Soil Conservation Applications

All 1939 Soil Conservation Applications for the County are already to be signed. We have not mailed cards to every farmer notifying them to come in and sign up so do not wait for us to notify you to come in and sign up. All the applications are typed and some of them are not completed because of the fact that some of the farmers have not carried out all the soil building practices that the farm can earn and we have been instructed by the State office to give these people until the first of December to earn these additional practices. However, if you do not intend to earn anymore practices, we can complete your application for payment, have you sign it, and transmit it to the State office.

In some cases some farmers have carried out soil building practices and have not reported same to a reporter or to the office. We have no way of knowing this if you are one of these persons, please report to the office at once.

Notice

If you intend to make a change in the farming operations, or to combine or subdivide your farm in 1940, you are requested to report to the office at once so that we may know of the changes that are being made. The office will probably be closed Saturday, November 11, in observance of Armistice Day.

LIBRARY NOTICE

Beginning this Saturday, November 11, the Silverton Library will remain open all day, from one o'clock A. M. until five o'clock P. M.

MILDRED BEAN AND ESKER LEE SMITH MARRIED IN BORGER

A marriage of interest to her many friends is that of Miss Mildred Bean to Esker Lee Smith of Borger. The ring ceremony was performed Saturday October 21st, by the Rev. Hunt, pastor of the Baptist Church in Borger. The bride wore a wine costume with black accessories. She is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bean of this city, and was made her home here many years. She is a graduate of Wayland Junior College of Plainview and is now a Senior in West Texas State College, Canyon.

Esker Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Smith of Borger and a graduate of Borger High School. He is now associated with his father in plumbing business. He is a brother of the bride was best man. An aunt, Mrs. Wisdom Amarillo, acted as Matron of Honor. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Byars, a sister of the bridegroom. They will make their home in Borger.

STUDY CLUB MEETS

The March of Time Study Club entertained with a lecture November 2, Mrs. Jim Willson of Floydada lectured on her trip to the Holy Land. Martinez Cowart gave vocal solo and Lola Fern Foust piano solo. Mrs. Tony Burson presided at the tea table, each guest was given corsage of dwarf mums. Guests for the afternoon were members of the 1925 Study Club.

Flomot	0	0	0	7	7

Coach Aulton Durham's Silverton Owls experienced little or no difficulty in defeating the Flomot Loughorns here Friday afternoon by a score of 25 to 7. Silverton reserves saw a good deal of action in the game and turned in some good playing but were unable to keep the Flomot boys from pushing over their lone score of the game in the final quarter.

First Quarter

The Owls received the kickoff and failed to gain on an exchange of kicks. With Hank Brown and O. C. Rampley alternating on the ball carrying the Owls marched 61 yards in six plays for their first touchdown, the payoff jaunt being for 28 yards with Rampley carrying the mail. Perry's try for conversion was wide and Silverton led 6-0. Flomot took the kickoff and made three firsts and ten but lost the ball on downs as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

The Owls chalked up four first downs while marching 62 yards for their second score with Hank going across for the counter from the two yard line. Flomot managed for four first downs during the remainder of the quarter but were unable to get any closer to paydirt than the Silverton 26 yard line. The first half ended with Flomot in possession of the ball in Silverton territory.

Third Quarter

Flomot received the kickoff but was forced to punt. The Owls picked up a first down on the mid-field stripe. A 38 yard pass, Hank to Rampley, placed the ball 12 yards from paydirt, and on the fourth down Hank hit the line for four yards and the Owls third touchdown. Try for extra point was good. Score: Silverton 19, Flomot 0. The Owls last score came just before the end of the third quarter, when Hank reeled off a 51 yard gallop from scrimmage to end Silverton's scoring for the day. Flomot took the kickoff and opened with a passing attack. Their second toss was intercepted by Rampley who returned it 25 yards to the Flomot 23, as the quarter ended.

Fourth Quarter

The reserves took over at this time and with Jack Burleson carrying the ball marched to the enemy four yard line where a fumble probably cost them a touchdown. Flomot took the ball and immediately drove 92 yards for their only score of the game with Ferris Martin, Flomot back, going over from the three yard line. The try for extra point was good. The game ended a few plays later with Flomot passing incomplete from the Owls 40 yard line. Score: Silverton 25, Flomot 7.

Think back 21 years . . . the war was over . . . and there was never to be another. Yet here we are sitting on a virtual powder keg, and with Europe lining up for another struggle. Every means will be used to drag us into the war.
Think back over those 21 years. What did the war gain us? Nothing but a pile of unpaid debts, thousands of dead and injured soldiers, and an aftermath of the greatest depression in history.
Let us resolve that we won't allow ourselves to be boosted into another foreign war . . . a war that will settle nothing and which will cripple every nation involved.

LISTENING

We sometimes complain that God does not speak to us in some direct way. An ignorant man brought a message to a telegraph operator and sauntered around, awaiting the reply. Becoming impatient, he complained to the operator, who replied: "Your answer is coming now; I am taking it." The ticking of the instrument had meant nothing to the man. He could not recognize his message when he heard it. So it is with us; the Heavenly Father is speaking continuously in the wonders of physical nature, in the beauty and heroism of human lives, and in the still small voice within our hearts. What a wonderful thing it would be if this too-active age could learn how to listen to the All Father. We will continue this thought in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY MEETINGS

On Monday Mrs. Gatewood Lusk was a pleasing hostess to fourteen members of the Presbyterian Women's Auxiliary, at her home west of Silverton.

Mrs. W. E. Sherman was the lesson leader in the study of "The Good News" from the Auxiliary's text book "Through Tragedy to Triumph."

In the business meeting Mrs. Gordon Alexander presided; and it was decided that all ladies of the Presbyterian Church should be asked as guests for the Christmas party at the home of Mrs. O. T. Bundy, December 18.

Mrs. Lusk served dainty refreshments as the members enjoyed a social hour.

NASH - BUCHANAN

Miss Pauline Buchanan, daughter of Mrs. R. L. Buchanan of Texas, became the bride of Mr. E. Covey Nash of Bryan, Texas, on October 28. The marriage was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Jessie Bodenhamer of Bryan.
Mrs. Nash is well-known to Silverton folks, who wish to send their congratulations to the young couple. They will be at home at 803 E. 27th Street, Bryan, Texas.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Roberson spent Sunday in Lockney visiting friends.

ARMISTICE DAY TURKEY DINNER BY GARDEN CLUB

The members of the Garden Club will serve Turkey Dinner Armistice, November 11th in the Tull Building on the south side of the square. The price per plate is 40c and a delicious meal is promised you.
Why not eat with them and help a good cause? The proceeds go to the upkeep of the Silverton cemetery.

DOLLAR RATE NOW FOR THE BRISCOE COUNTY NEWS

Last week the Briscoe County News announced the annual Dollar Offer, to run until the last of this year. Subscribers will welcome the offer this year, especially as there is a season of short crops with us.
The dollar offer comes this year in spite of the fact that it is costing more than ever to produce the paper. Newsprint is higher, more runs are necessary for the press to produce the paper, and wages are higher than at this time last year. Everything points to higher publication costs this next year. However, the dollar offer is just what the "dollar offer" implies—ONE DOLLAR for the Briscoe County News, mailed anywhere in the world for one year.
The offer comes at the time all daily papers have their annual bargain rates in effect, and with any with any daily paper we will combine this paper for only fifty cents additional. For instance, the Fort Worth Star Telegram is $7.45 per year for daily and Sunday. If you subscribe through us you can receive both the Star Telegram and the Briscoe County News for only $7.95. It that a bargain?
We also have combination rates with almost every magazine you may desire. Our one big interest of course, is to get the Briscoe County News into every Briscoe County home.
We have already had several folks to take advantage of these savings. Here are folks who have subscribed during the past few weeks:

- Joe E. Haynes

Mr. and Mrs. Gabe Garrison and Mr. and Mrs. Don Garrison visited in the Carrol Garrison home Sunday.
Mrs. Silas Ellis and Latrice were in South Plains Sunday afternoon visiting Mrs. Ellis' brother, Mrs. Clinton Brown visited Mrs. Printz Brown Monday.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lightsey and Weldon called in the R. B. Byrd home Sunday afternoon.
J. S. Long came home for a week's visit from Dallas where he has been employed with the Superior Rug and Carpet Company.
Rachel Witcher spent Wednesday night with Latrice Ellis.
Mrs. George Seaney and Montie Pitts ate Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Long.

Dave Loughborough, Spanish American War veteran, and one of the most colorful men in this section, passed away here at the W. H. Newman home Sunday morning at sixty years of age. He had been a resident of Briscoe County for over forty years.
Loughborough was rough and ready spoken but at heart one of the most loyal men, to friends and country we have ever known. His family is one of the oldest in America. His mother, Mrs. Loughborough lives in Washington D. C., and is 100 years old. Loughborough, well read in politics, counted among his personal friends, many congressmen, senators, and other influential men in Washington.
He enlisted in the army for the Spanish American War at the age of seventeen, and was badly wounded at the Battle of Manila. After being discharged from the army he came west, and although he has traveled extensively, he always called this home.
Dave Loughborough was almost a tradition, and many are the stories told of his prowess at election time. Stories that were never told were those of money loaned to destitute families, money given to boys to start them on the uphill road again. His good deeds were done solely for the purpose of good . . . had he been asked about them, his answer undoubtedly would have been an abrupt denial. Seemingly hard and bitter, his criticism was always on the side of right. Folks who didn't know Dave didn't like him; those who knew him, loved him. He lived according to a plan of his own and nothing could change him from that plan, which in his own way was "doing a little good here and there."
Mr. Loughborough had been in ill health for several months and had been until a few days before his death, confined in the Veterans Hospital at Albuquerque. He returned last week but grew rapidly worse, and died Sunday morning at the home of W. H. Newman, where he had made his home for the past twenty-five years. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the School Auditorium, and the place was filled with mourning friends, gathered to pay their last respects. Judge O. R. Tipps, and Judge A. J. Foley spoke briefly of this man whom they had known for many years.
The body was shipped to Washington, D. C. for burial in the family plot.
He is survived by his mother, two sisters and one brother, and by a host of friends who are grief stricken at the loss of this man who stood on his own feet, and who played the game the way he saw it.

QUITAUQUE TO PLAY HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Game May Be Deciding One In Conference Play
The Quitauque Panthers will journey to Silverton Friday afternoon, and play the Silverton Owls, in an attempt to cinch their lead for District honors, and to knock Silverton one peg farther down the line. At present Quitauque has a standing of 750 percent with one game won and one tied. Silverton has won one and lost one for a standing of 500. However the game Silverton lost was really a tie with Estelline 7-7, but was forfeited because of an ineligible man.
Quitauque also tied with Estelline and so from that standpoint, Friday's game is a toss-up, and only the game itself will tell the outcome. It is this writer's personal opinion (which means nothing at all) that Silverton will take the boys from under the hill by at least two touchdowns. However, do not put any money on the line, unless you want to spend a couple of anxious hours Friday afternoon . . . wondering.
The game is called for two o'clock Friday afternoon on the Silverton field. Let's all be there . . . and let's all help these kids win. A big enthusiastic crowd is the first step.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LABINE

Rumania May Be Next Victim Of Soviet's Westward Drive; Dull War Hurts Nazi Morale

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

SPEAKING OF—

AVIATION. As Clyde Schlieper and Wes Carroll landed their endurance seaplane at Los Angeles with a world's record (726 hours aloft, three days better than the old mark), two Peruvian brothers left Floyd Bennett field in New York on a non-stop flight back to Lima.

LABOR. Acting Navy Secretary Charles Edison reported to the house naval affairs committee that C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers union was jeopardizing the navy's aviation defense program through a strike at the Bohm Aluminum & Brass factory in Detroit.

NAVY'S EDISON. No admittance. A naval inspector, calling at the strike-bound factory to collect vital U. S.-owned patterns and designs, was turned back by pickets. Originally the incident was publicized by Michigan's Republican Rep. Clare Hoffman.

AGRICULTURE. With U. S. soybeans selling abroad six times better than in 1938 thanks to the war, farm officials think 1940's wheat, beef and cotton crops might be boosted if Germany's U-boats hamper British-French communications with their colonies. Otherwise beef slaughter will drop because of poor winter feeding prospects. Meanwhile severe west and southwest droughts endanger the nation's breadbasket again.

INDIA. When a British white paper postponed "until after the war" consideration of India's plea for dominionization, the Madras provincial government resigned and bitterness grew apace.

GANDHI. Subtle warning. Commented India's Mohandas Gandhi: "I wonder if dominion status has any meaning unless it is synonymous with independence. India's co-operation in the war is not as barren as Hoare believes. It will continue effective, if the Congress party remains non-violent." But violence may result if Britain fails to back-water immediately.

LOUISIANA. When New Orleans grand jurors howled after District Attorney Charles A. Byrnes allegedly blocked their probe of tax corruption, Byrnes resigned and was replaced by Niels Hertz under appointment of Gov. Earl K. Long. Hertz' first act: To close the hearing, where it was being charged the city lost hundreds of thousands of dollars through the alleged tax racket. Next day the U. S. stepped in with a federal grand jury.

did not look like a German-French war. Neither did the communiques. Said Berlin: "No special happenings." Said Paris: "Very reduced activity during the night."

There was no sign of peace behind German lines, however. Allied reconnaissance revealed about 1,500,000 Nazi troops concentrated on Swiss, Belgian, Netherlands and French frontiers, indicating a possible invasion of the lesser neutral states. Opposing them were the same number of French troops and about 158,000 British.

Still the war did not start despite frontier jitters which were heightened when the Reich cut telephone communications all along this 500-mile frontier. Observers believed only bad weather or Adolf Hitler's whim stood between German troops and a large-scale offensive. There was also a chance Hitler awaited support from Russia.

Nazism had no fear of an allied offensive, but that very assurance constituted an even greater fear. Poorly fed and nervously strained, Germany cannot endure a long war of attrition such as Britain and France will no doubt wage. Some observers believe the "war of nerves" which Hitler used to such advantage earlier this year is now rebounding, and that Nazism may soon give way to army rule.

CONGRESS: To the House British-French cheers reverberated across the Atlantic when the U. S. senate passed, 63 to 30, the administration's neutrality bill which permits cash-and-carry sale of munitions to belligerents. Berlin was resentful and Rome was sad, the latter forecasting a longer war if America aided the allies. In Russia, the newspaper Izvestia commented sourly that "war in Europe was met by Wall Street with poorly disguised rejoicing in expectation of profits on war orders."

(The U. S. was already on bad terms with Russia since the U. S. City of Flint, seized by Germany, had been taken to far-north Murmansk, repaired, and released by the Soviet to her German prize crew. All U. S. diplomatic efforts to locate the Flint's American crew were ignored, but it was learned the 41 men were aboard as the ship sailed for Germany. Stopping at Tromsø, Norway, the Flint was ordered away.)

Still awaited was the house vote on neutrality. Administration leaders arranged to have the rules committee bring out a simple resolution sending the measure to conference with the senate, a move made possible by the house's passage of a modified version of the program last summer. Then the only house vote on the embargo would center on a resolution to instruct house agents to insist on the partial arms embargo. If the resolution failed, quick agreement was certain since most conferees are pro-repeal.

As house debate opened, administrationists forecast victory by at least 30 points. Isolationists, insisting the result would hinge on about 10 votes, hoped pressure from back home would sway fence straddlers to their side.

But after neutrality, what next? Although Franklin Roosevelt wanted congress to go home, many an anti-New Dealer wanted to sit pat until the war was over—whether a year or a decade.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Madman With the Bottle"

HELLO EVERYBODY: You know, they say troubles come singly—which is just another way of saying that Old Lady Adventure is never content with giving you just one sock on the jaw. I don't know how true that is, but it certainly worked out that way in the case of Hattie Rohr of Chicago.

Hattie's big bout with Old Lady Adventure came in the winter of 1917. There was trouble enough in the world then, without having the old girl with the thrill bag on your neck. The war was on and the influenza epidemic was sweeping the country. Hattie, in those days, was just an eleven-year-old girl, living with her mother and dad and three sisters on a farm between Clare and Dodge City, Iowa. Her name then was Hattie McLaughlin.

The flu epidemic struck the McLaughlin family in January. It brought down Hattie's dad and her three sisters, and that left Hattie and her mother to do all the chores around that big farm. It was one of those days when everything seemed to go wrong. Mother had just come from upstairs to call the doctor. Dad and the three sick girls were worse. While they were waiting for the doctor the party-line phone rang. It was the school teacher, down with the flu herself, who wanted Hattie to go to the schoolhouse and post a notice saying there would be no school that day.

Already tired from her morning's work, Hattie struggled more than a mile through the snow to post that notice. She found two small children shivering in the cold, waiting for the school to open, and took them to her home and phoned their father to come and get them. And no sooner had he come and gone with his pair of kids than Hattie heard another knock on the door.

Stranger Comes In for Tea.

A strange man was out front. He said he was a telephone lineman from Clare, and wanted to know if he could come in and get warm. Hattie and her mother asked him in and gave him a cup of tea to warm him up. While he was drinking his tea and eating a piece of corn bread, Hattie and her mother went on with their work. Nothing unusual happened until he had finished eating and drinking. Then the stranger got up and walked over to the stove.

"She was out of her chair and darting across the room. Reaching out quickly she grabbed the knife!"

It was such an unusual movement that Hattie stopped to watch him. He backed up against the stove as if to warm himself, but Hattie saw one of his hands slide into his pocket and come out holding a tiny bottle.

There was a pot of beans boiling on the stove. Slowly, shielded by his body, the stranger's hand crept up and emptied the contents of the bottle into the pot of beans!

Her mother hadn't seen it, but Hattie was standing in such a position that she could see every move he made. She was startled—frightened. An older person might have said nothing, for fear of precipitating trouble. That mother and child were defenseless, with dad ill in bed upstairs. But kids of Hattie's age don't stop to think of those things. She let out a scream and then, impulsively, she darted across the room and knocked the bottle from the man's hand.

Out Comes a Long, Thin-Bladed Knife.

Her mother turned to see what was the matter. At the same time, the stranger reached inside his coat, pulled out a long, thin-bladed knife, and slashed Hattie across the legs. Blood began to flow from a long deep cut. Dazed at the turn affairs had taken, Hattie backed away, staring at the man. The man stood, knife in hand, staring back at Hattie. Her mother was staring at both of them. For a minute there was a deadly silence.

The man made no other move—said nothing. Hattie and her mother were too frightened to speak. They began to realize the fellow was stark mad. Hattie sat down, took off a stocking and tied it about her wound. The man stood looking, first at her, then at her mother. He waited until she was finished tying up her bleeding leg, and then he walked across the room to where her mother was standing, breathless and paralyzed with fright, AND RAISED THE KNIFE.

And again Hattie acted impulsively. In an instant she was out of her chair and darting across the room. Reaching out quickly, she grabbed the knife!

The man gave the knife a quick pull. It came out of Hattie's hand, cutting it clear to the bone at the base of the thumb. Crying out in pain, she grabbed at her wrist with her other hand. The madman shoved her away, and knocked her mother down.

For another moment Hattie stood dazed. The man fell on her mother, sat on her chest and began choking her. And at last, a sudden change came over Hattie. Before, she had been frightened—trembling. Now she became furious. A red mist seemed to drop before her eyes. She grabbed up a piece of wood from the pile beside the stove, raised it over her head and brought it down, as hard as she could, on the madman's head.

The man rolled over and lay still. Hattie's wrist was still bleeding and her mother tied it up tightly to stop the flow. They got ropes and tied the man's hands behind his back and then—well—then Hattie keeled over in a dead faint.

When she came to, the doctor had been to the house. He had sewed up Hattie's wounds and she had never known a thing about it. The doctor also took the madman back to town and turned him over to the police. They found out later that he had escaped from an institution down in the South, where he had been put for murder.

And when they analyzed that pot of beans into which he had emptied that bottle, it was found that they were poisoned!

Maternity Death Rate Could Be Cut in Half

The lives of 6,000 mothers could be saved every year by prompt and proper medical care, Dr. Phillip R. Williams, of Philadelphia, said recently at the first American Congress of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The maternal death rate in the United States is lower than ever before in history, but it is still "disgracefully high" in view of the present knowledge of medical men, Dr. Williams said.

The death rate of mothers declined from 57 out of every 10,000 during 1936 to 49 out of every 10,000 in 1937. Dr. Williams pointed out, however, that this might be cut in half if physicians made use of all available knowledge and if prospective mothers asked for medical attention early.

In addition, the lives of about half of the babies who die in childbirth or soon after might be saved by application of medical methods which are not now generally applied. During 1937, the last year for which statistics are available, 119,921 babies died.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:19-34. GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow: "I should really like to know Why these anxious human beings Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin: "Friend, I think that it must be That they have no Heavenly Father Such as cares for you and me." —Elizabeth Cheney.

Most men are rushing about madly. They worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body. Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places. Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

I. Money (vv. 19-24). The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only as he hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his sacrificial giving to the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise of some when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the other hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32). Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34). Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as your personal Saviour and let Him solve the problems of your life as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been bearing burdens which are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus? "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worryeth about you."

Be Still Then and Know Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone. —F. W. Robertson.

BAND SETUP GETS AWAY

Don Walton Terry is now daily instruction to thirty students in the band. There are three sections in the band and nine in the beginning section. It is expected that students will enroll in the future and by mid-term there will be forty students in the band.

Has Pauline Steele really started to college or has college begun here especially for her?

Were Bernard Havran and Jonnie Quillen stood up Sunday night?

Is O. C. really a woman hater or is he just resting?

Is it true that football boys go to bed early or did I see two in Plainview Sunday night?

Do Carl Dean, Monte Bob, and Raymond Lee go dancing for the true purpose of dancing or holding the girls?

Does Gloria Zoe Vinsen play tennis for fun, or so she can watch the football boys practice?

Is Durene Strickland really in love with a man in uniform or is it pretense?

I didn't know we had mocking birds going to our school or is it just a few extra loud singers in the picture show left over from Friday night?

Does W. L. Perry come to school early to hear Coach run over football plays or to sit on the steps and patiently watch and wait for Nina Rhea?

Was Billy Jop's and Bruce Jr.'s joke worked out to perfection at Vinsen's Sunday night or did Roberta hide and in that way place the joke on them?

forms. Of course, all we can do is to think about it now until times get better. If however a good wheat crop is made and times improve we may be able to see some uniforms in sight by the next opening of school. The band then will become a permanent fixture of the school and will probably be used to represent the school in many contests at Silverton as well as those away from home. Students who are members of the band will gain much and will lose nothing

SNOOPING SALLY

Was it really Bob Brooks and Lucile Kirk holding hands in the gym Saturday evening?

What were Clynelle Hutsell, Martinez Cowart, and Lola Fern Foust doing standing in a chair all afternoon at the game Friday? Did they really want to see better or to be seen?

PERSONALS

Ardis Joiner spent the week end with her family and friends at Silverton.

Len Lee, who is attending Tech this year, spent the week end at home.

Willene Bomar went to Lubbock Sunday to visit Daphne Ferne Blackwell for a few days.

Do Rex Douglas and Guinn Williamson really go courting on a bicycle?

Who was seen borrowing a fox tail from Arnold Brown's car Sunday night?

A good one on W. L. Perry during the Flomot game—at the half. W. L.: "Coach, we're sure handling that Jacobs in there at guard." Coach: "You bet you are—he is sitting on the bench in civilian clothes."

Well, if I told anymore my days would be numbered so until next time "ALOHA."

The local FFA boys were hosts to their mothers Saturday night at the first Mother and Son Banquet to be held in Silverton. Ninety-six members and guests enjoyed a three course dinner. The Menu consisted of:

Orange Cocktail
Roast Chicken Chestnut Dressing
String Beans Stuffed Potato
Cranberry Sauce
Rolls Salad Coffee
Pumpkin Pie Whipped Cream

The food was prepared and served by the Home Making Department.

The tables were colorfully decorated with FFA colors, blue and gold. Center pieces were of seasonal fruits, autumn leaves, and nuts.

The invocation was given by Rev. Frank Beauchamp and the meeting was then called to order by the FFA president, Bob Brooks, and formally opened by the officers. Toastmaster, Guinn Williamson, gave the welcome address; the response being made by Mrs. T. C. Bomar. Pascal Garrison introduced the honorary members of the Silverton Chapter. The guests were introduced by the toastmaster. Paul S. Rogers made a short talk.

The FFA sweetheart, Pauline Steele, was introduced next by the toastmaster. O. T. Ryan delivered the main address of the evening.

The meeting was formally closed by the FFA officers. Music throughout the evening was furnished by Corrine Brooks, Winnie Thomas, Alva C. Jasper, and Billy Jack Lawson.

CHAPEL

The entire student body assembled last Thursday for an enjoyable chapel program given by members of the Sixth grade. The program consisted of two short plays, several musical numbers, and a boxing match and tumbling act.

Preceding the Sixth Grade presentation, Lanette Sherman was crowned Carnival Queen by Mr. Spencer.

BROOKS TELLS OF NATIONAL F. F. A. CONVENTION

Arrival in Kansas City I stayed in a hotel room and a program.

On Monday morning I registered at the Foyer and attended the session in the Municipal Court. The first session was the reports of the National F. F. A. officers. On Monday I visited the American and the stock judge of the American Royal Horse Show also held there.

I found me at the airport over the huge airplanes. Evening I again visited the American Royal horse show judging.

Monday I went through several sessions of interest. Some of the Swift and Combs Plant, the Memorial Union Station, and the American Royal Building.

ARMISTICE DAY

By Nona Lee Davenport

Armistice day means much to the people of the United States and other countries.

November 11, 1918, fighting ceased in the World War. The Armistice was signed by Germany and the Allies. On November 11, in all the allied countries, there is some commemoration made. Eleven o'clock is the hour at which hostilities ceased. There should be, and usually is, silence for a few minutes in celebration of that event.

Most states in the United States have set Armistice Day aside as a legal holiday. November 3, the anniversary of the Armistice between Austria-Hungary and the Allies, is celebrated in Italy.

Saturday morning at eleven o'clock is the time for a few minutes of silence in memory of November 11, 1918.

OWLS BATTER LONGHORNS 25-7

In a game which provided plenty of thrills and excitement for everyone, the Silverton Owls came out the long end of the score which was 25 to 7.

The Owls started their scoring spree late in the first quarter, the first part of which proved uneventful until this point, when Rampley took the ball and reeled off 23 yards for the first tally. Perry's kick wasn't good, and the Owls had 6-0.

The highlight of the second quarter was a pass from Brown to Martin who made one of the most beautiful catches we've seen. This pass also accounted for a first down for the Owls, and started them pushing toward the Flomot goal line. Rampley then made another first down, which put the Owls pretty close to pay dirt. Hank's line plunge resulted in six more points for the Owls. Perry's kick for extra point was wide.

Flomot received the kick-off, managed to chalk up two first downs, but they failed to make another and punted on the fourth down to the Owls. The Owls bid for a first down was repulsed, and the fourth down punt went out on the Flomot 40 yard line just before the half ended.

The third quarter proved to be very exciting as far as the Owls were concerned, because two more touchdowns for Silverton were run over in this period. The first touchdown march started when Hank passed to Rampley who reached the Flomot 12 yard line before he was tackled. Hank again pushed over for the score, and, as if that weren't enough, he passed to Grady who made the extra point, which made the score 19-0.

Flomot received the kick-off but failed to make a first down, and a fourth down punt put the ball back down in the Owls' territory, where the Owls carried it on. A pass from Hank to Jack Burleson, which was good for a first down, started things moving, but an incomplete pass slowed things for the minute, until the next

SILVERTON JUNIORS BEAT QUITAQUE JUNIORS, 13-6

In a game which featured some nice playing by both teams, the Silverton Juniors ended up seven points better than the Quitaque Juniors.

Silverton's two touchdowns came in the second and third quarters respectively. Bobbie Olive made both scores, the first being run over from the four yard line and the second from the eight yard line. Olive also was responsible for the extra point being made after the first touchdown.

The Quitaque score came in the third quarter after Silverton had been penalized half the distance to the goal line for unnecessary roughness. It was first and goal to go after the penalty had been assessed, so the Quitaque bunch made good use of the break, and carried the ball over for six points, but the try for extra point was unsuccessful.

When the game ended, the score was still 13 to 6 in favor of the Silverton team.

PERSONALITY PARADE

The Senior Class proudly presents a girl who transferred to us from Rock Creek.

This girl is a real blond, has big green eyes, and is five feet tall. Although her name is Margaret Sue, she has been dubbed Sue by her many friends both in school and out. Sue is a great favorite of the teachers and also of the girls with whom she plays basketball. She is an active member of the pep squad and has been since she enrolled here in '36.

Being a senior, she has taken part in nearly all of our enterprises to raise money for the senior trip which we plan to take at the end of our school year. She carries four subjects at this time, and her secret ambition when she finishes in 1940, is to become a nurse. If this ambition is carried out, our class wishes for her all the luck the world may possibly bestow.

Evelyn Coffee visited in Borger over the week end.

"Yours true'y"

(Found on a crumpled piece of paper on one of the benches of City Hall Park, New York City)

TO A NINE INCH GUN

Whether your shell hits the target or not, your cost is five hundred dollars a shot. You think of noise and flame and power. We feed you a hundred barrels of flour. Each time you roar. Your flame is fed.

With twenty thousand loaves of bread. Silence: A million hungry men seek bread to fill their mouths again.

Yours Truly should be asleep. A little press trouble last night and when I crawled in it was a little after two. Up again at six-thirty and it's almost more than an old man can take. There's only one consolation and that is that I'm making plenty of dough.

IT ISN'T VERY often that this column stoops to doing advertising. However I will break loose just once. Here she goes: "An old lady was riding on a bus that was stopping at every small town through which it passed. Finally after the tenteenth stop, she went up and complained to the driver. 'What is the matter with this bus,' she asked. 'It seems to me that it stops at every other telegraph pole.'" "Yes, ma'am," the driver explained, "You see, this is a Greyhound bus."

COMES IN RENA with the Aggie Briefs. In fact I think she wrote them this week. And she cheerfully announces that the office will be closed Saturday for INDEPENDENCE Day. Tch! Tch!

SATURDAY IS Armistice Day. And it's a very much different holiday than the one we celebrated 21 years ago. Then, there was to be no more wars. America had saved. Democracy and had made the world safe to live in. Thousands of boys had willingly sacrificed their lives, believing that there would be no more wars. And now only 21 years after . . . just long enough for the babies born then to be soldiers now . . . Europe it at it again tooth and toenail. For what? They don't know themselves. One little runt with a warped mind and a Charlie Chaplin mustache has undone whatever good might have been done by the sacrifice of millions of men.

LET US THIS DAY resolve to do our utmost to stay out of war. Europe will always have their wars. They are too crowded, too greedy for land. But, we in America, if we will, really need have no other wars. Let's keep the faith with those men who gave everything they had, that there would be no more war.

THE AMARILLO Daily News had a picture last week that I thought was really good. One half of the picture showed a football player missing a tackle. The other showed a boy of the same age going forward with fixed bayonet. Below the picture it said "The American lad has missed his tackle. His penalty will be perhaps a skinned face and the loss of a few yards. The European boy is playing a game too, but if HE misses, the penalty is DEATH."

AND SPEAKING of football. The game of games is Friday. Quitaque and Silverton seem to be as nearly matched as ever in history. The game is a toss-up absolutely. There will be plenty of Quitaque money afloat Friday. And Silverton sports are covering it. There will be sad hearts and empty purses when Friday night comes. Personally I think that Silverton has the best team by two touchdowns at least. BUT whether or not they get those two touchdowns remains to be seen . . . I'll risk-fourbits.

IF RAMPLEY, BROWN, Martin and a few of our lads are hitting their stride, the Quitaque team can't be produced that can stop them.

OH, YES. IT'S been a long time since I have used this column as Cupid to bring happiness to lost and forlorn bachelors. But girls, this new handman, Don Terry, I do believe, has plenty on the ball. I believe that there is a good chance for some Silverton girl to get a roommate. (Please mention the Briscoe County News when answering this advertisement).

JOIN THE RED CROSS. The

drive opens Saturday and Silverton has been given a quota of 150. We can do that and more. It may be seems like a hard year to be "giving" . . . in fact a man told me that the drive would flop, and that this year we shouldn't be asked to join. That bird should know better than that. I guess that he has forgotten that a few years ago the Red Cross sent in several thousand dollars to Briscoe County for direct relief here. We will never get that paid back, and as far as that goes we aren't supposed to pay it back. But we should be loyal enough to support the Red Cross, when it takes only a dollar membership to do it. "Cast your bread upon the water . . ."

WELL, FOLD UP your paper and let's go to the game. I'm very much in favor of a Silverton victory. In fact if we don't win, I'm going to be like the little pig who sat down on nail. All he could say ever after that was "Ruint, ruint, ruint".

ARMISTICE DAY

Twenty one years ago the greatest war in history came to an end, with American Soldiers turning the tide of battle for the Allies. It was a day of great rejoicing the world over.

Now after twenty one years, to us memories have dimmed—to the boys who were in . . . are strong as ever. And with that memory lies the simple fact—the uselessness of it all.

Let us take time this Armistice Day to honor those who fought in that other war, and to firmly resolve to refuse to be drawn into another.

Keith Pearce

What's the Answer?
By EDWARD FINCH

WHY DO I LAUGH WHEN I AM TICKLED?

WHEN you are tickled on the feet or anywhere else you might be sensitive, a certain set of muscles and nerves are set into action. This action sends to the brain a spontaneous reaction causing a laugh. This same set of muscles and nerves are set into motion by a funny sight or sound causing the same reaction—a laugh. Just as when one person presses certain strings on the violin and draws a bow across them a certain sound is produced, so will the very same sound come forth when another person sets into action the same strings and pressure and bow.

The Bengali backed away from Norwood. He looked three shades paler. He was trembling. The Maharajah's right hand seized the drumstick of the golden gong. He raised it.

"No," said Norwood. "Not yet, please, Your Highness."

The Maharajah stared. He seemed uncertain whether to feel flattered or offended. He laid down the drumstick and resumed the tapping on the desk with his fingernails.

"I become nervous," he said, "without my tonic. This is very bad for my nerves. Captain Norwood, how did you know about this?"

Norwood answered without looking at him. He was watching the Bengali and the white-clad servant:

"I didn't know. I guessed it. Both of you, go and stand over in that corner, with your backs to the wall!"

The servant obeyed promptly. He went down on his knees in the corner. He put his hands together and held them in front of his face. The Bengali backed away slowly, watching Norwood's eyes. He backed until he reached a bookcase. Suddenly he snatched a stamp album and buried it at the goblet. Norwood caught the album in his right hand, by one leaf of the cover. He set the goblet on the desk, without spilling more than two or three drops. Then he closed the album carefully and gave it to the Maharajah. The Maharajah petted it, stroked it:

"My collection of Cape of Good Hope! My triangular black!" He glared at the Bengali. "You vandall! Now I know you are guilty! Why did you throw it?"

The Bengali had recovered some of his presence of mind: "It was at him I threw it. By his touch he has defiled your drinking goblet! He is a bribe-taker! I suspect him of having tampered with your tonic. What has he put into it? I advise Your Highness not to taste it!"

The door behind the screen opened, closed again, and the Maharajah appeared. Norwood bowed to her, but she took no notice of him. She went straight to the Maharajah, knelt beside his chair, and whispered. He grumbled at her, sotto voce. She continued whispering. At last he nodded. She stroked his right hand, murmured traditional phrases of respect and left the room. She didn't even glance at the Bengali.

"I need my tonic," said the Maharajah. "I am becoming more nervous each minute."

"Whiskey and soda should be a good prescription for that," said Norwood. "I'd have brought a flash if I had any sense. I didn't think of it."

"I have never defiled myself with whiskey," said the Maharajah.

Norwood kept his eye on the Bengali: "If you had never drunk anything worse than a scotch and soda, they wouldn't be betting in Kadur bazaar that you'll be dead by midnight. Any money on it, doctor? What odds did you get?"

The door behind the screen opened again. The Maharajah reappeared, veiled. She was followed by Lynn, and then Rundhia. Rundhia looked startled. He shot one penetrating glance at the Bengali, then at Norwood, then at the Maharajah. He made a very obvious effort to recover self-possession.

"Captain Norwood," said the Maharajah, "why did you wish to see me?"

"About this," said Norwood. He hadn't time to reply decently. He had noticed that Rundhia was trying to signal the Bengali through the opening under the desk, so he got in the way. As soon as Rundhia had stood up again, Norwood spoke:

"Rundhia, here's something for your bruised face. Come and drink it."

Lynn stared with parted lips from one man to the other. Rundhia glanced at her; he looked stung, scared, sullen. Norwood hadn't looked at Lynn once since she entered the room.

The Maharajah pointed the gong drumstick at the Bengali: "Stand still," he commanded. "If you are unable to stand, you may sit—on the floor—where you are."

"Rundhia," said Norwood, "how about a trial by ordeal? You have accused me, behind my back. I accuse you, to your face, of an attempt to poison His Highness. What do you say? Shall we share this drink together? You drink half. I'll drink what's left."

"You are the last man I would drink with," Rundhia retorted.

Norwood laughed. He thrust his right hand into his tunic. "Steady, Rundhia! Keep your hand away from your pocket. I have you covered.—Lynn! Reach into Rundhia's hip-pocket and put his pistol on the desk!"

Lynn stared—resentful, alarmed, puzzled. Parted lips. Wide blue eyes. Frowning.

Norwood repeated the order: "Lynn, do as I tell you!"

Lynn felt in his pocket. She laid an automatic on the table: "Rundhia," she said, "I didn't think that of you."

"Rundhia!" said the Maharajah. She had unveiled her face.

Lynn spoke again: "Rundhia, you came to offer Captain Norwood something else than that, didn't you. Where is it?"

Rundhia snarled: "Tell him to put his own pistol on the desk."

"I haven't one," said Norwood. He reached for Rundhia's pistol, jerked it open and broke it.

There came a knock at the door. The Maharajah rearranged her veil. Norwood stepped aside, keeping his eyes on Rundhia, who was biting his lip. The Maharajah tapped the gong with his fingers. The door opened. The attendant bowed in the Resident and closed the door behind him. Norwood, still holding the goblet in his left hand, reopened the door and jerked his head at the Bengali:

"Get out!" he commanded.

The Resident stared. He almost forgot to bow to the Maharajah. He watched the Bengali leave the room. Then he looked at Norwood again and raised his eyebrows.

"I have never defiled myself with whiskey," said the Maharajah.

Norwood spoke sotto voce: "Did my man follow you?"

"Yes," said the Resident.

"All right then. The doctor won't get far."

"You surprise us," said the Maharajah. "We are overburdened with joy by this visit. But what does it mean?"

The Resident looked comfortless: "I am at a loss for an answer! Captain Norwood sent me a sort of SOS. He—"

"May I speak?" asked Norwood. The Resident answered: "I think you'd better, if His Highness—"

"Yes, please," said the Maharajah.

"Rundhia," said Norwood. He held up the blue goblet in his left hand, almost as if he were going to drink a toast: "Let's hear your accusation. What have you against me?"

Rundhia eyed him sullenly: "Nothing," he answered. "I don't know you."

Norwood smiled: "Very cautious of you, Rundhia. I am really alive."

The Resident also smiled. He startled everyone by saying:

"Rundhia, there is a conversation on record. Of course, only my version of it. But I refused, you remember, to treat it as confidential. I made a memorandum of it."

Rundhia swallowed what was left of his dignity. He was looking beaten. He spoke as if the insolence had all oozed out of him:

"I forget what I said. I withdraw it anyhow. I have already written this."

He groped in his inside pocket, avoiding Lynn's eyes, although Lynn looked sympathetic. He produced an envelope, strode past Lynn and offered it to Norwood. Norwood waved it aside and jerked his head toward the Resident.

The Resident accepted the envelope, and bowed to the Maharajah: "You permit me?"

"By all means. I am fascinated," Lynn was watching the Resident. He had opened the envelope. He read the letter. He passed it to Norwood:

"Is this satisfactory to you, Norwood?"

"It's entirely up to you, sir. I accept it if you do."

The Resident stepped forward and laid the letter in front of the Maharajah: "Will your Highness please read that and, if you see fit, witness it? I have a gallant officer here in need of a rebuttal of some secret accusations that might ruin his career."

The Maharajah read, stared at the Resident, stared at Rundhia, stared at Norwood, reached for his fountain pen and signed.

Rundhia recovered a bit of his insolence. "Are you satisfied?" he demanded.

"No," said Norwood. "Not yet." He reached for the goblet—raised it, sniffed it, smiled at Rundhia. Then he looked straight at Lynn.

Lynn was watching the Maharajah, but she seemed conscious of Norwood's stare. Rundhia whispered to her, but she took no notice.

"Rundhia," said Norwood, "I will ask you two questions. Answer whichever you please. What is in this goblet?"

The Maharajah pulled herself to her feet, picked up her cushion and went and knelt at the Maharajah's left hand, so that she could watch Rundhia:

"Rundhia," she said, "answer!"

Rundhia said nothing; he glared at Norwood. Lynn turned in her chair to watch Rundhia's face. Norwood spoke again:

"You don't answer the first one? Very well, here's the other: why did you sign that retraction? I didn't ask you for it. Who did?"

Rundhia was silent.

"Speak!" said the Maharajah. She had unveiled her face. She was looking at Lynn.

Rundhia glanced at Lynn. Lynn looked suddenly straight at Norwood and spoke with such strained emotion that her voice sounded fiercely angry:

"Captain Norwood, I asked Rundhia to write that. If it isn't what you wanted, you may blame me."

Norwood's lips moved toward a smile, but he saw her embarrassment, so he checked it. He looked straight in her eyes for several seconds before he looked at Rundhia again:

"Substitute question, Rundhia! You didn't answer that one. How much did you charge for this retraction of your accusation against me?"

Rundhia had had time to consider. He sneered: "I wrote that as an act of magnanimity. Was it wasted on you?"

Norwood glanced quickly at Lynn. "No, no, Rundhia, it wasn't wasted. But tell us all what is in this goblet. I could have it analyzed. Perhaps you would prefer to consult that Bengali doctor before you answer? Question a bit awkward? Your trouble is that you can't guess how much I know, can you? Can you guess why I let the Bengali leave the room? Any chance that he betrayed you? Rather drop the question? Very well, answer the other: how much or what did you charge, and to whom, for the magnanimous retraction of your accusation against me? I insist on an answer."

Rundhia spoke sullenly: "Nothing. No one. I don't even know what you mean."

Norwood looked at Lynn. Her lips moved. He was in time to check her.

"Please say nothing! I want Rundhia to tell it—Rundhia, choose. I won't wait all night. Account for the contents of this goblet—or else answer: what promise have you exacted—from whom?"

The Maharajah spoke in a strained voice: "Answer him, Rundhia."

Rundhia was silent. Lynn stared. He avoided her eyes.

"If I should have to mention this goblet again," said Norwood, "I will ask His Highness the Maharajah to summon the guard. What promise have you exacted from whom as the price of your signing that retraction?"

"There was no price."

The Maharajah was looking at Lynn. She spoke suddenly: "Run-dhia, speak like a man! There was a promise!"

Rundhia stared at his feet. He had the grace to speak as if he were ashamed. He almost mumbled: "I release her from the promise."

Norwood looked at Lynn steadily: "Do you accept that?"

"No I refuse. Is this your vengeance? It's cruel. Doesn't the retraction satisfy you?"

Norwood smiled at Lynn and made a reassuring gesture. Rundhia stared; he looked astonished. The Maharajah stood up. Norwood spoke:

"Lynn, did Rundhia tell you that I tore up your letter? He lied. Your aunt gave it to me less than an hour ago. It reached her by mistake in the wrong envelope."

"I confirm that," said the Resident.

Lynn stood up and waited for Rundhia to speak. He didn't.

"Rundhia," she said, "did you hear that?" Then, turning: "Thank you, Captain Norwood."

"Just a misunderstanding," Norwood answered. "I will explain it later."

Lynn shook her head. Her eyes met his but she made no reply. She left the room by the door behind the screen. The Maharajah followed her. Silence.

The Resident wiped his face with the handkerchief: "Steady, Norwood," he said. "Steady." He spoke aloud to the Maharajah:

"Does Your Highness wish—"

"I wish for tranquillity! I do not care to know any more!"

"Carry on!" said the Resident. "Careful!"

Norwood raised the goblet, this time in his right hand: "You don't deserve this, Rundhia. You're a blackguard." He glanced at the Resident: "You agree, sir?"

The Resident nodded. The Maharajah stared, fascinated. Norwood spilled the contents of the goblet on the floor.

The Maharajah turned to Rundhia:

"Leave the room. Never return." Rundhia moved toward the door behind the screen, but the Resident jumped out of his chair. Rundhia began to hurry. Norwood was too quick. He shoved the screen in Rundhia's way. It banged against the door and the noise almost made the Maharajah scream.

"Your Highness," said the Resident, "in Prince Rundhia's presence, I take this opportunity to inform you that I have written to His Majesty's advisers, strongly recommending them to exercise their veto in the matter of Prince Rundhia's succession to the throne of Kadur."

"You have already written?"

"I have mailed the letter."

"I resign," said Rundhia sullenly. "You and your veto may go to the devil."

"May I speak to Your Highness alone?" asked the Resident.

The Maharajah scowled at Rundhia: "Go out that way!" He pointed to the door into the anteroom.

Rundhia walked out. Norwood followed. He overtook Rundhia at the head of the stairs, and Rundhia turned about and faced him:

"I sincerely regret," he remarked, looking straight into Norwood's eyes, "that the men who fired at you, missed."

"Yes, you had rotten luck, Rundhia. What will you do—go to Europe? The Riviera? That's crowded with might-have-beens who insisted on hitting below the belt. D'you know, Rundhia, if I had even suspected you of having put one over on Lynn Harding, I would have let you hang. You know, they hang even princes who play at your game." He laughed. "No, Rundhia, no. You will walk ahead of me down the stairs. I know that trick."

ROLL-YOUR-OWNERS, READ THESE SMOKING FACTS!

In recent laboratory "smoking bowl" tests, Prince Albert burned 86 DEGREES COOLER than the average of the 30 other of the largest-selling brands tested—coolest of all!

YES, SIR—EE—"makin's" smokers—there's a big tip for you here! Experts in a nationally known independent laboratory recently made "smoking bowl" comparisons to find the COOLEST-SMOKING TOBACCO! Automatic smoking and heat-registering machines registered and printed the findings every step of the way. Results—Prince Albert burned 86 degrees COOLER than the average of the 30 other of the largest-selling brands tested... coolest of all!

Thousands of "makin's" fans have always praised P.A. as the cooler-smoking brand. P.A.'s choice tobaccos smoke full-bodied—richer-tasting, YET EASIER ON THE TONGUE. Prince Albert is "no-bite" treated! The famous P.A. "crimp cut" smokes cooler, draws easier. Besides, it rolls up faster, neater—without bunching or spilling—because it lays right. There's no other tobacco like Prince Albert! Get Prince Albert for your papers today. (So cool in pipes, too!)

English Abbey Built 800 Years Ago Now Up for Sale

Rufford Abbey, 800-year-old English estate, is being put up for sale, London papers report. The estate contains 18,700 acres and includes the abbey, founded in the reign of King Stephen, partly rebuilt in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and an ancient deer park of more than 500 acres.

It also includes the whole or greater part of the villages and parishes of Old Ollerton, Eakring, Wellow, Bilsthorpe and Ompton, as well as parts of Walsby, Egmanston, Edinstowe, Farnsfield, Kirton, Blidworth and Tuxford.

The estate comprises about 70 farms, 38 small holdings, four licensed houses, including the famous Hop Pole at Ollerton, many private residences and shops, nearly 2,000 acres of woods and plantations, and hundreds of cottages.

One of the most famous estates in the dukeries, Rufford abbey never has been in the market before, and its forthcoming sale will be one of the outstanding transactions of recent years in real estate. Lands at Rufford were recorded long before Domesday, but its history as an abbeey began in 1148, when Gilbert de Gaunt, Earl of Lincoln, founded an abbey there, dedicated it to the honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary and colonized it with Cistercian monks from Rievaulx abbey.

The abbey lands increased, and from the earliest times the monks enjoyed special privileges in the surrounding Forest of Sherwood. The abbots became rich enough to entertain royalty, and September 18, 1290, Rufford received the first of many subsequent royal visitors; Edward I passed a night there and sealed a variety of documents.

The rich abbey attracted the attention of Henry VIII's commissioners when he was considering the dissolution of the monasteries and in 1537 he annexed the abbey and gave it and all its lands to George, earl of Shrewsbury, with whose descendants it ever since has remained. Thus began Rufford abbey's 400-year existence as a country house.

The chapel of the abbey was the scene of the wedding in 1574 of Charles Stuart, younger brother of Darnley, and Elizabeth Cavendish.

WINTER DISARMED

90-hour threat ended by OIL-PLATING your engine today

You can probably agree that these are certainly conservative figures . . .

- 4 or 5 months of nasty weather right ahead of you now
- 8 or 10 daily cold starts for your car
- 6 to 8 minutes per start, till your engine's near-worn

And yet even that can run up your engine's cold-weather "starting-stretch" to right around 90 hours! . . . The foulest 90 hours that Gangster Winter could fire at your engine—your battery. And don't ever hope to halt him with motor oils whose biggest brag is "fast flow." That's not enough—and it's not your money's worth, considering that "fast flow" is mighty slow Winter lubrication compared to OIL-PLATING. OIL-PLATING in your engine will lubricate before any oil can circulate. That's because the minute you start up with patented Conoco Germ Processed oil it makes OIL-PLATING "magnetize" to all inner engine surfaces, so that it cannot drain down again. It cannot retire to the crankcase as you park the car. Like any other good plating, OIL-PLATING stays right where it's plated by Germ Process action—all over the working parts. They've "got on" their OIL-PLATING all the while you're indoors. They never "take off" their OIL-PLATING. When you come out to start then, your OIL-PLATING can't be delayed even 90 seconds—or one-ninth of a second! And away you go. The battery hardly knows it was working. And it's a good long while before the gauge-stick calls for an added quart of Germ Processed oil. Your Mileage Merchant has your right Winter grade. Change today—to that Conoco station of his. Continental Oil Company
