Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview. "To what do you attribute your longevity?" the reporter inquired. The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or overate, and I always rise at six in the morning."

"But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?"

"He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

Luscious to Look At and Eat, too . . . Orange Sponge Cake (See Recipes Below)

Snacks, II

"What shall I serve to guests who drop in for an evening of bridge or for a chat?"

This is a question I've heard many hostesses ask, especially often during colder weather when visiting time really comes into favor again. The answer is simple, for a delectable cake with steaming coffee or hot drink turns the trick.

Your guests will have finished their supper only a short time before, and since snacks do not come late in the evening, it is best to serve something not too heavy.

Light cakes, preferably those with a touch of piquancy and tartness, fill the bill perfectly. These cakes may be baked in one of your notso-busy moments to have on hand for just such an occasion.

Hot drinks are favorites in the chilling weather. If you like coffee, be sure to have quantities of the steaming beverage on hand. If you're on the lookout for new ideas, there are the hot fruit juice combinations which hit the spot. Either type of drink goes well with these dessert-like cakes.

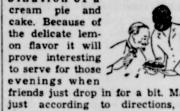

Here's the first cake on our list. It's like spun gold in color with just the right tartness. You'll find that the navel oranges which peel and separate easily into sections will be perfect for decorating the cake as pictured above:

Measured for R. R. Tickets

When traveling by train in China one often sees the strange and amusing spectacle of child passengers being carefully measured with a ruler by the conductor. The reason for this is that in China the fares for children traveling on trains runs not in proportion to their age, but in proportion to their height. Lynn Says:

Hot mulled fruit juices lend tang to winter evening snacks. You can have hot mulled cider by heating the cider and adding 1 teaspoon whole cloves and 1 stick of cinnamon (tied in a bag) while the cider is heating. Here's another mulled fruit juice served piping hot: Tie in a bag, 12 whole cloves, 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon, and 1 whole nutmeg. Empty a large can of apple juice and a 12-ounce can of cherry juice in the saucepan and add spices. Heat, remove spices and serve. This recipe takes care of eight people.

III. Yielded Lives (vv. 8-11). The giving of their possessions, the yielding of their work into His hands in obedience, led up to His call for the yielding of their lives.

Often we speak of God's claims upon the life of the Christian as though it were the flat of an autocrat, one who demands his rights. God might well do so, for He has full authority and power over all of us, but He is a gracious God and gently leads His children along to the place where they make their own decision to leave all and follow Him.

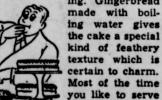

The work of God in the world is carried on by men. The joy of proclaiming the gospel was not given to the angels, but to redeemed men and women. Knowing the regenerating grace of God in their own lives, they have been called during all this Christian era to go out to

Submarine Activity Highlights Action Of United States and Enemy Navies; Russian Troops Use Nazi Technique In Important Victory Over Germans

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

U. S. NAVY: A Hint or Two

Resistance

Nothing in the form of detailed communiques about naval activities was coming out of the Pacific, but occasionally there was a hint or two which showed that Uncle Sam's Union Jack was not waving aimlessly about in those waters.

One of these was a dispatch from a correspondent aboard one of the battlewagons, who wrote to the press that the navy was active, was sinking Jap submarines, was on the lookout for unwary Jap ships and dropping them to the bottom of the sea, but was not allowing itself to be trapped.

He also stated categorically that among the objectives of the navy was to prevent a repetition of Jap attacks on Midway and Johnson's islands, or on Pearl Harbor.

A further hint that showed the Japanese might have cause for the jitters concerning the ocean situation came from an official communique that three Japanese vessels had been sent to the bottom of the Bay of Tokyo, uncomfortably close to vulnerable Japanese cities as the two American vessels torpedoed off Long Island, not by the Japanese, but presumably by U-boats.

MALAYA: For some time it had been evident that a supreme battle for air mastery over Malaya had been in progress, perhaps spreading to the whole southwest Pacific area; now it had become plain that British resistance was steadily growing. and that the final and desperate battle to save Singapore was in the offing.

It seemed likely that this would take place at a point about 50 miles from Singapore, perhaps closer, somewhere on a line south of the Maur river.

It was with considerable surprise and no little concern that the British announced the Japs had crossed the Maur and had established a bridge head on the southeast bank.

Previous gains which had shoved the Japanese 350 miles down the Malayan peninsula had caused no such battle as did the attempt to wipe out the Maur river bridgehead. Final picture of the Malaya front would be a line about 100 miles wide running generally from east to west, with some inevitable salients caused by irregularities of the terrain. Against this wall, said Major General Bennett, the Japs were expected to hurl their full force of artillery, tanks and planes.

The counter picture, however, was more encouraging to the Allies. Australian transports loaded with men and machines were arriving at Singapore at long last, and plane reinforcement, particularly fast Buffalo (American made) fighter planes were appearing on the front and were doing terrific execution.

This had been the sort of thing the Australian government had been crying out for during several weeks. The "singing Aussies" were going into combat, were reported to have hurled at least one section of attacking Japs back into confusion.

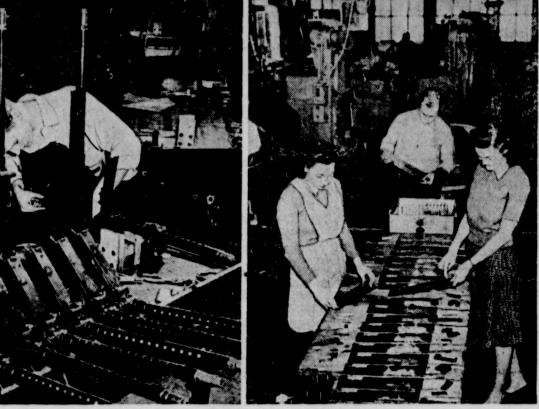

There was no disposition on the part of the Malaya defenders to become cocky, indeed Major General Bennett was rather on the pessimistic side, and said it was likely that the Japs before long would be knock. ing at the doors of Singapore.

But in general things were a little more on the upturn side, and many believed the tide of the Singapore battle might be turning.

Certain it was that it had been From now on it looked as though the Aussies were taking over, planes and men, and that the Japs might have found, as they did in the Chinese battlefields, foemen more than worthy of their steel.

Washington, D. C. There is a strange open secret about the war against Japan which concerns a mysterious area in the Pacific ocean and about which very little is known even to our high command. Its existence explains why a little island nation is holding at bay the two greatest powers in the world-Britain and the United States.

This forbidden territory includes group of scattered islands covering a sea space about 2,000 miles from east to west and a thousand miles from north to south. It is the hiding ground of the Japanese fleet. Military people believe that most of Japan's naval strength, not in actual use in protecting troop ships on the way to Malaysia is sheltered there. And this sea stronghold is a tower of strength against the American navy, against aid to the Philippines, Singapore and the Netherlands Indies

This area lies about 2,000 miles from Hawaii and extends westward from the Japanese mandated islands of the Marshall group which lie south of Wake island to the eastern extremity of the Caroline group (also Japanese mandates) a few hundred miles west of the Philippines. Guam, once ours, now Japan's, is within the area.

Accurate Reports Difficult to Obtain

"For ten years," a British diplomat said to me recently, "only one of our people who got into that area ever came out to report what he

Americans have similar tales to tell. In 1939 a fishing boat from the island of Saipan, one of this group, was wrecked near Guam but, when an American ship started to return the survivors, a Japanese ship stopped them at sea and took off the survivors.

It is known, however, that for a decade great quantities of cement and other building materials, endless stores of food and war supplies have been pouring into that zone where it is believed that among the nearly 2,000 islands lie at least 50 bases. There are no known large harbors but there are plenty of submarine and air bases and big ships little to say about radio I decide made that "for Japan to attack the United States, it would have to have twice as big a navy as it has now." There is no use to cry over split milk, but it is well to recall when people are asking "where is the United States navy?" to know where the Japanese navy is and what an impenetrable wall of defense Japan built for her navy right under our noses, the presence of which now postpones united nations' victory in the Far East.

Washington-A World Center

These days Washington is a citadel within a citadel, a world center which, paradoxically, is nearer its circumference than all else within the circle. On the perimeter of America's existence is the war. It is very far away. It is a dim and distant domain where men and boys from American cities stand on ice fringed decks in the North Atlantic; where others stand-and fall-in the swamps and jungles of the Far East; where still others hurtle through the bullet-and-shell-tom heavens.

Between that frightful edge a things and the separate beings bound to it by fragile threads of anxiety, lies the vast expanse of peaceful America, still sleeping to the murmur of distant guns, shud-dering only fitfully now and the when bitter news stabs a waiting heart.

Anxiously but impersonally calm, nearer to that vague, far-flung un-dulating line which is the front, is Washington, the dynamic center d wartime America. Here is knows all the hope, fear, triumph and defeat that the rest of the nation does not know; yet knowing that only a fraction of what it knows is truth For certainty today is speculation tomorrow. Here, in the citadel within the citadel, the imponderability of war rests with all its weight upon the slender minds of men.

A Revealing Book On Nation's Capital

I wanted to review "Washington Dateline," a new book by Delbert Clark, but when I found he had so can be fed and watered and supplied that I had better turn it over to a more objective mind. There is much interest in Washington as a news center now that the book important. So I asked Douglas Sil ver, a veteran newspaper man, now a writer of radio serials, to review it. This is what he says: A good fat juicy account of how the 500 Washington newspaper me and women "mingle with the great the small, the nobles and the knave who make up a government and in camp followers" is sandwiched be tween the covers of "Washington Dateline," by Delbert Clark (Stokes).

This is a recent photo of Field Marshal Walther von Reichenau, who, according to Berlin reports, died after an attack of apoplexy. He was given a large share of credit for the sweeping Nazi victories in the West and was regarded as the general closest to Hitler.

sians had been hammering with artillery fire for more than a week.

These forces consolidated, allegedly destroyed seven Nazi battalions of infantry and burned a railroad train containing 23 cars of war material. The Germans, their supply lines cut, were trapped.

It was believed by Red headquarters that the surrender would follow as a matter of course, without serous further resistance.

Field Marshal Von Reichenau, famous leader of the Germans' Ukrainian army, responsible for the successful southern drive against the R_ssians last summer, dropped dead or apoplexy, and a state funeral was de reed for him.

Thus Hitler had lost by death another famed commander, after relieving Von Brauchitsch of command not long belore.

MAC ARTHUR: Spirited

Although MacArthur's men on the island of Luzon had continued to put up a spirited resistance to overwhelming numbers of Japanese invaders, there were certain aspects of late communiques which had pointed to the fact that the battle must be entering its decisive stages.

And Washington was holding out to the American public no hope that there could be any outcome but final defeat, though temporary, in that theater of the war.

The Japs had evidently turned MacArthur's right flank somewhat. if not completely, and reports of a landing on the Bataan peninsula were highly disquieting.

The brave little army was putting up a terrific defensive fight. but Washington observers pointed out that much of its success depended on maintaining communications with Corregidor, and it was up to the right flank to maintain this connec-

Tokyo communiques had shown that MacArthur's army was friting bitterly to maintain this.

TRAGEDIES: Sabotage?

Either saboteurs were responsible or the nation was beset by another of those unexplained series of airplane tragedies, one of them killing a darling of the movies, Carole

Carole Lombard is shown accepting defense bond applications and stuffing them into the case of the first shell fired in World War I. This photo was made in Indianapolis, where she assisted in launching a bond sale drive. It was while returning to Hollywood from this mission that she lost her life.

Lombard, her mother, 15 air pilots, presumably those engaged in ferrying planes from factories to airfields, and five others.

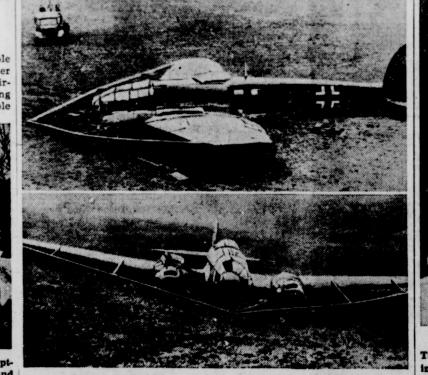

There had been no immediate data on sabotage, but the average observer was wondering when there were more than 50 lives lost in 48 hours in six crashes, five of them army planes (three bombers and two fighters) and one of a huge transport plane with 15 pilots among the passengers.

The transport plane crashed into the side of an 8,500-foot mountain at night, thirty-five miles out of Las Vegas, shortly after the pilot had reported good weather.

Army secrecy shrouded the military plane crashes, but the sudden wave sent uncomfortable tinglings along the public spine, wondering whether the ships had been tampered with.

In the case of the crash in which Miss Lombard lost her life, she was returning from having personally sold more than $2,000,000 in defense bonds in Indiana, her birthplace.

Nazi Bumper Plane Gets the Bumps

The strange device affixed to the leading edges of this Heinkel bomb-'s wings is a bumper to help prevent it from entangling with the cables of balloon barrages which protect all of Britain's larger towns. The device leads the cables past the wing tips.

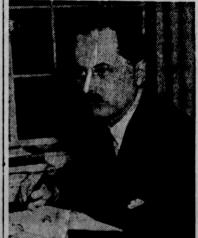

The three directors of the Office of Civilian Defense meet for the first time in Washington. They are, left to right, Mrs. Franklin D. with munitions for an indefinite period. From these spawning grounds Japan can strike in all directions, threatening the sea routes from our western shores to the southwestern Pacific.

Here is the hornet's nest from which the swarms of enemy air and sea craft are making their sorties against the reinforcements from America which are the only hope for Singapore and the Netherlands Indies.

Already the Philippines are virtually a part of this nest. As soon as the Japanese had secured beachheads in the archipelago, they made temporary air bases and the narrow waters which might give entrance to American supply ships were made impassable. Even if American supply ships could have reached the islands in time to save Manila and relieve General MacArthur, they could not have penetrated the narrow waters protected by land-based planes. American bombers-our pitifully few bombers-did some damage to the Japanese here, but bombers cannot fight long against protecting interceptors and fighters. The little fighting planes can fly only a few hundred miles. We have few airplane carriers and it would be risky business to send them past the hornet's nest. Carriers are about the most vulnerable things afloat. Japs Were There

'Fustest with Mostest'

The Japs applied the ancient principle of being there "fustest with the mostest" of everything, and the carefully built "hornet's nest" was created to the utter indifference of the American public in spite of the futile warnings of military men. In February of 1941 the navy asked for $5,000,000 to improve the harbor facilities of Guam. Congress turned down the appropriation. "It is not a wise thing for the American navy to go 6,000 miles from home when we do not have a single thing to defend in that territory . . ." was one of the arguments against this appropriation. In the

Away out of the focus of the spotlight men are doing a job which, though not spectacular, is vital to the security of this nation. These are the men who are building the little wooden ships that have the hazardous job of keeping our waters clear of mines-trawlers that are manned by men of iron. Joan sighed as the office door shut behind him. It seemed that at every turn she met a surprise. What would Karl say if he knew that his manager had tried to make a date with his secretary? The secretary whom only a few moments ago Karl had held in his arms. In a way she was glad that Paul Sherman had interrupted that perfect moment. Karl would be angry and Karl's wrath was one thing that Joan would not risk.

"Karl!" Joan thought, closing her eyes against the memory of his handsome, expressionless face, steadying herself against the flood of emotion that swept over her. "I shouldn't have let him kiss me," Joan told herself. "But I love him! I love him, yet I'm afraid . . ." Even to herself Joan did not like to admit that the reason for her fear was that Karl Miller did not return her affection. True, he had taken her out; he had even kissed her. But Joan doubted that any woman could possess his entire heart. The situation intrigued her;

at the same time she was frightened. Joan and Sybil spent a quiet Sunday. Karl had told Joan that he would not be able to see her over the week-end and she found that even one day without him was enough to make her unhappy.

Sybil seemed cheerful at the prospect of starting her new job at the Ritz Beauty Shop. "What's the mat-ter with you?" she asked as Joan sat staring into space. "We've both got a job. There's nothing to worry about."

Joan suspected that Sybil knew what was worrying her but she disliked bringing up the subject of Karl Miller. Instead she told Sybil about Paul Sherman end his proposal that

Sybil raised an eyebrow as she contemplated her sister. "You didn't know Karl Miller either, but you fell in love with him overnight. Or By the way, Miss Leland, I would maybe I should say you think you're in love with him."

Joan curled up in the big chair and opened a magazine which she pretended to read.

with him. He went to the door of the club with her, pressing her hand as he said, "I'm sorry it had to turn out this way tonight. We'll arrange something else soon . . ." Joan shivered in the damp night air as she waited for the taxi. A small coupe stopped suddenly before her with screaming brakes. Involuntarily Joan stepped back, surprised to see Paul Sherman. "What are you doing here alone?" he asked.

"Waiting for a taxi," Joan replied with dignity.
