Mayor Says It's Next Thursday

The following is the official Mayor's Proclamation for Thanksgiving Day, as well as I remember from talking to Tom Bomar: Whereas, if you birds around Silverton ain't smart enough to find out when to eat turkey buzzard, And whereas, a bunch of our grandpaps, started eating it on the last Thursday in November, And whereas Prof. Roosevelt is about to change his mind on it, and Coke Stevenson has put it on the last Thursday in November, And whereas, in spite of everything Hitler could do to stop us, we do have many things to be thankful for, And whereas, it don't make me a darn bit of difference, but maybe does some folks, I hereby proclaim Thursday, November 27, as Thanksgiving Day in Silverton, and urge that the day be spent in fitting manner to show our thankfulness to the Almighty God for the blessings He is gracious enough to bestow upon us in this City of Silverton, State of Texas, in His most favored of all countries, the United States of America.

BOYS AND GIRLS ARE OVER TOP FOR U.S.D.A.

By Claude Carpenter

Briscoe County 4-H and Vocational Agriculture Club boys and girls have gone over the top to meet the USDA needs for the county dairy cows. Through the Cooperation of the Extension Service and the Farm Security Administration, together with the County Agent, Mr. Lem Weaver, we secured authority to make 4-H and Vocational Agriculture Club loans in Briscoe County to club boys and girls, not to exceed $150 per individual to purchase heifers, sheep, brood sows. Vocational Agriculture teachers, Mr. Victor Harmon of Silverton, and Mr. Burgess Browning of Quitaque also encouraged the plan of financing club projects and assisted in the purchase of well bred animals.

To date, 64 registered Jersey bred heifers, from dams producing an average of 400 pounds of butter fat; 7 registered bred Hereford heifers; and one registered Angus heifer; and 63 good grade ewes have been purchased. In an effort to further encourage quality dairy cows, in this county, the Farm Security Administration has financed four cooperative registered Jersey males of quality production, rating 3 star classification.

The group of boys and girls have a Senior Advisory Committee of three local men, and a Junior Advisory Committee of three young men. The committees recommended loans, adjust insurance premium rates, and encourage members in the care and handling of the livestock. We might add that this group set aside part of each loan to be used as an insurance fund against death loss.

To date, these boys have had only one death loss which will be paid from their insurance account.

The First National Bank, Quitaque aided in paying for livestock purchased, subject to funds being made available from the Farm Security Administration. The Briscoe county USDA goal calls for an increase of dairy cows to 70, and it appears these boys and girls will take care of that need in a big way.

Orlee Mills, spent a ten day furlough here with his mother and family He returned to his camp at Salinas, California Thursday.

A check-up on Red Cross memberships taken Wednesday noon, revealed the fact that Silverton had already exceeded her quota of 175 memberships--in fact, that was done the very first day of the drive. About 200 members were obtained Saturday, and Wednesday noon 240 Silverton members had been registered.

The Wednesday noon report showed Quitaque not far behind with 155 memberships having been reported. Quitaque's quota was the same as Silverton's--175 members.

Reports have not been turned in from the outlying communities around either town, but it is known that most of them have already gotten the desired number of members.

The long and the short of it is, that Briscoe County in three days of work has exceeded a quota of more than twice the 1940 drive.

It is expected that the total members received in this county will exceed 500. Mrs. W. Coffee, Jr., Silverton chairman, reports that no high pressure was necessary--everyone was more than willing to contribute. Members are still signing up, and with no solicitation whatsoever.

A complete statement will be published in this paper next week and meanwhile, the committee wishes to thank everyone for their cooperation, and to invite those who haven't already joined, to do their bit by becoming a member.

Church Supper Ideas

What is so gay as a grand, big get-together full of informal fun, the hum of pleasant conversation and plenty of good food thrown into the bargain? A church supper, of course!

The fun will take care of itself and the food—well, almost if you get the right amount of it, for the cooking's as simple as only simple can be. Chicken's a treat any way you serve it, but very easy to prepare and serve if you do it this time-tried, old-fashioned, favorite way ladled out of a big kettle with plenty of cream sauce onto feathery light hot biscuits:

Chicken or Turkey a la King.
(Serves 50)

- 4 4-pound chickens, stewed, then cut meat into pieces
- Or
- 1 18-pound turkey, stewed or roasted, meat diced
- 1 pound fat (chicken or turkey fat and butter mixed)
- 4 cups flour
- 2 gallons scalded milk
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 large cans
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons or more salt
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
- 2 sweet green peppers, chopped (optional)
- 2 pimientos, chopped (optional)
- 1/2 cup egg yolks (6 eggs)

Melt about three-fourths of the fat, add the flour, and blend thoroughly; add scalded milk, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk to keep well mixed. Cook until starch taste is gone—about 10 minutes. Cook the mushrooms, sliced, in remaining fat, until delicately browned and add to sauce with the onion. Beat egg yolks and mix with a small amount of the hot mixture to blend and add to the sauce, stirring thoroughly. Cook 4 or 5 minutes more. Add turkey meat. Season to taste (with paprika and pepper mixed into salt). Add peppers and pimiento, if used. Serve on hot biscuits.

The simplest way to prepare the chickens is to cook them in seasoned water, to which a small onion, 2 carrots and a small bunch of celery are added. Chickens are handled best if disjointed and the breast and back sections cut into convenient-sized pieces.

Baking Powder Biscuits.
(Serves 50)

- 4 pounds flour
- 1/2 cup double-acting baking powder
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 pound shortening (2 1/2 cups)
- 5 cups milk

Sift the dry ingredients together, add fat and mix lightly. Make a well in the center and add the milk.

LYNN SAYS:

Attractive salads pep up meals besides adding nourishment plus to menus. Salads in winter are a little hard to plan because of the scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables, so I suggest you try these for solving your salad problem:

Prunes stuffed with cream cheese and nuts, served with orange sections and lettuce.

Cooked beets and cooked carrots diced with celery, mixed with mayonnaise.

Orange sections served with tiny cream cheese balls. Marinade oranges in french dressing first.

Canned pineapple and fresh oranges served in alternate sections on lettuce. Alternating orange and grapefruit sections are a good idea, too.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- *Chicken a la King
- *Scalloped Potatoes
- *Sunset Salad
- Bread and Butter
- Assorted Cakes
- *Coffee
- *Recipe given

Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make 1/4 at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to 1/2 inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown.

Scalloped Potatoes.
(Serves 50)

- 10 pounds (6 quarts) sliced potatoes
- 2 quarts hot milk
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 1/2 cups butter
- 3 tablespoons salt
- 1 tablespoon pepper

Peel potatoes before weighing. Before measuring, peel and slice. If large, cut in two lengthwise before slicing. Into six baking dishes put a layer of potato, then a slight layer of flour, and repeat until all potatoes are used. Dissolve salt, pepper and butter in hot milk. Pour over potatoes, cover and cook in slow oven for 1 1/2 hours or until done.

Best idea for a salad is one that's made in advance and needs only to be sliced and placed on lettuce leaves for serving. It's as gay and colorful as the get-together itself.

Sunset Salad.

- 18 ounces lemon gelatin
- 2 1/2 quarts hot water and canned pineapple juice
- 1 1/2 quarts grated raw carrots
- 1 1/2 pints canned crushed pineapple, drained
- 2 teaspoons salt

Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pineapple juice which has been heated to 130 degrees F. Chill. Combine carrots, pineapple and salt. When mixture is slightly thickened, fold in carrot and pineapple mixture. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise and grated carrots. Makes 32 portions.

Just in case you want to make up a church supper menu of your own, I'm listing additional recipes:

Meat Loaf.

- 10 pounds ground round steak
- 2 pounds ground pork or salt pork
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 pound bread crumbs
- 2 onions
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 2 teaspoons pepper
- 1 quart cold mashed potatoes
- 1 quart milk or canned tomatoes

Mix thoroughly, mold into five loaves, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., until done. Makes 50 servings.

Billed Coffee.
(Serves 50)

- 1 1/2 pounds coffee (6 1/2 cups)
- 2 1/2 gallons water
- 2 eggs

Mix shells, whole eggs and 1 additional cup of cold water with coffee. When the water comes to a boil, add the coffee egg mixture which has been tied in a bag, to the boiling water, and boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Test for strength. When ready, remove bag, let coffee stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

The wife of one of our famous football coaches, Mrs. Lou Little, likes to serve a simple but hearty meal after the game. Jot this one down as an idea for an after the game supper or church supper idea:

Hot mulled cider, casserole of pork and beans, buttered hot date-nut bread, celery, pickles, and chili sauce; jellied cole slaw; doughnuts and coffee.

No. 1 U. S. Naval Hero

FOR more than 30 years the body of John Paul Jones has rested in a marble tomb in the crypt of the United States Naval Academy chapel at Annapolis. Recently a precious relic was placed in front of his sarcophagus. It is a plaster bust of America's No. 1 naval hero, made more than 150 years ago by Jean Antoine Houdon, the famous French sculptor.

This bust, one of only five of its kind known to be in existence, was presented to the Naval Academy museum by an organization known as the Friends of the United States Navy. Back of this gift is an interesting story.

In 1779 Capt. John Paul Jones was placed in command of the American frigate Bon Homme Richard. Upon his arrival in Paris, Jones, who had been a Mason since 1770, applied for affiliation with La Loge des Neuf-Souers or the Lodge of the Nine Sisters (meaning the nine Muses). This lodge, besides being a fraternal organization, was also a club for artists, writers and other intellectuals. Benjamin Franklin was its worshipful master and among its members was Houdon, the sculptor.

Before the lodge could act upon Jones' application, he had sailed away to challenge the power of the "Mistress of the Seas." On September 23, 1779, occurred his historic victory over the stronger British man-of-war, the Serapis, during which he uttered his immortal words of defiance—"I have not yet begun to fight!"

When Jones reached Paris the next spring, all France was eager to honor him. Not only did the Lodge of the Nine Sisters welcome him and initiate him into its membership, but it commissioned one of its members, Houdon, to make a bust of the victor for the lodge. King Louis XVI was so delighted over the defeat of the British frigate by the Bon Homme Richard that he gave Jones the Cross of Military Merit, the first time it had ever been presented to a foreigner.

Jones was proud of this honor and asked Houdon to depict it on the lapel of his coat when the sculptor made the original terra cotta bust of him in 1780, even though congress had not authorized him to accept a decoration from a foreign monarch.

Between 1786 and 1791 Houdon made 16 plaster copies of the bust on orders from Jones, who presented them to Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Franklin, Lafayette, Robert Morris, John Jay and others. The one presented to Jefferson was owned by the Boston Athenaeum for many years. But some time before 1900 it mysteriously disappeared from that museum and has never been found. Today the whereabouts of only five of the plaster copies of the original terra cotta, including the one recently presented to the Naval museum, are known, but several scholars are trying to find out what became of the other eleven.

In 1791 Jones ordered Houdon to make a plaster replica of the bust and on it, besides the Cross of Military Merit, show the Order of St. Ann, which Catherine the Great, empress of Russia, had given him in recognition of his services during the Russian war with Turkey. Soon afterwards Jones wrote to Jefferson, then secretary of state, asking Jefferson to obtain for him authority from congress to keep the decoration. At this time he stated that a congressman from North Carolina, his adopted state, had asked for a bust of him and that he had directed Houdon to prepare one, showing the Cross of St. Ann, and forward it to North Carolina. The state has no record of having received it and some of its historians are trying to determine what became of it because of the celebration in honor of Jones which is planned for 1942.

Houdon's bust of Jones was declared by some of his contemporaries to be a remarkably accurate likeness, President James Madison wrote to one of Jones' first biographers: "His bust by Houdon is an exact likeness, portraying well the characteristic features stamped on the countenance of the original." In criticizing a portrait which this same biographer had chosen for his book, President Thomas Jefferson wrote: "Houdon's bust of him is an excellent likeness. Why have they not taken a side face of him from that? Such a one would be perfect."

FOR ONCE THE Mayor is right. It doesn't make a difference what day we observe—it's the thought of thankfulness that counts. The only thing that matters with us Americans is—we don't get thankful often enough. It should be once a day instead of once a year.

RIGHT NOW I guess would be a good place to mention that we want to get the paper out a day early next week for Thanksgiving. Burleson, who is known far and near as the next to the best (and perhaps the best) linotype operator in Silvertown wants to go see a football game somewhere and me, I just want to get it out early. If you folks will get your news and ad copy in a day early, it will be a big favor to us.

FLASH, FLASH—Just in an attempt to scoop a friendly contemporary, I want to announce that the Quitaque Post is inaugurating a new column this week. The guiding hand will be Jane (Walter Winchell) Scott. Durned if I see what Mr. and Mrs. Scott do down there, for last week Jane said she was the linotype operator.

BEFORE WE KNOW IT, Santa Claus is going to be on his way down here. It we want the old gent to stop in Silvertown with treats for the kids and so forth, it's time we were thinking about it. Right now, I can announce that the Christmas merchandising edition of the Briscoe County News will be issued on December 11.

That's the paper of the year you know and until December 4th, we will be able to furnish a page ad to any merchant who so desires, and who can shake as much as thirty-five bucks in my face.

THE FREE SHOW ticket idea in connection with our bargain days on subscriptions is going over pretty well. So well that I am going to extend the offer that everyone who subscribes in November will receive a pass to the Palace Theatre.

TROUBLE LIGHTS rather regularly on the Hahn doorstep seems to me. And the local Hahn family hasn't any more sense than to open the door for him.

BARBARA GOT SICK Saturday morning (after opening the above mentioned door by wearing herself to a frazzle by cleaning the whole house) and has really been sick. High fever, cough, and all that goes with it. Then Monday night the Young Hahn stays up all night sick as a horse.

NO HELP EITHER. But I'm getting so I like it—well all but making the beds. Cooking, washing dishes, and administering medicine right on the dot are right down my alley.

EVEN SO, WE called Barb's folks Tuesday and they will probably be down in a few days. Mr. Whitney will probably be glad to see the boys here. He hasn't seen them since before the last presidential election.

WHAT I MEAN, is that Frances Crass has been our main stay up at the house. She has been doing most everything but washing the dishes, and doggone it, she won't wash dishes.

UP AT LEAVENWORTH, Kansas they have hundreds of fellows confined for offenses against society in general, and the federal government in particular. Many of these offenses have been far less dangerous than the campaign against this country which John L. Lewis is waging at the present time.

JUST WHAT THIS difference is I don't know. It may be the political power that Lewis holds and the votes he controls. However that may be, almost any other less powerful man than Lewis would be confined there at least for the duration of the present emergency. He is a distinct trouble maker, and is admittedly throwing a cog in our defense work. Just what it takes to brand a trouble maker as a traitor I don't know.

THINGS ARE NOT BALANCED at all when they can toss a young soldier in the brig for three years for going "over the hill" and then let a dangerous not-headed mongrel persistently try to wreck our defense preparations. And every minute that those defense preparations is slowed down, is going to cost the lives of several American soldiers in the very near future.

AND, OF ALL things, the President of the United States lowers his office and himself by writing personally to Lewis. He shouldn't do it, or if he does he should address his correspondence to No. 55522, Federal Penitentiary.

OR MAYBE I'M radical. Am I?

HELP WANTED

We Americans just naturally think big. It's one of the things that are traditional with us—like ham and eggs and free speech. So it's natural that many of us should think offhand that business in America is big business. The truth is, though, that it's also small business. It's mostly small business, in fact. Approximately 133,000 of our 184,000 industrial plants employ fewer than 20 workers.

Through no fault of their own many of these small plants are faced today with extinction. Within the next few months they may have to shut up shop—their employees may be forced out of work—because they can't continue civilian production and can't change over rapidly to defense jobs.

Floyd Odum, of the OPM, has a plan to help some of these plants stay open until they have a chance to work their way into the defense picture. He has suggested that they be permitted to get enough raw material to keep them in business for the next six or eight months. Indications are that it would take less than two percent of the available material supplies to help them through this change-over-to-defense period.

The whole problem of small business today is to convert as many plants as possible to defense production to speed that work, and to help as many of the rest of them as we can to keep going on civilian manufacturing, without slowing down the armament program. Inevitably, some factories will have to close in spite of all the efforts made to keep them open. But the fewer that do, the better for America. Any practical method for helping them should receive immediate attention in Washington.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Stalin Sees Nazi Collapse Within Year As Hitler Challenges British Invasion; Japanese Get Warning From Churchill Against Involvement in War With U. S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

After a lengthy debate in the senate, that body passed the bill authorizing the arming of U. S. merchant vessels and following the 50-37 vote, the photographer got this picture. It shows left to right Sen. Millard Tydings, against the bill; Allen W. Barkley for the bill; Tom Connally, for the bill and Bennett Champ Clark who was against the bill.

HITLER: Talks Boldly

Adolf Hitler exuding confidence with the passing of another of the anniversaries of the "beer cellar putsch," and having been congratulated on his excellent health and appearance, had made another address to his backers in which he defied the world.

The "Fuehrer" declared that he had created a united European front against communism, that the eastern front's successes were assured, and he dared England to attempt an invasion from the west.

"I have made such preparations in the west," he declared, "that the British can step up at any time.

"If the English choose to undertake an offensive, whether it is in Norway, on our German coast or in Holland, Belgium or France, we can only say 'step up, you will leave faster than you came.'"

Two years ago a bomb had wrecked the hall minutes after Hitler walked out of it. The assembled crowd did not know until the last minute this time whether he would appear or not.

He scorned direct reference to the might of the United States as hurled into the picture, saying his orders had increased many fold the armament potential of Germany since the start of the war.

The speech ignored the unrest in Europe, the halting of the blitzkrieg in front of Moscow and Leningrad, the announced intention of the Finns to quit the war on Russia soon, the passage of the neutrality act revision bill by the senate, the recent utterances of Roosevelt and of Churchill.

There was no reference to the enormous German losses as outlined by Josef Stalin, nor to the growingly heavy attacks on the Reich by the Royal Air force of Britain.

He boldly declared his armies could defend Germany and all of occupied Europe, "despite American threats and plans for gigantic armament." He was cheered to the echo.

STALIN: Celebrates

The anniversary of the October revolution was celebrated in Moscow with Stalin himself reviewing troops in front of the grim walls of the Kremlin, with hordes of Russian fighting planes wheeling overhead and less than 50 miles away the Red armies battling to hold back the Nazi hordes.

The Germans had boasted that the Russians would have been beaten to their knees long before the annual great Soviet holiday. Instead Stalin was in his country's capital city, reviewing the troops in the customary fashion, despite the war.

He declared that the Germans had lost 4,500,000 men in killed, wounded and captured since the start of the invasion of Russia, admitted that much territory had been lost while "Russia stood alone" against the invader, but promised his people that Germany was beaten and within a year would collapse under the weight of "its crimes."

There was a bitter note in Stalin's talk as to the lack of full British co-operation, though he did give thanks for the aid that had been received.

Yet there was a great deal of calm confidence, and he expressed his nation's willingness to fight on, come what may, until the collapse of Germany, regarded by him as inevitable, would take place.

PICTURE:

Red Front

The ever-dubious picture of the Red front against the Nazis had begun to clarify itself somewhat, the general view being that the Russian armies were somewhat in jeopardy on the southern sector, though rapidly assuming the offensive in the north and central portions.

Attacks by the Red armies were cited at Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow; at Volokolamsk, 65 miles outside the city; at Moshaisk, and at Maloyaroslavets.

CHURCHILL: And Roosevelt

As Hitler and Stalin were celebrating anniversaries, and each predicting the future with confidence, each from his own standpoint, Churchill hailed that "glorious warrior Stalin," told Britons that the entry of the U. S. naval vessels into the war left Britain no longer alone, and predicted that England had been rendered, by this aid, "once more masters of our own fate."

In another statement he warned that should the U. S. be forced into war with Japan, Britain would join in the fight against Nippon "within the hour."

Roosevelt, beset by strikes and threats of labor troubles, also meeting a determined challenge of his policy in the senate debate on the neutrality act revision, issued an appeal to labor to work for the national defense, and to place labor quarrels to one side.

There had been a momentary lull in sea-losses, though the dead in the Reuben James disaster had risen to 101. This loss stood as a silent speech-maker in the senate halls during the neutrality act debate, and was being used to show the people the all-out necessity of naval aid to America in "delivering the goods" where needed.

NEUTRALITY: New Phase

The relatively close senate action on the neutrality act revision did not change the situation as regarded the outcome, which meant the death of the final two parts of the measure placed in it at the beginning of the war at the insistence of the isolationists.

Their final fortresses had now fallen, and with the navy's range extended to every port in the world, and with American merchant vessels ready to move, armed for their own protection, into those same ports, the de facto complete entry of this country into the naval battle was considered a certainty.

Representative Bloom indicated that the full authority of the bill might not be used at once, might never be used. He said:

"The situation is tense throughout the world. This is true both on the Atlantic and the Pacific. It is better to have the power which the repeal gives the President and not to need it, than to need it and not to have it."

This seemed to be the attitude of many members of congress who were not anxious to see American ships in danger-laden and belligerent ports, but who deeply felt the need of an all-out American effort and the means to make it so if necessary.

PACIFIC: Threat Closer

The Clipper flight of special envoy Kuruusu to the United States apparently to make a final effort to "clarify" the Japanese position on the Pacific brought only gloomy predictions in Washington as to the mission's probable outcome.

Japanese position in the Orient and the British-American stand seemed poles apart, and little likelihood of betterment in the situation.

In fact, there had been a report "on excellent" authority that plans were well advanced for joint British and American action in the East.

There was sudden talk of "appeasement" when it was announced that the United States would withdraw its marines from the Orient, yet this had been promptly scotched by Secretary Hull, who stated that this was a long-considered policy and had nothing whatever to do with Japanese-American relations.

Both Britain and the United States had placed Japan on notice that neither nation would stand for any further expansion of the Japanese domain, and this apparently went for Siberia as well as for Indo-China.

Seen From the U. S. Atlantic Patrol

Prisoners of War Accept Their Sorry Lot

New President in Independent Syria

Cheikh Taggadine, the new president of Syria, inspects a guard of honor of Free French troops outside the town hall at Damascus, Syria. Syria was granted her independence when Free French General Catroux formally handed the country over in a broadcast speech from Damascus.

Old Man River Again

A rescue party in a rowboat travels down a city street which is under five feet of water. The flood was caused by the Arkansas river, which broke out of its banks at Tulsa, leaving scores of families homeless and causing great damage.

'Blitz Troops' in the Making

The second corps provisional anti-tank battalion, commanded by Maj. H. E. Johnson, Wadesboro, N. C., was organized as a weapon of opportunity to combat hostile mechanized threats at any part of the front where the enemy might break through. Photo shows battery D returning fire on advancing "enemy" tanks, supported by machine guns.

Prison Camp

The first prison camp since World War I is now being completed near Patchogue, N. Y. It will accommodate some 700 aliens. The watchtower is shown above.

Three-Way Pulling Match Builds Defense Log Jam

Washington Sees Conflicts of Authority, Effort and Viewpoint as a Threat to Satisfactory Carrying Out of Program.

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

There is a log jam today holding up the defense program that is going to take dynamite to blow up. Whether there is the courage and the unity and the understanding to do the job remains to be seen.

It will take understanding because the men who make the charges will have to know the facts and realize the conditions and the traditions which have created the evils.

It will take courage, for a premature burst may damage a lot of innocent bystanders.

As far as can be judged from information leading out of the cracks in the defense machine it is a three-way pulling match. The difficulty in analyzing the situation is the difficulty in classifying and identifying the opposing forces.

The usual classification is: One, the New Deal group. Two, the dollar-a-year men. Three, certain army and navy officials.

But this is a very misleading classification because there are some dollar-a-year men who are working with the administration. There are some members of the administration charged with playing into the hands of the dollar-a-year men. There are some army officials who are co-operating with the so-called New Deal element.

Roughly—the Charges

Roughly the charges are these: Those sympathetic with the viewpoint of the New Dealers say that some army officials insist on favoring the dollar-a-year men who manage to steer defense contracts to big business, block sub-contracting to the smaller firms.

Some of the army and navy officials say that they are not going to let amateurs run their affairs, that they have dealt with certain firms for years who know how to do what they want done.

The champions of the small business men and congressmen who have attempted to help them say that priorities assignments are sending essential materials to the big business firms—and they mention the utilities in particular.

Small manufacturers and public projects like rural electrification which is bidding for precious copper for its power lines, are being passed by, is the accusation.

The dollar-a-year men say that they are protecting free enterprise and that those opposing them are trying to turn business over to government control.

These bitter conflicts of authority, effort and viewpoint naturally prevent the co-operation essential in the tremendous undertaking which the Office of Emergency Management is attempting to carry out.

This is one reason for the log jam. There is another. In Washington itself criticism is growing. This is not new. It is criticism of the overlapping and conflicting authority among the officials of the OEM.

Theoretically, Vice President Wallace is the responsible head of all defense effort and in that capacity he reports only to the President but the money he requires to carry out his functions is controlled by Jesse Jones, head of the RFC as well as secretary of commerce.

That is just one example of similar anomalies right down the line. The strange thing about it all is that everybody in Washington seems to know all about the log jam except the President himself who is the only man who can straighten it out.

If this country with its wide range of climatic might resources has to depend on foreign countries for these products used in our daily life it is to see how dependent all of us have become, one upon the other. Trade barriers must go down if civilization is to continue to forward.

Instead of waiting for migrant families to find their way to the jobs, up in the Northwest hop and apple country the State Employment services are opening offices at each of the 20 Farm Security migratory labor camps. Already job placements in the hop and potato fields and in the apple orchards have outstripped all previous records.

Sweden's Tobacco Monopoly estimated that about 800 tons of tobacco are literally thrown away each year in that country in discarded cigarette stubs, the department of commerce reports. Proposed, therefore, to avoid economic waste by use of the paper tips on cigarettes of approximating the length of the stub usually discarded.

not lived up to the letter of our official agreement." "What do you mean by that?" "There was a clause in it . . . number four, if my memory serves me. You didn't like it and I appreciated how you felt. But you did sign the agreement as it stood. What have you to say about that?" "I gave the money back to you," Jacqueline retorted. "Nearly all of it. I mean. And you shall have the balance just as soon as I can save it!"

"Yes, and I took it back without a word. I didn't remind you that you had sidestepped the contract. Nevertheless, I consider you morally culpable."

Jacqueline swallowed a sob and blinked rapidly to keep back the tears. Never had she felt so thoroughly humiliated, so . . . "Jack!" Larry's voice had changed suddenly. There was a note of tenderness in it she never had heard. "We're not going to quarrel, dear. Look at me."

She kept her face turned obstinately from him. So very still it was about then that Jacqueline found herself fearing that Larry would hear her heart pounding. "If you think I've broken my promise," he went on gently, "I suppose there is no great wrong in doing it again. I'm not sure when I will see you again . . . or how." Larry was speaking in quick, hurried sentences.

"There's no way in which I may tell you how utterly I've loved you from that first day. It's been almost unbearable! To be near you, to see you . . . so many more times than you've been aware. And all the times my arms have ached to hold you. No one could love you as I do! They never have. They never will!"

"Larry! Please . . ." "No! You must understand that it's always going to be that way. No matter what happens, it will be that way. You are the only woman who ever has come into my heart. It belongs to you. So do I. I'll wait forever . . . if I have to. But there never will be anyone else. Please believe that. Please . . ."

Neither of them could have told how it happened. Jacqueline was in her husband's arms, pressed close against him. His cheek rested against her hair. She felt his heart beating . . . heard his broken whispers . . . "Jack . . . my own little Jack . . . I love you so."

She struggled to release herself, pushing at him frantically with her small hands. "No, no . . ." she choked brokenly. "You do love me, Jack . . . just a very little. Tell me you do!" "Oh, I . . . No! Let me go . . . Please let me go!"

He released her at once. "I'm sorry if I have hurt or offended you, dear. But you do love me. I know it and so do you. You needn't be afraid. I won't forget again."

The ride to the city was made in silence. When they reached the Courtland street house, all Larry said was, "May I see you and tell you good-by before I leave?" "I . . . I don't think so," Jacqueline was fumbling blindly with the car door. She had it open now.

"Sorry. Good night, Jack." The car was moving as he reached out and closed the door with a ruthless bang. "Larry . . ." "But Larry was gone."

CHAPTER XI

Larrimore Cutter left an elevator at the mezzanine floor of the Raynear and stood for an instant looking about him.

Anthony, became ill Larry invited him into the country to live. A week later Jacqueline accompanied Larry to see Vince at the farm. She was shocked when he said Larry loved her. Now continue with the story.

Almost at once, his eyes encountered a woman sitting by herself on a small settee, one arm resting on the marble balcony rail, apparently studying the busy lobby below. She was modestly attired in black. A small hat of the same shade was perched jauntily on her decidedly blonde head. Rather noticeably made up, he decided. But attractive.

He approached her slowly. "Miss Morris?" She turned with a start, her red lips parting in a friendly smile. "It's Mr. Cutter, isn't it?" "Yes." He took a seat at her side without waiting for an invitation. Larry frowned a trifle, as he remarked: "I'm sorry you didn't arrange to meet me somewhere else, Miss Morris. Didn't they tell you about that?"

"No. I thought this would be all right today." She glanced about carelessly. "I wonder if it wouldn't be better for you to call me Alma . . ."

"Very well. And, since you are here, we may as well talk. First of all, have you had any luck?" "Not a bit, I'm sorry to say. I haven't overlooked any bets so far."

"Have you had a chance to go through things pretty thoroughly?" "Rather. I thought I was on the scent the other day. It was a wall safe. Looked promising. It's an old-timer and I didn't have much trouble getting into it."

"Papers?" "Sure. But nothing very hot." "They told me out in Chicago that you could deliver the goods if anyone could. That's why I've been marking time, hoping you could save me the trouble of getting busy on my own." He leaned forward interestedly. "But I would like to know how you landed that job."

"It was easy enough. Jerry . . . you know who I mean . . . he came out here first and sized up the lay of the land. Made all the necessary contacts. He stumbled onto the old gentleman's weakness and . . . I'm the newest one."

"You certainly had a lucky break when you landed that job as secretary," Larry told Miss Morris. "I merely suggested that he needed a secretary," she explained. The idea was a new one to him, but . . . Well, I'm good in my own line."

Larry laughed in spite of himself. Then his face grew grave. "I've been afraid that you would draw a blank. I've been making some plans of my own. I think I'll sit in the game. Maybe two heads will be better than one."

"You don't care how you spend your money, do you?" "Not this time," Larry's mouth tightened in a grim line. "I've waited a long time for this chance. I expect to recoup before I'm through."

He lowered his voice a trifle. "I'm being followed here. Got a tip not long ago . . . Checked up on it." "Local cops?" "Yes. That's why I wasn't so anxious to have you meet me here. You can guess who started that."

"I'd be dumb if I couldn't figure that one." "They haven't showed their hand yet and I'm going to beat them to it. I'm leaving here tomorrow. I'll see that it's well advertised. After a few weeks . . ."

"I get it." "That's why I want you to stay on the job. You may get a break. And I may fall flat. If anything happens, you know what to do."

"Sure. Beat it. And I wish I could do it now." She reached out and ground the stub of her cigarette petulantly on the tray of a smoking stand. "If you knew what I've had to put up with out there, I'm fed up on it! If it wasn't . . ." She broke off suddenly. "Be careful," she said in a low tone.

Larry turned his head instinctively. A young woman was passing close to the settee, walking slowly. "Friend of yours?" inquired Miss Morris, noticing Larry's scowl as he stared after the intruder. "She works here," he explained shortly.

"Hope I haven't mixed things for you. I had to come in to the city on an errand, or I wouldn't have risked it." "It doesn't make any difference, I think. I'm leaving tomorrow anyway. Tell me . . ." He changed the topic suddenly. "What is the situation out there?" "As to what?" "Family and that sort of thing." "Nobody but the wife. I feel sorry for her. She's a motherly old thing, rather delicate. Keeps to her room most of the time."

Steeds for Manhattan Mounties

Every year the New York police department buys 28 horses to replace that number retired from the four hundred that make up the "cop cavalry." These horses are as nearly alike as the buyer can get them. Age 4 to 8 years; geldings of between 1,000 and 1,250 pounds and between 15.3 and 16.2 hands high. Color must be bay (don't ask why). These photos, made at the remount depot, show principal stages in the training of police horses.

Sergeant Gannon and an assistant are putting the rookie horse through a lesson in control here.

Taking a high barrier all on his own. Riderless horses are put through their paces to accustom them to obey the spoken command.

Sacks of sawdust represent people in a mob. At left a rookie horse is being faced into a "mob." When trained this horse will know how to nudge people out of the way without hurting them. Right: The shrill thrill of a police whistle gives the ordinary horse a turn, but the police horse is taught to disregard it.

Ready for Four Horsemen, this quartet of rookie police horses is near the end of their training grind.

My Week

PLEDGE AGAINST WASTE

I have taken the pledge which Miss Harriett Elliott is asking all house-holders in the country to take during civilian defense week. Knowing quite well that, in the White House, it would be impossible for either Mrs. Nesbitt or me to sign this pledge honestly without the co-operation of the whole White House staff, I asked all those who were on duty to meet me.

I explained its meaning, particularly in not wasting anything. I urged them all to sign the pledge individually when it comes out, and to try to live up to it in the White House. I hope, also, that they will persuade their own families to join with us. They were most co-operative and my first suggestion came immediately from Mrs. Nesbitt, who said that we had certain things that were always left over after a big party, which could be sent to the self-help co-operative farm and fed to their animals. So we have found one useful outlet for leftovers which could not be used at all on our own table.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

We hope very shortly to have a correspondence course available in the Office of Civilian Defense. It is a fairly simple study on nutrition and the duty of the consumer. Many people who cannot attend classes may be able to read these courses and go to a volunteer bureau or consumer's information bureau once to take a test. This will then make it possible for every household to feel it is part of the civilian defense effort.

COST OF LIVING

I had some quite appalling news on the rise in the cost of living last week. The average housewife must now spend 14 per cent more money for the food she will need for the family dinner than she did a year ago. In some cities, the increase in food costs is even greater, running to over 19 per cent. If you were preparing a meal of ham and eggs, potatoes, white bread, butter, coffee and milk, the following prices show you what you would pay this year in comparison with last year:

	1940	1941	Increase
Ham (lb.)	25.4¢	34.4¢	35
Eggs (doz.)	37.2¢	46.9¢	26
White bread (lb.)	8.1¢	8.5¢	5
Potatoes (15 lbs.)	34.3¢	43.5¢	27
Coffee (lb.)	20.8¢	23.8¢	14
Milk (qt.)	12.3¢	13.9¢	13

HYDE PARK VISIT

Miss Thompson and I caught the 4:30 plane one day for New York city. We were joined there by Mrs. Helm, and after dining at the house, drove up to Hyde Park.

It was raining fairly hard, but I liked the sound of it as I sat on my porch and rejoiced in the country quiet. I was sorry, however, to wake to a gray day and steady downpour the next day in spite of the fact that we need rain badly.

At 10 o'clock, I met the prime minister of Canada, Mr. Mackenzie King, and Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, with her two children, at the Poughkeepsie station. They settled down very quickly, and at 12 o'clock, our two small granddaughters, Sara and Kate Roosevelt, who are staying with friends in Rhinebeck, came down to lunch with the two little Princesses.

The rest of us, with the addition of Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau, and several girls and their friends from Vassar, intended to have an outdoor picnic, but we ended by using the new playground. It proved a great success and after lunch we sat around the fire and asked the President, the prime minister and the secretary of the treasury, innumerable questions.

Houdon bust played an important part in identifying the body of Jones in 1905 after Gen. Horace Porter, the American ambassador to France, had completed his six-year search for the American captain's unmarked and forgotten grave in a Paris churchyard. After the body, which had been buried in a sealed lead casket filled with alcohol, had been identified as that of John Paul Jones, it was brought to America aboard a battleship and placed in the crypt in the Annapolis chapel where it has since rested.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most precise, feeling in the world; the feeling of being adequately prepared.
● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.
