R.E.A. MEETING

A group of interested people met Saturday, September 27, in the district court room, to hear Mr. Chapman, superintendent of the Floyd County REA, discuss the possibilities of the REA in this county. The money is ready to build the line when we get the required number of signers.

A meeting will be held each Saturday to give people who are interested a chance to sign. All people that have signed, as well as those that have not, are asked to be at the court room Saturday 2:30 p. m. If you have any questions, be there to get first-hand information.

It was felt that it would be more convenient for people to sign at the court house, for they are usually too busy to visit an individual's house.

Muddy Roads And Cave-ins Slow Work On Oil Well

Muddy roads have prevented the editor's almost-daily pilgrimage to the oil test well south of Silverton and has made hauling and work at the well almost impossible. The big six-wheelers on the highway have made the road almost impassable for passenger cars.

Last reports (Tuesday) from the well were that drilling had stopped again at about 1,000 feet and that the week was being spent in pouring cement and repairing cave-ins.

J. L. Webb, of the Silverton Clay Products Corporation, is furnishing the rotary mud for the drilling rig, and he said today that he understood that drilling was to be resumed again sometime tonight.

The well seems to be developing into a tight-hole drilling job and information is very seldom released.

FORGETS TO CELEBRATE

Time slipped a year by Mammy Haynes this year, and she completely forgot her birthday, which was Monday, September 29. Mrs. Haynes was 84 years young on that date. It was not until Mrs. Clay Fowler dropped in with a gift Monday that Mammy happened to think that she was a year older.

Mrs. Haynes has raised two families of boys, all of whom are gone from home now most of the time. She is probably Silverton's most "typical" mother, takes a great interest in all young folks, and is honorary mother to the Silverton Boy Scouts. The Scouts presented Mammy with a large box of chocolates, and she received many other tokens from many friends.

As one of many admirers, the Briscoe County News, extends congratulations to Mammy Haynes on her 84th birthday.

Mrs. A. L. McMurtry entertained with a coffee Friday morning in honor of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. L. T. Wood.

Very Few Missed In Governments Far Reaching Miscellaneous Tax Program

GIGGIE BRIEFS

By Ray S. McEntire
Briscoe Co. Committee

Soil Building Practices

Business farmers of Briscoe county are taking immediate steps to earn maximum soil-building assistance. They will lose the opportunity to use this money for improvement of the soil on their farms this year.

The 1941 program ends October 30, 1941 all practices must be completed by that date if assistance is to be received under the program.

This year, farmers of Briscoe county failed to earn 12% of the maximum assistance allowed under the AAA farm program. Farmers of Texas fell short of the maximum by two and a half million dollars.

The big issue is not the amount of money unearned, but the fact that soil-building practices were not completed.

Improving the fertility of the soil is more important now, because of the demands of consumers in this country and the needs of maintaining aggression require greater food production in the face of national defense.

Practices which still can be completed by the end of the contract include terracing, contour listing, chiseling and furrowing, non-crop pasture, and earthen tanks and reservoirs.

These practices tend to preserve soil moisture, prevent erosion and improve grass supply.

Cotton Loan Program

Various questions have been referred to the county office relative to the 1941 Cotton Loan Program. Especially are the landlords interested in the question of whether they can place their share of the production on their farms under Government Loan in their own names.

Existing regulations governing the 1941 Cotton Loan Program allow landlords to place their share of the production on their own name. They also execute the Producers' Note jointly with their tenant, thereby making the note for both interested parties.

To execute any forms necessary for the sale of the cotton to the Commodity Corporation.

Marketing Cards

It is necessary that you obtain your marketing card. These are available at the AAA office in Silverton. It is absolutely necessary for you as producer of cotton in Briscoe County to call on the office and obtain your card before you can market your cotton.

Person Discusses Insurance Rates

Anderson, local insurance agent, is holding the Lions Club Wednesday night meeting and will discuss rates and penalties which apply now to the Silverton property owners, when their fire insurance. Being Silverton laborer unemployed 15%, because of the record. Since that time, very few fires, better attention and better attention to fire prevention, the fire department has received the best rating we can without the expenditure of considerable money.

Anderson also spoke briefly to the Lions Club and explaining several things which perhaps could be done to a trifle more insurance.

Fire Chief, Also Told Work of the Department

At the present time there are several vacancies on the department, and asked for new members. It is hard to say or estimate how much in dollars and cents the fire department has cost the property owners here. For the most part, it is probably the most efficient fighting force in this county.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Enactment of Price Fixing Measure And Repeal of U. S. Neutrality Act Are Chief Congressional Problems; Soviet Situation Grave, Say British

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Bernard M. Baruch, who headed the War Industries Board during World War I, is pictured as he urged congress "to put a ceiling over the whole price structure including wages, rents, and farm prices." Baruch, who appeared before the House Banking and Currency committee, advocated a much more drastic price control bill than that planned by the administration. Photo shows, left to right: Representative Gore of Tennessee, Rep. Paul Brown of Georgia, Rep. Brent Spence of Kentucky, Rep. Clyde Williams of Missouri, Chairman of the Committee Rep. Henry B. Steagall of Alabama, and Bernard Baruch.

KIEV: Two Versions

The Germans had claimed the complete capture of Kiev, the entering of the whole city, the "mopping up" of small bodies of "die-hard" troops, and the fleeing of Russian commanders.

On the same day the Russians, admitting the German entry into the Kiev suburbs, had pictured a "battle to the death," and a defense of the city which was costing the Nazis 150,000 men and vast quantities of material.

Odessa, in the south, was finding the "pressure relieved," the Reds had reported.

In these diametrically opposing statements, perhaps the only light was coming from British sources, presumably getting information from mission observers on the scene, but the British reports had been entirely gloomy.

The British had reported that an "apparent" cutoff of the Crimean peninsula had occurred, and though they scouted the German report of having trapped 400,000 to 500,000 Russian troops in an encirclement near Kiev, they saw the Russian situation as grave indeed.

From out of all this it was evident that the fall of Kiev seemed inevitable and finally even the Russians admitted its fall, after what was termed "ferce fighting."

BULGARIA: On Nazi Side

Britain had admitted the decision of King Boris of Bulgaria to throw his nation, final Balkan question-mark, in on the side of Hitler.

In this was seen a more general picture of the German effort, which undoubtedly was to be a threatening move toward Turkey, and the establishment of sea-borne invasion points to go after Rostov and the oil fields.

All this was tied up indissolubly with the Russian crisis, as it was plain Turkey would view with alarm the Russian weakness and her own resistance to Nazi advances would be tempered by the strength or weak character of Soviet military power.

Also the effort of the British to bring her own and United States' material to the Russian fields through the Persian gulf was largely to stand or fall as a result of the success or failure of this southern German drive.

Hence it was that W. Averell Harriman, head of the American mission to the Soviet, had stressed the immediate and vital necessity of rushing all possible material to Russia.

JAPAN: Gets Tougher

Nippon, in the meantime, had been taking a stiffer attitude toward the United States, and in particular had turned her ire upon Russia, sensing that in the wounded "bear's" distress lay her opportunity of hitting out at her old rival.

Charging that the Russians had cut loose floating mines in the Japanese sea, in violation of international law and friendly behavior between nations, Japan made the strongest representations.

At the same time she was rebuffing efforts of the United States toward a peaceful settlement in the Pacific, and was issuing propaganda charging that the Chinese would demand equality with the white races, and a right to enter the U. S.

The government of Thailand, faced further with the request from Vichy that America, in settling peace in the Pacific, see that the Japanese were expelled from Indo-China, and realizing the critical times in the Orient, informed its people that war for Thailand was near at hand.

PRICES: And Baruch

Bernard Baruch, World war wartime industries head, threw a bombshell into the price-fixing bill discussion when he postulated that no price fixing would work without fixing costs of merchandise, including wages and rentals.

That his pronouncement had a profound effect had been immediately evident in the acceptance of his views by at least two influential members of the committee, and it was considered more than possible that the final form of the bill would carry an amendment to fix wage ceilings.

Also there was more than an undercurrent evident hitting out at Leon Henderson, price control administration by executive appointment in the committee's feeling that the bill should be administered by a board, not an individual.

POLICY: Gains Support

Faced with the grimmer picture of European war, and a realization through Russia's crisis that American aid would have to be considerable if the Axis were finally to be defeated, and the democracies win the victory, one notable change in Washington sentiment was a growing support for the White House foreign policy.

It was evident in the pre-action discussion of the repeal of the Neutrality act, President Roosevelt's latest request anent his policy.

Even from circles most strongly isolationist, and most vigorously opposed to the President it was conceded that the act would be repealed, perhaps within two months.

The cohesion of foes of the President's policy was becoming less firm. Senator LaFollette, for instance, had urged all isolationists, non-interventionists to gird for the battle of ballots this fall, and to make the foreign policy their issue.

Senator Taft, at the same time, had urged campaigners and voters in the congressional primaries to leave the foreign policy out of the picture. He said:

"Congressional votes on the question have cut across party lines, and there is no reason for the party to make an issue of foreign policy."

Wendell Wilkie, storm center of both of these statements, saw the first as an acceptance of his challenge to the isolationists to meet interventionist candidates he would put in the field, and the second as an unwillingness on the part of a Republican leader to meet the issue.

DUTCH: In Rebellion

Sabotage, theft and anti-Nazi rebellions were occurring on an increasing tempo in Holland, it had been reported in London through a Dutch news agency.

The Rotterdam public prosecutor stated that the city was unsafe, and that the forces of law and order were unable to cope with the wave of crime.

While not giving actual instances of anti-Nazi demonstrations, the censored dispatches had spoken of "rowdism, burglary, petty thefts and other outrages." In Utrecht special guards were appointed to aid the police.

HOSTAGES:

The Germans in Paris, under General Stuepnagel, executed 12 French hostages to pay for the death of one German non-commissioned officer, shot in the back on a Paris street as he walked to his home.

The shots came from a passing auto. The assassins were not arrested. Summarily taken out and shot had been seven Communists, one Jew and two persons accused of having been in the possession of weapons, and three who had been charged with attacking soldiers.

Farm Land Speculation Is Threat to Agriculture

Government Warns Fever of Land Buying Would Start Another 'Unhappy' Economic Cycle for U. S.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H. Street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

Farm income—cash income—will be nearly $11,000,000,000 this year. That is two billions greater than last year.

Money to burn! And the burning question in Washington is how to stop the conflagration before it starts. The chief danger is another prairie fire of farm land speculation such as started out in Iowa in World War I. First there were wash sales. They were publicized. Real sales began which sent farm prices up to the blue skies and which ended by making a farm mortgage the cheapest form of wall paper.

Two years after that World war started, the prices of farm land rose 5 per cent. Not much later they leaped a hundred per cent and more. The eventual collapse was forerunner of the depression.

Today, two years after the present war started, farm land prices are up 1 per cent. That isn't so bad but the government is already worried enough to consider it worth while trying to start a back fire in the hope of preventing a recurrence of the unhappy cycle which began 25 years ago.

When Governor Black of the Farm Credit administration called in the farm mortgage bankers, the insurance people, farm organization representatives and others in the rural real estate field he simply reminded them that when the government loaned the farmers the money to bail them (the mortgagors) out last time, it was done on appraisals based on normal values. Now it is up to the real estate people to make their appraisals on normal values, too. That means on figures based on the relationship between farm products prices and other prices established for the years of 1914-1918.

A million farmers who were loaned money by the Farm Credit administration during the depression have repaid their mortgages. Those farmers are keenly aware of the danger to agriculture and to the whole economy if a fever of mad land-buying starts again. They will help stop it, if they can. The government will do all in its power in the way of education—meetings will be held—the house organ of the Farm Credit administration which has a million circulation will carry the warning. The real estate operators have indicated that they will cooperate.

Whether money to burn will burn the farmer is still uncertain. In the end, stopping another drunken orgy of land speculation and the terrible headache afterward depends on the word-of-mouth message of the individual. The burned child fears the fire but there is always someone to urge him to risk a blister for the delicious chestnut he sees roasting on the coals.

Policy—Orders—Action—Silence—

"As Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy I order the following policy carried out at once: our patrolling vessels and planes will protect all merchant ships—not only American ships but ships of any flag—engaged in commerce in waters which we deem necessary for our defense. American naval vessels and American planes will strike the first blow against Axis submarines or Axis raiders on the surface of the sea."

This communication in substance was transmitted to the office of the secretary of the navy from the White House a few weeks ago.

There it was immediately translated, first into naval language and then into code. Over land wires to the wireless towers near Annapolis it was flashed to ships of the United States navy on the seven seas . . .

It is early morning. A thin steely light spreads across the horizon as the U. S. destroyer "Blank," a part of the Atlantic patrol, rides the easy swells. On board, the smooth routine goes on with its clock-work monotony. But there is the ghost of a grim smile exchanged between the captain and the executive officer—they have both read the coded message recorded by the wireless operator a little while before.

Three minutes later the ship is galvanized from galley to crow's nest.

CHAPTER IV

A strident gong has sounded bos'n's whistle is trilling high the wash of the waves and the of the engines for the work come down from the lookout: "Torpedo track sight. Starboard bow. —4-0!"

The gong sounds—that mean any emergency but there is time to wonder the rings out—

"All hands to general quarters! Before the gun crews have off the site covers, the executive officer has reported to the captain: "Battle stations manned, sir!"

The "torpedo track," a ribbon white moves forward toward the destroyer at the rate of 1,000 yards a minute. But the tube of high explosive itself, which is sending tell-tale "track" of bubbles yards ahead of the nearest that shows—it takes some time for those bubbles to reach the face.

The bearing of the torpedo is fled and the destroyer swings leaps "full-speed-ahead" to meet. Not because the captain was contact the whirring death-bolt on, but because there is less of a hit if the ship shows its bow instead of the length of its hull target. And the objective of the destroyer is a spot as nearly the point where the submarine submerged as it is possible to mate it. That point is reached the torpedo has missed its mark while ears are glued to the detector straining for the sub's engines.

"Release depth charges." Down go the "ash-cans" one another; mounds of water rise sound detector is deflected. The destroyer, turning sharply, releases the spot and releases another of charges.

The roar dies in the distance. There is silence. And that is the end of the marine. It is quite possible one will ever know what happened until after the war—perhaps then. And even if some piece of equipment is blown the inside of the sub and ready surface, that does not mean the public will know. At least for a long time.

Seasonal Glory In National Capital Washington is standing at the threshold of its seasonal glory—October's bright blue weather, month of beauty in the capital.

Already the early morning comes down in soft blue haze August's heavy carpet of shade pavement and lawn is thinner lacework pattern as the leaves e and drop.

Gardens have faded but the one hardy bush (Rose of Sharon) which blooms before the month ends hollyhock and a morning glory harder than either.

The city wakes with a new glow that the tropic days are Women government workers are with a brisk step for a last with dogs or babies, whichever possess, before they go off "office." Landladies struggle ward cheerfully with their parcels. But trolley cars stop and jerk, packed to the doors the new thousands who cross sagging city with the clerks of . . .

Suez Canal Symbol Of British Power Symbols are often more potent than facts or things in influencing the public. The Suez canal is ways been considered Britain's line. It is the symbol of British sea-power, of the bonds that the Empire together, of achievement.

And yet the canal is as French as British, both in control and in months ago it became a questionable value because weeks at a time it has closed as a result of attacks on the air.

Long ago showed Britons that they must prepare for the loss of the Suez canal. At least five years ago a book was published pointing out that in war Britain must be prepared to protect ship routes around . . .

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

A high government official said the other day (privately, of course): "If 5 per cent of the people working on defense in Washington were fired the work of the remainder would be more efficient." Oh, make it 33 1/2 per cent!

Some 6,700,000 pounds of pots and pans collected in the aluminum drive are now being processed into fighting planes.

"My colleagues have unduly observed that the color walls of the senate chambers are the same as that of caskets."

Warning to politicians: has ever been elected on his own's platform.

The big brass bell on the gines is doomed. The brass bell ed for defense.

... "How are you today?"

... "I'm fine, thank you."

... "That's good. I'm... glad."

... Jacqueline had herself in hand now.

... "Do you really have a letter to write?"

... "No fooling." He held up some papers in proof. "It's to Todman, Kell, Limited, Montreal. Gentlemen..."

... He began his dictation hesitatingly, frowning his way through the introductory paragraphs, then speaking more rapidly. Jacqueline gave her complete attention to the writing, relieved that her first nervousness had disappeared. There must be no errors in this letter.

... It proved to be rather lengthy. "Will that be all?" she inquired.

... "For now. Address a long envelope, if you have one. How much is it?"

... "Why..." After all, one scarcely could charge one's husband for a letter!

... "No nonsense!" Larry cut in sharply. "Regular rates."

... "Seventy-five cents," she managed meekly.

... Larry read the letter leisurely, signed it and placed it in the envelope. He seemed in no haste to leave. What was he going to say?

... "You must write a lot of letters, off and on," he speculated. "Do your customers bind you to secrecy?"

... Jacqueline laughed in spite of herself. "Some of them do," she admitted. "But that's a joke. Two minutes after I write a letter, I couldn't tell you what was in it. I hear the words and put them down. That's all."

... "That's odd. But I can figure it. I'll be having some letters for you now and again. I think it might be well if you made an exception in my case."

... "How do you mean?"

... "I mean that it might be a good idea to remember what I write about."

... "But why?" Jacqueline's curiosity was roused.

... "I was thinking I might want an alibi some time. You never can tell. And that reminds me. I'm going away tomorrow night."

... "Are you?" It was said with a

... rying him. Jacqueline had just lost her life's savings in the stock market, and her father had recently left her when she refused him additional money for work on his inventions. Stunned by this double blow, she accepted his proposal

... and they signed a contract permitting her to continue her mode of living, and to nullify the marriage after six months. They drove home in silence after being married in a nearby town.

... Now continue with the story.

... credible lack of concern.

... "Yes. Running out to Chicago to check up on a matter. I'll be back here, though. This is headquarters, from now on. Do you know the law firm of Hicks and Hicks?"

... "I've heard of them."

... "Wouldn't wonder. Young Randolph Hicks is a friend of mine. If you ever have occasion to talk to him, he's a square shooter."

... "Thank you. I've no reason to consult a lawyer... that I know of. Have I?"

... "Of course not. But, you see... well, if I ever were to need one of those guys they call an executor, Rannie would be it. You'd find that out."

... "You mean... he knows?" The tone of the question was cold. Larry had promised that no one need be told.

... "Yes. But you can trust him absolutely. I had to tell him, because I have an estate... now. You should know about the arrangement. But that isn't what I wanted to talk about. Seeing I'm going away for a time... I wondered if I mightn't have a little talk with you. Maybe we could go... to another movie."

... "I don't believe so."

... "I get you. I know I shouldn't have asked. I'm sticking to the rules, but it's a little harder than I figured." He grinned ruefully. "This is off the record, but... Yesterday, I was as lonesome as... hell! Had to sit on my hands all afternoon and evening to keep from picking up my phone... Calling you. I thought if I could only say hello it would help. Forgive me. I guess I'll get used to it after a bit. Anyway, I promise to be good." He rose to his feet, as if to make sure.

... Jacqueline's heart gave a disturbing little jump. Larry had missed her, too!

... "Then it's no movies." He said it wistfully. Like a small boy.

... "No. I think we should not go... places."

... "Right. I'm leaving late tomorrow night. I'll pop my head in and say good-by... If you don't mind."

... "Mr. Cutter..." Jacqueline called his name in a desperate little voice. He was leaving.

... "Yes, Miss Anthony?"

... She swallowed hard. "I don't think I'd care about going out tomorrow evening. But I expect to be at home..."

... "Then you mean I may call?" Larry's face was wreathed in smiles.

... "If you'd like to."

... "If I like! About eight?"

... Jacqueline scarcely recognized her own voice as she answered that question.

... "Seven. We... we'll have dinner at my place. I can't fix anything elaborate. But if..."

... "Boy! I'll be there on the dot! And you can't possibly reach me, in case you change your mind. So don't try."

... He went out, whistling a gay little tune under his breath. Jacqueline sat staring after him, uncertain whether to laugh or to cry. What had this man done to her, anyway? She had invited him to dine with her. At her apartment. She never had served dinner there except to herself, and that not often. And now she was going to feed a man! A vision of Larry in the cafeteria came before her eyes... that formidable array of "civilized grub" weighing down his tray. How could her kitchenette ever satisfy him?

... Jacqueline ate a hurried dinner in a restaurant at a safe distance from the hotel, trying frantically to vision a menu that would satisfy a man and still be within the resources of her very diminutive kitchen and its appointments.

... Larry liked roast beef. He had eaten it in the cafeteria that night, ordered it again for their wedding dinner. Quite out of the question. A chicken! Of course. She could get one from the delicatessen... Roasted. Sweet potatoes... Candied, if she had not forgotten how. Another vegetable. And salad... The world looked brighter.

... Some of Edgar's rolls. Ice cream. Coffee.

... "I want a roasted chicken tomorrow night," she was explaining to fat Mr. Hildebrand in the delicatessen, a little later. "It must be beautifully done, crisp. And have it ready at six sharp," she added importantly.

... "Ah! It giffs company then?" beamed the jovial Hildebrand. "It shall be a beautiful fowl. I see to it myself, Miss. How big?"

... "Gracious! I don't know. As big as a chicken as a man likes..."

... Once within her room, Jacqueline stood looking about almost in despair at this newest prospect. So much to do! And everything must be nice.

... Her eyes fell upon Vince's picture on the mantel. There seemed to be a quizzical twinkle in his eyes.

... "It's nothing to laugh at, Vince," she told him with a little sigh. "You... your son-in-law is coming to dinner."

Bottle Babe of the Wild

Abandoned by its mother, a day old moose was found near Marten river, Ont., Canada, by a party of American fishermen who turned it over to their guide, George Hughes. The moose was named Wendell, after an American who is popular in Ontario.

George Hughes lifts the lost babe gently as he takes it back to camp for introduction to some food delivered through a pacifier.

The baby moose knows exactly what to do with the bottle of food to do with the bottle of food to do with the bottle of food.

Pete waited until the new arrival had a sound sleep and then began washing the moose as a mother would her pup.

My Week

by Eleanor Roosevelt

RETAILERS AND DEFENSE

One noon, I went to buy a stamp at the exhibition which opened "Retailers For Defense Week." This effort on the part of retailers to do a real job for defense is a very wise move. While it may curtail some of the buying at the present time, it will put money in people's pockets for future use. We shall need that money to keep us from too great a business slump during the transition from defense work to normal activities.

It seems to me that in everything we do today we should have an eye to our present needs, but at the same time think far enough ahead to guard against some of the difficulties we have undergone in the past.

For instance, if the production of automobiles is going to be drastically curtailed in order that industry may take a bigger share in defense work, why not plan to put money, which in ordinary times we might set aside for a new automobile, into Defense Stamps, and call those stamps: "Our Automobile Fund" for the future?

We may have to use our old car a bit longer than we would ordinarily think wise, or even economically sound, but at least we can arrange our own finances so that they are helpful to the government at present and useful to us when the day comes for buying that new car.

WOMEN AND BUSINESS

Women are as interested in all these business questions as men. During the second week of October which will be observed as Business and Professional Women's week throughout the nation, there will be special emphasis on the plans laid by which women, many of whom are influential in business and professional groups, can aid the defense program.

I wish they would all think not only of the problems which come before them in business, but also of the many local problems which in the end are going to be very vital in national defense. A particularly vital problem is participation of volunteers in work where their efforts will be valuable.

I am counting on these important women's organizations to make a valuable contribution in the working out of the volunteer services. They must be rendered on a very large scale if this country is ever to be really well prepared and fully defended.

I was very much interested to see that the "Reader's Digest" is going to be published in Portuguese as well as in Spanish. This publication has proved that it is possible to bring out in this country a magazine that is read by our South and Central American neighbors with interest, and I wish this new venture great success.

'SHAPE OF THE FUTURE'

I want to tell you about a series of articles which the magazine "Common Sense" is announcing. They plan later to have them published in book form, but in the meantime, both the subject matter and the authors make me feel that none of us will want to miss them. They deal in a general way with the "shape of the future."

The editors, in their announcement, say a few things which, if they are really carried out by the articles, mean that we shall be given something vital to think about. One statement reads:

"The crucial question for believers in democracy is whether the constructive possibilities are to be realized... We can not hope merely to save what we have. No Maginot Line can hold back the tide of change."

CIVILIAN VOLUNTEERS

A conference one morning with Miss Eloise Davison to talk over some of the things in connection with civilian volunteer participation in national defense. I am trying, as far as possible, to familiarize myself with the organization which now exists. I am studying its accomplishments and publications, so that when I do go to the office, I shall not find myself meeting people whose names I do not know and who are functioning in ways which I do not as yet understand.

I am very much interested in a pamphlet which has been compiled for the organizations which are dealing with the registration of volunteers. It is intended to aid in setting up volunteer registration centers. This seems to be a valuable step, but it will take some time to set them up so they function smoothly.

I like Mayor LaGuardia's idea that registering people is comparatively useless, but enrolling them to do definite things is well worth while. Obviously, it accomplishes two things at once. It gives a card catalogue of people who may be called upon at any time, and actually places people in positions where they function in their communities.

I talked also that morning with Miss Jane Seaver, who is the youth member on the Committee of Forty-Five on Volunteer Participation. She has worked out a preliminary program for youth participation.

YOU BUY INOCULATION ON FAITH

Field tests have shown a big difference in the quality of inoculator brands on the market. You cannot see the legume bacteria you purchase. Immediate demonstration is impossible. What is the reputation and experience behind the inoculation you buy?

- NITRAGIN is the ORIGINAL LEGUME INOCULATOR, having served the farmers for over forty years. It won a GOLD MEDAL at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904.
- NITRAGIN is made in the most complete and modern laboratory of its kind in the world.
- NITRAGIN is the leader in its field by a big margin. NITRAGIN demand in the South has rapidly increased year after year. During the fall of 1940 the Southern shipments of NITRAGIN were for more than 45 million pounds of VETCH and WINTER PEAS. This large demand is due to many field tests carried on year after year. We prove by these tests that NITRAGIN is a good product.

Send for our booklet "Plant Legumes to Prosper" showing pictures of field tests and how NITRAGIN is made. The booklet also gives you valuable information regarding the inoculation of legumes. If your dealer does not have NITRAGIN in stock, have him get it for you. Insist on NITRAGIN inoculation.

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

THE NEWSPAPER
LIGHTS THE WAY OF FREEDOM

THIS IS NATIONAL Newspaper Week, and although you know it, I want to call your attention to the column heading this week . . . "The Newspaper Lights the Way of Freedom." Does anyone doubt that statement?

IN CASE THIS country should fall before a dictatorial form of government, whether one set up by an invader, three phases of our "way of living" would be stopped. First, the newspapers. Second, public speakers and radio; third ministers of the Gospel.

THIS COUNTRY was founded on the idea that the government was to be the servant of the people. Communism, Nazism and Fascism are based wholly on the idea that the people live for the state. To get folks to the place where they will accept that form of government, knowledge of everyday affairs must be withheld or misinterpreted.

AND SO THE first step would be the whacking off of heads of all free speaking editors. And in their place would be the government controlled newspaper—lies and half-truths—you read enough of it, and sooner or later you get to believing it.

WHICH GETS AROUND again

to the slogan "Newspapers Light The Way for Freedom."

JUST HOW IMPORTANT in this scheme of things is the Briscoe County News, the Quitaque Post, the Floyd County Hesperian and hundreds of other little papers, I don't want to say. Needless it is to say, that at the head of every one of these papers is a manager, who should personify the community for which he writes. If he differs with YOUR opinion, his columns are open for you to present your side of any question. If he differs with the general trend of public thinking, don't think him a heel or a radical. Look first to see whether or not he is following the line of least resistance, or whether he is using the influence of his paper as a brake to mass thinking. Sometimes, you know mass thinking is bad, bad business.

THERE IS ONE phase of this "freedom of the press" that wasn't taken care of by the writers of the Constitution . . . the financial end. Very seldom have you ever seen a little newspaperman who was rolling in dough. Me, I guess is about all. To keep these little newspapers going to give you a place of self expression, and an accurate of past event, takes money, far and above the subscription revenue. That financial aid is obtained from commercial printing and commercial advertising. Without this business, no small newspaper can exist.

AND SO, WHEN you read the ads, small and large, think to yourself that here is a merchant who is instrumental in bringing me my newspaper—and who is instrumental in keeping alive the freedom of the press—that lights the way for Freedom.

WHICH MAKES ME think of a Silverton merchant who worries a lot because his neighbor advertises. He doesn't believe in advertising (he tells me) yet he worries because his neighbor does. He doesn't want the neighbor to advertise—yet every week that neighbor's advertisement brings folks to town to trade. It doesn't make sense—kinda like the Chinaman—he won't oil his wheelbarrow because oil costs money. So he lets it wear out and is stuck for the price of a new one.

SO MUCH FOR newspapers. Must get on to bigger stuff. Which is the war. We are in the war—body, but not soul. Uncle Sam has committed himself to the defeat of Hitlerism. Not much to defeat Hitlerism as to prevent Hitlerism from defeating us. It's a situation that has been forced upon us and here seems to be no way out but war.

OUR PRESENT POLICY is to furnish materials. So long as we maintain our present attitude as a nation we are not contributing our full force toward our avowed purpose of defeating Hitler. Our attitude at present is "Lindbergh says", "Wheeler says", "C.I.O. Lewis says". We strike. We do everything in the world but pull together. Yet we are out to do what is called the biggest job in the history of the world. It can't be done the way we are going at it.

I BELIEVE (not that it makes a darn) that the best way we can do this job is to declare war now. Which is bad talk. But nevertheless if we come out in the open with a declaration of war, we would automatically eliminate the Lindberghs, the Wheelers, the strikes and what have you. We would eliminate the bickering around because in time of war such bickering is not permitted—even in the good old U.S.A. And when we eliminated the bickering we could get down to work.

Nnf sed! Maybe too much.

SLOGAN OF THE week: (by Doc Minyard) "He's a good fellow but he won't pay his bills." Doc says that Ted Roussin originated that saying while he was here, but that Ted never could understand it. Doc says he used to tell Ted it was just Southern Hospitality and that there was nothing he could do about it. Well Ted did do something about it. He moved.

THE TEXACO STATION has a policy. It is "Chains installed free." It worked very nicely until a Phillips company man dropped in. Well it's worth two bits anyway I imagine.

BEGIN AT HOME

Fire Prevention Week will be observed from October 5 to 11 this year. And every community in America, from the biggest metropolis down to the tiniest village, should participate. Now, as never before, fire prevention is a public duty. For fire prevention is of great and direct service to national defense.

What most of us fail to realize is that it is the cumulative total of relatively small fires which is responsible for the bulk of this country's shameful fire waste. Fire prevention, to be successful, must literally begin at home. Defective furnaces, defective wiring, accumulations of paper and rubbish, improperly stored flammable liquids, such as paint and cleaning solvents, matches, cigarettes—such little things as these are the cause of hundreds of millions of dollars of fire loss. A little effort and a little money will make your home safe.

From the community point of view one essential protection against fire is a modern building code. These codes should be up to the highest standard, and should make such hazards as the existence of fire traps impossible. Equally important, they are of small use unless they are rigidly enforced—and enforced without fear or favor. A code which is a dead letter because of lack of enforcement, is as bad as no code at all.

During Fire Prevention Week, every citizen should take advantage of the opportunity that will be offered to learn the causes of fires—and how they may be prevented. Then, apply what you have learned. Do it at home, and do it at work. It will save you money—and it may save a life. And it may save valuable materials and resources which are so sorely needed now for defense. Let's make 1941 the year in which this country solves the problem of preventable fire.

NAZI EDGE OUT -- The ability of American defense industry to even up the eight-year head start of the Nazis is borne out by report last week on the progress of this country's new synthetic rubber industry. Comparison in this field is especially pertinent, as in Germany necessity has driven government-subsidized research and production of synthetic rubber at high speed for many years. It was only last year that first American-made synthetic rubber tires reached the open market—B. F. Goodrich's Ameripol. Yet under a $2,750,000 contract announced last week by the Defense Plant Corporation, a single American company will soon have a synthetic rubber capacity almost equal to Germany's at the start of the war. It is the Hycar Chemical Company, which was organized 13 months ago by the pioneer rubber firm and Phillips Petroleum Company to make synthetic rubber from the petroleum gas, butadiene. By the end of next year, Hycar expects to be producing man-made rubber at the rate of 17,000 long tons a year.

The department of Commerce estimates that Germany was producing 20,000 tons a year in 1939. The Hycar output will be 10 times that of the whole United States for last year.

Fluorescent lamps in the shapes of plates or discs, rather than the long tubes, have been made possible by a new process, and are expected to be suitable for mounting in conventional ceiling outlets or floor lamps for homes . . . a new floor finish called penetrex which is said to enter into combination with the wood fiber itself, forming an especially hard and tough finish because it's in the wood rather than just on top of it . . . an "improved and simplified converter" by RCA which picks up FM (frequency modulation) broadcast signals and converts them into amplitude modulation waves than can be tuned in by a conventional long-wave receiving set . . . "left-handed" checkbooks—in which the stubs are in the right-hand side so southpaw writers can make entries more easily; the St. Joseph Bank of South Bend, Indiana thought up this innovation and had calls for 52 of them in the first month.

NEW WAYS FOR YOUR BAKING DAYS
(See Recipes Below)

HOT BREADS—QUICKLY

Crisp, hot rolls? Cinnamon filled and twisted full of nuts, sugar and raisins? Muffins golden and plump standing high in peaks? Scones spread with jam or jelly? Why, of course, they're yummy, and what's better, they can all be made in a jiffy. With the cooler weather setting in, you homemakers can return the hot breads and their baking into your schedules.

Or is there a bake sale or a bazaar included in the fall and winter schedule of your church or club activities? Nothing will fill the bill quite so nicely as a few trays of freshly baked biscuits, rolls, and bread.

Although cakes and pies can be baked at home by individual members, these hot breads can be made, oh, so quickly right in the church kitchen because they need only a few supplies and a few minutes to bake. They'll give your display a more complete array of baked goods and will also be a good substantial contrast to the fancier displays. To make things easy, serve them in pans (if you can spare them) to save time in making displays.

If you're planning a sale of bakery goods, have one section of a table set aside for selling individual pieces of cakes, pie, cookies, or a roll. When people realize how delicious a mouthful is, they can hardly resist buying a bagful.

As a good starter, consider the possibilities of the humble baking-powder biscuit.

Baking Powder Biscuits.

(Makes 12 biscuits)

- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons butter or shortening
- Milk to mix

Sift the flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, then cut in shortening. Add milk and mix just enough to hold together in large flakes. Pat to 1/4 of an inch thickness on a floured board and cut with a biscuit cutter. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes.

*Butterscotch Rolls.

Make baking-powder biscuits as given in the recipe above and pat on floured board. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll as for jelly roll and cut in 1/2-inch pieces. Put 1/2 teaspoon of butter and 1 teaspoon of brown sugar in each muffin pan and lay the pieces of rolled dough on top of them. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees).

LYNN SAYS:

Quick breads require less attention than yeast breads, but there are a few pointers about them you ought to bear in mind. Beware of overmixing the batter or dough. For the baking powder variety work the fat into the flour or mixed dry ingredients only until mixed. Then stop, quickly. Mix in the milk with a few whirrs, but do not overmix unless you want tough, leathery biscuits.

The secret of good muffins is to mix the batter only until blended. Even the egg should be only slightly beaten. If you want the muffins high in peaks, add a tablespoonful or two of extra flour to the recipe. Honey, jam and jelly are indicated for muffins as grand pick-ups for meals.

Always measure ingredients unless you have the extraordinary quality of guessing accurately. There is such a thing, but it is rare, so remember to use standard measuring cups and spoons. Measurements are level unless otherwise stated.

Ovens for most quick breads are hotter than for the yeast varieties. Set the meter correctly when heating and do not put batter or dough in until the oven has reached the desired temperature.

Pecan Rolls.

Make as for butterscotch rolls, except add chopped pecans before rolling as jelly roll. Place broken pecan nutmeats in muffin tins with butter and sugar before putting in rolled dough. Bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes.

Plain Muffins.

(Makes 1 dozen)

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- 3/4 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons melted shortening

Mix the dry ingredients. Add the milk to the egg and mix with the dry ingredients. To this add the shortening. Stir till just mixed. Fill greased muffin tins quickly with two tablespoonfuls to each pan. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 25 minutes.

The muffin recipe may also be baked in a square pan and topped with the following: 2 tablespoons sugar rubbed with 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons butter. Rub until crumbled in appearance and sprinkle over the top of batter before baking. Do your meals need toning up or do you want to make your bakery goods sale a smash hit? Either way, these scones will do the trick:

Holiday Fruit Scones.

(Makes 2 dozen scones)

- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 4 tablespoons butter or shortening
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 1/2 cup finely cut, seedless raisins
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup light cream

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening, add orange rind and raisins. Reserve about 1/2 of one egg white for glaze. Beat remaining eggs well, add cream, and then add to flour mixture. Stir the whole mixture vigorously until it forms a soft dough and follows the spoon around the bowl. Turn out immediately on a floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll 1/2 inch thick and cut in small triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with reserved egg white, slightly beaten, sprinkle with additional sugar. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 10 minutes or until browned. Serve with jam or jelly.

This bread was inspired by corn on the cob, and pleasantly simulates that favorite vegetable because of the use of cornmeal in the recipe:

Corn Sticks or Muffins.

(Makes 12)

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 3/4 cup cornmeal
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons melted butter or shortening

Mix flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, and sift. Add corn meal and mix well. Combine eggs, milk, shortening; add to flour mixture, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased muffin pans or corn-shaped pans in hot oven (425 degrees) 25 minutes.

*Oranges in Syrup.

(For 6 people)

Peel 6 oranges, remove all skin and membrane with knife, but leave orange whole. Make a syrup by boiling the following ingredients 10 minutes: 1 cup orange juice, 1/4 cup pineapple juice, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar. Place oranges in this, boil for 1 minute. Remove to serving dish. Chill thoroughly, sprinkle with coconut before serving.

'Untouchable' Jurors

Because the jury at the first trial of Boss Tweed in New York city in 1873 disagreed on a verdict, the prosecution at the second trial made certain that it had 12 "untouchable" jurors by assigning 12 officers to watch them, 12 watchers to watch the officers and 12 other watchers to watch the watchers, all 36 of whom had to make a daily report.

Modern streamlined war may have changed the arms and methods of Uncle Sam's soldiers, but it hasn't changed the Army man's smoking preference. For more than 20 years Camels have been the Army man's favorite cigarette. Today, actual sales records show Camels not only are the favorite with men in the Army, but with men in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well. With men in the service giving cigarettes first place in the gift line-up, it's natural that local tobacco dealers are featuring "Send a Carton of Camels" as the ideal gift for the service men from the folks back home.—Adv.

SOUTHERN REGION-SMA FOOD STAMP PURCHASES

During the month of August approximately $6,977,933 was sent by clients of the Surplus Marketing Administration's Food Stamp Program in retail stores operating in the 200 Food Stamp areas in the 13 Southern States.

Of the total amount $3,204,872 was used to purchase 'Blue Stamp' foods with free blue stamps. The balance $3,773,061 represents the amount clients spent to purchase orange food order stamps from local issuing officers.

The Economic Section of the Surplus Marketing Administration in Dallas, with the cooperation of certain retail stores in the Southern Region, is making a study of blue stamp food purchases. The following figures indicate how stamp clients used their free blue stamps during August in the Southern Region. They purchased $523,328.15 worth of dried raisins, dried prunes, oranges, fresh apples, peaches, prunes, plums and pears with blue stamps. Dried beans, snap beans, potatoes, fresh tomatoes, cabbage and other fresh vegetables amounted to $914,896.30 in blue stamps. $1,260,847.50 was used to purchase self-rising

"enriched" flour, self-rising flour, "enriched" wheat flour, wheat flour, graham flour, corn meal and hominy grits. Free blue stamps bought 1,564,785 dozen eggs totalling $505,800.05.

The Food Stamp Program gives the farmer a wider market for his crops. At the same time it adds needed health-building foods to the diets of families participating in the program, thereby strengthening the Health Defense of America.
