Farmer-committeemen of the county and representatives of governmental agricultural agencies of Briscoe County will meet at Lubbock, Texas, Thursday and Friday, October 30 and 31, with the counties of District 2, to lay out the Food-For-Freedom program in this county.

The district meeting will be one of a series of similar meetings being held throughout the state at the same time to get the food production program started. Representatives of Briscoe County who will attend are:

HOLDS OFF
FOR PRICE RAISE

The notice has been received of a price increase of $90 on small H and M. We are opposed against the increase on tractors for several weeks. The Company's recommendation for an immediate increase will do our best to get a tractor at the old price. We contemplate a Spring purchase and can afford to step up a few months for this price. —adv.

Owls Lose Tight Game To Estelline

By Louie Bonds

The Silverton Owls saw, met and were conquered by the Estelline Cubs Friday.

In the first quarter of the game the Cubs went over for the first touchdown. After this the Owls tightened up and held the Cubs. In the third quarter Loyd Jackson blocked a punt on the Cub's 30yd. line and Francis picked it up and went over for a touchdown. The kick for extra point was blocked.

In the fourth quarter, with two minutes to play, the Cubs went over for their second touchdown, making the score 12-6 in favor of the Cubs. The touchdown was what is known as a "bootleg" in which the ball is faked to a man following the interference one way while the ball carrier takes the ball behind his back and goes the opposite direction alone.

The Owls held the Cubs to a lone first down during the last half and were more than holding their own when the "sneak" play was run.

We can say that all the boys played a good game, and Estelline really earned their 12 points. There were no injuries in the game and everyone will be ready for Dimmit Friday.

At present Estelline and Turkey are tied for first place in the district race, each having won 2 games. Silverton has won one and lost one while Quitaque and Flo-mot have dropped both their conference starts.

FFA NEWS

The feeders are five feet long, two feet, six inches wide, and two feet eight inches high. Each feeder holds about 300 pounds of laying mash and will feed about 100 hens each. The cost of the material for these feeders was approximately $15.

Minerals Needed For Dairy Cattle

By Lem Weaver

If farmers will recall the trouble they have had with cattle on wheat pasture they will try to prevent it from happening again this year.

Well recognized veterinarians say that this was caused by a mineral deficiency. Udder trouble is a symptom of mineral deficiency. A cow is unable to use phosphorus and lime unless they are in the right proportions. The lime should be twice as much as the phosphorus. A well recommended mineral mixture to give cattle access to is two parts of steam bone meal in one part salt. Bone meal and salt has twice as much lime as phosphorus and is the only safe mineral to use. The cattle may not lick the mixture at first unless you sprinkle a little cotton seed meal over it.

Some farmers are using this mixture and say that cattle will consume the mineral. Think of the cows that had what we called wheat poison and udder trouble last year. We should lower this number this year.

RED CROSS QUOTA IS DOUBLED FOR COUNTY THIS YEAR

Last year Briscoe County had a Red Cross quota of $200 and this year, due to increased need the world over, the amount has been increased to $400.

There will be an executive board meeting at the City Hall in Quitaque, Friday afternoon at 2:30. A representative from National Headquarters will be present. All persons interested are invited to attend.

Waddill-Stinson

A wedding of interest to many in this community, is that of Nona Waddill and Mr. Elmer Stinson. They were married Tuesday afternoon, October 21, at five o'clock at the Methodist Parsonage in Vernon, Texas. Rev. Cal C. Wright, resident pastor, performed the ceremony.

The ceremony was attended by only a few close relatives including the bride's mother, Mrs. S. A. Shearer, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shearer of Vernon. After the ceremony the wedding supper was served at the Walter Shearer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stinson have both lived in Silverton most of their lives. She is employed at the King Beauty Salon and Mr. Stinson is manager of the Stinson Radio and Electric Shop and projectionist at the Palace Theatre. They will make their home in Silverton.

Nutrition Program Adopted For State

A unified state food and nutrition program designed to strengthen the total population for its defense effort, as well as to meet the state's long-range health needs, was adopted by the Texas State Nutrition Committee during a meeting in Austin, October 13 and 14.

Economic assistance for Texas families unable to produce or purchase a well balanced diet was one objective of the board program, so the committee endorsed an over-all price control bill, recommended legislation which would remove the occupation tax on dollars in oleomargarine, and resolved to work toward adjustment of freight rate differentials.

To accomplish its objectives the group planned for the setting up of volunteer food and nutrition committees in every Texas county and incorporated town, according to the chairman, Mildred Horton, who is vice director of the Texas A and M College Extension Service. She explains that these committees will be asked to assist with in-service training for people working on food establishments and to work toward expansion of the community school lunch program and the food stamp plan.

Other objectives included in the plan are: promotion of consumer and producer cooperatives, establishment of diet clinics in connection with hospitals and medical clinics, and cooperation in the Food for Freedom program of the state and county USDA Defense Boards to assure adequate food production for domestic uses and lend-lease needs.

Setting up of a state nutrition committee for Negroes likely will be one result of the meeting, according to Miss Horton.

A sub-committee on research pledged to find the ways to increase use of Texas produced food. Another sub-committee, one devoted to education in nutrition, will work toward helping all Texas school children know what constitutes a good diet and its importance to their physical and mental welfare. The necessity of universal education in the principals of nutrition was emphasized in an address to the committee by Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president of the University of Texas.

Dr. J. M. Coleman of the State Health Department, Austin; Dr. Ercel S. Eppright of the Texas State College for Women, Denton; Ruth Huey of the State Board for Vocational Education, Austin; and Jonnie Camp, Extension Service specialist in home production planning, College Station, formulated the state program from recommendations submitted by seven sub-committees.

This Week At The Palace

By Joe Mercer

Friday and Saturday—We give you the choice of the people, "Henry Aldrich". The double trouble boy of screen and radio, he's on the loose again in HENRY ALDRICH FOR PRESIDENT. Henry re-e finds that even school politics have their tricky politicians. Henry sticks to the usual brass band and kisses all the babies in town (as well as doing a few aerobatics) to win his campaign for President. Included in Friday and Saturday's program is chapter 8 of THE JUNGLE GIRL and a good cartoon comedy. If you wish to see all the above and Bill Powell and Myrna Loy in LOVE CRAZY just buy your ticket at 9:30 Saturday night, and you will see LOVE CRAZY—FREE. Those who wish may buy their tickets at 11:30 and see LOVE CRAZY—ONLY.

Sunday and Monday—PARAMOUNT NEWS—Let me say a few words about this news. Thursday October 23rd there was a train wreck at Rathway, New Jersey. Sunday October 26th, we showed scenes of this wreck on our screen. Sure I'm bragging--Who wouldn't? We invite you to see the news while it is news. Oh yes! Sure we are going to have a picture too. In fact, two of them. A double feature, Bill and Myrna in LOVE CRAZY and Fred McMurray (The Flyer from Texas) and Madeline Carroll (The Beauty from London) in ONE NIGHT IN LISBON.

Bill has to go crazy to keep Myrna from divorcing him. While Fred has to hop, skip, and jump all over a blackout London and finally dash down to Lisbon (Where they get mixed up in a bunch of International spies) to win Madeline's hand.

Here is your chance to WIN A FREE TICKET to see this show. Madeline is given a message by the War Office in London to deliver in Lisbon. It was in code and read as follows: 9r q00 r93jw 9r dq7589h 8h 094f 8w 5y4 j9w5 r95qo. This message fell into the hands of the enemy and was deciphered. Can you do it? Decipher it as you would any cytoqram. We will give a free ticket to see LOVE CRAZY and ONE NIGHT IN LISBON to the first ten persons turning in the correct solution. Here is a tip. Somewhere in this issue of this paper the solution is written out in full. Can you find it?

FREE VACCINES RECEIVED DURING PAST YEAR

Detailing some of the ways the State Department of Health is aiding each county in the prevention and control of communicable disease, Doctor George W. Cox, State Health Officer, today revealed that the number of specimens examined and the amount of vaccines distributed free to Briscoe County in 1940 by the State Hygienic Laboratory would have cost $165.00 if purchased thru private laboratories.

"The service rendered to this County is but one of twelve organized services set up to help you," Doctor Cox added.

The other services maintained by the State Department of Health include Vital Statistics, Food and Drug Inspection, Venereal Disease Control, Public Health Education, Tuberculosis Control, Sanitary Engineering, Maternal and Child Health, Nursing Service, Local Health Service, and Administration.

"The assistance rendered this One County in this one division of service will convey to you some idea of the scope of Texas' health program," Doctor Cox stated. "The State Department of Health operates on a state appropriation of Four Cents per person, which amounts to $162.24 for this county. When compared to the return from only one of the twelve divisions in the State Department of Health, it is readily seen that Texans are getting much more health protection than they are paying for."

In the first six months of this year reserves set aside for federal income taxes by a group of 275 industrial companies, represented, in the aggregate, 51.6 per cent of their earnings.

Household Hints by Lynn Chambers

MINERAL AND VITAMIN RICHES FOR HEALTH (See Recipes Below)

YOUR DEFENSE: HEALTH

Help yourself to your share of health by giving your meals plenty of health-giving foods and ward off the lack of resistance to disease that comes from not getting enough of properly balanced foods.

Economy and health will be the key words this season and throughout the country you homemakers will have to take your part and build the backbone of the country by feeding your families food that builds strong bodies, steady nerves and high morale.

Fortunately, good, health-building food is not just achieved through more buying power, but through wise buying. You can use canned vegetables or low-priced fresh vegetables, cheaper cuts of meat, milk and canned fruits.

You've been hearing lots about vitamins, so check yourself on them: Vitamin A is for resistance to infection, for growth and general well-being. You'll need it for your eyes, too, for poor vision and night blindness are common symptoms of the body's lack of this vitamin.

Vitamin B1, sometimes called thiamin, is for appetite and good digestion. This vitamin is for good morale. If you're lazy, grouchy or nervous look into the matter. The chances are that you've been neglecting pork, liver, meat, enriched cereals and enriched bread and bread flour, and peas.

Vitamin B2 is sometimes called riboflavin. It also goes under the name riboflavin. If your nails have been brittle and grow slowly and break off easily or your hair and skin are generally in poor condition, add some of these good sources of vitamin B2 to your diet: milk, liver, eggs, cheese, lean meats and leafy vegetables.

Gums bleeding? Teeth decay easily? Perhaps you're missing out on vitamin C, for this is the vitamin that goes right into your system and helps you have good teeth and bones. If your diet contains plenty of citrus fruits (lemons, oranges, grapefruit), tomatoes, fresh fruits and vegetables, you won't have trouble with teeth, bones, or wounds not healing.

Vitamin D boosts vitamin C and calcium into action, makes them utilize the other vitamins and minerals. Vitamin D isn't easy to find in foods, although eggs, salmon, sardines and herring contain some of it. Milk can be fortified with this vitamin and then it is called "irradiated." Most common way of getting the vitamin is either through milk of this type or by taking cod liver oil in winter, sunbaths in the summer, for it is formed in the skin.

Iron is a marvelous pep-you-upper. Not only does it guard against lagging energy but also digestive disturbances and general irritability. Iron goes to work and makes red blood cells that are just about the hardest working cells you'll ever find. The red blood cell shuttles between your lungs and your 7,000-mile-long circulatory system dropping off the oxygen and carrying out the carbon dioxide.

You need lots of iron so don't miss a day on iron foods. That means you'll be eating plenty of liver, molasses, oatmeal, dried apricots, eggs, whole wheat, lean beef, cabbage, oysters and raisins from now on.

Iron by itself is apt to be a bit lazy. It needs copper to make it get to work, so be sure to have prunes often, whole-grain cereals, oatmeal, dried fruits, liver and oysters at some one of your three meals.

Iodine spells power. It is released to your system by the thyroid gland which is near the Adam's apple. Stagnation, mental and physical, are the result of lack of iodine or thyroid deficiency.

Seafood contains iodine as well as garden vegetables. Salt has been iodized to help out general deficiency, and cranberries if raised in low-lying lands near the sea are a popular source of iodine.

Magnesium balances calcium, and as you're getting your milk you'll be getting magnesium, too. Other sources are green leafy vegetables. That's the line-up. You'll notice that many foods contain both or several kinds of essential minerals, and vitamins. Of course that should make the job you have to do easier.

LYNN SAYS: Here's your guide for meal planning for health: Milk: 1/2 to 1 quart a day for each child and nursing mothers. 1 pint a day for everyone else. Vegetables: 1 or more servings a day of the leafy green or yellow vegetables; 1 serving of potatoes or sweet potatoes. Fruits: 1 serving of tomatoes, grapefruit, or oranges a day; 1 serving of another fruit. Eggs: 1 a day or 4 to 5 a week. Lean meat, fish, poultry: 1 or more servings a day. About 1/4 of a pound of meat or fish is the day's quota. Cereals: 1 serving daily of enriched cereal. Bread and Butter: At every meal. Sweets: some sweets occasionally to satisfy the appetite. Walking Lighthouse

In a wonderful world there are many queer professions, but ranking high among the strange ones is that practiced by a Chinese coolie living in Chungking.

At night he can be seen walking around the dark streets with a lighted candle stuck in the top of his skull. In return for a small fee he will guide you to your destination.

When very young his parents, apparently, had cut the top of his skull, inserted a candle which they held in position by sealing-wax, and sent him out on to the street as a guide to travelers.

Beloved Singer Pleaded For Mercy, Not Justice

The beloved Madame Schumann-Heink was a woman of rare charm and geniality. She was the first to make fun of her own shortcomings, and was often heard to comment good-humoredly on her decidedly matronly figure.

On one occasion, a fashionable portrait painter asked her to sit for her portrait. The plump opera star hesitated for a long while before making her decision.

"Don't be afraid, Madame," said the artist teasingly. "I'll do you justice."

"Ah," replied the prima donna. "It isn't justice I ask at your hands; it is mercy!"

COMES YOURS TRUE?LY with an apology. Last week I said something and somebody took it for granted that I was talking about them (which I was) and says they want an apology. Well I didn't say who I was talking about so guess I don't have to address this apology to anyone. But I am sorry.

I AM SORRY I was not born rich instead of pretty. I'm sorry that I'm sorry because it is a sorry guy that isn't sorry because he's sorry. And I am sorry that the person thinks I should be sorry because no one should want anyone else to be sorry because, I am sorry to say, there are too many sorry people now.

I AM SORRY that Hitler's grandfather didn't die when he was a baby. But that isn't right because I read somewhere that Hitler didn't have any papa and if he didn't have a papa, how could he have a grandpa. So I guess I guess I haven't anything to be sorry about there. What I mean to say is that I am sorry that Hitler's grandmother, on his mother's side, didn't die when she was a baby. Now that gets that cleared up.

I AM SORRY that my wife isn't home tonight because it will cost me fifteen cents to get that much to eat at a restaurant.

I HAVE ALWAYS wondered about Grady Wimberly. I have heard him tell about what a good cook Winnie is, how good natured Winnie is, how he enjoys her company, etc., etc. And I have always thought of Winnie Redin, and lo, today I find that Winnie is Mrs. Wimberly's name too. Here I thought I was keeping a secret for Grady.

IF WANT ADS don't pay then I am wrong, and admittedly, I am not often wrong. Anyway, R. J. Craft, the Rock Creek school master, advertised that he had lost a dollar watch last week, and of all things, he got it back. Jean Northcutt found it and brought it to the News Office. My faith in humanity is restored. He was bragging a little though when he described it as a dollar watch. I bought one like it one time for 65 cents. Maybe this is his second one. I used to trade 'em in just before the year was up and I guess that made the second one a $1.30 job, or would it be a 35 center. You've got me there, but Mr. Craft, if you will call at the News Office and deposit five cents for this copy of the paper I'm sending you the watch is yours.

SHORTAGE, SHORTAGE, shortage — it's beginning to be the theme song of a great many industries. Mimeograph paper has gone on the list. The government is using it faster that it's made. Each mail I get an arm load of stuff — and 90% of it is government dope sent out under the franking privilege. That franking privilege is being sadly abused. It was never intended to be used to distribute propaganda.

HERE'S A TYPICAL example of the WPA Department in Amarillo: "Improvements have been completed on 1,167 miles of panhandle roads, largely farm-to-market routes leading to Amarillo. . . etc." There you are: Amarillo roads, Amarillo district, what the heck?

IN THE WORLD War the government spent about $76,000 for the operation of a bureau for dispensing information for the government. That was for two years.

Now that amount will not nearly pay the wages of the government employees in the publicity department for even one week. What's the matter, are we getting dumber or something?

SUDDEN THOUGHT — What are we going to do when we get more folks holding government jobs than are engaged in private business? Brother, we are on our way. Look around your community.

AFTERTHOUGHT — I am against all graft unless I am in on it!

LAST NIGHT AT the Ladies Night affair at the Lions Den, I heard many things. And some things I didn't hear. Here is one I didn't hear there, but Whiteside says he meant to tell it and forgot. A girl of just fair appearance went to the Mayor with a problem. She said, "As I go down the street a bunch of boys just keep looking me over, and following me. I wish you could fix it so they would have to get in the army." "Why, Miss," the Mayor said, "Those boys couldn't get in the army." "And why not?" he was asked. "Because they must have poor eyes" answered hizzoner.

TO THE EASTERNERS, Texas is still a rottin', tootin', shootin' place. We aren't really but at heart maybe so. At any rate whenever one of those stories of the Old West appears on the screen, the Palace Theatre is assured of a good turn-out. One of the really top notch Western stories comes here next week; namely: "Billy the Kid". It is a really true to history picture of the life of "Billy the Kid" one of the most notorious kid bandits that ever lived. You old timers and everyone interested in Western history will like the show. When Robert Taylor steps in to make a picture, it goes without saying that the picture is pretty good. And when that picture is a "Western" you know that it is one of the best ever filmed. It's as good as "Dodge City", "Jesse James", "The Plainsman", or say those who have seen it. The date is, Next week, November 9th and 10th.

NOT MUCH CHANCE for you to get clocking different brands of motor oil to prove which one flows fastest in Eskimo season. Yet the quicker the lubrication at every cold start, the less "dry rub" on delicate surfaces in your engine. Then why not change now to Conoco Nth oil for Winter and get an OIL-PLATED engine? OIL-PLATING is high up in the cylinders to fight fierce grind, much sooner than any plain oil-flow alone could even start wiggling.

Conoco Nth oil, you see—all in addition to speedy flow—fastens OIL-PLATING to inner engine surfaces, as if by "magnetic attraction." This close-bonded OIL-PLATING is up to its topmost point before you even touch the starter—and that's "faster than fast," to aid you toward anti-friction starting.

Even in Iceland, of course, any engine's normal firing is hotter than the Land of the Hottentots. Yet you don't want to "burn up the oil." And Conoco Nth proved it could last for more than twice the mileage averaged by the five other big-name oils in the impartial Death Valley Death-Test. When all five others were used up—engines ruined as each strict 5-quart fill gave out—the Conoco Nth oil that competed under identical conditions was still up at 2.7 quarts! Certified!

A known economy record . . . plus a known aid to safe prompt starting . . . when you change to Conoco Nth for Winter OIL-PLATING, at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Today. Continental Oil Company

GAVE TWICE THE ENGINE LIFE! CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

This oil that OIL-PLATES gave its engine more than twice the life averaged by the engines using the other oils in the Death-Test.

In these times use your car prudently. And use oil that's great for engine life—changing regularly as recommended.

Good starting—good lubrication against all needless wear—helps conserve gasoline, too.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Destroyer Kearny Makes Port Under Own Power After Torpedoing; 11 Crew Members Reported Missing; Japan Forms Militaristic Cabinet

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

KEARNY: Major Incident:

Impact of the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny near Iceland had been terrific. First reports of the incident indicated no loss of life but when the ship made port (under its own power) 11 crew members were listed as "missing" and 10 more as seriously injured.

The full report of Commander Danis had been awaited with eagerness, particularly after Nazi sources called the entire story a "flat lie" and stated that the Kearny had probably run into an American mine.

The denial had been expected, and the senatorial and congressional comment had been along expected lines. Nye said it was just the sort of thing the country could have looked for, in following the administration's foreign policy.

Most members of congress, however, took an extremely serious view of the situation, many permitting themselves to be quoted that "this might well be the spark needed to explode us into war."

The incident occurred when the house was debating the ship-arming bill, but was not believed to have had any particular effect on the debate, and the passage of the measure had been a foregone conclusion.

Chief among reactions to the torpedoing of the Kearny had been sur-

TOJO: A New Regime

Another blow of shocking impact had been the sudden resignation of the Prince Fumimaro Konohe cabinet in Tokyo, and the prince's replacement by General Tojo, thus forming a frankly militaristic government.

It had been reliably reported that the Konohe resignation had been on a basis of "this government is unwilling to accept responsibility for a severe breach between the United States and Japan."

Japan's terms admittedly had been received, studied in Washington. Washington admittedly had been discouraged at the prospects of agreement. It may or may not be that this attitude had been conveyed to Konohe through the Japanese ambassador.

At all events, it was plain that the prince must himself have believed that agreement on the Pacific with the United States was impossible—and hence his resignation.

His successor—General Tojo. And one of his first utterances had been that his cabinet would make early and final "decision" as to what measures to take to end the crisis.

Coupled with this had been a strong and unequivocal affirmation of Japan's complete loyalty to the Axis.

Most observers had been watching Nazi Germany whipping Tokyo into action in the Pacific, obviously to create a new front, to divide the U. S. fleet, to lessen our aid to Britain, and to involve in a near-at-hand struggle the powerful continent of Australia.

These seemed plain facts and watching the developments, those who wished to avoid war with Japan were becoming gloomy indeed.

SUPPLY RACE: In North Africa

British and German armies faced each other on the relatively quiet desert front, and military correspondents believed each was afraid to start a general attack unless the reserves of supplies guaranteed a fairly certain success.

Therefore, back of the front lines a race had developed, and trained watchers believed it might be weeks or months before one side or the other would gain a sufficient lead.

General Auchinleck commanded the British, while General Rommel was the German commander. It had been four months since the last real battle on the desert front, wrote one correspondent.

The British are receiving enormous quantities of goods via American ships calling at Suez. They were said to be arriving faster than they could be handled. The British now have, it was said, thousands of motor trucks, and enough light, fast tanks to make several motorized units. There are hundreds of new fighters and bombers of the latest types.

These developments, it was felt, would, within a few weeks, or a couple of months, be reflected in a terrific British drive in North Africa.

But the Germans and Italians are not idle, and the British Mediterranean fleet, harassed constantly from the air and by submarines, has been hard put to it to make a serious dent in the shipping lines from Europe to Africa, constantly laden with military supplies for Rommel's forces.

PANAMA: Takes Step

The expected aftermath of the abdication and overthrow of President Arnulfo Arias of Panama followed when the little country in which hundreds of American-owned ships are registered, decided to permit the arming of merchant vessels.

Putting of ships in Panamanian registry was a device used by this country because of the neutrality act which forbids the vessels to enter belligerent ports.

prise in all quarters that the Nazis should want to provoke the country with an incident which might result in this nation becoming a more active and positive enemy.

RUSSIA: A Defense

Though the defenders of Moscow had been putting up a brilliant and tenacious battle, it had become evident that only a military miracle could save the city.

Perhaps a weather miracle might, but though there was snow on the battlefields, and more was falling from time to time, there seemed no diminution in the ferocity of the German assault, or the man and machine power with which it had been delivered.

Of special interest to men interested in military maneuvering was the Nazi method, aided by its marvelously mechanized forces, in shifting the pressure suddenly from one front to another.

Moscow was assailed from three—from the northwest, along the road from Leningrad; from the west, along the historic "Napoleonic highway," and from the southwest, following the route from Orel.

Discounting wild rumors (there even had been one report that the Russians had recaptured Orel and Kalinin, two vital points lost at least a week before) it was apparent that the Germans had been able to make two lines out of the three—roughly called the right and left wings of the assault.

There could be little question that the cost to the invaders in men and material was heavy, but also there was little doubt that the retreat of the Red armies had of necessity been swift and a heavy drain on the Soviet material.

Grandiloquent Nazi claims of the smashing of Timoshenko's "eight armies" and the collapse of Russian resistance were perforce discounted as wishful thinking on the part of the Germans as daily gains dropped from a score of miles to a matter of hundreds of yards.

The Russian defenders on one day would be calling on their reserves to battle smashing assaults on the right, and then just as suddenly, be compelled to meet the same sort of action from the left.

Diplomats moved out of the city; the report was circulated that the government had moved to Kazan. Ivan Maisky, Soviet spokesman, asking for a complete pooling of British and Red resources, pledged the nation to fight on "regardless of . . . Moscow"—showing that "we need a miracle" spirit was paramount even in the highest circles.

Washington Digest Mentally Healthy Soldier Needed for Modern War

High Selection Standard Required in Supplying Army With Men Equipped to Meet Hazards of 'Blitz' Tactics.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1345 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

At a recent White House news conference the President was asked whether he thought there ought to be a lowering of the physical, mental and educational standards for admission to the army.

The question came up at the close of a long dissertation by Mr. Roosevelt on a report from the army which seemed to reveal a shocking state of the national health. It was based on figures which showed that nearly 50 per cent of the selectees rejected for service were ineligible because of deficiencies in these three categories. It did look as though Americans, as a people, were pretty sick.

The President's answer to the question of lowering the standards of admission was an emphatic negative. Very little attention was paid to this response at the time and the stories which went out over the air and the wires that day were chiefly concerned with the program for healing the physical ills of selectees at government expense.

But that part of the picture, as I learned when I talked with a prominent psychiatrist, is only half of it—or less.

Lowering the standards of mental requirements would, in case of war, mean a terrific psychopathic casualty list, the taxpayer would have a terrific bill to pay and the efficiency of the American fighting forces would be immeasurably impaired.

Record of Last War

Let's look at the record of the last war, when the mental hazards were only a fraction of what they are today with a thousand machines harnessed for destruction.

Briefly, the story is this: The government of the taxpayer has paid out nearly a billion dollars for the benefit and care of mental cases among veterans of the last war.

This sum represents 20 per cent of all benefits paid to veterans and their dependents.

There are 92,231 such mental cases and a third of all veterans confined to hospitals are mental cases. It is true that some 21,000 of these men cannot prove that their plight is traceable to their military service, but they are on Uncle Sam's expense list just the same, and they would not be if they had been kept out of the army in the first place.

Of course, all of these 9,000 mental cases could not have been spotted by the draft boards in 1917 and 1918. Not all cases of mental weakness or potential weakness can be spotted now. But the army now has a wealth of experience on the subject and the Veterans Administration is co-operating with many local boards in this effort. Twenty years study has made these government doctors expert in discovering hidden weaknesses in the human mind. Some of the nation's greatest psychiatrists have offered their services to the army.

Today, of course, there are many reasons why mental qualifications count more than in the last war. In the first place, modern warfare requires greater self-discipline on the part of the individual.

Special Training Needed

In the old army the squad, composed of seven or eight men, was a unit. The squad has now been abolished. Modern ordnance—small and heavy arms—is much more complicated. Each man must be specially trained for a special task and frequently the responsibility formerly relegated to a group, falls on the individual.

Greater skill to operate modern arms and equipment is necessary. Also, the devastating effect of mechanization creates a greater mental strain. An example of this is the terrifying effect of the noise of dive bombers. When the French troops first heard the stukas they threw down their arms and fell flat on the earth.

As Dr. Martin Cooley, consultant of the Veterans Bureau in Washington, puts it:

"When one considers how the warfare of today has stepped up in intensity and tempo with the stuka divers, the panzer divisions, the elements of deadly surprise and audacity and the dropping of bombs of high explosives weighing as much as a ton, it becomes evident that combat troops will have an immense strain on their morale, and be expected that a man with a stable nervous system or a character will crack under strain."

In the last war an effort made to weed out the men from their medical histories, result of examinations, were unable to stand up to strain of service. Strangely it was the medical officers, rather than the line officers who declined to be lenient in questionable cases, and the department of the army recorded 8,640 cases of record were ered and the men returned to the army against the advice of neuro-psychiatric officers. Many of these men broke when they reached camp because of a gun fired. With the record staring them in the face, no wonder that responsible department officials are anxious there be no let-down in the standards for admission to military service.

Pan American Child Congress War and politics are no part of children. Bombs and shells, neither nursery nor school politics, frequently, like a Samaritan, goes by on the street even in peace-time.

Pan American Child Congress

The Pan-American Child Congress, whose purpose is to sturdier, happier, wiser citizens of the Americas, was held in 1919. Plans are now way for its first meeting which is to be held next year in Washington.

Four times during the years, the meeting of the congress has had to be postponed. It came in 1938 when Nicaragua that it could not go ahead for being host to the meeting. Then, when the delegates were ready to take the boat for Costa Rica, where the post-congress was to meet, it was cancelled again, indirectly because of the war.

The real reason for the postponement, perhaps, was a headline in a San Jose, Costa Rica, newspaper, which read: "Pan American Child Congress? Germany had said that it would send exhibits as part in the meeting and present Nazi influence in Costa Rica strong enough to make it impossible for the local government to produce any case, the meeting was cancelled."

On Gray Days—Meditation, Repose

The other day I sat on a straw in a stable with the man who crunched and stamp of horses to me, waiting for the rain to fall. I watched the slanting drops mix with the earth. The earth was thirsty for these few drops of watery benediction would come. At last a rooster crowed and rain thinned to a mist. The countryside seemed to look damp gratitude for its short pleasure. There was life and movement everywhere. The dog of the softened dirt for no reason. When I passed he looked at me with mud on his face. Chickens energetically at worms that they hadn't seen weeks and then, suddenly, there a bright flash of color before. Eight bluebirds appearing as if air like a bright light turned and alighted on the top of the fence.

Back in the city, skies were gray, but the same muted relief that I had felt in the open spread along the streets. There is always to me a gray in gray days. I feel as though I stepped from a garish world into a quiet cloister—I hear sandalwood on cool stone, the light comes through stained glass windows. It is time for meditation and repose.

ing a contract providing that she may continue to live as she is living for six months, after which she could tear up the contract. He gave her $10,000 as surety. Jacqueline warned Larry when she learned that Detective Staples was watching him. She cashed one of the bonds when her father, Vince Anthony, needed an operation. When she visited him she was greatly relieved to learn the operation was successful. Now continue with the story.

"I thought you'd be coming out about this time," Larry said, smiling. "Busy for a little while?" Without waiting for an answer, he tucked his wife's arm through his and started across the street. "The car's over here," he explained.

After they had left the hospital behind, he offered:

"I had a sort of sneaking idea you were set to give me a lecture, so I thought I'd be obliging. How about it?"

"I do want to talk to you," Jacqueline said soberly.

"And you thought I was keeping out of your way," Larry had a disconcerting way of figuring things out. "Shoot."

"I don't know what to say . . ." Jacqueline began unhappily. "Of course I want to thank you first of all for paying those bills . . . for Vince . . . but . . . but I wish you hadn't."

"I don't see why, my dear," Larry said. "I can't think of any better use of money than taking worries off your shoulders."

"That's just it!" she cried softly. "Can't you see that . . . that it hurts?"

"I'd never hurt you, Jack. I just want to . . . help—By the way, I hope you don't mind my dropping in on your father today. I thought, maybe, he might be finding the days long."

"It was good of you. He appreciated it."

"Nothing of the sort. I had a good time and a very interesting visit. He sure is wrapped up in his latest project . . . very anxious to get back to it."

"Larry!" she burst out, in spite of herself. "All Vince's inventions have been . . . duds. Ever since I can remember. When one flops, he just goes on to the next."

"You know," Larry observed musingly, "inventors are queer animals. I should know, being a son of my father. And as for duds . . . sometimes, they go off unexpectedly. All this talk and the moonlight have put me in a reminiscent mood, Jack. Won't you let me show you a relic of my youth? It's not so far from here . . . not more than an hour."

"What is it you wish me to see?"

"The birthplace of a hero."

"Yours, you mean? All right. I'll go . . . for the ride."

When the city was left behind, Jacqueline said, "Isn't the moonlight beautiful? Did you ever notice how it seems to . . . to take the rough edges off everything?"

"Hope that includes me," Larry ventured.

"You are rather nice . . . at times," was his reward.

"Thanks. But I was going to tell you about our old place."

"Does some one live in it now?"

"No, worse luck, and it seems to be going to pieces. I always wished I might get it for myself and make it look the way it did when I was a kid. Guess I told you my dad lost all his money."

"Yes."

"He and your dad would have hit it off well," Larry observed unexpectedly. "The old gentleman was quite a scientist. The basement of our place was his laboratory and workshop and he almost lived in it."

Larry's voice died away. He was staring at the road ahead of the car. "Has your mother been . . . gone long?" she ventured.

roadster into the weeds at the side of the thoroughfare and cut off the motor.

"Well, here . . ." He leaned forward, staring intently past his companion.

A little exclamation of delight escaped Jacqueline. There, in the brightly lighted clearing, stood an unusual house. It was long and low, with four former windows set in its steeply pitched roof. The central entrance door was shaded by a portico adorned with heavy, square columns. On either side of the main structure, an ell. Bathed in moonlight, the clapboard walls appeared as white as though freshly painted. Even the windows, many of them with shattered panes, seemed able to hide their scars.

"Larry! What a beautiful little home!" Jacqueline said breathlessly. "What a shame that no one is living in it. Has it been empty long?"

"Ever since we lost it. The owner never used it."

"But, Larry . . . that high wire fence looks as though it were new."

"It is," was the grim retort. "Brand-new."

"Why do you suppose it's there? It even has barbed-wire on the top."

"Yes. I've noticed. The owner must have decided that he didn't want anybody fooling around there."

Larry leaned back in his seat, filled and lighted his pipe and sat smoking in silence. Jacqueline sensed that he was thinking deeply and did not disturb him. She resumed her study of the old house, trying to picture how it must have looked in former days, how it would look now with the soft glow of lamps shining from the black windows. There should be climbing roses over those columns. She would clear away the encroaching underbrush, build a wide, velvety lawn . . . take away the tumble-down stable in the rear. And that disgusting fence. It seemed to run . . .

"Larry!" She whispered his name, catching at his arm. "There's somebody standing in those bushes over there. I . . . I saw him move!"

Larry shifted his position slightly and leaned forward, one arm resting on the wheel. "Hey, you, over there!" he called sharply.

A deep silence followed. Jacqueline held her breath. The bushes rustled and the dim figure of a man appeared. After standing uncertainly for an instant, he stroled forward. He was a short, heavily set man wearing a sweater pulled up about his neck.

"That will do," Larry ordered brusquely. "What's the big idea?"

"Just what I was going to ask you, mister. You're on private property here. Better go somewhere else to do your neckin'."

Jacqueline felt Larry's arm grow tense.

"We have been admiring the house," he answered, quietly. "Do you happen to know if it is for sale and who owns it?"

"Don't know."

"It doesn't look so valuable. I should think that fence would be protection enough without you . . ."

"That ain't none of your business. You'd better be movin' on."

"Please!" Jacqueline whispered. Larry chuckled as he started his motor.

"What a dreadful looking man!" she gasped. "He's a guard or something, isn't he?"

"Has all the earmarks of one. That seems to be a valuable piece of property . . . Maybe I can't have it, after all."

Jacqueline pondered that remark in silence. Larry made another turn.

"What a beautiful house that is over there!" Jacqueline exclaimed. "Yes, that's some joint. By the way, it's where the present owner of Fairlawn lives."

"Fairlawn?"

"Yes, the former Cutter castle. My mother gave it that name."

SOME REMINDERS OF OLD, WAR NO. 1 SPEECHES

DIGGING THROUGH some old rubbish a few days ago, I discovered a number of clippings from English papers, containing accounts of the visit of a party of American journalists, of which I was one. During the days spent in England that party of Americans listened to many speeches and, in view of intervening and present-day events, these clippings made interesting reading.

Arthur Balfour, in a speech made at a luncheon, forecast the difficult problems to be faced at the peace table and what would happen in the future should hatred have a place in peace negotiations. The kind of peace he warned against was made and his prophecy for the future has been realized in a second World war.

Lord Northcliffe, in a speech at a luncheon in the London Times building, forecast a League of Nations that, with America as a participant, would solve all future international problems. America did not join the League and the League did not prevent a second World war.

Admiral Sims, commanding the American navy in Europe, explained the work of the British navy. He said there were never more than 13 German subs at sea at any one time and that England had some 5,000 vessels of various classes searching for these subs and protecting merchant ships. Admiral Sims said it was the English navy that would make victory for the Allied cause possible by maintaining control of the seas. It was true at that time, and is true again now with just about the same conditions.

World War I, and the peace that grew out of it, did not prevent war, but, rather, encouraged more wars, including the present conflict. What will follow the peace of this war only the future can tell. The sentiment now in the democracies is for generous terms, with Roosevelt-Churchill pronouncement as a basis, but the bombs are still falling. With either side achieving a military victory, the hatreds of Europe may again, as in 1919, dominate the peace terms.

FARMERS DEFINITELY AFFECTED BY RAILROAD WAGES

THE FARMER is the one producer in America who does not, and cannot, determine the price at which his commodity will be sold. He sows in the spring, with a hope that Nature will enable him to produce a crop, and consumer demand will assure him a fair price. When, with the assistance of Nature, his acres have produced a crop, he must reap in the fall, regardless of what the price may be.

The price is made at Chicago, at Tidewater or at Liverpool, and the farmer pays the transportation. From the price paid is deducted the delivery costs.

The manufacturer can, and does fix the price at which he will sell his product. If there is not a consumer demand at the price he names, he can lay off his help, close his factory and await better conditions. To the price the manufacturer names, the local merchant adds the cost of transportation of the product in fixing his price to the consumer. The farmer pays the freight on what he sells and also on what he buys.

The farmer has a definite financial interest in the proposed wage increase asked by the railroad employees of the nation. That increase represents more than the railroads are earning. They cannot absorb it and continue to operate. It means increased cost of transportation on what the farmer sells and on what he buys. He will get less for what his factory—his acres—produce, and pay more for the commodities of other factories—the things he and his family need and use, and the equipment needed to operate his farm. The increased freight both ways will amount to a considerable number of dollars per year for every one of the more than six million farms in America. Without that proposed increase, the average railroad employee is far better off financially than is the average farmer, who, collectively, will pay a considerable portion of the increase.

WHERE'S THE CEILING?

WHAT DOES a surplus of food and continuously increasing prices mean if not inflation? Where is the ceiling they talk about, and over what is it to be placed? The farmer cannot be the only one who is to be limited in the price he receives.

STATES FILE IT UP ALSO

FOR 1930 the per capita state tax collections averaged $14.52 and by 1940 had jumped to $23.02. With the exception of but a few states, the increase was reasonably even. In Missouri the jump, as reported by the Tax Foundation, was from $10.61 in 1930 to $21.92 in 1940, and in Alabama from $6.29 to $53.31. Aside from these states, the range of 1940 state tax collections was from $33.88 in Nevada down to $14.38 in South Carolina and $14.00 in Nebraska. Some increases are not Uncle Sam's.
