CONGRESS: Get Out of Town

As congress neared term's end, Franklin Roosevelt sat at his Hyde Park cottage with Democratic Chairman James Farley, talking and thinking. He could afford to do both, also to wish congress would get out of Washington in a hurry. Reason: The New Deal was being ground underfoot unceremoniously and indiscriminately in a manner that boded ill for any 1940 campaign plans the President might have. Moreover, everything indicated the

Since the argument against the President's depression changed social and ecothird-term ambitions. For if this nomic status of most U. New Deal poison here is that NLRB's alleged shortcomings publicized this summer and next winter will focus attention on the White House

Hatch Bill. Passed by both senate and house, the "clean politics" measure of New Mexico's Sen. Carl M. Hatch is designed to keep relief out of political hands, and vice versa. Far more significant is that portion which forbids federal office holders from participating in national political conventions. Since 400 jobholders attended the 1932 G. O. P. pow-wow, and considerably more the 1936 Democratic convention, it is obviously the custom for pro-administration wheelhorses to write platforms and make nominations. Thus the New Deal will suffer at next year's Democratic convention because Mr. Roosevelt's best supporters may be absent.

"Another Molly Pitcher"

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Today's soul-stirring tale of a brave little mother who was deathly afraid of guns, but afraid of nothing at all when corporation hirelings tried to grab a piece of her home, is the Battle of Monmouth all over again.

You remember, or do you, how in that important engagement at Freehold, N. J., away back on June 28, 1778, Molly Pitcher took the place of her husband, John C. Hays, an artilleryman, after he was wounded, and served his gun, thus preventing its capture by the British. That's a yarn that every red-blooded American gets a kick out of every time he reads it!

It is mighty comforting, I want to tell you, to know there are Molly Pitchers in every generation, stepping forward fearlessly to take the places of their men when necessary. Just such a woman is today's distinguished adventurer.

Meet Mrs. John Doolin, of Lemont, Ill., who did a good job at writing her story, one that makes you feel all warm and proud of our womanhood. They call women the weaker sex. O yeah? Just put their backs to the wall. If you want the proof, read how Mrs. Doolin, single-handed, whipped a rather highhanded corporation that seemed to be trying to put over a fast one. Not long after a railroad came through the village of Lemont, where the Doolins had their home, there were a number of accidents on a sharp curve close to the Doolin property. The company wanted to straighten the line by putting it across the Doolin yard. Surveyors staked out the new right of way; workers appeared and began digging. John Doolin ordered them off. Then he took the first train to Chicago and there consulted his good friend, Attorney Alexander Sullivan.

Actions of Company Held Illegal by Attorney.

Mr. Sullivan told him the company had no right to put its line on Doolin property without permission. But, he continued (and here's the catch), if the company succeeded in erecting the poles and stringing the power wire, the only thing Doolin could do would be to go to court. John Doolin didn't have any money to pay for long years of litigation so he beat it for home, resolved to keep the company off his premises. There, sticking up in the lawn, was a nice new pole that had been put up while he was in the city. John sawed the pole half way through. Then he borrowed a rifle and ammunition from a neighbor.

appeared with a warrant charging John Doolin with destroying public ing, a wife on the verge of it.

property. John marched away with the law, leaving three children cry-No sooner was John Doolin out of sight than a crew of workmen swarmed on the place and began digging so furiously you would think they were being paid a dollar a shovelfull. Was little Mrs. Doolin going getting she shivered at the very sight of a firearm, she took from the wall a shotgun that had hung undisturbed for many years. With her children clinging to her and crying again, she opened the window shutters, and rested the ancient fowling piece on the sill. Then, in a cold fury, she called down to the working to let them get away with it? Up to the attic she hurried. There, formen: "Throw down your tools or I'll shoot!"

They stopped working and began to kid her. Foreman Orders Men to Take Gun From Her.

Then one bully, who appeared to be the foreman, ordered: "Come on, guys, let's go up and take it away from her." Mrs. Doolin leaned a little farther out of the window and lifted the rusty shotgun. "The first man who takes a step toward my house gets shot." "Now all of you drop your tools or I'll start shooting."

And boys and girls, Mrs. Doolin meant exactly what she said. She was a determined mother, protecting her home and babies in the absence of her husband. Of course, she thought the gun wasn't loaded, but her finger was on the trigger and she was all set to pull it if any one of those men made a move in the direction of the house. But their tools went down. The workmen sensed this was real drama, not a comedy, and they became sober. One spoke up to say the company had sent them there to rush up a couple of poles. Plucky Mrs. Doolin then explained to them that they were on her property, that the company had not asked permission to use it nor offered to pay for it.

Well, sir, when those men got the low down on the proposition they took off their hats and cheered. "You win, lady, you're a game guy," they told her. "We aren't doing any more digging until you get a square deal." With that they picked up their tools and went to town. Mrs. Doolin had won her battle, but would the men be back tomorrow? Would the company have her arrested for threatening its workmen? And what had become of her husband?

Officials Refuse to Prosecute Doolin.

Pondering these questions, Mrs. Doolin went to the door and was overjoyed to see her husband coming up the walk. He hadn't been in jail at all. The policeman had taken him before a justice of the peace, but no one in the courtroom was willing to prosecute him. He thought he understood why he had been taken away on a charge no one would press when Mrs. Doolin told him the men had been back. But when she told him how she had pointed the shotgun at them and really intended to pull the trigger, he felt a little faint. For that old gun was loaded!

Well, there was one thing about the old-fashioned corporation, it lightful, full-flavored beverage, and always knew when it was licked. The very next morning the worries at the same time saves considerable of the Doolin family were over. Right after breakfast two suave lawyers called to say how sorry they were it had happened. There had been a mistake. The company was willing to pay a good price for the land. And they paid, right on the line, thanks to the little woman who didn't know when she was licked.

Horse Sense Ulysses, famed Grecian warrior in the battle with the Trojans, at first didn't want to go to war, according to legend. Pretending madness, he put on a fisherman's hat, yoked horses and started to plow up the ground. His trick was uncovered when he turned the horses aside as he saw his infant son lying on the ground in front of the plow.

Honoring Veterans

The custom of firing three volleys over the grave of a deceased veteran is derived from the old Roman custom of casting earth over the coffin, calling the dead by name three times and then saying "Vale" three times. The word "vale" is the Latin word for farewell. The firing of three volleys is equivalent to say-ing farewell to the deceased.

PICNIC BASKET A PASSPORT TO FUN (See Recipe Below)

Let's Have a Picnic!

When skies are blue and cloudless and the weather's warm, a picnic basket is the passport to fun. It may be a spur-of-the-moment picnic with a simple lunch prepared from supplies on hand in pantry and refrigerator; or it might be a steak fry or barbecue with the food cooked on the picnic grounds; but it's more likely to be an old-fashioned "family style" picnic for a half-dozen to a hundred hungry guests with plenty of good-tasting food of delicious variety. Whether your picnic is planned

Add beans and continue cooking for 2 hours, or until both meat and beans are tender. Add remaining ingredients. Place in a baking dish, and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 11/2 hours. If necessary, add more water to the beans while cooking.

ELIJAH: A LIFE OF COURAGE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 18:30-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is far from the wicked: but he heareth the prayer of the righteous.—Proverbs 15:29.

"Let courage rise with danger." Such is the plea of Webb's great hymn, "Stand Up for Jesus." Christianity in our day calls for courageous men and women. Courage should be distinguished from such related things as bravery, valor, or bravado. Bravado is an affectation of a reckless bravery which surely has no place in Christian life and activity. Valor is associated with daring and vigorous action, for example, in battle. To be brave means to meet a challenge with confidence and resolution. To be courageous means to steadily meet perils of which one is deeply conscious, doing so because of the call of duty. Courage holds a deeper and nobler meaning than the other words, carrying with it the idea of moral strength and, in the case of the Christian, faith in God as one devoted to His cause.

Works in the Open (v. 30).

Men whose deeds are evil love the darkness rather than the light. God does not work in the dark. All of His workings are in the open sunlight. Every one is welcome to 'come near" and see what is done. Elijah knew God and he acted like God's man. What a tragedy it is that not all of God's servants have followed his example. If we had open and above-board dealings Elijah in the affairs of our churches, we might see more of the fire and power of his ministry. Certain it is that the administration of church affairs which has to be carried out in hidden corners by whispered conversations and by secret manipulations behind the scenes, is not God's work at all, it is the work of man.

II. Asks No Favors (vv. 33-35). Elijah rebuilt the altar himself. He asked no help of the unbelieving prophets of Baal or of apostate Israel. How old-fashioned he seems the supposed work of God.

Note also that Elijah invited his enemies to make the answer to his prayer more difficult by pouring water on the sacrifice. This was not an act of bravado, it was for the purpose of demonstrating that there was no fraud. He was willing that the enemies of the truth should make the demonstration more difficult if that would be to God's glory. There is a delightful old-fashioned flavor about that act, too, in these days when men are frequently willing to compromise with unbelief and even with sin in order that the work of the Church may be carried on without too much difficulty. Here again we have an explanation of the lack of spiritual power in our

Now in the fully rebuilds the altar of the true God (v. 30), makes it a testimony of unity to a divided Israel (v. 31), and he does it all in the name of the Lord (v. 32). His prayer (vv. 36, 37) is a profoundly simple expression of a complete faith in the true God and His power on the part of a man who recognized himself as being only the divine servant. He made no plea that God would vindicate him or his ministry, but he did plead that the name of the Lord should be honored in the midst of an unbelieving

IV. Brings Eternal Results (vv.

38, 39) "The fire of the Lord fell." The lying prophets of heathendom were routed. Many recognized Jehovah as the true God. While Israel did not long remember the lesson learned here, the story has continued as a testimony that will strengthen the people of God as long as time continues.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable menservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharanee of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn.

"We love you and we will all do our best to make you happy," said the Maharanee. "But the astrologer says this is a time of great crisis for us. I believe you are a sending, as we call it. There are many sendings just now, and they are badly mixed. They are contradictory and in opposition to one another. His Highness my husband is so anxious to make a good impression on Captain Norwood. It is so important. Will you help us to make a good impression on him?"

diamond mine, but I hope you won't mention that to anyone.' "I'm glad you warned me. Ot course, I won't mention it."

CHAPTER IV

Captain Carl Norwood's tent faced the Kadur River. About a mile away, it resembled a moonlit irregular ribbon of silver streaming from the enormous temple; and the temple was a citadel of mystery that loomed against Indian night. in this day when so much stress is There was a stillness that seemed laid on a false unity of the faiths, like the womb of music, into which and there is so much solicitation the clatter and voices from the camp and acceptance by the Church of kitchen fell naturally and the hoofthe help of unbelievers in financing beats of a cantering horse thudded on dusty earth like calculated drum beats. A shadow that was a horse was reined in with unnecessary vigor. A palace messenger dismounted. Norwood's servant, careful for his master's dignity, accepted a silver tube with the air of conferring a favor.

Norwood opened the tube, after he had made sure that the servant had withdrawn to a sufficient distance. Then he went to the table and wrote, inserted his own letter into the tube and returned it to the messenger, who cantered away. "Tell Moses I want him."

Moses O'Leary came and stood in the door of the tent.

"I've been invited to the palace for supper."

"I haven't had time yet, sir, to find out much about what's doing at

"Has anyone from the palace been enquiring about me?"

"Yes, sir. Prince Rundhia's servant came asking if you'd need to borrow a horse. He knew you didn't, because we were standing right untenseness of this moment, he care- der our horses' noses when he asked the question. Besides, I weren't the right person to ask. But he slipped me a box o' the Prince's cigars and asked a lot about you."

"What did you tell him?" "Me? I told him you're the mildest man on earth, and how nothing interests you so much as running surveys.

"What did you find out?" "Same as I told you-not much. He had his orders, and he hadn't had time to forget 'em, and he's scared o' the Prince. I got a line on the Prince all right. His brains are made o' curry powder and red pepper. He's about as safe to tackle as a she-cobra that has just laid her eggs. He's what they call a

"If I should hear of your taking his money, you'll find yourself in serious trouble." "Me?"

"Yes. You." "I'm incorruptible."

"What else did you find out?" "Nothing, excep' what I've already told you. There's a Mrs. Harding and a Miss Harding at the guesthouse. Mrs. Harding has a hurt foot and has been attended by Prince Rundhia's doctor, Miss Harding has already met Rundhia, and they've talked." "What about the doctor?"
