THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD... Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. More people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persisting headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

HERE'S TO BUTTERY FINGERS AND A TAFFY PULL

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

If you want your children and their friends to give you a rating of "super," then give just one party for children alone, and make that party a good, old-fashioned taffy pull. Think back a moment and remember how you looked forward to a taffy pull just as much as going to a circus.

This party is exciting fun because the children have a chance to help in the making of refreshments. Yes, pulling taffy with their fingers all buttered, and watching the dark candy mixture get lighter and lighter each time it's pulled. They'll like this too, because a taffy pull isn't a fussy party. When you send out the invitations, let the mothers know it's a taffy party so the children will be dressed accordingly.

Unlike many foods which are iron sources, molasses when cooked does not lose its iron content. If possible use a candy thermometer to test the candy so it will be cooked just right, neither too stiff nor too messy to handle. When the candy is cool enough, cut it just the right size for small hands. The piece should be large enough to work on, but not too large. When the piece is light tan and very stiff, pull into a long strip and cut.

Molasses Taffy.
2 cups pure New Orleans molasses
1 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla, if desired
1/2 cup water

Cook the molasses, sugar and water in a heavy kettle slowly until the mixture reaches 260 degrees or until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water becomes brittle. Stir a little during the latter part of the boiling to prevent burning; pour into a buttered pan. When cool enough to handle, cut in pieces and pull until light and stiff. Butter the hands before pulling.

Refreshments can be simple for a taffy party, for children will be so excited about the taffy, they won't give their best attention to elaborate dishes. Assorted sandwiches will fill the bill perfectly and a hot chocolate milk drink will take care of their keen, lusty appetites. As dessert you might have simple cupcakes iced with pink and chocolate icing, fruit, and of course, the taffy.

If you'd rather give them a hot dish in place of the sandwiches, here's a simple but elegant one:

Millionaire Gold.
(Serves 8)
2 egg yolks
1/2 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3 cups milk
1/2 pound American cheese
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 pound mushrooms

LYNN SAYS:

Stop food wastes. Not only is this a matter of thrift but also a vital step in conserving this country's resources. It is estimated that tiny food wastes total up to a tremendous amount.

Wise shopping will prevent buying unwanted and not usable food. The wise shopper should also recognize between good and poor grades, by reading labels and markings, and by watching the scales.

Poor cooking causes much waste. Meat, for instance, shrinks when cooked at too high a temperature. Vitamins and minerals are lost when cooked too long or when air is stirred into them while cooking. Use short methods for cooking whenever possible.

Improved Uniform SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

Sin with its devastating consequences has its only remedy in the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. He died to set us free from the penalty, the power, and ultimately the very presence of sin. However, His death, which was for all mankind, is effective only for those who in repentance and faith accept His redeeming grace and turning from their sin.

I. Worldly Pleasure Brings Sorrow (vv. 11-16).

Selfishness is at the heart of sin, which is essentially self-will over against God's will. The younger son, who represents the sinner, wanted his own way. He suffered from

1. Restlessness Under Restraint (vv. 11, 12). The father loved his son and sought his welfare by proper parental control, but the boy wanted to be free to live as he pleased. God loves all men and seeks by loving and gracious restraint to lead them in ways of righteousness and peace. But they, while they want His blessings, are often eager to get away from His guiding hand.

2. A Request Resulting in Responsibility (vv. 12, 13). When the prodigal asked for his inheritance he took upon himself full responsibility for its use. The man who refuses to have Christ rule over his life assumes a grave and heavy burden which he is not able to bear.

It is an awful thing to rule God out of one's life, to attempt to steer a successful course through the stormy sea of life. Why do it? It will always result in loss and failure.

3. Riotous Living Leading to Reproach (vv. 13-16). In the "far country" he found for a time what he called "fun," but it led to bitter sorrow. To the flesh there are "pleasures of sin" (Heb. 11:25), but they are only "for a season"; that is, "very short lived—and they come high. The devil is not such a fool as to go fishing without bait." The pleasures of sin are the devil's bait, and they always have a hook in them. If you bite at the devil's bait you will soon have the devil's hook in your gills and be in the bottom of the devil's boat" (John W. Bradbury).

The end of Satan's "fun" road was a pigpen in a far country. That may not always be literally true (although it happens often enough), but it is always true spiritually. Men and women are in a state of spiritual collapse and disgrace because they have rejected God's way. But there is a way out.

II. Godly Sorrow Brings Joy (vv. 17-24).

Paul tells us that "godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation" and thus differs from "the sorrow of the world" which "worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10). The prodigal found his way back to the father's house. First, there came to him

1. Remembrance and Realization (vv. 17-19). He began to think. Men and women could only be made to think we have more repentance, but Satan tries to keep them too busy to think. He remembered what he had as a son in his father's household. What memories will your boy have in his hour of need? You are writing that record now.

He "came to himself." The man in sin is really unbalanced, subnormal, not himself, spiritually insane. When he "came to" he knew that he was in the way of the perishing. Then came

2. Repentance and Return (vv. 20, 21). To repent means to change your mind, to turn your life in an "about face" from sin to God. Repentance calls for more than thinking or talking or praying. One must act. The young man "arose and came to his father." That was his part, and then came the father's part—

3. Restoration and Rejoicing (vv. 22-24). The son expected to return as a hired servant, but his father restored him to full family fellowship. God is gracious, and the repentant sinner finds himself clad in the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, wearing the ring of sonship, with shoes on his feet, so that he may go on the errands of his Father.

God's plan of salvation brings no half-way redemption. There are no steps or distant relatives in His family. It is a full salvation which brings glorious fellowship in life and service. You who are still eating the husks of this world, who are in the far country tending swine, we invite you too to come to God and share in the rejoicing in the Father's house.

Life a Struggle

Life is a struggle, but not a warfare; it is a day's labor, but labor on God's earth, under the sun and stars with other laborers, where we may think and sing and rejoice as we work.—John Burroughs.

Lincoln's Beard Result Of Little Girl's Suggestion

A little girl from Westfield, N. Y. once wrote Abraham Lincoln a letter as follows:

"I am a little girl, eleven years old . . . have you any little girls about as large as I am . . . If you will let your whiskers grow, you would look a great deal better for your face is so thin . . . I must not write any more answer this right off. Good bye. Grace Bedell."

A few months later, Lincoln let his beard grow. On one of his trips he passed through Westfield and immediately sent for Grace. He thrilled her by pointing to his beard and saying: "You see—I let those whiskers grow for you, Grace."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Policy of 'Delivering the Goods' In Effort to Aid Foes of Hitlerism Is Nation's Objective, Says President; Nazis Pound Russians on Three Fronts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

POLICY:

Defined by FDR

On the same day as the senate opened its debate on the historic measure aimed at stripping the neutrality act of all restrictions on American shipping, the President delivered his Navy day address in which he declared that the U. S. foreign policy was one of "delivering the goods" to friends of democracy.

He said that despite U. S. efforts to avoid it, "the shooting has started." Bristling with challenges to the Nazis, his speech pledged his administration to a policy of destroying Hitlerism and assisting in establishing a peace which will make a better world.

In writing to the Foreign Policy association an exposition of his own foreign policy, President Roosevelt had said that it was so simple a child could understand it.

The cardinal principle, he asserted, was the destruction of the "Hitler menace" and the protection of the American way of life from a system that would destroy it.

He admitted that there were those in this nation who would lull the people into a sense of false security, but warned that this action had preceded the fall of every country now occupied by Axis forces.

This and his Navy day address served the purpose of clarifying the situation as regarded the road the United States was prepared to travel in following the administration's leadership.

The President expressed himself as confident that his aims were the popular aims of the nation, and that the people would be ready with such sacrifices as would be necessary to carry them out.

SOVIET DEFENSE:

Last Ditch

What was called the "last all-out" attack possible for the Germans to launch had been touched off on all three of the major Soviet fronts, and there were indications that the defenders were reaching their last ditch.

The "military miracle" was happening before the eyes of the world, as the Red troops had apparently halted the full fury of the Nazi advance, had kept their defense lines intact, and were putting up what even Berlin admitted was a magnificent defense.

But whether they could continue to hold or not remained the latter part of the needed miracle. Germany announced the fall of Kharkov, Donets basin industrial center, a city of 850,000 souls, of 12-story industrial buildings, dubbed the Pittsburgh of Russia.

Fantastic stories were told of the losses on each side.

Strange was the report from Moscow, telling of Stalin in personal command, of the removal of Budenny and Voroshilov from command, to take charge of the forming of new armies, and of the placing of Timoshenko in actual command of the defense of the capital.

'BUTCHERIES':

Continuing

Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and General De Gaulle all had their say about what they called the "Nazi butcheries" of hostages which were continuing all over occupied Europe.

Resentful people were taking pot shots at high Nazi officers, and each time one of these hit a vital mark, scores of persons connected only distantly with the crime were being executed.

DEFIANCE:

By Miners

Following a 40-day period in which the National Mediation board had sought vainly for a peaceful settlement, and in which finally President Roosevelt himself had attempted to take a hand, a strike of 35,000 coal miners in seven vital mines had been called by John L. Lewis.

The headlines made the issue plain. Lewis Defies Roosevelt. Once an enthusiastic partisan of the administration, a man who had seen his C.I.O. grow to enormous stature under the broadly liberal labor laws passed under the Roosevelt administration, Lewis openly defied the President's personal request for "no strike."

The mines were the captive mines of the steel companies, and from them the coal and coke vital to steel-making were drawn, the steel firms contracting for the mines' entire output.

The strike was seen to hit at the very heart of the national defense.

Out of it, the friends of the labor movement frankly feared, would come the signing by the President of a long-dreaded "work or fight" order which would draft all defense strikers summarily into the army.

The strike was being watched with keen anxiety in dozens of important quarters.

KNOX:

And Japan

Secretary Knox of the navy, in an address, had stated that some sort of clash of a military and naval nature with Japan was "inevitable" and for once Tokyo seemed willing to agree with one of his utterances.

The Domei news service and the Times Advertiser, both authoritative, predicted that a special session of the diet would be called for the direct purpose of discussing Japanese-American relations.

They were both gloomy over the outlook for the lasting peace in the Pacific that the United States desired, and Japan was apparently fighting for—provided it would be a peace dominated by Nippon.

The American formula for peace was this: Withdrawal from China and Indo-China of Japanese, Americans and British. Recognition of the United States of the puppet government of Manchukuo. Guarantees of inviolability of territory to the "status quo" of governments.

And all recognized that Japan was far from willing to sign any such treaty.

KEARNY:

A Diary Story

The widow of a London doctor, only passenger on a recent convoy from Britain to the United States, kept a brief diary of her trip, and from it readers were able to glean more facts about the Kearny's torpedoing than they had from naval reports.

The torpedoing occurred two days after the convoy left Iceland, two days after the ships had been joined by the Kearny and "another U. S. destroyer."

Though the diarist's vessel was some distance from the naval ships, she wrote of the shattering impact of the depth bombs discharged by the Kearny when a submarine was reported.

She wrote: "Our ship trembled like a leaf at each discharge. I thought surely we had been hit." The Kearny and the other destroyer left the convoy, and were not seen again, she continued. Two days later she heard the Kearny had been torpedoed.

This gave the public a picture of the incident, and showed that in all probability the Kearny, after dropping depth bombs, must have followed the trail of the submarine, and finally was hit by a torpedo during the pursuit.

Right: In the biggest single delivery of military planes in aviation history, 123 Vultee Valiants, basic training planes, roared over Los Angeles on route to army and navy training stations. Some of them are shown, just before the takeoff at Downey, Calif.

Dirigible as Air Weapon May Play Important Role

Almost Forgotten Air Arm Gets Serious Study; Federal and State Agencies Team in Unique Farm Experiment.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

While Washington debated the question of arming American merchantmen, the British were trying out a new and hazardous means of protecting their precious life-line of supply from attack from the air. Fighter planes were being placed on the crowded decks of freighters to be catapulted off when enemy bombers approached. When news of this move reached Washington it woke a slumbering plan for an almost forgotten defense of the skies.

The heroic British measure is an expensive undertaking, for there is no way to return a fighter plane to the ship once it is launched. Unless the vessel is within an hour's flight of land the plane must land at sea and sink. Unless the planes can land near the ship in quiet waters, the pilots have very little chance to escape a similar fate.

"Arming" their ships by means of this suicide measure is an example of the risks the members of the Royal Air Force are willing to take as their heavy share of battle and is evidence, too, of the extent to which the other arms of the British service have come to depend on these reckless knights of the air.

Englishman Tells Why

William Courtenay, member of the Royal Flying corps, in the last war, flight commander of the R.A.F. in the present war, explained to a little group of American officers and members of congress in Washington recently why this step was taken.

"Just as command of the air won the battle of Britain," said Courtenay, "so command of the air is necessary to win the battle of the Atlantic."

Fire-power, he explained, is the essential in this war as it was in the last. Machine guns drove the armies of the last war underground and produced a stalemate which gave the British time to get their navy (and the United States navy) into action, break the German submarine blockade of the British Isles and blockade Germany.

To avoid such a stalemate again the Germans invented the panzer columns—high fire-power from very mobile units which ran the enemy down.

Thus Hitler won the battle of France, forced the British from the continent.

Then Goering began the battle of Britain. In Poland and in the low countries he had destroyed much of his opponents' air forces on the ground. He did this by surprise attack and because airfields were concentrated and the airplanes on them were close together. With the major part of the enemy fighters destroyed in Poland and in the low countries his bombers did their work without having to fight in the air for control of the air.

Luftwaffe Over Britain

The Luftwaffe lost the battle of Britain because the British dispersed their own forces on the ground—separated the airfields, spread out the planes along the edges. That saved their fighting planes and fighting planes gave Britain superior fire-power in the air. Because the bomber is built to carry a heavy load of bombs and gasoline to give it a longer cruising radius it cannot contend with the more mobile, more heavily armed and armored fighter.

The fighter's weakness, of course, is short. It cannot remain long in the air and therefore, "the crying need," as Courtenay put it, "is a long-range fighter." If Germany had had long range fighters the battle of Britain might have turned out differently.

One way of giving the fighter range is to place it on a ship, but few ships are equipped so that planes can land on their decks. The aircraft carrier is the most vulnerable of ships.

Rigid Dirigible Considered

And so the attention of a little group in Washington has turned to an air arm which has been almost forgotten, the great rigid dirigible airship. True, 48 small airships have been authorized by congress for shore patrol duty and one has been completed, but the United States has no great dirigibles.

The Office of the Chief of Aerial Lines has sent out the following report issued in 1976 by Georgetown to the chaplains in their field to support them in their activities against profanity:

"The General is sorry to be informed that the foolish and profane practice of profane cursing, swearing, a vice heretofore unknown in an American town, is growing into a fashion; he hopes officers will, by example and by influence, endeavor to curb it and that both they and the public reflect that we can have the blessing of heaven on us if we in it; this is to be done in a mean and low, without any nobility, that every man of any character, detests and despises."

Honeymoon

By JOSEPH McCORD

INSTALLMENT ELEVEN

SO FAR: Larry Cutter and Jacqueline (Jack) Anderson, stenographer at the Hotel... telling her she could realize her ambitions by marrying... they were married after signing a contract providing that she may continue to live as she is living for six months, after which she could tear up the contract. He gave her $10,000 as surety. Jacqueline warned Larry when she learned that Detective Staples was watching him. She cashed one of the bonds Larry had given her when her father, Vince Anthony, needed an operation. After the operation, Larry drove Jacqueline to see his former home. Now continue with the story.

"But I don't. He seems like a nice man..."

"Don't you fret about that," Vince interrupted. "Cutter's all right, if I'm any judge. If he goes to any expense on my account, I can always pay him back. After I get this new idea of mine squared away, 'obligation' will just be another word in the dictionary. We'll be on our way around the world, Skipper. You'll see. It won't be long now!"

"No," Jacqueline said, more to herself than Vince, "I don't think it will be long now."

CHAPTER IX

That night ride in the country, coupled with Vince's pleased determination to cast his lot with Larry Cutter, brought Jacqueline to a carefully thought out conclusion.

Vince was old enough to know what he was about, and so was she. Jacqueline had no one but herself to blame for signing that contract. She had signed it, and her spirit of fair play would not allow her to break it before the end of the designated six months. The paper stipulated that, as an evidence of good faith, Larry was to give her that money. But the contract didn't say that she had to accept it! If only she never had.

She never had felt so helpless, so baffled.

That was at the bottom of all the humiliation she had suffered. Of course, if those bonds hadn't been available, she wouldn't have known what to do for Vince; but so much had happened since then. At first, there had been no suspicion in her mind. Now, try as she might, she could not help but wonder if they were honestly come by. Or, if they were, how about the money that had purchased them?

What should she do?—It all was such a muddle.

One thing was perfectly clear to Jacqueline now. As long as she had Larry's money in her possession, it was going to play havoc with her self-respect. If she returned it to him, her conscience would be much more clear. Parting with her name did not seem so serious... when one divorced the cash feature.

The whole thing must be figured out rather carefully.

Those nine bonds could be returned untouched. And most of the cash received for the other, since Larry had paid for the surgeon and the hospital bill. She would draw out what was left and turn it back to Larry, then explain that she would reimburse him for what he had spent.

Arranging all these details revived her spirits immeasurably. In a very little while now, she would be free.

She expected to have a chance to deliver her invitation in person, but Larry did not call at the office. Neither did she find him waiting outside the hospital any evening. He did manage to call on Vince several afternoons, however.

These visits were reported gleefully by the patient when his daughter arrived after dinner. Jacqueline owned to a feeling of genuine relief that she would not be obliged to move from Courtland street. But that was quickly overshadowed by something very much like resentment.

To hear Vince tell it, he and Larry were looking forward to the stay on the farm with all the enthusiasm of two boys on a holiday. Jacqueline was made painfully aware of the fact that she was an outsider. Especially, when she was forced to write Larry a note and ask him if it would be convenient to call at the apartment the following Thursday evening, at nine.

He arrived on the stroke, so genuinely delighted at the summons that Jack found her carefully prepared speech fading swiftly from her mind. She knew she dared not temporize with the situation and introduced the hated topic as promptly as possible.

"I can't help it, Larry," she insisted hurriedly, after she had outlined her reasons. "I suppose it all sounds very silly to you... but I can't help it." She fell back on that reason as the logical answer to it all.

She had expected that Larry would argue the matter coolly, or try to ride over her wishes in the rough-shod manner he occasionally adopted. He did neither. Instead, he sat looking at her quietly through a haze of pipe smoke.

"Do you mind telling me if you have an idea that those bonds might be hot? I think I put a receipt in the envelope." That was his unrefused response.

"Hot?" Jacqueline queried with a puzzled frown.

"Stolen."

"Not!" she denied, her cheeks flushing. There was nothing else to say, with Larry's dark eyes looking at her that way.

"Thanks. After all, I wouldn't blame you."

"But you do understand, don't you?" She asked it almost in desperation. "You don't think I'm going back on my word...?"

"Why, no. You wouldn't do that. Where is the filthy lucre?"

My Week

by Eleanor Roosevelt

YOUNG PEOPLE IN CIVILIAN DEFENSE

One day of the week was spent very largely on one subject, because from nine o'clock to 12:30 we sat in Room B in the Labor auditorium and talked about participation of young people in civilian defense. The conference adjourned to the White House for lunch, and we were back at the Labor department building at two o'clock. We actually finished by four o'clock, which was the time we had scheduled to bring the conference to a close. I think this speaks well for the young people and their ability to keep their program moving on time.

At the meeting, there was a feeling expressed that, through our defense work, certain goals should be set which we should all strive to attain in the next few years. It was agreed they should not be for youth alone, but must be goals for every age and group. The entire over-all picture must be covered, though there may be certain interests on which youth will want to place special emphasis.

Mr. Eugene Meyer came in to tea with me that day to tell me how deeply impressed he was with the work of the women in England. He considers that their labor is not only contributing valuable service, but is creating unity throughout the British nation. There is no doubt that women have a tremendous role to play and I am looking forward to the meeting which Miss Eloise Davison will hold soon in Washington, when the role of women in civilian defense will be canvassed from many points of view.

HURRIED EVACUATIONS

I have been reading some accounts of the removal of the Jewish people from Germany to Poland and Russia. Somehow, being suddenly told that within an hour you must leave your home never to return, is very difficult for us here to visualize. It is a leave-taking which savors somewhat of death.

In all partings with people whom we love, there is in a minor way, that sense of temporary loss which presages the horrible finality of separation which comes over one at the time of death. These mass removals, where people are treated like animals and not like human beings, are so horrible to contemplate that one can only hope that at a certain point feelings become numb and suffering ceases to be acute.

NEW YORK VISIT

My daughter and son-in-law were leaving one day for the West, so we devoted last evening to being with each other. We went to a little restaurant on Sixty-third street in New York which we often frequented when they were living in New York city. After a short, but very good dinner, we went to the theater to see "The Wookey," by Mr. Frederick Hazlitt Brennan. It is amusing, dramatic, well acted and very moving.

To those of us who know the people of the East End in London, it brought all that has happened in the past few months vividly before our eyes. Mr. Wookey did not agree with his government. It was his right to criticize and to advise, and even to write the prime minister. In spite of all his disagreement, however, when his people were really in danger, and his country under attack, Mr. Wookey could put up with any amount of discomfort and go forth cheerfully to almost certain death on the docks. That is why some of us believe that Great Britain must come out victoriously in this war.

I love the scene where Mr. Wookey airs his views to a high ranking officer. A lump was in my throat when his home was destroyed and his wife was killed. Other people are brave, other people suffer in just the same way, but not even do we have that sense of complete independence of expression and assurance that makes the British feel that they know how to run the affairs of the nation far better than those who are in charge. That is a British trait.

ANOTHER POSTCARD

I have one postcard, which I want to share with you today. The writer seems very indignant with me because I said my knowledge of the Bible was superficial. I wonder how many people would dare to say otherwise. Few people can claim a real study and knowledge of that book, which is probably the most widely read book in the world and, frequently, the least understood. My correspondent seems to feel that saying one's knowledge is superficial means that one had little respect for the subject.

As a matter of fact, it is because I have such a deep appreciation of what real knowledge the Bible implies, that I would never presume for a minute to consider it possible for me to claim anything beyond a very superficial study. On the other hand, my correspondent ends by thinking it odd that people in Washington can ever understand what is going on there. I should like to assure him that it is quite easy to understand what human beings conceive and carry out in Washington... and I am sure most of them wish often for Divine Guidance!

FARM SECURITY LOANS TO SMALL FARMERS

Financial assistance is available through the Farm Security Administration to assist small farmers who need supplies, equipment and repairs to enable them to contribute to the Food for Defense program Briscoe county rehabilitation supervisors, said today.

Expanding its services to low-income farm families, this agency of the Department of Agriculture, is conducting a state-wide drive to give small farmers an opportunity to aid the defenders of democracy and to relieve their own distressed conditions, Mr. Carpenter explained.

Working under the direction of the State and County USDA Security is a part, this agency is to be ready to make loans to qualified farm families to step-up their production of needed-foods. Long term loans are available for a great many purposes.

Increased production and improved home consumption will be encouraged by the FSA for its borrower-families rather than the expansion of the farm enterprise. Better care of livestock, more adequate use of available facilities, purebred sires, culling, better housing for poultry and livestock, more canning and improved selection and preparation of food and feed storage, are among the things being emphasized by this agency.

Among types of assistance which the Farm Security Administration is prepared to furnish eligible small farm families in Briscoe County to enable them to participate in the National Defense program:

1. Loans for the purchase of silage cutters, feed grinders, binders, trailers, and other harvesting and operating expenses in order to store feed crops trench silos or other storage methods.

2. To increase the production of poultry, poultry products, dairy products and pork, Farm Security will finance suitable shelter, for poultry, dairy cattle or hogs, either by the use of temporary shelter, remodeling present buildings or constructing new buildings, provided proper tenure agreements can be obtained.

3. Farm Security will finance supplements for a good feeding program; the agency will finance, in some cases, the purchase of milk cows, sows and feeder pigs up to the normal carrying capacity of the borrower's farm. FSA will finance the purchase of young chicks to bring the farm flock to normal carrying capacity of the farm.

4. To aid in food preservation and storage this agency will finance eligible farm families to purchase pressure cookers, jars and other canning equipment. Loans are available to construct cellars, milk coolers, shelves or other storage space needed to protect the families food supply.

5. To provide ample water for the production and storage programs, Farm Security will finance the development of available water, including wells, pumps, towers, windmills, overhead supply tanks, pipe and so far as rental arrangements will justify.

Mr. Carpenter said loans are available to qualified small farmers for many purposes other than those listed above to enable them to improve their own conditions and contribute to the National Defense program.

Farm families interested in improving their own conditions and increasing production for the "Food for Freedom" campaign should contact Mr. Carpenter at his office in the Court house.

179 PERSONS DIED LAST YEAR FROM HUNTING ACCIDENTS

A timely and urgent warning against the careless handling of firearms during the hunting season was issued today by Doctor George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"During the year 1940 a total of 179 deaths occurred in Texas as a result of firearm accidents, by far the majority of them due to hunting activities," said Doctor Cox. "A hunter's loaded gun when not carried on safety is a menace to himself and to everyone within firing range."

Doctor Cox pointed out that while hunting is one of "the nation's most enjoyable outdoor sports, this deplorable toll of human lives goes on annually due almost entirely to carelessness. "Many men go hunting year after year without harm to themselves or their companions because they handle a gun cautiously and with good sense," he declared.

"There is little excuse for the brand of carelessness or clumsiness that kills. If each will use precautions to go through the hunting season without accidental injury to himself or his hunting companion, the death toll in Texas from firearm accidents will be reduced nearly seventy-five per cent," Doctor Cox stated.

FEEDING DAIRY CATTLE

All dairy farmers are complaining about the high price of protein supplement for dairy cows.

We know that we must maintain a rational balance. If we take the value of the loss in milk production will be far greater than the cost of protein feed. This is when we will be paid for it accurately. If we use more seed meal than is necessary it will waste money -- if it is used enough, we don't get it.

There is one way to make saving on a feed bill by planting oats, barley or rye for pasture. Rumen kind of pasture is high in so very little protein is in the grain mixture. When on this kind of pasture less of grain mixture will be made to make a gallon of milk. This pasture saves ways. At the present price this grain pasture will be two or three dollars per month.

A good grain mixture when cows are grazing on small grain pasture, with choppers, is 600 pounds of choppers, 100 pounds of cotton seed, 14 pounds of oyster shell, 10 pounds of salt. Feed 3 pounds of mixture per day for each cow.

If you do not have a small pasture, a good grain mixture of 200 pounds milo head, 100 pounds cotton seed meal, 100 pounds oyster shell, and 3 1/2 pounds of salt will be needed at the rate of 3 to 3 1/2 per gallon of milk.

Research has revealed that rethrum spray will kill insect pests of books, papers, linens.
