Long-Distance Telephone Calling Change

Beginning October 15, 1993, all long-distance telephone calls placed within the "817" area code should be dialed 1+817+the number, or 0+817+the number, even though the long-distance call is placed within the 817 area. Calls made without using the 817 area code will still be placed correctly until January 19, 1994, when all long-distance calls within the 817 area code must include "817". However, callers are encouraged to begin dialing 817 beginning October 15.

In the past, customers who called long distance within the 512 area code didn't have to dial 817. But with the increased demand for more telephone numbers due to cellular phones, computer modems, facsimile machines and data transmission lines, telephone companies were close to running out of available telephone numbers in the 817 area code.

By dialing the area code for all long-distance calls, it allows telephone companies to assign a series of phone numbers that telephone equipment previously recognized as area codes. These new phone numbers will have prefixes (the first three numbers of the seven-digit phone number) that, previously, telephone companies couldn't use because the equipment didn't recognize them.

The new prefixes will have a "0" or "1" as the middle number.

More than 100,000 students across Texas and up to 2 million nationwide are expected to gather around their school's flagpoles at 7 a.m., Sept. 15, to pray for their friends, school, and country said Chuck Flowers, youth associate in the Texas Baptist Evangelism Division.

"See You At The Flag Pole" began in Texas in 1989 as a vision of a few students and has exploded into a powerful movement of prayer, sweeping across the nation and world," Flowers said.

Last year, students in Russia, Mexico, England, Germany, Australia, Brazil, and Canada participated in "See You At The Flagpole".

On Sept. 15, Christians from churches of all denominations will pray for God to intervene in such problems as drugs, alcohol and immorality, claiming God's power in the lives of students, teachers and administrators, Flowers said.

Noting that the emphasis of "See You At The Pole" is on a spirit of cooperation, not confrontation, Flowers said, "Helps are available to inform school administration on student rights by contacting the BGCT Youth Evangelism Office at the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Dallas."

Last September, many adults also participated in "See You At The Pole", Flowers said.

"But on campus the event must be completely student led," he noted. "Adults should not stand alongside the students on the school campus but should organize a group to pray at the same hour at church, across the street from the school or at a city hall or courthouse."

"See You At The Flag Pole" is part of the "1-2-3 Challenge" young people are encouraged to take, he added. Also, they are urged to share the gospel with two people at least twice a month for 12 months and to pray regularly with two other students for friends and fellow Christians.

Local Woman Attends National Sales Convention

Marilyn Young, a local Fashion Consultant for Doncaster, has recently returned from the company's national sales meeting in New Orleans. Marilyn was accompanied by Sharon Grant to the meeting.

She is one of more than 600 Consultants who spent four days in the French Quarter June 17-20, 1993. The purpose of the annual convention is to keep Fashion Consultants abreast of the latest fashion news, and to provide sales and motivational seminars to enrich their lives and enhance their ability to grow their business. The convention also gives the company an opportunity to recognize Consultants' success and to let them know how much their business is appreciated.

Consultants and home office employees share ideas and get to know each other better during the meeting and after hours.

Doncaster is a 61 year old, direct sales company with Fashion Consultants in every state in the nation. It is headquartered in Rutherfordton, North Carolina and has design studios in New York City.

Dave DeFeo, President, said: "We are very happy to have Ms. Young associated with Doncaster. She is a great example of the woman who enjoys being in business for herself, working when she wants to work and selling a product she is proud to wear and to show. Doncaster's strongest asset is the calibre of people we are able to attract."

Lazbuddie News & Notions

by Marilyn

A Texas howdy to you all! (Whew, that's the hard part-just trying to think what to say to start this column). I wrote a News and Nonsense column, for this paper several years ago, in the late '60's and early '70's. It was titled Lazbuddie News and a Community Service Column, but I sometimes had to ad-lib some things in order to have a column. People love to read about the happenings of others, but they won't take time to call or leave a note, in the mail box to let me know of their vacations and etc. So, I hope that my friends and neighbors out there, will prove me wrong and the phone will start ringing. If you don't know anything about yourself, tell something on your neighbor! Ha!

The Ladies Circle of the Lazbuddie United Methodist Church held their bi-monthly meeting at the lovely home of Harrol and Charlotte Redwine, with 15 ladies present. Those present were: Hostess, Charlotte Redwine, Nina Redwine (Charlotte's mother-in-law), Ina Carpenter, Lavonne Hinkson, Barbara Lust, Glenda Jennings, Sherrie Richards, Cheryl Smith, Kim Kimbrough, Yvonne Linson, Tanya Gartin, Susie Sterling, Rickie Seaton, Bea Redwine and Marilyn Engelking.

A most interesting program was given by Barbara Lust on her experiences when she attended "The Walk With Emous In Amarillo, a few months ago. It was a most inspirational program and gave us all a better feeling for having heard of her emotions and how we learn from others on their personal tragedies and triumphs in life.

The Community extends a hearty congratulations to Brett Thomas, son of Randy and Terry Thomas, for being selected as the Lubbock Avalanche Journal pre-season Pick as the quarterback for the A-J's super team. He is the only 6-man player to ever be selected for this honor. Way to go, Brett!

Thanks for the many thrills all the Lazbuddie football teams have provided for us fans these last few years. Our prayer will be for a great season this year, but most of all that all players will stay healthy and no one hurt seriously! Go Horns!

Greg and Sandy Gregory recently attended their granddaughter's fourth birthday party in Klondike, Texas. Jordan Gregory, the daughter of Todd and Roxanne Gregory, former residents of Lazbuddie enjoyed the many gifts from all family members at the happy occasion.

Jonessa and Guy Brockman of New Braunfels, Texas, enjoyed spending the Labor Day holiday with their parents Derrell and Glenda Jennings and Phil and Judy Brockman. They all enjoyed seeing Tech beat Pacific at the football game in Lubbock Saturday night.

Dave and Sheryl Engelking recently spent a week visiting friends, Jeff and Tina Platt of Buena Park, California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Jeff and Tina hosted a barbecue at their home for their family in California in honor of Dave and Sheryl, which was a happy time for all. They also enjoyed playing golf at the Los Coyotes Country Club that is owned by the family. Other points of interest they visited were Malibu Beach and Knott's Berry Farm.

That's all for now. Hope to chat to you through the paper next week. Until then, remember true happiness is just like we all learned years ago in Bible School when we sang the little song "Happiness is Knowing The Savior, Living A Life In His Favor!"

Texas DPS Accepting Applications For Recruit School

The Texas Department of Public Safety is accepting applications through September 30, 1993 for its January 1994 recruit school--the first opportunity in three years for men and women who want a law enforcement career to join the agency.

Following 22 weeks of intensive training, successful applicants will be commissioned as state troopers for the Texas Department of Public Safety, charged with enforcing traffic laws on rural Texas highways. Troopers investigate accidents, recover stolen vehicles and other property, seize illegal drugs, apprehend wanted persons and perform a variety of other law enforcement duties.

After four years with the Department of Public Safety, troopers will be able to compete for promotions within the Traffic Law Enforcement Division, which includes services such as Highway Patrol, Drivers License, Safety Education, License and Weight and Motor Vehicle Inspection. Promotional opportunities eventually will be available in other DPS areas, such as Criminal Law Enforcement--Narcotics, Criminal Intelligence, Motor Vehicle Theft, Polygraph and the Texas Rangers.

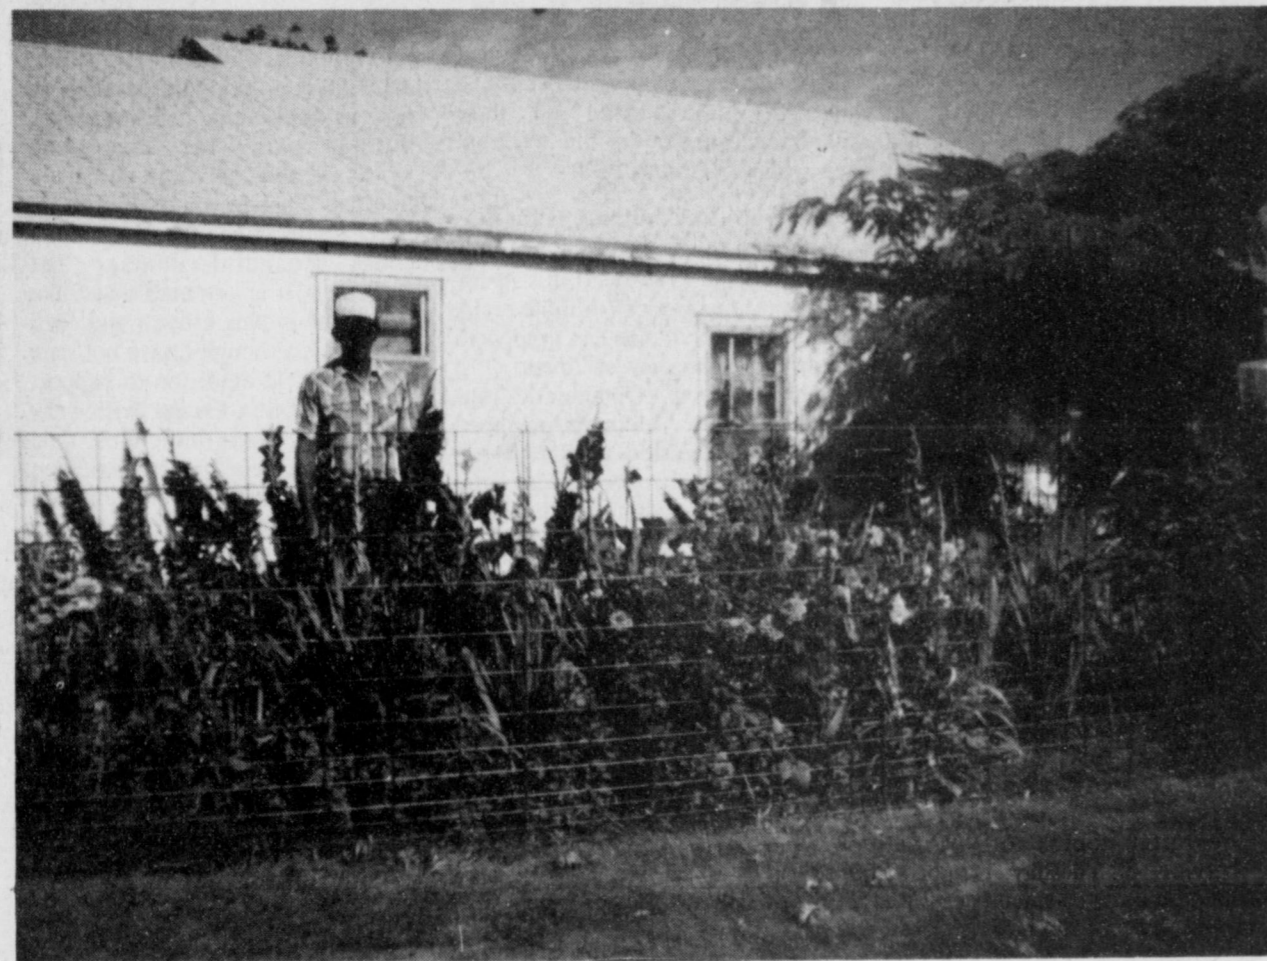

The Department of Public Safety will consider applicants who are at least 20 years of age and have either 60 hours of college credits or prior military or law enforcement experience. U.S. Citizenship, a Texas Driver's license and a willingness to accept assignment anywhere in the state are also required. An applicant must successfully complete a written examination, a physical exam, an agility test, oral interviews and a thorough background investigation before being accepted.

The DPS offers state benefits, and a starting salary for trooper-cadets (while in training) of $1,720.78 per month. Following graduation, troopers will be paid $1,982.82 per month, with a raise every six months for the first year. Commissioned officers also receive hazardous duty pay and monthly allowances for meals, uniform cleaning, and footwear. Uniforms and equipment are furnished by the Department.

For details on this challenging career opportunity, contact your nearest DPS office.

The Snells Love Flowers--- And It Shows!

by Joline Franklin

The Gene Snells, who live northeast of Muleshoe on the YL Road, love flowers... and it shows! Their home is known for miles around because of all the lovely, "eye-catching" flowers in their garden.

When a friend asked a neighbor down the road for directions to the Snell home, the neighbor said, "Snells, oh, yes! I know where they live--they are the people with all of the pretty flowers!"

You can find flowers starting with almost every letter from A to Z in the Snell garden, all the way from anemone to zinnias! When I visited with Gene and Janice and their daughter, Rebecca, the day lilies, zinnias, marigolds, and the showy climbing plant, the clematis, were among the flowers in bloom.

Beautiful gladiolas, over 400 in all, were in spectacular bloom in a main front flowerbed. They bloomed cheerfully in forty different pastel and jewel-tone colors. Some of the taller gladiola stems bore up to forty ruffled blossoms.

A later, larger bed of gladiolas, some 7,000 strong, were opening on the east side of the Snell home. These budding beauties, like many other of their plants, were grown from bulbs of mother plants.

The Snell Garden with its myriads of beautiful flowers is one of the loveliest I've seen. And yet, it is more than a lovely flower garden! It's a combination fruit and vegetable garden where many of our areas favorite and tried and true fruits and veggies are grown.

When in abundance, Gene sells such vegetables as okra, squash, and tomatoes to different buyers. Strawberry popcorn also grows in the garden and Gene sells it to three florist shops.

Several years ago, a friend, "Doc" Jones gave Gene some unusual climbing okra seeds. Since the first planting Gene has had a "patch" or fence full of climbing okra in each new garden. The climbing okra bears pods that are up to and over a foot long.

Janice says this climbing variety is delicious and you can cook it any way you can the smaller okra pods. "Plus", she added, "You don't have to cut up nearly as many pods."

There is an apple tree in the garden that bears five different kinds of apples, including the golden delicious and the red delicious apples. Other fruit trees are plum, cherry, peach, pear and apricot. Grapes are also grown in their garden.

Bouquets of Snell grown flowers have been arranged by Gene and Janice for her to take to Calvary Baptist Church, where she is a member. Janice has taken lovely bouquets of roses, peonies, tulips, and irises to church which are much admired and appreciated by other members.

I learned a 'family secret' the day I visited the Snells in their garden. Janice told me early on that Gene loves growing flowers and green things and that he is the one who has the green thumb in the family! I could tell, though that Janice and Rebecca love flowers, too.

There's no doubt about it.....Gene Snell and his family really do love growing flowers and green things.

And like so many others...I am so glad...that it shows!

Discovery Made In Cotton Ailment

What may prove to be the key to understanding the cause of one of the most prevalent diseases in cotton on the High Plains has been discovered by a researcher at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock.

Wet weather blight had been considered to be a fungus called aschochyta, which causes the disease in other parts of the world. However, the plant pathologist Dr. James Mertely believes he has now isolated the problem as a bacterium, rather than a fungus. If true, this opens the way to a new array of control strategies that may prove effective against the disease.

Wet weather blight is a condition in cotton that occurs when weather is cool and damp and cotton plants are relatively young.

The disease sometimes causes losses of entire cotton fields for farmers in this region, where much of the state's cotton is grown.

In 1992, the High Plains lost some two million acres of cotton, much of it to wet weather blight, said Dr. Kater Hake, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock.

"Historically, we have replanted as many, if not more acres due to wet weather blight than we have hail storms," said Dr. John Gannaway, cotton breeder for the Experiment Station.

"It's probably cost us hundreds of thousands of dollars in terms of replanting."

Amendments have been added to meet changing situations, but the basic document has proven flexible enough to survive the many changes since 1787.

"The Constitution guarantees the freedom and rights of freedom of religion and speech as well as other rights listed in the Constitution.

"The Constitution has three main principles, which are: inherent rights, or rights that anyone living in America has; government by the people, and; separation of powers, giving each branch of government different powers.

"These principles are what has enabled the government to work so well in the United states. Everyone's rights are protected.

"If the citizens believe the government needs to be changed, they can change it. The citizens control the government through their votes," Senator Gramm continued.

Sudan Plans Homecoming Activities

The 41st Annual Homecoming of all exes of Sudan High School is scheduled for Saturday, October 9 in the school cafeteria.

Registration will begin at 6 p.m. and the dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Registration for the dinner will be $7.50 per person. If you plan to attend the dinner, you are asked to let Mrs. Genevieve Kerr know by October 1.

Classes to be honored include: 1923, 1933, 1943, 1953, 1963, 1973, 1983, and 1993.

"This reunion is not just for those who graduated from Sudan High School, it is for all who either attended or taught at Sudan between the years of 1923 and 1993," said Mrs. Kerr. "Over the years we have lost touch with so many who walked our halls, so this invitation is for YOU. Please call or write and let us know if you will be coming. Even if you are unable to come this year, please send us your address so we may let you know the time and date of the 42nd Annual Homecoming."

The Sudan Hornets Football Team will play the Farwell Steers on Friday, October 8, at 7:30 p.m.

"The problem with wet weather blight is that it doesn't occur every year," Gannaway said. It responds to the environment and is almost totally dependent on environmental conditions."

Mertely began his work on the wet weather blight problem two months ago when he started making isolations from plants that had wet weather blight symptoms.

These symptoms include small, purplish spots on the lower leaves of the cotton plant, that often times turn black and ultimately cause the plant to die.

From these spots, Mertely isolated a bacterium that came from most of the spots he observed and appeared to be the same time after time.

"This practically implicates the bacterium as being associated with the spots," he said.

Mertely sent the isolates to the Texas A&M Plant Disease Diagnostic Lab in College Station, where a positive bacterium identification was made.

Mertely continued to study the bacterium by increasing it in the laboratory and contaminating seedlings. He learned from this experimentation that he could replicate the same wet weather blight symptoms seen in the field.

"The bacterium I infected the plants with produced the same kind

Muleshoe City Police Report

Leading the arrest by the Muleshoe City Police this week was three persons being arrested for Public Intoxication. Jennyslippers Finalize Plans For Fair Booth

The Jennyslippers met at noon Friday, in the old Depot for their regular bi-monthly meeting.

Nancy Kidd, president, called the meeting to order and Billie Downing read the minutes of the August 24 meeting.

They were approved as read. Mrs. Kidd read a letter from the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and a Thank You Card from the Heritage Foundation.

Plans were finalized for the booth to be held at the Bailey County-West Plains Fair, September 16, 17 and 18 at the Bailey County Coliseum.

The group also discussed the possibility of holding a Volley Ball Tournament.

of purplish spots we were seeing in the field," the researcher said.

Although Mertely's discovery will require further verification from other researchers, Hake said it's possible that he has solved a significant problem in cotton that has eluded scientists for years.

He has made it possible to now focus on control measures for the blight, Hake said. "In fact, as soon as the weather cools this fall, late-planted (August) cotton will be used to test several control strategies," he said.

Travelling With The Texas Angler

by Keith Warren

A couple of weeks ago this column featured a revolutionary new fishing line called Stren Kevlar. I had used this super strong line bass fishing with fantastic results. Well, the secret's out now and saltwater fishermen are starting to use it as well.

This new Stren Kevlar is the only braided Kevlar line on the market and has very unique features; super strength, no stretch and no memory. These features make it perfect for many fishing situations.

Until the reintroduction of braided fishing line, offshore fishermen had difficulty getting rapid hooksets due to monofilament line stretching. Especially deep water fishermen had trouble even detecting strikes. With Stren Kevlar, these fishermen are without a doubt going to realize much greater success.

Using this braided line will increase your sensitivity to a point you never thought possible. Even the slightest bite from a deep water red snapper will send an instant signal to set the hook, and when you do, you'll drive the hook into the mouth of the fish immediately.

With no stretch and super strength, offshore anglers will be able to quickly drag more fish away from oil platforms as well as other structure. I can see that those people who go for ling and amberjack will find this Kevlar line worth its weight in gold.

As far as bay fishing, this line will aid fishermen who like to fish oyster beds. Its strength and abrasion resistant characteristics will minimize numbers of lost fish compared to monofilament line failure on the oyster shell bottom.

The line is goldish yellow in color and is available at this time in two sizes - 20 pound test diameter line is actually 70 pound test. The 110 pound test line has a diameter of a 30 pound test monofilament.

There's no way you can bite this line as you can with monofilament. Don't even try it. As a matter of fact, it's hard to cut even with a pair of wire cutters or nail clippers. The best way I've found is to use a sharp knife to cut it.

This new line isn't going to replace monofilament, and is not intended to do so; however, under certain fishing conditions where super strength and no stretch are required, you will find a world of difference by switching over to Stren Kevlar.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — George W. Bush sought his father's advice about running for Texas governor last week and hopes to make a final decision soon, according to published reports.

Bush, managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team, was at the family retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine, talking with his father, former president Bush.

Republican sources told the Houston Chronicle that the younger Bush hopes to have made a final decision on whether he will run by the time he returns home.

But he may not immediately announce his plans, GOP political consultant Karl Rove said.

"The guy's got significant name identification and support in the party. He doesn't need to be rushed," Rove said.

State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland said earlier he will not run if Bush enters the race, and Dallas lawyer Tom Luce, a GOP candidate in 1990, said a Bush candidacy could make a difference in whether he runs.

Another possible contender, Houston businessman Rob Mosbacher, does not intend to base his decision on whether Bush runs, spokesman Mark Sanders said.

Courthouse security may be beefed up under a new law that goes into effect Sept. 1.

The bill, which Gov. Ann Richards signed into law June 19, establishes mandatory fees of $5 for offenders convicted of felonies and $3 for misdemeanors, with all proceeds to be spent on courthouse security.

The measure, authored by state Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, also allows counties to set fees of up to $5 on the filing of civil suits. If such fees are adopted on civil cases, the bill requires a $1 charge for other filings such as marriage licenses and liens, said

Roland Greenwade, an attorney for Leedom.

Greenwade said the recent spree of violence at courthouses around Texas prompted Dallas County Commissioners to approach Leedom about providing a funding mechanism for security measures.

Judge Blocks Ethics Rule

A state district judge last week blocked enforcement of a new conflict-of-interest law that some feared would result in mass resignations of local school board members.

Responding to a lawsuit filed by Texas Association of School Boards, District Judge Margaret Cooper of Austin issued a restraining order preventing enforcement of the law and scheduled a Sept. 30 hearing on the law.

The law prohibits trustees, their spouses or companies in which they have "significant interests" from signing contracts with school boards.

Counts Applauds Insurer

State Rep. David Counts commended Travelers Insurance Co. last week for cutting its workers' compensation rates by 13 percent.

Counts, D-Knox City, said the rest of the insurance industry should use Travelers' action as a model. He said the workers' compensation reforms passed in 1991 have helped reduce system costs.

"It does not make sense for insurance companies to continue charging rates based on their experience under the old workers' comp law," Counts said.

Guerrero to Graduate (Finally)

Former Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero this week awaits official notice from the registrar's office that she has graduated from the University of Texas.

Guerrero, a Democratic appointee of Gov. Richards, resigned during her election campaign last fall, admitting reports were true that she had lied about having a college degree.

UT Journalism Department Chairman Rusty Todd said Guerrero has completed course work for a bachelor of journalism degree.

Guerrero said she wants to continue running her Austin lobbying firm, and she is considering pursuing a higher college degree. Meanwhile, Southwestern Bell has hired her to lecture students on the merits of earning a high school diploma.

Eckstein Appointed to SBOI

Gov. Richards has appointed one of her aides, Austin lawyer Deece Eckstein, to replace Paul Williams on the three-member State Board of Insurance. Williams resigned from the board to work for the state treasurer's office.

Richards said Eckstein has been her adviser on insurance and helped pass a bill that increases the availability of insurance for small businesses.

On Sept. 1, the board will lose much of its power, but will continue to exist up to one year as authority shifts to a single insurance commissioner who has not been named.

Other Highlights

Eleven people have been killed and about 140 people have been wounded in 742 drive-by shootings in San Antonio between January and July, police officials announced. "It's almost exclusively gang-related," said Capt. Gilbert Sandoval.

El Paso and Hudspeth counties have been added to a bee quarantine after Africanized bees were found there. Sixty-eight counties, generally south of a line from Houston to Midland, are now included in the quarantine.

Ask The Vet

Dear Dr. Paul, I am having a liver fluke problem in my cattle, and I get conflicting information on how to treat them. In some cases, my veterinarian says they aren't worth treating once the cattle are infected. What do you recommend? Liver flukes, when they occur, can cause financial damage for cattlemen. It is assumed that fluke infections impair growth and feed efficiency, although I have not seen any scientific evidence to support this assumption except with very severe or chronic infections. One cause of financial loss to cattlemen that has been documented is the condemnation of livers from fluke infected cattle. In my opinion, it is beneficial to treat calves for flukes in the summer or fall of the year. The treatment of heavier yearling cattle going into a feedlot to be finished is a source of controversy. Cattle on feed for three to five months after removal of flukes may Damage from Emily less than expected.

There's Always Been One Good Way To Insure Your Crop Investment. Now There Are Two.

Ask your local crop insurance agent about this year's new Group Risk Plan (GRP).

It's a pilot program being offered in selected counties and it provides an alternative to conventional Multiple Peril Crop Insurance policies.

It could be just right for you.

The cost is low. The dollar amount of protection is high. Production guarantees and indemnity payments are based on the county average yield rather than individual farm yields.

There's almost no paperwork and you don't need yield records.

Although GRP may not be for everyone, it's definitely worth looking into.

Get the facts from your local crop insurance agent. But do it soon because the deadline to apply is rapidly approaching.

500 Acres Of Crops And Harvest In Three Days

When all of the cotton, corn, sorghum and forage crops to be harvested during The Farmer-Stockman Show are added together, they amount to a fair-sized farming operation.

More than 500 acres of them will go into the bin during the three days of the show-Oct. 12-14 just outside of Lubbock. And that involves some tight scheduling.

Not only is careful planning needed for the harvest itself during the show, but it was also needed back in the spring when planting took place. With thousands of farmers looking on, there's not much room for error.

Nevertheless, all seems to be heading in the right direction. Up until now there have been no unusual weather problems. Rain has been favorable and insect attack has been manageable.

The show is unlike any other farm event that has ever been held in Texas or the Southwest. It will all take place outdoors on 800 acres of the Lubbock city farm one and a half miles east of Loop 289 on East 50th Street, Farm Road 835. And this emphasis will be on working--harvesting of crops, tillage, planting and live cattle handling demonstrations.

Right in the middle of all this activity will be a 54-acre tent city housing hundreds of exhibits ranging from tractor manufacturers to machinery suppliers, seed companies, chemical organizations, universities, governmental organizations and commodity groups.

But a particular focus will be placed on the working demonstrations each day. While a lot depends on the weather between now and then, show manager Farris Hightower says most everything still appears to be on track.

Corn has been maturing well and should be dried down to under 20 percent moisture by mid-October. The crop has had some corn earworm infestation, but not at a threshold level. For that reason, no pesticide applications have been made. Approximately 120 acres of this grain will be harvested during the show, about a third of it each day.

Some 240 acres of grain sorghum will be harvested. A yield estimate right now comes to about 7,000 lb.

per acre. Bird feeding has been something of a problem. Balloons and butane guns have been used to try to minimize it.

About 200 acres of cotton will be stripped. Excellent warm weather and timely rain has supplemented on-site irrigation. A yield estimate puts it at about one and a half bales per acre. Irrigation has been curtailed in order to promote development of early bolls and reduce setting of late ones. Defoliation is planned for late September.

All crops were planted in 40 in. rows.

A tentative schedule is for corn to be harvested from 9 to 10 a.m. each day during the show, grain sorghum from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and cotton from 1 to 3 p.m. In each case, tillage and planting demonstrations will be held following harvest.

Detailed information on demonstration schedules will be available at two information booths on Central Avenue, the show's main street, and at the show office just east of Central Avenue, between Third and Fourth Streets.

The 54-acre Exhibit field will be laid out like a miniature city near the center of the farm. Demonstration field areas will surround it on the north and east.

Show hours will be from 7:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day. An overnight camping area will be available on the grounds for self-contained recreational vehicle units. Show admission will be $3 for adults. Those under 18 will be admitted free.

Texas Association Of Dairymen News

For several months now, it has been apparent to us that Texas air and water permitting processes for dairies have become so subjective and onerous that dairies looking to relocate from other states are no longer coming to Texas. Broad trends such as this are often difficult to see from the local perspective. In other words, Cross Timbers dairy country is so vast that is hard for a person to judge whether or not this migration has stopped.

But when you get closer to the Texas border, this shift has become painfully clear. TAD board member Larry Hancock, of Muleshoe, and I had the opportunity this week to look at a microcosm in which this problem has become very evident. We attended a meeting in Muleshoe sponsored by Senator Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) to talk to area residents about this situation.

You may be wondering why the residents of this dry West Texas panhandle community 100 miles northwest of Lubbock would even care about whether dairies are still moving into Texas. After all, when we think of Texas dairying, Bailey County is not exactly the first place that comes to mind. Fact is, there are only a handful of dairies in that whole area.

And this is exactly their problem! The 7,064 residents of Bailey County are hopping mad as they watch their neighboring communities of Clovis and Portales, New Mexico lure in one new dairy after another. So why are California and Arizona dairymen lining up right along the Texas-New Mexico border on the New Mexico side? Certainly it's not because they need more milk in New Mexico -- all their milk is being shipped to our Texas cities. Certainly it's not because these dairymen are excited about paying school taxes on the value of their cows or about paying New Mexico state income taxes. They know they would pay neither of these taxes if they moved 10 miles across the border into Bailey County. And we know these dairymen are not looking forward to negotiating and paying for their New Mexico water rights, which, in Texas, come with the purchase of land.

The greatest asset New Mexico is offering these newcomers is the fact that they will not have to tangle with the Texas Water Commission, the Texas Air Control Board and our complaint-driven process.

This really burns Bailey County citizens, who are engaged in a futile effort to draw a little of that dairy investment capital, and the jobs and prosperity that follow it, across the border. In Muleshoe, they understand the importance of rural economic development. They are not satisfied with the status quo and want to improve the standard of living for their families. They come from an agricultural economy and understand that livestock and dairy production can be done in harmony with the environment. They also took note of the fact that Erath County ranked 5th of 205 rural Texas counties in total economic growth between 1985 and 1990 and understand the role the dairy industry played in that expansion.

James Kowis, Agriculture Division director of the Texas Water Commission, was present at the meeting to explain that changes are being made to streamline their permitting process. Senator Bivins, who chairs the Texas Senate Agriculture Subcommittee, has been working very hard to bring about these improvements. However, as one Muleshoe explained, "what Texas really has is a perception problem." The perception in the United States today is the Texas permitting process will take months, if not years, for any new dairyman or dairywoman moving into our state.

Until we correct both the technical problems with the process and the perception problem, the residents of Bailey County are going to have to watch as the dairies line up on the other side of the New Mexico border like maquiladoras lining up on the other side of the Old Mexico border. In other words, Muleshoers and Erath County residents can look forward to new jobs and opportunities spawning from the booming dairy industry -- they'll just have to drive to New Mexico to find them.

Traveling With The Texas Angler

Patterning Summertime Largemouth

By Keith R. Warren

Summertime fishing can be pretty tough. Early morning air temperatures are around the mid to upper 70's, while the surface water temperature may be in the upper 80's. As the sun gets up, the water temperature will rise, often to the mid 90's.

These high water temperatures have basically the same affect on fish as do cold water temperatures. They become more sluggish and don't feed regularly. Fish will not move far from cover to strike a lure or bait this time of year.

Last week we attempted taping an upcoming Texas Angler program on bass fishing. I was fishing in southeast Texas on a private lake out of Wharton. The water temperature was 89° at sunrise. The forecasted high temperature for the day was 99° to 100°.

I began throwing a topwater bait as the sun was creeping over the horizon. This is the best time for action on topwater baits during the summer. Well, after an hour with only 1 small strike, I changed to a jerk bait. Another hour passed without any action. Now it was getting warm.

My videographer was wondering if we were wasting our time. It is unusual that fishing was that slow.

I decided to change to a plastic worm rigged Texas style with a light slip sinker. My plan was to target laydown logs located near deep water. These horizontal pieces of timber provide shade the entire day and would likely hold fish.

The water clarity was clear enough to see the laydowns. I pitched the worm next to the shady side and let it sink. With a slight movement on the lure I set the hook on a solid 2-1/2 pound bass. As I reeled it aboard, it didn't even fight. As a matter of fact, it felt like reeling in an old rag. I thought the fish was sick until the next fish acted the same way. We caught and released 12 keeper sized fish and not any of them put up a fight. My guess is that the water was so hot that the fish refused to fight.

This is a typical summertime pattern for bass. If there is horizontal wood cover, it should hold bass.

Can Your Mind Improve Your Health?

As America faces the complex dilemma of revising its health care system, many people are taking greater responsibility for their own health. They are seeking care that is cost-effective, doesn't rely primarily on prescriptions and is less invasive to the body.

"The premise of alternative medicine is that the mind and body are so closely related that the mind can help overcome many physical ailments," said Matthew Lambert, Ph. D., licensed psychologist on staff at Methodist Hospital. Most doctors wouldn't advise using mind/body techniques to the exclusion of conventional medicine. But a number of scientific studies show that a person's attitude and emotional condition can affect prevention and recovery from illness.

Techniques To Help Yourself

Some of these "new" techniques are actually very old. For example, the Chinese have used acupuncture to lessen pain for more than 3,000 years. Now it's used as an alternative treatment for allergies and asthma. Here are a few other techniques that may be used as an alternative to medicine.

Relaxation techniques—Use the power of mental concentration to influence a physical response within the body. For example, yoga relieves chronic pain by using deep breathing exercises to release more endorphins, the body's natural painkiller.

Biofeedback—A technique where patients are actually hooked to machines that register when their muscles are tightening.

Homeopathy—Uses small doses of natural substances to fight disease. Larger doses of these ingredients would cause the same symptoms of the disease in a patient.

Positive Emotions and Support Groups—Patients having close relationships with friends and family tend to cope with pain and live longer.

Five Steps Toward A Healthy Lifestyle

"Alternative medicine focuses largely on prevention of illness. By practicing good lifestyle habits, you can take control of your health," said Lambert.

Here are some helpful hints:
Eating Right.
Exercising.
Managing Stress.
Overcoming unhealthy habits.
Getting a routine physical exam.

TWC ADOPTS USED OIL FILTER RECYCLING RULES

The Texas Water Commission adopted new management standards for the recycling of used oil filters. The action culminates several months of public comment and industry input, including a public meeting. The rules fulfill the intent of Senate Bill 1340, the Omnibus

Better Business Bureau Report

Historians tell us that we are entering the third decade of the "energy crisis", but the only reminder most of us will need are our July utility bills. With utility bills certain to keep on rising, there are a number of things consumers can do to conserve energy and their personal finances. Many things can be done in your own home to save energy. Proper insulation is very important to conserve heating and cooling. Make sure your "R" value is high as this is the resistance. Also, insulate with weather stripping around doors and windows as well as keeping your fireplace damper closed when not in use. Set your water heater at 140 degrees and insulate the tank and pipes. Lighting is a big user of energy; especially high-wattage outdoor lights. So, turn off lights when they are not needed. When purchasing appliances, look for energy-efficient ones. Call 763-0459 for a free pamphlet on "TIPS ON SAVING ENERGY".

Your Better Business Bureau® alerted local medical facilities and those that offer medical services of recent scam perpetrated in northern Colorado concerning unauthorized overseas calls in some hospitals that resulted in over $6,000 bills. We thought that this could happen to ANY type of business. It seems that someone would call the hospital and ask for a particular department. On reaching that department, he would say, "I'm sorry, but I have the wrong department, can you switch me back to the operator?" On reaching the operator, he would identify himself as a doctor and ask for an outside line to make a long distance call. The operator, thinking that the call was originating from within, would connect the call with the outside line. This could happen to you. Make sure you identify anyone asking for an outside line and close all possible points of unauthorized entry. If an intrusion is suspected, call your phone company immediately.

Recycling Act, which was passed into law in 1991.

These rules, which address the generation, collection, transportation, storage, processing and final disposition of used oil filters, are designed to protect the environment and provide guidelines for the emerging oil filter recycling industry. The rules take effect 20 days after publication in the Texas Register.

It currently is illegal for commercial generators to dispose of used oil filters in landfills in Texas counties with populations of 200,000 or more, and in counties located east of I-35, I-35W and I-37 with populations of 100,000 or more. By Dec. 1, 1993, it will be illegal for commercial generators to dispose of used oil filters in all Texas landfills. On April 1, 1994, the law bans disposal into municipal landfills of used oil filters generated by individuals who change their own oil.

Main elements of the recycling rules include:

Removal of all free-flowing oil from used filters.

Proper transportation of used filters, including labeling of containers of used filters, cleanup of any spills during transport and delivery of filters to a registered used oil filter processor or end-user.

Proper storage of filters in non-leaking, covered containers. For storage of more than three 55-gallon drums, the standards require secondary containment in case of spills.

Processing of used oil filters in preparation for the recycling of its components, including used oil and steel.

*A provision for a system of documentation to track the transfer of used oil filters through the recycling process. This tracking mechanism is designed to discourage illegal dumping and is subject to future modification.

The regulations are aimed at halting the flow of an estimated 50 million used oil filters buried annually in Texas landfills. The dumping of these used filters fill precious landfill space, threaten water supplies and waste scrap metal.

To lessen the impact on small businesses, the new rules also provide an exclusion from the more stringent storage requirements for persons storing less than three 55-gallon drums of filters. However, these small businesses are still required by the new rules to properly dispose of their used filters.

The mission of the Texas Water Commission is to protect human health and the environment. It is the primary agency in Texas responsible for the prevention, control and abatement of water pollution and for the regulation of solid and hazardous waste.

Regulation Proposed For Early Migratory Bird Hunting Seasons:

Comments Requested On Regulation Of Captive-Reared Mallards

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is proposing that the hunting of teal during special September seasons be allowed only after sunrise, except where states undertake studies on the impact of pre-sunrise hunting on non-target ducks.

Last year, states with early teal seasons were allowed to permit hunting to start one-half hour before sunrise.

The change is part of the Service's proposed regulations for the early migratory bird seasons. The regulations cover doves; woodcock; band-tailed pigeons; rails; snipe; common moorhens and purple gallinules; sandhill cranes; sea ducks; special September wood duck, teal, and Canada goose seasons; and migratory bird hunting seasons in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Overall, this year's proposed regulations are similar to the 1992 regulations. Other than the change in pre-sunrise hunting, the only significant new restriction deals with sea ducks.

Last year, hunters could harvest any combination of scoters, eiders, and oldsquaw within a 7-bird limit. Under the proposed regulations, hunters will only be able to have a maximum of 4 scoters in the 7-bird limit.

The Service is also proposing to expand September Canada goose hunting opportunities, including 3-year experimental seasons in Maryland, New Jersey, and Virginia.

Extended Canada goose season dates are proposed for Massachusetts, New York, North Carolina, Minnesota, Washington, Oregon, and southeast Pennsylvania. These seasons, requested by the states, are designed mainly to harvest resident Canada geese prior to the arrival of migratory Canada geese. A number of states are experiencing problems and conflicts caused by a rapid growth in the number of non-migratory Canada geese.

Firing Line Debate

"Resolved: We Need Not Fear the Christian Right"

A great number of arguments currently abounding in the United States are making enemies on both sides of the political spectrum. Some see the issues involved—condoms in schools, abortion, gays in the military—as fundamental rights while others see them as sending the wrong message, to morally reprehensible. Is the latter group dominating this country's decision-making to the detriment of our basic freedoms?

"Resolved: We Need Not Fear the Christian Right" is the topic of a two-hour Firing Line Special Debate that is being taped on September 9th for broadcast on PBS.

Firing Line host William F. Buckley Jr. captains the team arguing in favor of the resolution, while Ira Glasser, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), heads the opposition.

Irrepressible Michael Kinsley of The New Republic magazine is counted on to moderate, as usual, with his even-handed wit.

Joining Buckley are Pat Robertson, religious broadcaster and former presidential candidate, and Rabbi Jacob Neusner, distinguished research professor of religious studies at the University of South Florida. Another team member will be announced later.

The Glasser team consists of Cornel West, professor of divinity at Princeton University; Barry Lynn, president of Americans United for Separation of Church and State; and Harriett Woods, president of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Firing Line Special Debate airs Sunday, September 19th at 2:00 p.m.
