DISTRICT COURT AGAIN IN SESSION HERE

Another case was disposed of at district court the first of the week when Duncan Shofner was given a two year sentence for driving while intoxicated. The suspended sentence in this case, was recommended by the grand jury. The case was not a jury trial.

Two divorces have been granted in this session of the court. They are, Leon Martin from Lucille Martin; and Felton Bailey from Kathryn Bailey.

A tax suit was in progress Wednesday afternoon between the City of Silverton and Bland Burson. No result on the outcome has been received.

MEETING OF FARM SECURITY AT PLAINVIEW

Members of the Farm Security Administration of District Number Two, which includes Briscoe Couniy, Texas, are scheduled to attend a four day educational meeting at Plainview, Texas on October 3, 4, 5, and 6.

Problems of this immediate area will probably be one main topic of this discussion. Educational meetings of this type are of much benefit to employees of the organization. The solution of difficult problems of similar areas are explained which in turn helps promote a better program for the borrowers of each county.

According to Claude C. Carpenter, local supervisor, the Silverton office will be closed Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

QUITAQUE BOWLERS HERE NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

The Quitaque Bowling team will come to Silverton next Tuesday night for a game with the Silverton boys, at Dee's Bowling Alley. The game will start at 8:30.

Five Silverton bowlers represented Silverton at Quitaque Tuesday night and lost by a small margin. Silverton players were Milton Dudley, Bob London, Ben Bingham, Joe Mercer, and Dee McWilliams.

A prize of $1.50 is offered each week by the local bowling club to the player with the highest score for the week. Odell Gregg was high man last week with a score of 258.

HIGHWAY BEAUTIFICATION JUDGING WITHIN FEW DAYS

Within the next week or ten days, a committee will pick the most attractive service station on Highway 86 in Briscoe County, as well as the most attractive farm or ranch home. Maurice Foust's Magnolia Station was first place winner last year.

MEET THE OWLS

Richard (Hank) Brown
Captain

Position	Fullback
Weight	167
Experience	3 years
Classification	Senior

Remarks—One of the best, backfield men that has come out of Silverton High. He hits the line like Connie Sparks, and passes like like Davey O'Brien; does the punting, and is a blocker de luxe. Made all district fullback on the second team last year and will give someone plenty of competition for the first string berth this year.

MEET THE OWLS

W. L. Perry

Position	Guard
Weight	140
Experience	1 year
Classification	Senior

Remarks—140 on the scales, 200 pounds on the field. A real scrapper with plenty of fire. Also kinda erratic, but when he's right he's a hard man to take out of a play.

Many Ribbons Brought Home From Both Amarillo And Lubbock Fairs

Briscoe County exhibits in farm products ranked high at both the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo and the Panhandle South Plains Fair at Lubbock. Bill Williams' booth at Amarillo was acclaimed as on of the best there, and at Lubbock, Briscoe County scored 942 points out of a possible 1,000 to place fourth among sixteen other counties that entered exhibits

The names of the farmers who grew the winning exhibits, have not been given us as yet, by the counth agent, but the detailed winnings of Briscoe County at the Tri-State Fair follows:

Red Milo, first and second
Feterita, first and second
SWEEPSTAKES in grain
Sorghums, first
Winter Wheat, second
Red Milo Feed, second
Feterita Feed, fourth
Field Peas, first
Sweet sorghum, first
Millet, second
Onions, third

Points scored at the Lubbock Fair were not given in detail but with Lamb County first with 948 points out of a possible 1,000, the next four counties were as follows: Crosby County, 947; Swisher County, 946; Briscoe County, 942; and Hockley County, 934.

In spite of drought and hard times in general, exhibits at the two fairs were said to be as good as ever, and County Agent Williams and the winning farmers are to be congratulated. Briscoe County has been hit harder than most any Panhandle county — give us an average year and we're liable to clean the board.

CROP INSURANCE DEADLINE NEAR

With 2,523 applications for 1940 wheat crop insurance received from 69 Texas counties, the State Agricultural Conservation Committee has issued a final warning on application deadlines for insurance.

For the 38 counties in the Panhandle area, everything North and West of King county, final date to apply for crop insurance is September 30; for the rest of the state the deadline is October 15.

The committee pointed out that farmers who want insurance on their 1940 crops must apply before seeding their wheat and that premiums are payable either in bushels of wheat in the form of a warehouse receipt or the equivalent in cash, when the application is filed.

Meanwhile, payments for damage to 1939 wheat crops continued with 998, 145 bushels, or the cash equivalent of $525,228, having been paid out by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation in 63 counties according to a report from E. R. Duke, state crop insurance supervisor at Amarillo. The farmers receiving indemnities had paid 8,547 bushels in premiums for the insurance.

Leading the list in amount of insurance claims paid is hardhit Briscoe county where 100,801 bushels in indemnities have been paid on 134 policies.

Still pending in Texas are claims in 74 policies for 24,650 bushels. These claims, Duke said, are being audited and will probably be paid in a short time.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

TWO GAMES TO BE PLAYED THIS WEEK END

Two football games have been matched this week end for Silverton High School players—one for the Owls and one for the Owlets or B-Squad.

Friday of this week the Silverton B-Squad will meet the Memphis second string on the Silverton field. It will be an exhibition game and no admission will be charged Silverton's lineup will be Popeye Gilkeyson, end; Roy Mac Walker and Elmo Dean Baird, half backs; Hoss Bomar, fullback; Jack Burleson, quarterback; R.H. Stodghill, end; Bobby Olive and Alvie Ivy, guards; Roger Stalling and Fanning, tackles; and Saxey Crow center

Saturday afternoon the regular Silverton team will go to Canyon to engage the Canyon Calves. The lineup of this game will be the same as that used against Matador last Friday, with the exception that Gene Arnold is back to his line position, thus releasing Johnny Quillen for the backfield, which should help the Silverton team a great deal.

Let's turn out and see the Owlets in action. They will be the same boys that, two years from now, will be carrying the brunt of Silverton's football battles.

MOST ACCIDENTS IN HOMES OCCUR ON STAIRWAYS

The stairways and steps of a home constitute the most serious danger zone in a private home.

Twenty-three per cent of home accidents occur on stairways and steps, according to the National Safety Council report in the 1939 edition of "Accident Facts," a statistical yearbook.

The report disclosed the following rating of accidents in respect to living area:

Stairs and steps	23%
Yard	19%
Kitchen	18%
Living room	9%
Porch	7%
Bedroom	7%
Other rooms, including dining room, bathroom, pantry, vestibule, and hallways	11%

Many home accidents can be prevented by removing worn and unsafe features and substituting them with modern safety equipment. The entire home may be modernized, with a view to removing hazards to safety, with funds obtainable from qualified lending institutions under the Modernization Credit Plain of the Federal Housing Administration.

$500 IN CASH PRIZES FOR FOR BEST PRIZES

The Briscoe County News is in receipt of a telegram from the Plainview Chamber of Commerce telling of $500 in prizes to be offered for the best cotton of the year from Panhandle cotton farmers.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been advocating for some time that it would be far better to give a prize for the BEST bale of the year, rather than one for the FIRST bale as has always been customary.

The telegram follows:

Briscoe County News,
Silverton, Texas,

Cotton growers of Briscoe and adjoining counties are eligible for $500 in cash prizes in Plains cotton improvement contest under way by Plainview Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture. Entries are to be made through gins and must be ten bales grown during 1939 by any five producers. There will be no interference with storing or selling bales entered, as ginners will judge samples only. By first of week gins on the Plains will have full details of plans. (Signed)

Speed and Experience Too Much For Silverton

The Silverton Owls dropped their first game of the season to the heavier, more experienced and highly touted Matador Matadors by a score of 27-0. The Matador boys used end runs, off tackle thrusts and passes to chalk up their four touchdowns and gain revenge for their 13-0 defeat suffered at the hands of the Owls a year ago.

First Quarter

The Owls kicked to the Matador 30 and Matador returned the ball to their 44. Three line plays netted 7 yards and the Matadors punted out on the Owls 15 yard marker. The Owls picked up 2 yards through the line and lost 5 on an attempted punt. On the third down Hank Brown got off a 50 yard punt and the Matador safety was downed on his 42 yard line. Two line plays and an offside penalty gave the Matadors a first down, but the Owls stiffened and Matador gained 12 yards on an exchange of kicks. Taking the ball on the Owls 32, Johnnie Alsup, fleet Matador back, circled right end for 28 yards. Three more plays netted them a touchdown. Try for conversion failed and Matador led 6-0 as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

The second quarter opened with the Owls in possession of the ball. On an exchange of kicks Silverton gained 7 yards and then opened with a passing attack that gained 33 yards in 3 downs. However, an offside penalty slowed them up and Matador took the ball over on down. A 15 yard penalty assessed against Matador backed them up to the Owls 9 and on the second down, Peugh, Silverton end, broke through to smear them for a 5 yard loss. Matador punt 1 out of danger but the Owls were unable to gain and the first half ended with Matador in possession of the ball on the Owls 30 yard stripe.

Third Quarter

The Owls received the kickoff and passed for a first down on the midfield marker. Their offense bogged though and Matador took over on downs. Starting on the Owls 47, Matador unleashed a running attack that chalked up two first downs and a touchdown. Matador kicked the extra point and led 13-0. The Owls received and returned the kickoff 25 yards to their own 32. A third down fumble with 6 yards to go was recovered by Matador. On the first down a Matador back crashed through left tackle, cut to the sideline and galloped 29 yards to score standing up. Try for extra point was good. The score: Matador 20; Silverton 0. The quarter ended with Matador recovering a fumbled punt on the Silverton 8 yard line.

Fourth Quarter

The Silverton line tightened and took over the ball on their own 3 and Brown punted to the Owls 40. Two line plays failed to gain and on their third down Matador completed their only pass of the game for 59 yards and their fourth and last touchdown. Conversion was good. The Owls received and made a first down on the 50 yard marker .An exchange of kicks netted 9 yards. The Owls started clicking with a running attack that chalked up 3 first downs and carried to the 1 yard line. The Matador boys dug in and the Owls hit the line on their fourth down for no gain still a lone yard from paydirt as the game ended.

Score: Matador 27; Silverton 0.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

New Totalitarian Combination May Spell Doom of Empires; Stalin Acts as String-Puller

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

POLAND'S PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE (?)

Territory taken by Poland from Lithuania (and previously by Lithuania from Russia), together with land lost to Poland at the treaty of Riga, is the Soviet's first military objective in "protecting" Ukrainians and White Russians. Germany will probably take all Polish land formerly belonging to herself and to the Austro-Hungarian empire. Eastern Galicia, populated by Ukrainians, yet a part of the Austro-Hungarian empire and highly coveted by Germany, has a problematical future. Area in white may remain a Polish state.

THE WAR:
Diplomatic Front

Thoroughly vindicated this month are the astute international observers who have called Russia's Josef Stalin the shrewdest diplomat of Europe, shrewder even than Germany's Adolf Hitler who begged and won Russia's friendship a few weeks ago. Like a remote control operator who needs only to punch buttons, Dictator Stalin sat in his Kremlin palace and manipulated diplomatic machinery that responded like one-two-three clockwork in a sequence of events that sped westward from Tokyo to Paris and London, leaving the harried allies of Europe's war in miserable shape:

Truce. For five years stubborn Japan has fought an undeclared, informal war with Russia in the vast wastelands of Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia. Ambitious elsewhere, Dictator Stalin was not free to meddle in European politics or peck at the British empire so long as Japan remained a nuisance. But one upshot of the recent Russ-German nonaggression pact was a more thorough welding of world totalitarianism. Germany, already allied with Japan, intervened to start conversations between Soviet Premier Viacheslav Molotov and Japan's ambassador to Moscow, Shigenori Togo. Result: A Jap-Soviet truce, welcomed in Tokyo because it meant Nippon could not only push her conquest of China but also oust pestiferous French and British interests from the Orient.

MOLOTOV
Eyes turned west.

Conquest. Thus freed, Russia turned westward. German troops already occupied half of Poland, whose defense was collapsing rapidly. While Dictator Stalin ran the show from behind scenes, Premier Molotov sent his troops, tanks and planes wheeling across the frontier to "take under their protection" about 11,000,000 Ukrainians and White Russians in eastern and southern Poland. Thus relieved (by pre-arrangement) from conquering the rest of that nation, Germany was in turn freed to turn westward.

Result. Some observers believed 70 German divisions used against Poland were rushed to the western front, where silence still masked hostilities in the Saar basin. But both France and Britain knew their job was becoming more formidable hourly as the Nazi juggernaut began unleashing its full strength.

Questions, Forecasts

Unnoticed in this ghastly and growing conflict were the fate and fortunes of men-at-arms. Britain had lost 22 ships including the veteran airplane carrier, Courageous. Three hundred thousand men fought in the Saar, with thousands more on the way. Gdynia fell. Brest-Litovsk and Lwow were shambles. Warsaw, in even worse shape, negotiated her surrender. Paris heard the Russians were invading Lithuania, also that the Polish war had cost Germany 100,000 killed and wounded. (One dead was a grandson of the ex-Kaiser.) France's mine layer, Pluton, exploded in Morocco.

But men were merely pawns in the game of war. While they died, their leaders fretted over future which may make today's holocaust mild by comparison. Nations with far-flung territories (France and Britain) suffer most when their enemies (Japan, Russia, Germany and Italy) are also far flung. While the harried allies had their hands full keeping mighty Germany at bay behind her invulnerable West wall, these things might happen:

Japan. Under German coaxing, Dictator Stalin might withdraw his support of China's long-suffering Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, thus paving the way for immediate completion of Japan's war. Meanwhile the maze of European concessions and settlements in China could be wiped out because western nations are too busy at home to complain.

Russia. With 600,000 men concentrated on the Afghanistan border, the Soviet could use this nation as a jumping off place in her campaign to establish rule over India. Meanwhile the Kremlin's threat is luring Turkey away from her alliance with Britain and France, thus closing the Black sea outlet which has been Rumania's sole hope of independence.

Germany. Between them the Reich and Soviet must divide Poland. If Germany takes only her pre-World war territory (See Map) and Russia takes only the land Poland took by force in 1919-20, a buffer state would still remain between the two powers—provided a settlement can be reached in southeastern Poland, whose rich Galician lands are coveted by both Berlin and Moscow.

Italy. Shattered was the popular belief that Italy would not only stay neutral, but might even come to the allies' side. Observers still expected Benito Mussolini to promulgate a peace conference any day, but they also knew he had an ulterior motive. Italy wants the French-Italian port of Djibouti, entrance to Italian Ethiopia, made a free port; she wants control of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad; she wants a major voice in administering the Suez canal; she wants other assorted and miscellaneous concessions which the allies foolishly denied her after the World war.

TROOPS IN WEST WALL
While allies had their hands full.

Choice. The four totalitarian nations might decide to strike first and talk peace later. Or they may poise their threats and then sue. Whichever course they take, Britain and France are on the spot; never in modern history have their empires been so completely threatened. Probably the better part of valor is to fight and ignore totalitarianism's peace offers. From experience, Europe's democracies have learned appeasement merely whets the appetite and prolongs the torture.

LOUISIANA:
Next Case

When Dr. James Monroe Smith fled his Louisiana State university for a Canadian haven last summer, the U. S. lost no time sticking its foot into a messy state political puddle. Resigned was Gov. Richard W. Leche, succeeded by the late Huey P. ("Kingfish") Long's brother, Earl. One after another of Louisiana's politicians were caught in the trap, including Seymour Weiss, alleged political "powerhouse," and finally Richard Leche himself.

Rumor had it that U. S. Attorney General Frank Murphy was merely using Louisiana as a proving ground to show the Democratic party was equal in purity to New York's racket-busting state's attorney and G. O. P. presidential possibility, Tom Dewey. Whatever the reason, the U. S. got its first conviction: Five Louisianians, including Dr. Smith and Seymour Weiss, were found guilty of selling hotel furniture to the state university, not once, but twice. Basis for the federal charge; A check for the ill-gotten gains was sent through the U. S. mails.

Immediately the federal prosecutors went to work on their second case, an open-and-shut matter of interstate commerce and therefore clearly under U. S. jurisdiction. In this trial, prosecutors hope to find Messrs Weiss and Leche guilty of conspiracy to violate the Connally "hot oil" law for allegedly piping contraband oil to Texas.

DOMESTIC:
War Talk

In 1917 it was public opinion that forced the U. S. into war. In 1939, as in 1914, public opinion wants no truck with Europe's troubles. But America's memory of the war is still so vivid that its citizenry's judgment is more reasoned, less apt to be colored by propaganda from home or abroad. Even so, there is no unanimity.

Representative of anti-war thought was the unprecedented radio talk by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose congressman father committed political suicide by voting against war in 1917: "As long as we maintain an army, a navy and an air force worthy of the name, as long as America does not decay within, we need fear no invasion . . . If we enter fighting for democracy abroad, we may end by losing it at home."

COLONEL LINDBERGH
". . . we need fear no invasion."

This was a fine spirit, as was the Gallup poll finding that 84 per cent of the U. S. wants to keep American ships out of war zones (a tenet of the proposed neutrality act). But America was nevertheless plugging for France and Britain. Another Gallup poll showed 82 per cent of them thought the allies would win, while 44 per cent (dangerously near a majority for so early in the war) favored sending U. S. troops abroad if it appeared Germany would win.

Amid such befuddled opinion congress met to argue the President's neutrality proposal: To repeal the present arms embargo and sell belligerents anything they want, provided they pay cash and use their own ships. Isolationist sentiment was growing, but so was "cash-and-carry" sentiment, simply a result of greater public interest. Most popular objection to neutrality revision was not that it would discriminate in favor of the allies (because they rule the seas) but that common sense overruled changing legislation after the war has started.

Closer to trouble, more realistic in its attitude, the state department knew it must move chessmen as belligerents moved theirs. Example: Russo-Jap rapprochement meant the Philippines might fall easy prey to Tokyo unless the U. S. delayed independence plans.

No easy job awaited congress. Administration forces moved to limit debate and the nation both booed and praised. No problem ever deserved more thought and discussion, yet, paradoxically, this was a problem which seemed only to grow more confusing when pondered and debated.

AGRICULTURE:
Cotton

Last December 84.1 per cent of the South's cotton-growing farmers agreed to limit the unrestricted sale of this year's crop to 12,000,000 bales. Penalty: A fine of three cents per pound on all cotton sold above the quota. Announced in Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was another referendum on 1940 marketing to take place December 9.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"White Streak in the Water"

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Bill Mogge says he has nothing to kick about, and that's a swell way of looking at it. And at the same time I'm wondering how many other people could go through what Bill did, and suffer as Bill suffered, and lose as Bill lost, and still take that same attitude that Bill takes about what happened to him in the dreadful hours that followed his seeing a white line shoot toward him across the wind-tossed waters of the North sea.

That white line was a common sight on the North sea in World war days. It meant bad luck to the ship from which it was seen, and that was no mere sailors' superstition either. Bill saw it on July 29, 1915, from the Belgian steamer Princesse Marie, on which he was working as an able seaman. And now the Princesse Marie is at the bottom of the sea, several of her crew are dead, and Bill Mogge has some horrible hours to remember.

Bill lives in Nutley, N. J. He has a wife and a thirteen-year-old daughter, and he says, "Life is good, after all." But on that July day in 1915 his prospects for continuing that life began to look as though they weren't worth a plugged nickel. Then he was a young Dutch lad working on that Belgian ship for the extra ten shillings that were handed out every month to the men who risked death in the submarine-infested war zone. Bill and the boatswain were up on a scaffold washing the sides of the wheelhouse and the bridge when Bill looked off over the water to starboard and saw that white streak.

Streak Headed for Center of Ship.

Bill says he froze in his shoes. Every sailor knew what that streak meant. Torpedo! And this streak was headed right for the center of the ship—right for the spot below the wheelhouse on which he and the boatswain were working.

"Like a man in a dream I watched that white mark grow longer," he says. "It was almost on us, and I knew there wasn't time to avoid it. Almost at the same instant I saw a periscope come out of the water. I shouted to the bos'n, but I'll never know whether he heard me or not. For at that same instant there was a terrific explosion, and everything went black before my eyes."

When Bill came to again he was lying on the deck in a lot of debris—and a pool of blood. The ship had all but broken in two. Water was rushing into it and it was sinking fast. Bill tried to get to his feet, but he couldn't move. His arm hurt, and his head seemed to be spinning around like a top. "I tried to shake off that dizzy feeling," he says, "but it was no use. Blood was running into my eyes from a wound in my head, and my injured arm was useless. I thought I would go crazy as I lay there, unable to move, while the ship sank steadily, threatening every moment to go under."

But at last Bill managed to pull himself together. He struggled to his feet and looked about him. The decks were deserted. His right arm was covered with blood and nearly blown off. Using his left arm, he climbed the ladder to the boat deck—but there were no boats there any more. His shipmates had gone, leaving him to drown.

"At the same instant there was a terrific explosion, and everything went black before my eyes."

Last Life Boat Ready to Shove Off.

Just as Bill was ready to give up he looked over the side, and that look saved his life. Down there in the water was just one lifeboat—the last one—getting ready to shove off. Bill knew he didn't have a moment to lose. Those lads in the boat weren't going to wait for stragglers. He had to get in that boat or go down with the ship, and the only way to get into it in time was to jump for it. Bill did jump—right from the boat deck. He landed in a heap on top of a bunch of cursing sailors who wanted to know who he was.

"I thought they were crazy to ask such a question," says Bill. "Didn't they know me—their shipmate—any more? Little did I realize how I looked to them. I was just a black and bloody mess that even my own mother wouldn't have recognized."

Lifeboat Steams Full Speed Toward Harwich.

The boat had no sooner pulled away than the ship sank with a groan and a hiss of steam. Bill lay in the bottom while the others rowed. "My head was burning," he says, "and I thought I would go crazy. Off and on I did go out of my mind. About an hour later we were picked up by a British mine sweeper. They pulled me up in a canvas because I was too weak to climb aboard. Some officer put an emergency bandage around my head, and they kept giving me coffee and cigarettes to keep me alive. We steamed full speed toward Harwich, the nearest port where there was a hospital."

Radio messages to shore had told the hospital of their coming, and there was an ambulance waiting for Bill at the dock. "When I got to the hospital," says Bill, "I felt somehow that I would be safe, and didn't fight any more against the darkness that kept trying to close down over my eyes. I don't know what happened after that, but when I awoke the nurse told me I had been unconscious for two days."

They did their best for Bill at that hospital—in spite of the fact that he was a Hollander and the English had just about all they could do to take care of their own wounded who were coming over every day from France. One day a nurse started to teach him to write with his left hand—and then Bill knew he would never use his right arm again.

When his wounds had healed up the Dutch consul general sent Bill to a hospital in Holland, and there he spent two more years while the doctors performed five operations trying to give him back the use of his arm, and a little while after he was discharged he came to America.

And after all he went through, Bill still says he has no kick coming. "The Belgian government awarded me a pension," he says, "and I am grateful to that country for the square deal it gave me. I'll never forget the wonderful treatment I got in the British hospital, and I am thankful to America for the wonderful opportunities it has given me."

And that's from a bird who really got a tough break and has every right in the world to complain about his luck.

High Praise

The monument erected in honor of the explorer, Robert Scott, and his companions at Capetown, bears the following lines from his diary: "Had we lived I should have had a tale to tell of the hardihood, endurance and courage of my companions which would have stirred the heart of every Englishman. These rough notes and our dead bodies must tell the tale."

Changing World

Dr. Paul Popenoe, head of the Pasadena, Calif., Family Relations institute, has ascertained that marriage proposals are changing. In the first place, he said, it is rare that marriage proposals are ever made now in the home; in the second place, they are made more frequently away from the home, and in the third place, they are frequently taken frivolously.

THE INFANCY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 2:13-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.—Matthew 1:23.

Looking forward to an experience in life which promises to be both interesting and profitable always brings a glow of expectation. Something of that spirit should pervade the Bible schools of our land as they begin a six-months study in the Gospel of Matthew.

Consideration of our Lord's life properly starts with the story of His birth, but we reserve that for our Christmas lesson. Today we stress the manner in which the Child Jesus was received into the world. Men then as now, were either for Him or against Him. God had only one attitude, that of loving protection and preparation of His Son for His ministry.

I. Christ in the World of Men.

The world of today is far different from that of the first century, but the difference is all on the outside. Almost breath taking have been the developments of modern civilization, but these have not changed the heart of man. He still fears and hates and fights and sins. His attitude toward Christ is unchanged. There are still only two classes of people in the world—those who have received Christ and are saved, and those who have rejected Him and are lost.

1. Against Christ.

How do men show their rejection of God's Son? Just as they did at His birth, by: a. Fear. Herod was afraid lest the coming of this one should result in the loss of his ill-gotten gains. His anger and fear made all Jerusalem afraid. b. Indifference. When the Wise Men asked where Christ was to be born, the priests and scribes knew exactly where to find the facts in the Holy Scriptures, but having done so, they relapsed into utter indifference. They had no interest in the fulfillment of the prophecy. c. Hatred. Herod poured out the violence of his heart by killing the first-born. He was the first of many who have raged against the Christ in futile anger. d. Sorrow. The tears of the mothers of Jerusalem but foreshadowed the weeping and wailing which characterizes Christ-rejection both in time and eternity.

2. For Christ.

Thanks be to God, there were those in that day who were for Christ and, like those who follow Him today, they showed: a. Spirituality. Men have marveled that the Magi knew of the birth of Christ. They must have studied the prophecies of the Word and been responsive to the teaching and moving of the Holy Spirit. Can we say as much for ourselves? b. Interest. Not content to know and to marvel, they shamed the priests of Israel by their persistent interest in this great thing which had come to pass. c. Love. They brought themselves in worship and they brought rich gifts from their treasures. You can give without loving, but you cannot love without giving. d. Action. They came. They persisted until they found the Christ. Then they listened to God and protected His Son by not returning to Herod.

II. Christ in God's World.

Men had brought sin and ruin into the world. They had rejected His Son, but God still ruled and we see Him protecting, preparing, and fulfilling prophecy through His Son.

1. Protecting. Men may hate and seek to destroy God's Son. Satan may inspire them with ingenuity and cunning, but see how the Eternal One speaks to Joseph in dreams, how He prepares a place of refuge in Egypt and ultimately in Nazareth, where the boy Jesus may increase in wisdom and stature and favor with God and man.

2. Preparing. God knows of the days of public ministry which are ahead and above all, of that day when on Golgotha's hill Christ was, in His own body, to prepare salvation for you and for me. God is not taken by surprise. He moves forward to the completion of His plan with the stately tread of eternity.

3. Fulfilling. God also sees to it that prophecy is fulfilled. We read in verses 15 and 23, "that it might be fulfilled" and in verse 17, "then was fulfilled." God's Word is always sure, for He makes it so. His infinite and eternal faithfulness guarantees the fulfillment of every prophecy, yes, and of every promise of His Holy Word.

MORE FOR YOUR ...
● Read the advertisements. They are more than a selling aid for business. They form an educational system which is making Americans the best-educated buyers in the world. The advertisements are part of an economic system which is giving Americans more for their money every day.

Most memorable day of all in journey through Mexico by this chronicler was a visit into the topics.

At a high point in the mountains we halted to see majestic Mount Orizaba in the distance, the second highest peak in North America, and to gaze a mile straight down into the valley where fields of different crops looked like squares on a checker-board, and haciendas and churches seemed as small as children's toys.

In twenty minutes, winding around the edge of cliffs, we had made the descent into the valley and were in the midst of the tropics. It was a geography lesson come true: bananas were growing upside down; parrots were screaming from the trees; coffee was spread out to dry in the sun; the jungle of tall trees, dense vegetation, and long, clambering vines made the road only a hemmed-in lane.

We (a party of some 40 Lions and friends) visited a school where the little native children were being taught Spanish, their language being an Indian dialect. As we entered, they stood at attention and, at a word from the teacher, they earnesly sang a song of friendship.

Down the side road a mile or so, and we came to a scene of beauty. Although we were in a valley, a yet deeper valley lay at our feet and in the center was a lake of purple water, with two silver streams flowing over a big dam.

A little farther, and there was a near-precipice down which a cable railroad ran. The slope was so sharp that the track soon dipped out of our sight. A native boy offered to slide down the rail to the village below. When the ladies in the party realized what he was about to undertake, they pleaded for him to give up the idea. Though their words were in English, he sensed the meaning but shook his head and flashed his white teeth in a mile because he was to be paid for the exhibition—50 centavos, or 10 cents in American money.

He picked up a flat rock about six inches square, placed it on the rail, seated himself on the rock, gave a little shove with a short, sturdy stick he held in his right hand and he was away. Raising his straw sombrero in his left hand, like a cowboy on a bucking bronc, he waved it on high as he gained momentum. When the pace became so rapid that there was danger he would slide off the rail, he dragged the stubby stick over the ties and it acted as a brake. He dipped out of sight but soon appeared far below.

This observer has seen dives from high platforms through burning hoops into small tanks of water; the pivoting of matadors to avoid, but a quarter-inch, the lunges of angry, wounded bulls; the leaping from horseback of a bulldogger in a rodeo to seize the horns of a steer—but none of these seemed as daring as the act of that little fellow speeding down a narrow rail over the side of a mountain on a rock.

But it was explained to us, "Since the cable-car makes only one roundtrip a day, that's the way the natives usually get down."

How's this for a thrilling moment in real life?

A friend stopped in a tavern on a highway near a large city for a bottle of beer. He was the only customer in the place. A car halted and three rough-looking men came up on the porch and, as they stood in the doorway, one of them asked in a low tone, "Is that him?" One of the others said, "No" and they drove away.

The thought of a narrow escape from being "taken for a ride" in a gang war practically deprived him of his thirst!

Even when men's hearts are heavy, they must have their jest—and so the jokes that were told during the first World War are again heard. Thus does the wheel of fate spin about.

One of the classics was the tale of the negro soldier who crept out into No-Man's-Land with a keen-endged razor as his only weapon. Encountering an enemy, the darkey swung at him with the razor. The other smiled and said, "Missed me", to which the negro replied, "You just think I did; wait till you turns your head."

Then there was the Mississippi merchant who told a group of negroes that Uncle Sam was going to put 200,000 colored soldiers in the front line trennches and 100,000 white soldiers in the second line trenches. One of the colored listeners spoke up, "Yas, sah, and 100,000 white soldiers is gwine to be trampled to death."

And do you recall the negro who defined "T. N. T." (the high explosive) as standing for "Travel, niggah, travel"?

Then there was an American soldier in Paris who wanted to buy a bottle of eau de cologne but he couldn't think of the French name for it.

Soon after the outbreak of the World War in 1914, a mountaineer rode into an East Tennessee village. The storekeeper told him the news: "Germany and Austria are at war with England and France; Belgium has been invaded; Rumania is in it; so is Russia; it is the biggest war in history."

Then the merchant stopped to hear the mountaineer's re-action. Feeling the eye of everyone in the store on him, th new arrival said: "Well, they got a purty day for it, ain't they?"

Still on the subject of war but in more serious vein:

"It is the women who pay the greatest price of all for war," State Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler said the other day in a speech in San Antonio to the Democratic Women's Club. "It is sad enough for a man in the twinkling of an eye to lay down his life on the battlefield but what about the mother and the widow of that hero? They must go on living; they must face the dark and troubled present and the uncertain future and they can not forget the memories of the happy past."

Over Texas:

A sign on a Dallas residennce reads, "Spiritual adviser and tea-leaves' reader."

Like a scene from "The Wizard of Oz" is the peanut store in Fort Worth, the walls entirely hidden by strings of thousands of peanuts in shells.

A study in contrasts is presented on the Cisco-Rising Star highway. Above the doorway of a modern farm home have been placed an ox yoke and an airplane propellor.

A favorite story: Hearing a noise in the hen-house one night, a farmer grabbed his shotgun and yelled, "Who's there?" From the hen-house came a voice, "Nobody but us chickens, boss."

There was a Texas newspaperman who submitted an article in a national contest. The entry didn't even win honorable mention; it came back with a printed rejection slip. He tore the manuscript up and two years went by. He decided he would try to tell the story again. Using the same material but putting it together in more polished fashion because of the pervious "practice round", he sent it to the biggest, best-paying magazine in the United States, and the editor bought it.

There is no such thing as failure—at least there needn't be. Today's defeat can be made the foundation for tomorrow's success.

DAIRY IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES PROGRESS IN WEST TEXAS

The 4-H and FFA Club boys and dairy farmers of Briscoe County purchased eight registered jersey heifers and two registered community co-operative jersey bulls last week through the Farm Security Administration as a step toward better dairy cows for this community.

Mr. John R. Lusk at Quitaque purchased a young three year old bull of Imported Conbination Preimer breeding for service in the Quitaque Community. One registered bull is expected to be located in the Silverton Community for the benefit of those interested in the breeding of better cows.

Mr. Sanders in the Rock Creek Community purchased two heifers. Floyd and Loyd Jackson also purchased two young heifers. John Howard Payne, Glenn Barrett, and Dannie Mack Morris of Quitaque also purchased registered heifers.

Club boys are interested in up a small herd to help pay their school expenses in future years as well as maintaining a small individual herd. The improvement and management of livestock from an educational standpoint is thought to be of much benefit to the boys.

According to Claude C. Carpenter, co-operative loans are available through Farm Security Administration to purchase good breeding stock or machinery needed in a community where such services are in demand. The County Agent, Mr. H. L. Williams, has encouraged and assisted in the purchase of the club calves for the county and is interested in better livestock of all types and classes.

SILVERTON NATIONAL FARM LOAN RANKS HIGH IN DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Silverton National Farm Loan Association, which was held at Silverton Thursday, September 21, was one of the best meetings in the history of the association, according to J. E. Daniel, who was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The following were elected directors of the association: R. E. Brookshier, President; R. C. Hutsell, Vice President; John Vaughan, H. S. Crow and Q. E. Brown. The directors elected Kathryn Daniel as acting secretary-treaurer.

The main feature of the meeting was an address by A. C. Hargis, Assistant Treasurer of the Federal Land Bank of Houston. Following Mr. Hargis' address, interesting technicolor pictures were shown by Ralph Payne of Houston. These pictures were of the Stamford Rodeo, Ft. Worth Stock Show, Big Bend Country and 4-H Club work in Texas.

At the close of June 1939 the bank had outstanding 187 federal land bank loans amounting to $660,800. and 109 federal farm mortgage corporation loans amounting to $189,100. or a total of 296 loans amounting to 849,900. in Briscoe County. As of the report of June 30, the net worth of the Silverton National Farm Loan Association is $38,708, which is a 100 per cent rating and places the local organization in Class One of the Tenth District which includes several states.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee Bain and Martha Lee of Borger spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bain. Mr. and Mrs. Bain returned to Borger with them to spend the week.

Len Lee who is attending school at Tech spent the week end with his folks in Silverton.

Bib Farnsworth of Amarillo spent the week end here with his wife and daughters.

In the lexicon of youth which fate reserves for a bright manhood there is no such word as fail.

THE WEATHER . . . Lovely for picking cotton, if we had some cotton. And if we could get just another foot or so, we'd plant some wheat.

AND WHILE I'M on the weather . . . Dave is getting kinda smart and trying to put me behind the eight ball in his ad this week. I wouldn't doubt it much if he got the rain. And if he dooes, I'll bet somebody that I get a wash job awful cheap.

WHERE IS MAISIE?

NOW THERE'S how easy it is to make a dime in this newspaper business. Just those three little words and I collect ten cents from Mercer the Musser. And every line you see in the paper this week about Maisie, I get another dime.. The secret is that he has a big show "Maisie" coming up Friday and Saturday.

WAS MAISIE A LADY? . . See there how easy it is. That makes 20c. Three more lines and I'm going to see Maisie.

THIS COTTON CROP: I saw a couple of trailer houses parked down by Ralls the other day, and two whole families were almost having blows. I stopped and it seemed that the folks were from South Texas. They both spied a cotton boll at the same time, and both were trying to get the job of picking it. The farmer finally ended the dispute by picking it himself. Said he wanted it for his four year old boy too see.

THE KEENEST THING at the Lubbock Fair was Clyde Lucas and his Orchestra, and dancing girls. Say they had what it takes. The girls were very pretty, so Barbara said. I can vouch for the statement that they had plenty of this and that . . . funny thing though, I can't seem to recall their faces.

BUSINESS IS GOOD. Yowsah! So good that I think of a story Jake told me this morning. A farmer was buying corn for 50c a bushel on the north side of the river and hauling it across to the other side where he sold it for 50c. He kept it up for several weeks saying, "It's not much money, but Man, look at the business I'm doing."

AND SO MATADOR won the football game Friday. It was a lot better game however, than the score shows. In fact Silverton made seven first downs to Matador's five. Silverton has the making of a good team this year. I still have my eye on the district championship.

THE BIGGEST surprise of the game was, to me, John Ed Bain. I had never seen him tackle anything more than a few pieces of fried chicken at the cafe. But he was in that line every minute and is pretty rough at that. Well that's what makes a football player. And no good football player has lived yet, but what, deep inside of him he kinda liked it rough.

I HAVEN'T ANY details of it but I think that arrangements have been made for a band . . . also think there is a chance of having a school paper. They are having a little trouble making up their minds up there on it. The space is here for them if they want it—and if they don't want it I wouldn't have it.

TRAFFIC STRIPES

Center Stripes

Texas highways are now being striped just as fast as time and finances will permit. These stripes are for a definite purpose of separating opposing traffic lanes. Do not straddle stripes. Do not hug the stripe. Drive two or three feet clear to the right (there is ample space in your lane) in order to give opposing cars and your car a chance to avoid a collision if something should go wrong with either car, such as a tire blowout, faulty steering, etc. You and the opposing users at least have a chance which you don't have if both cars are hugging the center stripe.

Three Lane Highways

Drive in the right or outer lane using the inside lane for passing only after you are sure that you have sufficient passing clearance because opposing traffic uses the same lane for the same purpose. Be alert for traffic following you.

Four Lane Highways

Drive in right or outer lane, using the inside or left lane for passing or left turns only. Be alert for traffic following you.

FEWER TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS IN AUGUST THAN JULY

The State Highway Engineer said today that the month of August reflected a considerable decrease in traffic accidents and fatalities over the previous deadly month of July. July with its holiday, tourist and vacation travel had 159 fatalities in traffic accidents, 9 of which were chargeable to previous months, as compared to 112 traffic deaths in August 10 of which are chargeable to July. This therefore, makes the July figure actually 160 deaths and August 102, a reduction of 58 fatalities for August over July. Of the 102 traffic deaths 29 were the drivers of the vehicles, 50 were the passengers of those vehicles and 23 were pedestrians.

In view of the holidays in the coming months and with increased week end football traffic, the person behind the wheel is urged to obey the traffic rules and especially to stay on his side of the road.

Strict obeyance of the center stripe instructions will reduce materially, fatal accidents since about 27 per cent of fatal accidents are caused by head on collision.

What's the Answer?
By EDWARD FINCH

YAWNING is an action caused by the nerves which connect with our lungs. When the air in our lungs is empty of the proper amount of oxygen required to maintain a healthy blood supply, the lungs immediately communicate that fact to these little nerves which in turn take the message to the brain. The brain transmits the emergency call to certain muscles which go to work and force one to open his mouth and take in a large supply of air with its clean, pure oxygen.

Strange Facts

Beggars' Paradise
Too Lazy to Breathe

Among the Arabs of Africa and Near Eastern countries, the gratuity or tip, called "baksheesh," goes to the poorer man whether he renders a service to you or you render a service to him. Even if you save a man from drowning, he will demand his "baksheesh" if you appear to be in better circumstances.

One of the most lethargic animals in existence is the tuatara, Sphenodon punctatum, a two-foot, lizardlike reptile of New Zealand. Not only does it rarely move, but it breathes so slowly that, usually, the creature appears to be lifeless. Those in captivity have been known to stop breathing for more than an hour at a time.

A number of Christian altars in various parts of the world do not include the figure of Judas in the statuary of Christ and His disciples.—Collier's.

Peaceful War

Ever hear of a peaceful war? There's one in West Virginia now. For "War" is the name of a community of 1,500 people in the state. Until quite recently War also had the distinction of being the largest town in the country without telephone service. But that distinction exists no more. Now you can "go to War" by telephone from any of the other 70,000 communities in the United States which have phones.

Troubled by CONSTIPATION?

There's no law against a person taking a strong, bad-tasting purgative. But why should anyone make an "ordeal" out of a simple case of constipation? CHAPTER XII—Continued
—12—

Lynn stared: "Do you think I could persuade Rundhia to try to prove Captain Norwood's innocence?"

"But Lynn dear, if Captain Norwood has been guilty of taking a bribe—"

Lynn interrupted: "I don't believe Captain Norwood is guilty."

"But what do you know about him?"

"Maharanee dear, what do you know about me? How do you know I'm not a criminal?"

"Lynn—"

"Maharanee dear, even if Captain Norwood could be guilty of an ungentlemanly, mean thing like taking a bribe, it was I who betrayed him and I want him to know it. If he isn't guilty—"

The door opened suddenly. Rundhia entered, followed by an attendant in the Maharajah's livery.

"Yes," said the Maharanee, "that man can be trusted. Lynn dear, I will give him both your letters. He will find Captain Norwood, even if he has to hunt all over Kadur."

She gave the man emphatic orders in his own language, told him to go at once, watched him along the corridor and led Lynn through the brass gate to the women's quarters.

Rundhia waited, standing. When he heard the messenger's footfall returning along the corridor, he opened the door, admitted him, closed the door, held out his hand, received both letters, glanced at them and returned to the messenger the one that was addressed to Mrs. Harding.

"Deliver that one. After that, keep out of sight for an hour. Then return and say that you have delivered the other letter to Captain Norwood. Go."

Rundhia opened the letter that was addressed to Norwood. He smiled. There was no heading:

"Your unkindness about what you saw this morning does not make me wish to hurt you in return. There is something I wish to tell you. It is important. I hate myself for something that I said unintentionally, under great strain. I can explain it. Won't you see me?

"Lynn."

The Bengali doctor entered Rundhia's suite at the palace with the air of a crook who is afraid of a master-crook. He assumed an air of self-importance that he didn't feel; of confidence that didn't exist. He didn't wait for Rundhia to tell him to be seated, and he began to speak in Bengali.

Rundhia interrupted him: "You may discontinue dosing Mrs. Harding. Miss Lynn Harding has accepted an invitation to remain here at the palace, so the sooner the aunt clears out of Kadur the better. Let her get well."

"She has refused medicine. I had to put it on her breakfast food. And now she won't eat. She will recover quickly enough! There is nothing much the matter with her. I am relieved. I do not like to do such things to western people."

"Could you get at Captain Norwood?"

"No."

"I think you'd better. Last night at supper, Norwood watched your clumsy by-play when you gave that pellet to Mrs. Harding. The way you switched the pellets wasn't clever. Norwood suspects you."

"Captain Norwood is himself under suspicion," the Bengali answered. "He stands accused, does he not, of having accepted a bribe? You told me to say so to Mrs. Harding. And I did."

"Yes. I was coming to that," Rundhia interrupted. "I thought the news might influence her to keep Norwood away. Now, look here: officers caught taking bribes, especially if they're popular and well connected, very often commit suicide. Norwood's suicide would be appropriate, convenient and, in the circumstances, not suspicious. How do we go about it?"

"We don't!" the Bengali answered, without a second's hesitation.

Rundhia stared at him scornfully: "Well," he remarked at last, "it might be dangerous to do. You and I must be careful."

The Bengali folded his hands across his stomach: "Very careful."

"Things mustn't be traced back to us," said Rundhia. "There is nothing, so far, that can be traced back to me. But I have the goods on you; and by God, if you don't do what I tell you, you're in trouble."

Fear looked forth from the Bengali's eyes, but he said nothing. He crossed his knees and waited.

"Norwood has got to be killed," said Rundhia. "He is in love with Miss Lynn Harding. He hates me. He is suspicious by nature. He is on the defensive. And he is the type of person whose idea of self-defense is to attack with every scrap of energy he has. That kind of person is much too dangerous. You and I can't afford to let him live. If we can blame his death on the priests, that could be made to hold water. The priests bribed him. By this time, they probably know that the news of the bribe is out. It would be natural for them to murder Norwood, to stop his mouth."

"Well, why not let them! Why not leave it to them?" the Bengali retorted.

"Because they won't do it, you fool! Did you ever know a priest to do a thing at the right time to suit someone else? It will have to be done for them. Now here's the idea: they keep a hospice where mendicants may live as long as they please, for no payment. There are three men in that hospice, who would kill their mothers and anyone else for an ounce of opium. For two ounces, they would murder ten children apiece. You know my man Gulbaz?"

"Too well. Some day that badmash will turn on you."

Rundhia smiled: "Long before that, dear doctor, he shall swallow one of your prescriptions! Summon Gulbaz. Give him money. I will give you three hundred rupees, and you may keep the change. Tell Gulbaz he is to hire those three men to assassinate Norwood tonight. I don't care how they do it, and I hope they get caught. They have been living for months in the temple hospice. Everyone will believe they are in the pay of the priests. Do you understand?"

"No, he didn't ask me to promise."

"I understand you. I won't do it. I have done what I have done, because you knew of former indiscretions, for which you could have betrayed me to the law. And I will do what I will do, because I need the money. There it ends. I wish you wouldn't keep me waiting. I am becoming nervous. I have drugged his medicine until he needs it five times daily. Now he is demanding one at bedtime. Why wait?"

"Are you sure of the poison?"

"Quite sure. It is the same that I gave you to test on the monkey that you packed in ice and sent to Delhi to be autopsied. It is a vegetable poison. It escapes analysis by all known methods. It is one of five poisons that baffle analysis, once it has become absorbed by the blood. They will find in your uncle's stomach, if they look, some traces of marijuana, which it can be proved that he himself bought, and which I added to his tonic at his own written request. I advise you to act quickly."

Rundhia nodded: "If you will attend to the killing of Norwood, I will let you do the other job tonight. But I want Norwood out of the way."

There was a chill at Lynn's heart. As she walked beside the Maharanee into the room, that was called the boudoir but retained the sumptuous, old-fashioned splendors of a royal bibi-kana, she felt more self-critical than ever before in her life. Not even Aunty Harding's cruelest accusations had made her feel as guilty, and as impotent to undo wrong.

"Lynn darling, why are you silent? I can almost always count on you for chatter when I feel despondent."

"Maharanee, did you ever betray anyone?"

"Let us sit here by the window," said the Maharanee. "Tell me how it feels. Perhaps I can help you to feel differently. You have helped me in so many ways. There is a law of compensation. Perhaps comes now my opportunity to do for you what you have done for me."

"I hate myself," Lynn answered. "You can't change that. I don't want it changed. If I didn't hate myself for what I've done, I shouldn't be fit to live. The dreadful part is, that I can't undo what I did. Oh, my God—" she put her head between her hands "—I didn't mean to do it. If I could cut out my tongue! But I said it. I can't unsay it."

"Lynn darling, did you promise Captain Norwood not to speak about those diamonds?"

"No. He didn't ask me to promise. He took it for granted that I wouldn't mention what any idiot could guess he hadn't wanted me to see. Captain Norwood saw me kissing Rundhia. I know he did."

"Did he say so?"

"Of course he didn't. And of course he won't mention it, ever, to anyone else. The man is a gentleman. I don't want him to despise me, yet it wouldn't bother me if Rundhia did."

"Perhaps you don't yet understand Rundhia."

"Oh, yes I do. Rundhia is a beautiful savage."

"Darling, did you ask him not to tell?"

"I made it quite clear I was sorry I had told him."

"Well, you must remember that you told him something that concerns the State of Kadur. You uncovered to him the existence of a bribe that might have changed the destiny of Kadur by legalizing the priests' possession of the diamond mine. I haven't told you much about the diamond mine. It is supposed to be a secret. Do you call it a betrayal that I have mentioned it to you?"

"Don't worry. I won't tell!" Lynn answered. "I never want to hear diamonds mentioned again. How long will it take that messenger to reach Captain Norwood?"

"That depends on where Captain Norwood is. The messenger will have to look for him. He has gone on horseback. I ordered him not to spare the horse. It might take him half an hour—an hour."

"I can't wait for an answer! I wish I had gone in search of him, myself. I haven't any pride left. His career will be ruined, won't it?"

"But darling, he deserves to be ruined if he accepts bribes. And if he is innocent he can prove it."

"Do you believe that? I can easily doubt it." Lynn answered. "I have never once been able to prove my innocence, against Aunty's accusations. Not one single once! Not one time—ever. To this minute, she believes everything she has ever said against me." Then, suddenly: "What is Rundhia doing?"

"I don't know."

"Does he like to be despised?"

"Lynn dear, if you should despise him, I don't know what might happen. Rundhia loves you."

"Does he? You think so? Tell him I despise him! And I will, until he proves to me that he has done his absolute, utmost best to undo the cowardly wrong he has done to Captain Norwood."

"Lynn—"

"Maharanee dear, won't you please tell him? I mean it. He might believe you."

The Maharanee sighed. She left Lynn and walked out of the room to find Rundhia.

Lynn was seated in the armchair by the window, staring at an illustrated magazine, when the Maharanee came back.

"Darling, Rundhia has promised."

"What did he promise to do? What can he do?"

"I mean that Captain Norwood can be cleared of the charge of bribery," the Maharanee answered. "However, Rundhia made a condition."

"Maharanee dear! Tell me. Don't prepare me for it. I can take it without our pretending it's something else."

"Very well," said the Maharanee. "Let us be quite frank with each other. Rundhia loves you."

"So says Rundhia."

"And I love you."

"I can believe that," Lynn answered. "Why else should you be so kind? I haven't influence or money."

"You have personality," the Maharanee answered. "You have imagination and spirit. You can redeem Rundhia. So that when the day comes that he shall be Maharajah of Kadur, he will be a great man. Rundhia will do anything for you—anything. Your influence will persuade him to do good things, of that I am sure. Even now, having known you only one day, for your sake he is willing to save Captain Norwood. But he makes conditions."

"Can't he tell them to me?"

"He has gone in search of that creature Gulbaz. Rundhia has taken it for granted that you will accept the conditions, since he has accepted, as a command, your wish that he should help Captain Norwood."

Lynn almost lost her temper. She retorted: "I was treacherous. So was Rundhia. I don't believe Captain Norwood has been! I won't believe it until they prove it."

The Maharanee returned to her subject: "Rundhia insists that you mustn't tell Captain Norwood whose influence it was that saved him. He demands—and I think that is fair, isn't it?—Rundhia can't afford to be compromised—he demands that if Captain Norwood should characteristically force his way into your presence, you will not answer Norwood's questions."

"But I have asked Captain Norwood to come and see me."

The Maharanee's sympathy looked genuine. Lynn didn't doubt it:

"Lynn dear, Rundhia thinks that Captain Norwood probably believes you told about the diamonds because you knew that Captain Norwood was embarrassed by your having seen them, and you wished to punish him for remarks he had made, in the garden, last night. Rundhia thinks that perhaps Captain Norwood won't answer your letter."

Lynn was silent for a long time, thinking. The Maharanee watched her, reading, on Lynn's face, the course of the struggle between pride, humiliation, anger—and some other, western emotion that not even Lynn could have put into words. It was too simple. Too elementary. It escaped analysis. At last Lynn spoke:

"I promise. I won't tell Captain Norwood that Rundhia is helping him. But will Rundhia do it?"

"For you he will do anything," the Maharanee answered.

Norwood sat in his tent and checked Stoddart's survey figures, found a couple of mistakes, corrected them, admonished Stoddart and gave the sergeant instructions for the following day. Nervously he walked the distance between the horse line and his tent.

After the third of his pacings to and fro, he sat at the table in his tent and wrote a letter to Lynn Harding, tore it up, and made several more attempts. He tore up the last one, gathered all the scraps of paper into one heap, carried them to a cook-fire and burned the lot.

He returned to his tent, scraped out a pipe, wrote another letter to Lynn Harding and tore up that one. It was getting on toward dark. The Kadur River was a splurge of crimson. He heard the hoof-beats of O'Leary's horse at about the hour when he had first seen Lynn Harding in the Maharanee's carriage. Norwood's servant came and lighted the lamp in the tent.

Bicycling Has Become a Popular Pastime in France

So popular has bicycling become in France that the French railways make up entire trains of bicycle cars, the same as mail trains, to handle the more than 7,500,000 bicycles now running rampant over the hills and dales, towns and countryside of that nation, where one out of every six of the population owns a bicycle and stays on it most of the time from the cradle to the grave.

Increased production of low-priced cars, the vast network of motor busses, reduced rates on railways, have all failed to lure the French, men, women and children, from their favorite sport, bicycling. And, where they go, near or far, with them goes their bicycle, until, literally, they crowded the passengers right off the trains during week-ends and vacation seasons.

Bicycle vacationists go directly by train to the center of the distant region chosen for the tour and their bicycles will follow by special train within 24 hours. Or, by shipping one day ahead, will be awaiting the owner. After the holiday is over, the bicycle can be sent back the same way.

In Paris the visitor cannot help but be amazed at the thousands of bicyclists who weave their blissful way through traffic, single or tandem, in groups of 10 or 20, apparently with no thought of all the motor traffic around them. In the Seine department in the Paris area alone, there are more than 400,000 bicycle owners, but the north of France has even more, 430,000. The revenue from the bicycle owners in France is nearly 100,000,000 francs in taxes.

Meaning of Name Vincent

The name Vincent, of Latin origin, means "conquering," which makes it an auspicious name. Vincenzo is the Italian form, according to Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. St. Vincent Ferrer (d. 1419) was called "the angel of judgment" and preached throughout Europe. St. Vincent de Paul (b. 1576) devoted his life to the care of the poor. Vincenzo Catena (d. 1531) was a Venetian painter whose contemporaries ranked him with Titian. Vincenzo Campi (d. 1591) also an Italian, excelled in small figures, fruits, etc. Vincente Espinel (d. 1634) was a Spanish poet whose stanzas came to be called espinelas. Vincent Bourne (d. 1747) was a noted English poet of his day.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THERE were rocking chairs hanging from the ceiling of a certain second-hand furniture store. "Nobody wants them any more," mourned the dealer. "I'd sell any one you see for 50 cents." The little bride with me promptly chose one. Perhaps she would paint it for the porch.

What she actually did is shown here in the sketch. The result was the small but comfortable, modern looking chair at the upper left. The bride raided mother's attic for two things that went into the making of this chair. One was an old quilt that she used to pad the back. The other was feathers from an old bolster which were used to stuff a seat cushion tightly so that it would raise the seat which had been lowered by removing the rockers. Cotton basted to muslin could have been used for the back padding and a cotton substitute for the cushion filling.

The new sewing book by Mrs. Spears contains 32 other useful homemaking ideas, with all directions clearly illustrated. You will be delighted with it. The price is only 10 cents postpaid. Enclose coin, with name and address, to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill., and book will come to you by return mail.

'Tis the Head, Not Heart, That Wags the Tongue

In recognition of some service Chief Washakie of the Shoshone Indians had rendered, General Grant sent him a beautiful silver-mounted saddle. It was presented with troops drawn up and a grandiloquent speech by the commanding officer.

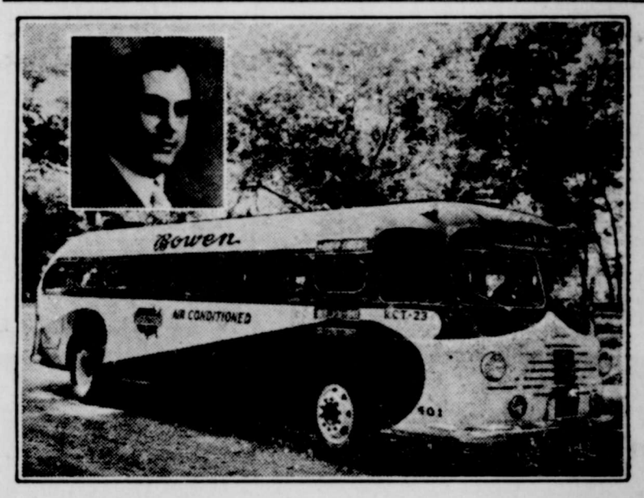
When Washakie was asked if he wished to reply, he shook his head negatively.

"What!" shouted the colonel, "after all you heard you have nothing to say?"

The Indian answered: "White man feels with his head; his head has tongue. Indian feels with his heart; heart no tongue."

In Cause of Peace

For the maintenance of peace, nations should avoid the pinpricks which forerun cannonshots.—Napoleon to the Czar Alexander.



The above picture shows Mr. R. C. Bowen, President of Bowen Motor Coaches, and one of the fleet of more than 40 new air-conditioned Bowen Mainliner Buses operated by his company in Texas from Amarillo on the north to Corpus Christi on the south, Tyler and Beaumont on the east, to San Antonio, San Angelo and Seymour on the west—practically serving all of Texas. The buses cover approximately 22,000 miles daily and serve an average of 5,000 people daily.

Mr. Bowen is a Native Texan and his company is wholly Texas owned and is one of the first in the South to install air conditioning for the comfort of patrons at a cost of more than a hundred thousand dollars. On most everyone's travel they can take advantage of the service of Bowen Buses.—Adv.
