Rio Grande Valley to make up the frontpiece, reproduction of a colored photograph of forest fire to serve as a warning and to help prevent forest fires, and a list of all State Highway Patrol Stations with their locations and telephone numbers.

The back of the map has been arranged in artistic form and is printed in two colors. Photographs of the various activities, industries, recreational spots, maritime shipping, roads, and bridges are arranged in symmetric form to present a composite representative picture of Texas as a whole.

As an aid in the use of the map a system of indicating mileages has been used which shows the distance between larger cities or more important points in accumulated figures and printed in red, while the mileage between towns is shown in black. This map is free to the public and copies may be obtained by addressing the Texas Highway Department in Austin or any District office of the Department.

Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Cooper have returned to Silverton after a months' stay in Plainview, where they have been taking care of Dr. Van Dervoot's Chiropractic office while the doctor was away on a vacation.

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, and the directions for slipcovers are so clear in the sketches that I have decided to cover my living room furniture which consists of a davenport, a club chair and a wing chair. I would like to have your suggestions for colors for these and for curtains."

With this letter there was a detailed description of the rug in the room. There have been a good many letters of this type lately, so I am showing you here how to analyze the colors in a figured rug and use them as a guide in planning a room.

It is not important that the rug color scheme be followed exactly, but do make a little chart of the rug colors as shown here at the left. If you do not wish to repeat the background color for your walls, use a pale tone of one of the other colors. A stronger tone of any color in the rug may become your accent color.

NOTICE: Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, are now 15 cents each, or both books for 25 cents. Readers who have not secured their copies of these two books should send in their orders immediately, as no more copies will be available, when the present supply is exhausted. Your choice of the QUILT LEAFLET illustrating 36 authentic patchwork stitches; or the RAG RUG LEAFLET, will be included with orders for both books for the present, but the offer may be withdrawn at any time. Leaflets are six cents each when ordered separately.

Everyone should have copies of these two books containing 96 How to Sew articles by Mrs. Spears, that have not appeared in the paper. Send your order at once to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

CHOCOLATE SILVER CAKE See Recipe Below.

Household News

by Eleanor Howe

Of Course You Can Bake

"I didn't have good luck with my cake baking today." You and I have both heard homemakers say just that—reason enough perhaps for our getting right down to cases today and finding out just what it is that makes for good luck—or bad luck—as the case may be—in this cake baking business.

Of course it really isn't a case of luck at all, for the right proportions of the right ingredients combined in the right way and baked at the right oven temperature eliminate luck entirely and assure baking success not sometimes but always.

Information Please.

Of course you own a measuring cup but have you looked at it critically to see whether or not it has a rim which extends above the accurate cup measure?

If it has a rim, do you measure the ingredients just to this point accurately, or clear to the top inaccurately?

Do you always sift the flour once just before measuring?

Do you use a fine granulated sugar when making cakes? There is a difference, you know.

Do you cream the shortening and mix the cake with a beating motion, not a stirring motion?

Do you level off the teaspoon measures of baking powder, salt or soda with a knife so as to be sure they, too, are accurate?

Do you start the oven 10 to 15 minutes in advance so it will be uniformly hot before the cake is placed in it?

Do you use a small, inexpensive oven thermometer for securing accurate oven temperatures if your range has no oven heat-control?

These are some of the chief factors, careful attention to which helps to spell success in cake baking. Try them out in the group of favorite cake recipes given below. I think you will like them and the recipes too.

Lemon Cake.

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 2 eggs

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add well-beaten egg yolks and mix thoroughly. Mix and sift all dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk and extract, beginning and ending with the flour mixture. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake as loaf cake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 to 40 minutes.

- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 4 egg whites

Cream the butter, add the sugar and beat well. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt, and add alternately with the milk and vanilla. Fold the egg whites until stiff and beat into cake. - 2 teaspoons ginger
- 3/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup nuts (broken)
- 3/4 cup milk

Cream the shortening and add the brown sugar very slowly, making sure all lumps are removed. Add the chocolate which has been melted over warm water, and the eggs, well beaten. Sift the dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Add the nuts, broken in small pieces. Bake as loaf cake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.
