Turkey Fair

A fourteen page edition of the Turkey Enterprise last week, announced the dairy show and county fair which will be opened Friday, August 18. It is expected to be the "biggest doings" held in Turkey for some time.

JAPANESE TRADE RELATIONS

Most important development of a long time in our foreign policy was the sudden scrapping, by this government, of the U. S.-Japanese commerce and navigation treaty of 1911. Six months notice, under the terms of the treaty, is required to abrogate it—thereafter, if Congress wishes, it will be possible to completely shut off our trade with Nippon.

Quickly as the move was made, it came as no great surprise to those who understand stern Secretary Hull's high-principled theories of international morality. No man has a greater regard for truth, justice and decency in the relations of nations. No man has a greater hatred for a strong power bullying and destroying a weaker power.

Obvious motive behind the treaty denunciation is the opinion that the implied threat may be a strong factor in bringing the Japanese to book. They depend on us for a long list of essential war and peace commodities. Some think that if we broke off commercial relations with them they would be virtually ruined. And under any circumstances, we are in a far better position to do without Japan's trade than she is to do without ours.

No one knows whether Congress would sanction a trade embargo aimed at Nippon—perhaps it wouldn't, but the chance exists, and Tokyo knows it. As a result, the State Department's move has received general support, in and out of Congress, and in and out of Administration circles. Some think it brings with it the danger of a Japanese war; most think that possibility is too remote to be given much weight.

CARS CRASH ON HIGHWAY INTERSECTION

The intersection of Main Street and Highway 86 was the scene of an automobile crash Monday morning when cars driven by Orlin Stark of Quitaque, and J. B. Burke of Silverton, collided in the center of the new paved highway. Stark's car, a Dodge sedan, was traveling west and crashed heavily into the side of Burke's Model A Ford, who started to drive onto Highway 86 without stopping. The Ford was traveling north and after being struck, came to a rest against the curb on the north side of the street, headed south.

No one was injured in the accident, which was indeed lucky. The right side of the Burke car was badly caved-in, and Stark's radiator and front end were driven back.

It could have been a very bad accident, and there are going to be a lot more of them at this intersection if stop signs are not erected and cars brought to a halt before crossing onto the State Highway. Cars traveling the state highway are usually traveling at a high rate of speed, and with the gravel still loose on the ground, it is practically impossible to bring the cars to an immediate stop.

NO SHENANIGANS, PLEASE

Any cotton grower who misuses his marketing card to help someone else sell lint in excess of a marketing quota will lose his AAA payments, and so will his friend.

Warning to that effect was issued by the State Agricultural Conservation Committee here this week.

This is a new ruling. It is based on a provision that all or any part of a farmer's payments may be withheld if he does anything which tends to defeat the purposes of the farm program. Donald Cottrhan, Lamar county farmer and state committeeman, said.

Under marketing quota regulations, put in effect by a vote of cotton growers last fall, white cards are issued to farmers who have planted within cotton acreage allotments and who have carried over no cotton that would have been subject to penalty if marketed in previous years. Red cards go to those who have overplanted their allotments, or who have carry-over penalty cotton on hand.

The marketing quota is defined as either the normal or actual yield (whichever is larger) of the farm's cotton acreage allotment, plus any cotton carried over from last year which would not have been subject to penalty had it been sold.

Holders of red marketing cards are supposed to pay a penalty of 3 cents a pound of all cotton sold in excess of their marketing quotas.

The new ruling provides that if a cotton producer who holds a white card gins or sells cotton for a farmer with a red card, and the county committee finds the act to be in defiance of regulations, neither one of them will receive conservation or price adjustment payments under the 1939 program. Cottrhan said almost 98 per cent of the cotton farmers of Texas planted within their 1939 acreage limits. Cotton marketing has been relatively free of "shenanigans" this year, he reported.

CAN DAY BY DAY

Canning small surpluses of food day by day is considerable trouble, yet is one of the thriftiest home practices, says Louise Bryant, specialist in home management for the Extension Service of the Texas A. and M. College. Garden fruits and vegetables are often wasted, she says, because the housewife thinks a surplus of a quart or two is too small an amount to can.

OVER INCH AND HALF OF RAIN HERE SINCE LAST PAPER

Silverton received 1.01 inches of rain Thursday night of last week, with varying reports from outlying communities. At the J. H. Burson ranch home, it was reported that a good two inch rain fell, while W. N. Peugh west of Silverton several miles, reported a bare quarter of an inch. The rain came hard and much ran off the ground too fast to be of use.

Saturday night brought another rain, which to outward appearance was greater than Thursday's, however the Silverton gauge registered only .55 inches. No reports were received from other parts of the county, but rain was reported in almost all parts of the Panhandle. Both storms were accompanied by vivid lightning and loud thunder, as have been most rainstorms here this summer. The rain were very welcome. Clouds are hanging in the sky (Monday) and we may have more by the time we go to press.

DOES YOUR CHILD HAVE A BIRTH REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE

Parents of children starting to school for the first time this Fall are urged by the State Department of Health to make sure that they have a birth registration certification regarding their child and if not, to take proper legal steps as soon as possible to obtain this record.

Parents who do not have registration notification of the birth of their child are advised to contact their local registrar of vital statistics with whom the certificate was originally filed.

In many Texas school districts, a notification of birth certificate is required to prove the child is old enough to enter school. As the Vital Statistics Department will be called upon to answer numerous requests for school certificates, securing this record early will speed up the process for securing the needed forms before school opens.

Acquiring a record of birth is not only an important part of the task of getting the child ready for school but is an essential item in the larger job of preparing the child for the future. The time will come when he will need a record of his birth. Proper registration now will prevent difficulty later on in his life.

In addition to its importance at the time of admission to school, birth registration may be necessary for obtaining a work permit, an automobile driver's permit, the right to vote and the right to marry; for proof of parentage, inheritance of property, settlement of insurance and in establishing identity.

BETTER HEALTH FOR THE FUTURE

Assembling of students in the schools of the State next month calls to public attention the definite health responsibility of parents and teachers, as well as health workers, and is the subject of an address from the State Department of Health to the citizenship.

"A public health education program is an outstanding factor in the development of the physical, mental, and social welfare of the school children of today," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "Health teaching should be a basic part of every educational program."

"Practically every phase of the school system is related to health. Housing, screening, diet, disposal of wastes, exercise, rest, even the manner of daily contact with others, all have a direct bearing on health. Schools must treat the child as a whole—with his physical condition related definitely to his mental and emotional capacities."

"Prevention is the all important factor in the control of communicable disease. 'Communicable'—as we all know—describes that kind of disease which may be imparted or transmitted from one person to another, either by personal contact or through some other method. One by one, the communicable diseases, such as smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, and typhoid fever, are being controlled by preventive or immunizing agents. It is much better for all concerned that the child should be protected from ever taking these diseases, which often leaves some condition that will cause trouble later in life."

"Assume your responsibility in the community and work for the development of health education which will pave the way to a better health for the future."

OPEN HOUSE PARTY FOR SANDERS' 50th BIRTHDAY

Open house was held at the H. S. Sanders home Sunday from 1:30 till midnight, in honor of Mr. Sanders' fiftieth birthday. The affair was planned by Mrs. Sanders and came as a surprise to her husband. Eighty-five guests were served cake and punch to a late hour and wished Mr. Sanders "many happy returns." Lilly Jack Wafford and Marinez Cowart presided at the punch bowl.

The editor (who forgot to attend) wishes to add his best wishes to Mr. Sanders. The gentleman is holding his age . . . a guess would have placed him at about 42.

ANOTHER WRECK

A car and a pickup collided Tuesday in front of the Roy Hahn residence. The car was driven by Mrs. Jim Carter and the pickup by young D. J. Northcutt. Mrs. Carter had stopped at the Hahn home on the left side of the street. Apparently she was watching a car approaching from the east as she started up and as she swung across the street the Northcutt pickup came from the west and they collided in the center of the street.

No one was injured and apparently neither vehicle was seriously damaged.

Larger Enrollment Expected This Year

Many Changes Being Made By New Superintendent

The Silverton School Board set September 11th as the opening date. A large enrollment is expected this year due to the fact that all of the Lakeview students will attend the Silverton Schools and the sixth and seventh grade students of Haylah School will be transported to Silverton which will increase the total enrollment in Silverton more than thirty students. Mr. Spencer of the Haylake Community has been employed by the Silverton School Board to teach in Silverton.

At the present time the school plant is being checked and the necessary repairs made. Two temporary partitions are being built in the huge study hall which will result in three extra large classrooms, two of which will be used for home rooms for the eighth and ninth grade students and one of which will be made into a reading room with eight large tables and chairs with a student capacity of sixty four. The reading room will take the place of the huge study hall. This new arrangement was planned and put into effect in order that the increased enrollment may be amply provided for with the limited teaching force that will be available this year.

The schedule is being arranged so as to provide 55 minutes for all classes. This will enable students to secure individual instruction from their teachers after the assignment has been made for the following day. Grade school classes will not be planned the same as the high school but will run on a shorter period schedule.

There will be at least one activity period for each class in both grade school and high school and all students will be expected to participate in at least one sport. Junior and Senior football as well as Junior playground ball will provide physical activity for the boys. Basketball, volleyball, tennis and Junior playground ball will furnish the girls with plenty of good wholesome exercise. The activity periods will rotate throughout the day and will not all come at one time. There will be no activity period the last period of the day and the school buses will run promptly on schedule time. The bus schedules will be planned so the children will arrive at school a little before nine in the morning and all buses will leave school promptly at four in the evening.

Football training will begin September 1st which is the earliest date allowed by the Interscholastic League. The necessary equipment for football will be purchased in the near future and will be available for use on the date.

OLD SETTLERS ASSOCIATION MEETS AT HANK SMITH PARK

Old settlers of West Texas are gathered today at the Hank Smith Memorial Park near Crosbyton for their annual two-day celebration, August 17 and 18. The entertainment consists of public speaking, old time square dancing, old fiddlers' contests, a big carnival and other amusements.

M. C. Potter, who is a director in the West Texas Old Settlers Association, is in attendance and asks all old timers to join him for the second day's fun.

THE END

Croesus, the King of Lydia, who became so rich from the golden sands of the river Pactolus that his name was a proverb for riches and luxury for ages, once asked Solon, the wise man of Greece, who was visiting him, if he did not consider him the most fortunate and happy of men. Solon replied that he could not tell till he had seen his end. Years afterwards Croesus, having lost his kingdom, his riches, his son, and in captivity laid upon a funeral pile to be burned to death, exclaimed, "O Solon, Solon, thou hast told the truth. These are the thoughts we meet every day we live. Join with us in the Presbyterian Church, to consider them."

Anti-Administration Congress Hangs Up Paradoxical Record With Unprecedented Spending

CONGRESS:

'Res Ipse Quirit'

"It speaks for itself," said Franklin Roosevelt in Latin after the house refused on roll call to pass his $800,000,000 bill expanding FHA's lending power. To both house and senate he forwarded "my good wishes for a pleasant vacation." Then he bundled up some 350 last-minute bills and left for Hyde Park while his loyal friend from Florida, Sen. Claude Pepper, was holding up adjournment by denouncing the "unrighteous partnership (Democratic-G. O. P. coalition) of those who have been willing to scuttle the American government . . . and jeopardize the peace of the world because they hate Roosevelt and what Roosevelt stands for."

But when the first session of the Seventy-sixth congress was safely torney for Nevada), and withdrawal of two more whose rejection was imminent (Wisconsin's Thomas Amle, ICC appointee, and Donald Wakefield Smith, NLRB appointee); (6) refusal to hike debt limit above $45,000,000,000 (but long-term bond ceiling was raised).

Other legislative moves, some minor New Deal victories, other minor defeats, but only one (Hatch bill) carrying important political implications:

House approval (over White House objection) of $50,000 to probe NLRB.

Abolition (with apparent White House approval) of undistributed profits tax in "business apportionment" tax revision bill. Bill also provided reciprocal taxation of federal and state employees.

Postponement to next term of badly needed railroad-aid legislation, one of the session's greatest failures. Only move in this direction: Approval of voluntary rail debt adjustment without necessitating bankruptcy.

Postponement of much-debated revision of (1) farm program, (2) Wagner labor relations act, and (3) wage-hour act.

Defeat of Townsend $200-a-month pension bill and passage of far-reaching social security amendments which freeze old age annuity pay roll taxes at 1 per cent for next three years, extend coverage to 1,200,000 more people and liberalize benefit payments.

Passage of Hatch "clean politics" bill (received coldly by White House because it eliminates much of the administration machine from 1940's campaign) which proscribes political activities of all except top-bracket federal jobholders.

Retinal to revive Florida ship canal (a White House proposal).

Continuation (over White House objection) of Dies committee on un-Americanism, which was called a "forum of disgruntled politicians."

POLITICS:

Truths

Open for public inspection this month are two great, pertinent political truths: (1) That the right kind of publicity can turn a third rater into a first-rate presidential candidate almost overnight; (2) that today as always, public sentiment is sufficiently pliable to make room for any new face that may pop up. The conclusions: First, that presidential campaigns are largely a matter of smart public relations work; second, that 1940's election is not in the bag for any man.

Cause of this excitement is Paul V. McNutt, who popped back from the Philippines two months ago, got his handsome picture in the papers, was called a "charming young man" by President Roosevelt, then ended up by getting himself named federal security administrator. From here he may develop into the President's crown prince.

In June Candidate McNutt ranked fifth among Democratic hopefuls as tabulated by highly accurate Gallup polls. In order: Garner, 47 per cent; Farley, 16; Hull, 12; Hopkins, 5; McNutt, 3. Six weeks after his federal appointment, Paul McNutt had jumped to second place. Jack Garner, still well in the lead, suffered a mite. The standings: Garner, 46 per cent; McNutt, 13; Hull, 12, Farley, 12; Hopkins, 3.

Other political news: Ohio's Sen. Robert Alphonso Taft, bad trailer in G. O. P. Gallup polls, became the first to toss his hat in the ring. While finding his senatorial office "interesting," Candidate Taft magnanimously agreed not to "run away from a harder job."

RACES:

One Way Out

Since last March thousands of Czech-Slovakian Jews have fled to the U. S. on visitors' permits, their property confiscated, their only hope lying in refuge on some distant land. Sometimes even this hope is futile. Within two days the U. S. had this problem brought shockingly to mind twice:

In Chicago, 43-year-old Mrs. Adele Langer (wife of a Czech Jew whose $1,500,000 textile mills had been confiscated), took quarters in a Loop hotel with her two sons, six and four. Late that night she threw her sons from the thirteenth floor window, slashed her wrists and jumped.

In New York, German Refugee Albert Aaron, whose wife died two weeks earlier from an overdose of sleeping tablets, hung himself from his apartment door.

LOUISIANA:

Hot Oil

Heaped atop several score other indictments facing prominent Louisianans was a federal charge against former Gov. Richard Leche, whose feet had heretofore been kept clear of the muck surrounding state officialdom. The indictment: Charging Leche, Politician Seymour Weiss and Freeman Burford, Texas oil man, with stepping up production of Reddosa oil wells and running the contraband or "hot" oil over into Texas, violating the Connally act.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Adventure in a Pickle Factory"

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Well sir, here's a yarn that's going to sound a sour note in our adventure saga. When I read it I thought of that old song, "Down by the Winegar Woiks," and I'd be willing to bet that place was right next door to the one where John Mains, of Long Island, had his life's big adventure. You see, the concern John works for is one of those outfits that catch juvenile cucumbers before they get a chance to grow up, soak them in vinegar and send them out into the world to decorate ham and cheese sandwiches. John's has a job in a pickle factory.

The factory is in East Northport—John's home town—and I'm willing to admit they've turned out some pretty good pickles there. But if they keep on making pickles until pickles stop having warts, they'll never turn out a tougher one than the pickle John got in, just from trying to keep the machinery going and the pickles moving out in a steady, uninterrupted acidulous stream.

John is a machinist at that East Northport pickle foundry, and it was on January 18, 1935, that he ran into Old Lady Adventure. The machinery in the factory is run by a big 50-foot shaft suspended just below the ceiling. Belts running from this shaft furnish the power to the various machines, and on this day one of the belts had broken.

John was ordered to replace that broken belt, and he went to work at it. The machinery, of course, was stopped while he was doing the job. When he had finished he turned the power on again to see how it worked. Well, it wasn't working so well, at that. The new belt was slipping. Now one way to stop a belt from slipping is to wax it. So John got a can of wax and started up the ladder toward the shaft. But this time he neglected to shut off the power.

Ladder Slides Out From Under Him When He Reaches Top.

The machinery was still running, but John thought he could keep out of the way of those spinning wheels and pulleys. Besides, waxing a belt is a lot easier when the motor is turning it for you. John reached the top of the ladder and went to work. But he had hardly started when he lost his balance. And the ladder went sliding out from under him!

He was dazed—bewildered—gasping—when suddenly his clothes started to rip.

Instinctively, John threw his body to one side—and he landed right up against the whirling shaft. The ladder went tumbling to the floor, but John didn't follow. In the few seconds while he was jammed up against that shaft it had caught his clothing—began twisting it around and around!

In two turns the shaft had taken up all the slack in those duds of John's. Then it began putting on the pressure. John felt his body being squeezed until he thought his ribs would break. His chest was flattened until he couldn't breathe. He was hammered and pounded against the ceiling until he was bruised and covered with blood. And still that shaft twisted, and still it tightened the clothing around his body. There was no one in the room at the time, and John couldn't get enough breath in his lungs to call for help. For a minute he thought he was going to die there, alone, 15 feet from the floor and dangling in mid air. He was dazed—bewildered—gasping—when suddenly his clothes started to rip.

Again the shaft began turning, taking up the slack. It tore every stitch of clothing from his back and arm, and didn't stop until it reached his wrist. There the machinery began twisting the end of his sleeve—twisting it so tightly that John thought sure it was going to take his hand off.

His chest was free now of that terrible tension. He could breathe—he could even have called for help. But by that time John was too far gone to cry out. He hung dangling from the shaft, the blood streaming down his body—conscious enough to know what was happening to him, but not conscious enough to do anything about it.

It was a thought that finally saved the day. All of a sudden John thought of his wife and child. What would they say when they learned what had happened to him. How would they get along when John couldn't bring home the weekly pay envelope any more? "That thought roused me," John says. "And then I must have let out a scream. I don't remember crying out, but my brother, who also worked at the factory, and who was in the next room, heard a yell and came running in to see what was the matter."

After Last Scream, John Loses Consciousness.

John's brother didn't come a minute too soon, either. For after that last thought and that last scream he had lost consciousness. His brother ran and shut off the power and then ran back and picked up the fallen ladder. He climbed to the top, cut John loose with a pocket knife, and carried him down that ladder on his back.

John's brother rounded up a couple of other fellows in the factory and they took John to a doctor. John was there quite a while before he came to again. When the doctor heard what had happened he just simply couldn't see how John had managed to live through his experience.

And that's a thing John doesn't quite understand either. "I thought that I'd at least lose my arm," he says, "but the doctor fixed it up and now it's in good shape again. When it was all over I thought I was the luckiest man on earth. And I STILL think so."

They're still making pickles out in that factory at East Northport. But it will be many a long day before they produce another one like that one John got into. At least, I hope it will.

British Guiana Mines Yield Gold and Diamonds

British Guiana has a total area larger than England, Scotland and Wales together. Yet the population is little more than 300,000, or about two people to a square mile, except in the cities. Georgetown, the capital, accounts for one-fifth of the entire colony's inhabitants.

Sugar, raised in a narrow coastal strip diked against the sea by Seventeenth century Dutch settlers, is the chief product of British Guiana. But the inland reach, penetrating 500 miles into the South American continent, has mineral and forest wealth practically untapped because of the difficulty of transportation.

ONE-PIECE MEALS WITH MACARONI (See Recipe Below)

One-Piece Meals

Lucky is the homemaker who has in her recipe file a series of suggestions for "one-piece meals."

After a long, lazy afternoon at the beach, or perhaps a busy day with sugar 'nd spice, and the preserving kettle, the meal that can be prepared and served all in one course is a life-saver.

And what food can you find that lends itself as aptly to this type of meal as macaroni and its closest kin? These foods, including spaghetti and noodles, as well as macaroni, are high in food energy and contain some building foods as well. Yet they're light and appetizing—the kind of food that's needed to meet the requirements of summer. Served with a green salad or a fruit dessert, any of these "one-piece" macaroni dishes make highly satisfactory meals.

Macaroni Creole Loaf.

(Serves 4-5)

2 cups cooked macaroni
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons green pepper (chopped)
¾ cup cheese (grated)
1¼ cups tomatoes
¼ cup melted butter
1½ tablespoons prepared mustard
Dash celery salt, onion salt, and white pepper
Mix all ingredients in order listed. Pour into a greased baking casserole. Bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Unmold carefully and serve.

Spaghetti Ring With Asparagus and Eggs.

(Serves 6)

1 8-ounce package spaghetti
1 cup cooked ham (ground)
½ clove garlic (chopped)
2 tablespoons pimiento (chopped)
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs (beaten)
¾ cup coffee cream

Filling.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cooked asparagus (cut)
2 hard cooked eggs (sliced)
Break spaghetti and cook until tender in 2 quarts boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain and add to it the ground ham, garlic, pimiento, salt, pepper, eggs and cream. Pour into buttered ring mold, place in shallow pan of hot water, and bake at moderate temperature (350 degrees) for about one hour.

To make the filling, melt the butter in a saucepan and add flour. Blend thoroughly and then add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Add seasonings and lightly stir in the asparagus. Fill center of spaghetti mold with the creamed asparagus and garnish with slices of hard cooked eggs.

Baked Macaroni—Creole Style.

2 tablespoons onion (minced)
2 tablespoons butter
1 green pepper (minced)
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ pound country style sausage
¼ cup soft bread crumbs (buttered)
Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Brown the onion in the butter; add green pepper and tomatoes. Add sugar and salt, and cook until the green pepper is tender. Make the sausage into small flat cakes. In a buttered casserole, place a layer of macaroni, then a layer of sausage, and another layer of macaroni. Pour the tomato mixture over this. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 45 minutes.

Macaroni Supreme.

Cook ¾ pound macaroni (broken in 3-inch lengths) in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Cut 2 thin slices smoked ham in two crosswise. Arrange strips of macaroni on ham. Put ¼ teaspoon horse-radish on each portion and sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese. Roll and tie in position. Place close together in shallow baking dish. Cover with ½ cup milk and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 25 minutes. Uncover and continue baking until ham is lightly browned. Serves 4.

Scow.

(Serves 6)

2 onions (medium size)
1 pound round steak (ground)
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 8-ounce package spaghetti
1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Cut bacon into small pieces and cook until crisp in a large skillet. Remove bacon bits, brown the sliced onion in the hot fat, and finally take out the onion slices and use the remaining fat for browning the ground meat.

breaking it into small bits as it cooks. Then pour in the tomatoes, and allow the mixture to simmer until it is fairly thick. Next add the spaghetti, which has been broken into 2-inch lengths and cooked until tender in boiling salted water. Then add the can of corn, the browned onions, and crisp bacon bits, and the seasoning. Allow this mixture to simmer slowly for another half hour, covered.

Hasty Noodlefest.
Cook half a pound of noodles in salted water and drain. While they are cooking, heat a can of cream of mushroom soup, adding a cup of milk to it if it is the condensed kind. Add also a tablespoon of chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt and two hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Add the drained noodles, mix well and put into a buttered casserole. Cover the top with buttered crumbs and bake 35 minutes in a moderate-hot oven (375 degrees).

GOOD FEED—POOR FEED
By T. C. Richardson
Associate Editor, Farm and Ranch
Breeder-Feeder Association

Good crops of feed sometimes run out to be poor feed for live-stock for no other reason than that they are not harvested when at their best, and not properly stored or conserved. All hay and forage crops are more nutritious and more palatable if harvested before maturing seed. Sweet sorghum for hay or bundle should not be permitted to stand until over-ripe, which increases the "woodiness" of the stalk and usually results also in the drying up of part of the leaves.

On the other hand, either sweet or grain sorghums which are to be used for ensilage should be permitted to stand until the seed are fully mature, since the seed constitutes an important part of the feeding value. The silo will preserve all its nutritional elements in the most palatable form, and ensilage will "keep" indefinitely without deterioration.

Most of the Southwest has produced good feed crops this season, and the next concern is to save them and turn them into money. All "roughage" must be fed as close to where it grew as possible in order to get the most value from it; on the same farm, so that the manure will go back to the land, is the best place. It is cheaper to bring the livestock to the feed than to haul the feed to the livestock.

There is no "perfect" feed alone; though good alfalfa hay comes about as near as possible, even it should be supplemented by carbonaceous feeds, either grain, grass or ensilage, to make a balanced ration.

Non-legume hay and ensilage must be matched up with protein elements, such as cottonseed meal, alfalfa or other legume hay; and when one is on hand the other element should be bought if necessary in order to make a balanced ration.

The "cash market" for corn and other feed grains is keeping many Southwestern farmers from profits they might as well have. Last year some farmers in a certain Texas community were selling their corn at thirty-five to forty-five cents a bushel, by hauling it to the shellers. Other farmers in the same community were feeding the same kind of corn to hogs and cashing it in the form of pork at ninety cents a bushel. Many of those who sold their corn on the "cash market" bought bacon from Iowa and Wisconsin and probably never tasted ham the year round!

When we, in the Southwest, begin to wrap our feed crops up in hides, or turn them into dairy and poultry products at home, before sending them to market, we will live better on home-grown fresh and cured meats, milk, butter and eggs, and will have more net cash income in the year besides.

Selling feed crops "in the raw" is poor economics for several reasons. Feeding them at home gives employment of time that would otherwise be wasted. Feeding them at home reduces the volume to be hauled to market. Feeding them at home spreads the income and the labor over a longer period.

We produce, in growing cotton, one of the finest livestock feeds in the world—cottonseed meal. In combination with the forage and grains we grow, it should be used here, instead of shipping it to Europe or the Corn Belt to carry fertility to foreign soils. The most prosperous communities are those which are turning their raw products into butterfat, quality meat and other consumable products instead of peddling their feeds as soon as harvested and because more of their time is profitably employed than is possible in a straight crop-farming system.

The Breeder-Feeder program is nothing more or less than balanced farming—balancing crops with livestock and poultry, and vice versa.

Dreamland is peopled with the queerest folk, yet none are strangers there.

FOR SEVERAL Sundays Governor O'Daniel talked on Sunday mornings trying to arouse more interest in government. "Keep on your toes," he said. "And keep your public officials on their toes by watching their every move." Then, after his several warnings to watch expenditures by public officials, he slammed the door in the face of the public, and the Automatic Tax Board, of which he is chairman, raised the state's tax load more than $9,000,000. The meetings of this board have always in the past, been open to newspaper men. But at the recent meeting he refused to admit them and handed them a four page statement for their newspapers obviously prepared in advance. In this statement, it was found that O'Daniel, Sheppard, and Lockhart, had raised the state's tax rate at the top limit of 77c. This automatically added $9,000,000 to the burden of state taxes. Nine million more dollars, to be paid by taxpayers of the state. Taxpayers, who had been excluded from the meeting by the governor.

The same taxpayers were the people who were promised last year (with the aid of a Hillbilly Band) that taxes would be lowered... and warned a few Sundays ago, to WATCH YOUR PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

TRULY, W. LEE O'Daniel will not go down in history as Texas' most consistent governor.

WELL HERE IS the how and when of the money end of the celebration last week. A lot of folks just forget that things like that cost anything, hence this statement. As you see, the thing finally paid off with $5.15 to spare. We can thank the boys who promoted the dance for that, for without the dance the thing would have lacked a lot.

A WISE YOUNG lady told me this week that one more remark out of me and she would tell me to go to h--l, and take my newspaper with me... Say that might be an idea. It might work. Hell has a large population, and as far as I know, no newspaperman has ever gone there. It would be a great opportunity... plenty of back shop printers and linotype operators to help... plenty of politicians to furnish copy... and everyone in the place a devil. And as for printing equipment—say there isn't a press nor linotype in the world that hasn't been consigned there... oh, oh, just happened to think. I'll bet there'd even be fellows there who could write the church notes.

IN THIS PAPER you will find an ad from Willson and Son Lbr. Company advertising that painting and repair work can be done and paid for as you go—up to five years to pay for your repairing and painting. Just drive around Silvertown some time and look at the houses. There are a lot of nicely built houses here that would be improved 100 per cent by just a coat of paint. I believe you should see Mr. Sanders and ask him for details of the payment plan. Ask yourself if your home needs paint... maybe you haven't taken time to notice.

I GOT BILL DUNN cornered yesterday and he finally came across with a part of the money for that O'Daniel ad. To get it I had to promise to brag on him. On page 39 of this issue you will find a complete bragification.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN. and then be plenty careful when you drive onto Highway 86. Death is waiting there on the corner... he has stopped several people already and looked them over, but for some reason he has refused to claim anyone yet. The next time, though he may claim someone, and if you are in the habit of crossing without looking, it may be you.

OF COURSE, we have a speed limit of 20 miles an hour in Texas towns... BUT, did YOU ever observe it? It's ten to one that you don't and it's the same odds that the next man who comes down Highway 86 will be making 40 or 50 miles an hour. It's up to us to watch for ourselves.

I'VE HEARD TWO stories about stop signs... one is that the city council has requisitioned a stop sign from the Highway Department and haven't got it... and the other story is that the highway department offered the city one but that they were not interested because of the electrical expense. I don't know which is right. I do know that we need stop signs up and someone there for a while to enforce them.

THE BRISCOE County News has a new telephone answerer. It's name is Francis Dennis. It consists of a big batch of freckles, thatched over on top with red hair, untouched as yet by human hands. It follows Cranberry around and calls him Cousin James. I went through its pockets while it was asleep on the mailing table and found a news item which said, "Mr. Francis Dennis of Hollister, Oklahoma, is spending a few weeks in Silvertown with the A. M. Allred family. He returned with his cousin Phyllis Mae Allred, who has spent the past two months in Oklahoma."

WARNING: To any person or persons employing R. Gordon Alexander for any gainful employment: I have a lien upon any wages he might earn in the amount of twenty-five (25) cents, obtained from me through embezzlement at the Allard Barber Shop. W. E. Schott, Jr.

Contrary to the generally accepted saying that people don't care for poetry any more, nearly everyone has a fondness for rhymed words. Most executives—even those who like to consider themselves hard-boiled—have a bit of verse under the glass top of their desks or in a billfold; some such sentiment as:
"When the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

"United we stand, divided we fall," declared the intoxicated man as he clung to the lamp-post.

Well, it's working out all right. None of the concerns affected by the ban on Sunday trucks (of course, those doing emergency hauling are not included) opposed the regulation and the traffic on the main highways the first Sunday was materially less, reducing traffic hazards and increasing the enjoyment of families out for a pleasant drive—which was the idea that State Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler had in urging the restriction.

And here's an ancient one: A negro couple living in the Florida swamps had a large family and one day the wife ran up and exclaimed, "Sam, an alligator just ate little Rastus." The husband calmly replied, "You know, Mandy I thought somethin' had been gettin' our chillun."

Austin has the most elaborate battery of traffic signals at busy, zig-zagging corners of any seen by this observer. There is a red light and part of the time it is on, a "walk" light for pedestrians shines. Then there is a green arrow pointing up, which means that cars can drive straight ahead on a red light; a green arrow pointing right or left, meaning you can drive in the direction indicated, even if the signal is red. Besides these, there are the yellow warning light and the green. But it's not as complicated as it sounds—it couldn't be.

Even more elaborate than the traffic signals are the toothpick machines in some of the Austin cafes. The customer presses a lever and one toothpick shoots into view. You have to grab quick or it'll drop back out of sight, proving that the hand is not quicker than the eye.

This contrivance keeps the patron from carrying away two toothpicks instead of one. Since a box of toothpicks costs ten cents, this loss would amount to perhaps 70 cents in the course of a year. However, this saving is somewhat reduced by the fact that the machine cost $5 or thereabouts and is inclined to get out of order every few weeks, requiring the services of a skilled mechanic armed with a kit of tools as numerous as those of a veterinarian working on a sick racehorse. It's a great age we're living in.

MERCHANT BRINGS NEWS OF FARMALL FAMILY

Mr. M. C. Tull, head of the Tull Implement Company, recently returned from a group meeting of International Harvester dealers, gathered together to get first-hand information on the new Farmall family. In this community it is scarcely necessary to explain that a Farmall is a popular type of farm tractor, originally introduced more than fifteen years ago. Because it enabled tractor farmers to plant and cultivate row crops—in addition to doing all other kinds of drawbar and belt work—the Farmall revolutionized agricultural methods in a few short years. Altogether, half a million Farmalls have gone onto the farms.

On this foundation of Farmall experience, Harvester engineers have built an entirely new line of Farmalls in three sizes. Farmall-A, first announced a few weeks ago, is a new small size built to do all of the work on the small farm and to replace the last team on the large farm. It has a brand-new feature, "Culti - Vision," which permits the operator to see his work without the necessity of craning his neck or twisting his body.

Although the Farm-A is in the $500 price class, we are told that it is a real rubber-tired Farmall, through and through, embodying in its design many unusual features of interest to farmers. A full line of direct-attachable machines is manufactured for use with this new small tractor.

To round out the new Farmall family, the Harvester factories recently went into production on two larger sizes, Farmall-H and Farmall-M. The first is what is commonly classed as a 2-plow tractor, while the second has ample power to pull three plows. Both feature practical modern styling, with emphasis on design that fits in with today's farm power needs. Quick-attachable machines have been developed for the new "H" and "M" to make full use of their power and efficiency in all crop operation.

The two larger Farmalls can be equipped with "Lift-All", an entirely new type of hydraulic power lift. The pump is set into the frame of the tractor, while the actual lifting devices can be attached to the machines to be lifted, in such a way as to assure maximum efficiency. We understand that machines can be lifted in front or back, or on either side—separately or together—according to the operator's wishes. A light touch on a little lever does the trick. "Lift-All" can also be used to keep certain implements at work at the proper depth.

The new Farmalls are powered by 4-cylinder, overhead-valve engines which operate on gasoline or No. 1 tractor distillate. The Farmall-A has a 4-speed transmission, with three field speeds and a 10-mile road speed. The two larger models have 5-speed transmissions, providing four field speeds and a 16-mile road speed (on a 16-inch tire). All models have adjustable treads to meet all row-crop requirements.

What's the Answer?
By EDWARD FINCH

WHY DO YOU FEEL SO GOOD AFTER YOU STRETCH?
THE veins and arteries in your body through which the blood constantly pumps blood are made of muscle. When you stretch, you flatten the arteries and veins so that the blood cannot pass through them so easily. In order to overcome this the heart sets to work to pump faster and faster to force the blood through the flattened passages. So at the end of a good hard stretch the heart pumping of blood puts new vigor into your veins and makes you conscious of a feeling of well-being.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND THE COMMUNITY

LESSON TEXT—Joel 1:5-7; Daniel 5:1-5, 17, 25-28. GOLDEN TEXT—Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink.—Habakkuk 2:15.

"None of us liveth to himself" (Rom. 14:7). What concerns the individual concerns the community, for the community is made up of individuals. The man who uses alcohol is a personal matter, for alcohol is a poisonous drug which not only injures the individual, but makes him a danger and a liability to his community. Before going into our lesson let us look at a few of the many facts available.

In the five years since repeal, it is estimated that $30,000,000,000 has been spent for intoxicants with a profit to the industry of $13,250,000,000. But what has it cost the people?

"In 1937, an entire city the size of Detroit was maimed and injured, and an entire city the size of Omaha was permanently injured, by the automobile. Sixty per cent of auto fatalities are due to alcohol" (Chief Justice of Municipal Court, Evanston, Ill.).

"Rape has increased 13 per cent and the more atrocious forms 40 per cent in the last eight months" (Police Commissioner, Boston, Mass.).

"Criminals are for the return of liquor, yet propaganda to the contrary notwithstanding, and with the coming of repeal will come the greatest era of wholesale crime this country has ever known. The criminal world is tensely expectant and is prepared to launch immediately into its millennium of crime. The return of the saloon inevitably will bring open prostitution and gambling" (Statement by a criminal in prison before repeal became effective).

"America is on the worst gambling spree in its history. A gross population, not including all rural districts, of 80,000,000 persons is dallying with $6,000,000,000 in winnings and losses, of which all but about $1,000,000,000 passes through the hands of the underworld, where much of it remains" (Courtney R. Cooper).

The American Business Men's foundation, Chicago, reports that liquor was responsible for the rejection of more than 93,000 applications for insurance last year, and that as a result widows and orphans will ultimately be deprived of over $200,000,000 of insurance, making some of them public charges.

Three words which are altogether appropriate for the liquor problem will serve to summarize our lesson.

I. Devastation (Joel 1:5-7). Drunkards are called on to awake from their stupor and weep and the drinkers of wine (note that!) to wail over the loss of their drink because of the devastation wrought by the locusts. This plague had come because of the sins of the people, and may well serve to exemplify the devastation which will follow the use of alcohol as a beverage. The nations of our day need not think that they will escape if they continue on their present road of reckless indulgence.

II. Debauchery (Dan. 5:1-4). The familiar story of Belshazzar's feast should be made to live again as we point out that we here "have vividly manifested three of the great characteristics of the day in which we live—a coming together of great multitudes for a riotous night of drinking, which must of course end for many in disgusting drunkenness; provision for acts of darkest sensuality in the fact that all the wives and concubines were invited to this feast... and a contemptuous, deliberate insulting of the name of God" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

III. Death (vv. 5, 17, 25-28). Dramatically swift was God's judgment upon Belshazzar's presumptuous sin. Magnificently bold and direct was the condemnation by Daniel, the prophet of God. Rentless was the immediate judgment of physical death (see v. 30), and equally sure is the ultimate judgment when the drunken king stands before his Maker to answer for the deeds done in the flesh.

The fact that God does not write in our day in flaming letters on the saloon wall before the bleary eyes of the drinker does not mean that His judgment is any less certain, nor does it make it any less dreadful.

Cost of Happiness
God has ordained that happiness, like every other good thing, should cost us something; He has willed that it should be a moral achievement, and not an accident.—Dr. Gasparin.

Walk in the Light
Walk in the light and thou shalt see thy path, though thorny, bright; for God, by grace, shall dwell in thee, and God himself is light.—Barton.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you the best thing to do with constipation is get it out. That's why we don't have to endure it. We try to cure it afterward—avoid having it. Chances are you won't look far for the cause of the super-refined foods people do. Most likely you get enough "bulk" and "crisp crunch" for breakfast. It means a kind of "bulk" in the intestines. If this is what you lack, eat All-Bran every day. Eat plenty of water, and "Regulars." Made by Battle Creek. Sold by every grocery store.

TALBOT MUNDY—WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadir River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadir. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows is the Maharajah's Kadir. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill. Lynn, who is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharajah. That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust.

Norwood laughed. "Not about, but about. It's late. However, let's hear Rundhia."

"Yes, please sing," Lynn knew she hadn't even scratched the surface of Norwood's humor. So she felt exasperated.

Rundhia smiled and plucked a chord or two: "Ever hear this one?"

He sang beautifully. His voice was a good tenor, and he handled the guitar with care. He avoided Norwood's eyes. He sang to Lynn. The words meant nothing to her, but she couldn't fail to perceive the passion suggested by the B-flat minor melody. At the end of a stanza, Norwood interrupted:

"Damn that stuff, Rundhia! Sing something decent."

Rundhia passed him the guitar. He thought he had him at a disadvantage:

"You sing," he answered. "Perhaps you know something for good little boys and girls. Do you know any hymns?"

Norwood surprised both of them. He took the guitar and changed the tuning, struck some chords at random and then played the thing better than Rundhia could. He felt his way through one air to another, until he found one that suited his mood. Then he trotted out Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay."

He had a fine voice, baritone, and he could whistle the chorus instead of repeating familiar words. It wasn't great art, but it was merry. It was decent. Where there "weren't no Ten Commandments," Norwood plainly had inviolable standards of his own.

"As usual, the Army roars its slogans to the sky," said Rundhia. "I can imagine you in love with a Burmese woman, Norwood. Why not apply for a Rangoon billet?"

"And miss this?" Norwood answered. He was looking at Lynn. "Here's your guitar. Are we going?"

He offered Lynn his arm and she was too astonished to refuse. She hadn't known him, and what she did know had annoyed her. However, she found herself walking beside him with her arm in his, and there was nothing for Rundhia to do but to follow them down the ancient steps until the garden path was wide enough for three abreast. Norwood pressed Lynn's arm to make her listen. He spoke so low that she could hardly hear him:

"The Maharajah is a dotard on Rundhia. You can't depend on her for that reason. Leave Kadir the moment your aunt is fit to travel."

"Oh, you can't guess—"

"Yes, I know. I was an orphan. I was raised on stupid discipline and fossilized injustice—Oh, hello, Rundhia, you there? Thought you'd stayed behind to pray or something."

Rundhia was grinding his teeth. He didn't answer.

Lynn took pity on him: "When will you show me the treasure room?"

"When we're alone," Rundhia answered. Then, spitefully: "Ours is one of the few treasures that haven't found their way to London."

"You mean the others were plundered?" Lynn asked.

"Pawed," said Norwood. "After that they walked in silence to the palace front door."

"Good night," said Rundhia pointedly.

Norwood smiled. "I'll ask you to be kind enough to see me to the gate, Rundhia. The guard let me out once tonight. They might think I'm my own ghost if I turn up alone. Miss Harding, you know why the beautiful Indian girls are locked up in zenanas, don't you?"

"Is that a conundrum? No, why?"

"Because good-looking Indian men would be ashamed of 'emselves if they couldn't make Casanova look like a mere amateur."

"Are you being rude?"

Rundhia came to her aid: "Excuse him, Lynn! Soldiers fold their tents and leave their girls behind them. They suppose all women are alike. He meant it as a friendly warning not to trust me."

Lynn stood at bay on the palace steps. It was on the tip of her tongue to insult Norwood so thoroughly that he would never presume to speak to her again. She wasn't quite sure he didn't expect that. But she glanced from one man to the other and changed her mind.

"How about a stroll as far as the guesthouse to find out how your aunt is?" Rundhia suggested.

"Thanks, no. There's a phone in my bedroom. I will use that. Good night. Good night, Captain Norwood."

CHAPTER VI

Norwood changed into khaki and followed O'Leary's lantern. O'Leary was nervous, talkative, deliberately disrespectful. Being only one-third Irish, two-thirds of his truculence was assumed, not genuine. However, Norwood understood that.

"Someone," said O'Leary, "must have overheard us talking near the palace gate. I was followed to camp. Heard him. Couldn't see him. We're followed now. They'll take your number down unless you watch out. All you officers believe, because your uniform was made in London, that you've only got to call the police and—"

"Shut up."

"All right, strafe me! That's the Army for you. I'm not Army. I'm an underpaid civilian supernumerary. Sack me if you want to."

O'Leary resumed his discourse: "Then believe this: while you was performing an officer's job w' a banjo and a beauty, I sat thir'ly by the camp-fire, so the smoke 'ud keep the skeeters off me, hoping for one o' my spies to show up. But came along a man I don't know. Creep' up surreptitious. Spoke Punjabi, mispronouncing it. It weren't his right language. Says he: 'How much?'"

"Gave you money?"

"Not one anna! He wanted to know your price to side with the priests against the Maharajah."

"What did you tell him?"

"Nothing."

"What did you do?"

"Was gone too quick. I missed him with the new iron skillet what the cook had stuck to clean itself among the embers. Damned thing red-hot. If I'd hit him, he'd 'a' sizzled. Point is that whoever sent him will be figuring they tried the wrong diplomacy. Next thing, knife or bullet. Dedge 'em and look out for poison. Make the cook taste everything and then bury the cook. From now on, I eat nothing. Even whiskey ain't safe. They can drill and plug the bottle; but it kills more comforting than ground glass or bamboo fiber. The priests know you dined at the palace tonight. They're dead sure the Maharajah greased your palm. Well—there's where the dump is. 'Tain't safe to go closer."

"Wait here," said Norwood.

O'Leary picked up a stick. He shadowed Norwood along the footpath, until Norwood peered beneath the waterfall. He had to stand on a slippery ledge of rock. As O'Leary had foretold, the moon's rays did wanly penetrate, but it was torchlight that revealed the tunnel-mouth. Norwood stood there for several minutes watching spectral figures dump blue clay from baskets, to be carried away by the river.

"Look out!" yelled O'Leary.

Norwood jumped. A living cobra, flung by an unseen hand, struck his face—fell writhing—struck—missed. Norwood almost fell into the pool beneath the waterfall, but O'Leary crashed him, shoved, almost fell in, too, but scrambled—regained his footing—attacked the cobra—beat it with the long stick, slew it.

"Now are you satisfied? Lied to you, did I? Going on in through the hole, or acting sensible? Want to know how it feels to be pitched in the dark down a diamond mine?"

"Back to camp," said Norwood. "Thank you, I'll take whiskey! Watch your step, and watch your Uncle Moses. If I signal, don't call me a liar, duck quick!"

As foster-mother, Aunt Deborah Harding had neglected no detail of Lynn's social education. Whatever Lynn did, she did well. She had been taught to ride perfectly. On one of the Maharajah's thoroughbreds, in the early morning cool, she looked worthy of the splendid animal that she controlled with no visible effort. Lynn, the mystic Indian daybreak and the vigor of her motion through the long mauve shadows, were all one merryment to make a man's eyes widen and his heart leap.

One could recognize Rundhia from a mile off by the way he swung his right arm at the trot, an unconscious habit that it had been nobody's business to tell him about. But Rundhia could ride, too. They were a pair to stop and gaze at.

Lynn seemed to have forgotten the previous night's disagreement. She appeared glad to see Norwood: "What are you doing up so early?"

"The sight of you on horseback is better than sleep," he answered. "I had dreams about you."

"Bad ones?"

"I can't remember. You know how dreams escape you when you wake up."

"Come along for a gallop."

"Can't. Sorry." Looking at Lynn's eyes, thinking about Rundhia, Norwood spoke unguardedly: "My man is signalling—some people waiting for me near the waterfall. I must go. I will call as soon as I can."

He looked straight at Rundhia.

It was then that Lynn noticed that Rundhia and Norwood hadn't spoken.

"Should I introduce you?" she suggested, laughing.

Norwood saluted her, wheeled his horse, and rode away, not looking backward. He heard Rundhia laughing.

O'Leary met him by the river, full of self-importance:

"You should send me to Geneva! I'm a diplomat. They're waiting. If you're nice, and no one's looking they may let you see the mine. I convinced 'em that all you're here for is to blow the government's nose. It needs blowing. I told 'em, on account of some sneak squealing on 'em that their mine isn't safe for laborers, and you're here to muzzle the talk."

"I would like to muzzle you," said Norwood.

"Same as it says in the Bible about muzzling the ox that grinds your corn," O'Leary answered.

Norwood studied him a moment. There was only one way to get the value out of O'Leary. No use making him sulky. Keep him busy.

"Go to the bazaar," he ordered. "Here's some money. Pick up all the palace gossip that's going the rounds."

"I get you! Smell a rat—just smell him and I'll catch him. This isn't much money."

"It's all you're going to get."

"One o' these days," said O'Leary. "I'm going to hire a secretary and take a chance with the Official Secrets Act and dictate my memoirs. Page one, I'll tell 'em the Intelligence is run by cheap 'uns. They'd make a Scotchman feel like multiplying loaves and fishes, free for nothing!"

Norwood rode alone along the river bank until the path grew narrow near the waterfall and he could no longer see the huge bulk of the temple, nor even the city wall that followed the curve of the river beyond the dam. He dismounted and hitched his horse to a shrub. The water tumbled innocently, lazily over the dam; there was hardly a hint behind that beautiful curved translucent screen there might be the mouth of a tunnel. The river water was vaguely blue.

There were four men seated near the ledge on which Norwood had nearly lost his life the night before. They stood up, greeting him respectfully. They were Brahmans but not priests; they looked like responsible men of affairs who might, perhaps, be trusted with the financial details of some of the temple business. He plunged straight to his subject:

"One of our Air Force pilots has reported having glimpsed an open pit surrounded by those outlying buildings near the temple area. It's an open secret that the priests have been working a diamond mine for centuries. We have heard the mine is dangerous. I want a secret look at it. Perhaps I can advise you how to make it safe. One other thing: stop dumping clay in the river. Perhaps I can advise what to do about that. As for the dispute about ownership, my party is running a survey line to establish facts. I have seen nothing yet to suggest that the priests are not the rightful owners. If you've any documents, I'd be glad to see them. My report isn't the last word, but it's likely to carry weight."

If Norwood hadn't been thinking about Lynn and Rundhia, he might have noticed that the Brahmans looked a lot too pleased. One of them, pushing past him, slipped a tiny black paper envelope into Norwood's left-hand tunic pocket. He apologized for having brushed against him. Norwood had hardly noticed that he did.

The four held a whispered consultation. Then their spokesman said, in excellent English, but with a trace too much silk in his voice:

"We appreciate your honor's courtesy. But we are intermediaries, on whom it is incumbent to convey the message to the proper quarter. It shall doubtless have immediate consideration." He paused, then added, as if choosing an innocuous polite phrase: "We know well that your honor's report will have great weight. We hope that your honor's judgment may not be influenced by worthless arguments."

Back in camp, Norwood sat under the tent awning to have his boots polished by his servant, while he gave orders for the day.

"Sergeant Stoddart," he said suddenly. "There's a middle-aged lady in the Maharajah's guesthouse who had a rather bad spill yesterday. Bruises. Perhaps abrasions. Might be complications if she isn't careful. A Bengali doctor is attending her, and you can't always depend on those fellows to use fresh antiseptic."

"I'd be awful sick, before I'd let one of 'em dose me, sir."

"Well, before you go down to the river, take a look in my medicine chest. You'll find a new two-ounce bottle of iodine. I think I'll take it to her. Wrap it up so that it won't break. I'm going to see the Resident."

Labor Organizations Had Early-Day Origin

In reviewing the history of labor unions the Americana points out that organizations of laborers have existed from time immemorial and that the guilds of the Middle Ages were exclusive and monopolistic, caring nothing for other workers. This form appeared among the shoemakers of Massachusetts in 1648, organized mainly to control inferior workmen. Similar organizations in other industries were always local and more or less temporary. The birth of the modern trade union movement may be assigned to the closing years of the Eighteenth century, though it never attained the dignity of a movement until the Nineteenth century was well under way. Famous First Facts gives 1792 as the date for the first local craft union, that of Philadelphia shoemakers. The labor movement grew out of the industrial revolution which brought about a change in the manner and means of production, and so caused a wider separation between master and journeyman. The Americana states that trade unionism reached the "coming out" stage with the organization of the Mechanics Union of Trade Associations at Philadelphia in 1827.

Modern trade unionism in Europe began with the industrial revolution in Great Britain during the Eighteenth century.

The American Federation of Labor in August, 1937, claimed a membership of 3,271,726 and the Committee for Industrial Organization in September, 1937, estimated a membership of 3,718,000 in 32 unions; we find no estimate of membership in independent unions.

The oldest known sitdown strike has been traced back to 1565, when journeymen bakers in Lyons, France, struck. The first American sitdown strike is reported to be that of 3,000 General Electric company workers at Schenectady, N. Y., in December, 1906. More recently it was revived first in Akron, Ohio, in 1934.

Frederick's Prophecy

Frederick the Great, of Prussia, most resplendent ruler of his time, had a prophetic dream. He saw a star suddenly ravense the whole heavens, flaming with a brightness that put his crown to shame. He so wondered at the incident that he asked members of his household to note the date. It was August 16, 1790. Later it developed that it had also been the birthday of Napoleon Bonaparte.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

AN IMPORTANT speaker was scheduled, and the club rooms were looking rather shabby. The decorating committee reported that formal draperies would lend an air of distinction. The funds could only pay for the material. Sewing machines hummed and here is a sketch of the miracle that was wrought. Here also are the dimensions that were used for making patterns for the graceful valance sections which were fastened over rods with snaps.

For the looped section, cut paper 18 inches deep and half as wide as the window measured over the frame. From the upper right corner to point A is half of the window width less two inches. Point B is 6 inches below the upper left corner. Draw a diagonal line from A to B, and a curve from B to the lower right corner. Place the edge marked C on a fold of the goods. The diagonal ends are pleated and stitched into a band as at D.

For the end pieces, cut paper 15 inches wide and 24 inches deep. E is 3 inches below the upper left corner. F is 9 inches in from the upper right corner. G is 6 inches

AROUND THE HOUSE

Scorches on Linen.—To remove light scorches from linens, wet the stained area with cold water and expose it to the sun until the stain disappears.

Mending China.—Excellent for mending china is plaster of paris mixed to a paste with the beaten white of an egg.

Crisp Fried Fish.—The secret of frying fish crisp, and brown, without either egg or bread crumbs, is to dry the fish well, sprinkle both sides with plenty of flour and plunge it into boiling fat. Be sure the fat is boiling and have plenty of it, as upon that depends the crispness and brownness.

In Cutting Flowers.—Always take long stems, even if a few buds are sacrificed in so doing. This will supply the necessary pruning for the plant. Pansies must be picked in this way or the plants will grow too rank and sprawly in hot weather.

To Clean White Raincoat.—Cut up two ounces of good yellow soap and boil it in a little water till dissolved, then let it cool a little and stir in half an ounce of powdered magnesia. Wash the raincoat with this, using a nail brush for the soiled parts; rinse off the dirty soap and dry with a clean cloth.

QUICK QUOTES

SENSE OF HUMOR

"THERE is no danger of a dictatorship in this country so long as Americans retain their sense of humor. Humor is a symbol of liberty and freedom in a country where we can see the ridiculous side of politics. When there is a repression of laughter and witicism about political personages such as now exists in Europe, the loss of other liberties is on the way."—Dr. George E. Vincent, former president, Rockefeller Foundation.

VISIT PULLETS

Pullets hatched in March come of age this month, so special precautions should be taken to insure good production, according to George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

Comfortable housing for the pullets should be the first consideration, McCarthy says, and he suggests half filling the houses with carefully graded pullets. In addition to feeding green food, use of mash and scratch grain in hoppers arranged in the laying pens is also recommended.

"Visit the pullets after dusk to make sure they are roosting instead of huddling on the floor," McCarthy advises. "It is very important to watch the body weight of pullets for the first three months because pullets come into production early and loss of weight will indicate fall molting," he said.

CLOSE HAIRCUT?

"Don't give your lawn too close a haircut this warm weather," warns Sadie Hatfield, specialist in landscape gardening for the A. and M. College Extension Service. During the hot summer months, lawns should not be cut closer than two inches, she advises. Pulling or digging weeds before they go to seed is also advocated by the specialist.
