The New Health Security Act- Pro Or Con?

"The Health Security Act preserves our employer-based, privately-financed system of health care. It will control the costs that are hurting American businesses' ability to compete. And it will help small business owners provide affordable insurance for themselves, their employees, and their families," states President Bill Clinton on the new Clinton Administration's health care plan.

"Every American must have the security of comprehensive health care benefits that can never be taken away. That's what our health plan is all about. America's private sector is known for its ability to create permanent, productive, private-sector jobs, and offers many benefits including health care coverage, to workers. But that ability has been threatened in recent years by rising health care costs," he adds.

Clinton believes that the Health Security Act will reaffirm an American principle: that the high-quality health care system should be rooted in the private sector and should respond to market forces.

He also states that the Health Security Act preserves our employer-based, privately financed system of health care. That it will control the costs that are hurting American businesses' ability to compete. And it will help small business owners provide affordable insurance for themselves, their employees and their families.

He goes on to say that the battle for health care reform will be fierce. The special interests who benefit from the current system will try to drown out your voice and keep us on a road that will only increase your costs and decrease America's competitiveness.

"If you speak out and together we accept the challenge and responsibility, I am convinced that we can provide affordable health care to every American," Clinton promises.

The following is a summary of the Clinton Health Security Act:

The American Health Care Crisis is that one out of four Americans-63 million people- will lose their health insurance for some period during the next two years. Today, more than 2 million Americans lose their insurance each month. Losing or changing a job often means losing your health insurance, and becoming ill or living with a chronic medical condition can mean not being able to buy insurance at all. Left unchecked, by the end of the decade, rising health care costs will consume nearly 60 percent of all businesses' pre-tax profit. This spiraling growth in costs robs workers of wages, fuels the federal deficit and puts affordable health care out of reach for millions of Americans.

The Health Security Act provides all Americans with a guaranteed comprehensive benefits package of medical services delivered in hospitals, clinics, professional offices, and community health centers. The Health Security Act provides employers and employees with health care they can afford, regardless of their circumstances.

With a uniform, comprehensive benefits package offered to all Americans, businesses and consumers will no longer be faced with a confusing array of policies and forms. Employers will be relieved of the administrative responsibility for wading through health care plans, negotiating competitive premiums and administering claims. A simple billing format that converts the current paper-based claims process to a computerized, electronic system will cut costs and time.

The Health Security Act will guarantee comprehensive health coverage for all Americans and legal residents, regardless of health or employment status. Health coverage will continue without interruption whether Americans change or lose their jobs, move, become ill or confront a family crisis. An employer's ability to afford premiums for all their employees is not dependent on the health status of a single employee.

The Health Security Act builds on our current employer-based system and asks all Americans and their employers to take responsibility for their health coverage. In return, they will have

ONE HAPPY LITTLE CYCLER-This little bicyclist had a number one attitude as she pumped away for a worthy cause. Bicycles galore showed up Saturday morning to support the St. Jude's Children's Hospital bike-a-thon. Beginning at 9:00 a.m., it encompassed a one mile course around the junior high and high school. The proceeds of the bike-a-thon will go to support St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, TN. The hospital was founded in 1962 by Danny Thomas, and has become the world's foremost research and treatment facility for catastrophic childhood diseases. The Journal will bring you more information and results of the bike-a-thon at a later date. (Journal photo)

Experts Forecast A Severe Flu Season

American Lung Association of Texas Urges High Risk Groups To: "Get Your Flu Shot"

Influenza season is right around the corner and experts are predicting that this year's flu season may be especially severe. According to officials of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there is a strong likelihood that this year's influenza season will be predominated by the type A Beijing virus, leading to increased severity of influenza cases. Their predictions are based on the manner in which last year's flu season ended.

In an effort to offset these grim predictions, the American Lung Association of Texas is mounting flu prevention drive, encouraging high risk groups to get their flu shots to avoid this potentially life-threatening lung disease. This campaign is funded in part, through your donations to Christmas Seals. Additional incentive comes from the government's recent decision to allow Medicare coverage for influenza shots. This should increase the number of senior citizens who receive their flu shot.

"Getting the flu vaccine is sound advice for all people," states Dr. Samuel Kuna, president, Texas Thoracic Society, the medical branch of the American Lung Association of Texas. "It is especially good advice for those in high risk groups such as senior citizens, individuals with chronic lung disease including asthma and emphysema, health care workers and those with heart and kidney ailments."

"In 1990 there were more than 129 million estimated cases of the flu nationwide, resulting in 249.6 million bed days at a cost to our nation of more than $11.5 billion, according to Robin Anderson, R.N., Director of Lung Health for the American Lung Association of Texas. "The 1992-93 Flu Season affected over 301,000 Texans. These are people who reported flu or flu-like symptoms. We suspect that the actual number is close to two million Texans," she said.

The flu can also be deadly. In 1990, influenza and its most common complication, pneumonia, resulted in more than 79,000 deaths nationwide. Combined, these forms of lung disease rank as the sixth leading cause of death in the nation and the number one killer by infectious disease.

"Sadly, many of these deaths could have been prevented if its victims had simply received their flu shots," stated Dr. Kuna. "We must do a better job of spreading the word that the influenza vaccine is a safe and effective means of protecting one's self and one's family against the flu and its complications."

One of the most encouraging developments surrounding this year's flu season is the decision by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to extend Medicare benefits to cover influenza vaccinations, effective May 1, 1993. According to the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) 15 million of Medicare's 36 million beneficiaries are expected to

Outstanding Secondary Educator Receives Honor

At a public meeting Monday night, Mrs. Pat Watson was presented a plaque by Phyllis Kinison and David Cobb, of Region 17 Educational Service Center of Lubbock, for Outstanding Secondary Educator of the Year. Mrs. Watson will go to Austin to the State Board of Educators to receive further recognition and a check for $500.00 for this honor. The presentation will be made by Southwestern Bell.

2. Family Medical Leave Act (review current leave policy according to Federal Leave Policy).
3. Seating in the High School Auditorium, no action taken.

Tax Practitioner Workshop Scheduled

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service and the Texas Extension Education Foundation, Inc., is once again offering the Tax Practitioner Workshops across the state of Texas, in the fall of 1993. These workshops are led by CPA's and attorneys who are experienced in the field of income tax reporting and planning. The nearest one will be in Lubbock, Texas, on November 22 and 23. Fourteen advanced Tax Workshops are also offered. They are directed at the practitioner with substantial experience with individual returns, who does some business work, and feels the need to develop more skills in business related work. One will be offered in Amarillo, Texas, on December 6 and 7. In addition to the General and Advanced Workshops, there will be four of the Estate Planning Workshops, and three each of the Fiduciary Income Tax and Agricultural Tax Problems Workshop. A new workshop for 1993 will be the Forestry Taxation workshop held in Nacagdoches and Longview.

ARTIST OF THE MONTH-Elsie McMillan is this month's Artist of the Month. She resides at Lubbock, Texas, and has been painting since the 1960's. Elsie says "it was fun, so I decided to take some classes and learn to paint. I studied drawing with Pat Krahn and oil painting. I studied outdoor sketching and painting with Connie Martin. She was fun and criticized our drawing and painting so we could understand. She encouraged us to make the sketch and colors to be exciting and correct, and a strong point of interest to draw the eye." Others Elsie studied with were Dr. Cavellero, Clarence Kincaid, and Tom Notestine. "They put you in the mood to paint as they painted," Elsie said, "and helped you understand and want to paint." CCC Workshop Focuses On AIDS Information

HIV/AIDS has become one of the most prevalent and debilitating diseases in the United States, and New Mexico has not escaped the national trend. Rural areas in the state are showing the greatest increase in the number of reported AIDS cases, according to Karen Edge, a public health official with the New Mexico Epidemiology Office.

During Disability Awareness Days at Clovis Community College, a workshop will focus on HIV/AIDS information. It will be offered twice on Wednesday, Oct. 20; from 1:30-4:30 p.m. in room 409, and from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Town Hall. Rosalie Richards, coordinator of Disability Awareness Days, says the workshops will be presented by representatives from the New Mexico Health Department. Each workshop will consist of two parts. Part One consists of basic HIV/AIDS information, and Part Two deals with social and emotional issues and features HIV-infected individuals as speakers. Call Richards at 769-4099 for other information.

The presenters are members of the Education for Zero Infection Committee, a statewide group assisting all school districts to meet minimum requirements for HIV/AIDS education. The school curriculum was mandated by the State Board of Education Regulation No. 87-11. Increased public awareness of how the disease is contracted and spread is vital to the program. HIV/AIDS prevention education remains the most effective and powerful tool in stopping this epidemic, according to an education program consultant with the New Mexico State Department of Education.

The first AIDS case in New Mexico was reported in 1981. In August 1993, the total had risen to 822, and of that number 426 have died. There are three confirmed in both Curry and Quay County and two in Roosevelt County, however health officials estimate 2000-3000 people statewide are infected.

State health statistics show the rate of AIDS cases is growing fastest among women, adolescents, and young adults. AIDS is now the third leading cause of death among all adults between the ages of 25 and 44. Given the average ten year incubation period, experts indicate the security of knowing that they will always be covered. It organizes the private market for health insurance to create incentives for health plans to compete on the basis of quality, service and price.

The Act builds on our employer-based, privately financed system of health care. Employers and consumers will band together in large purchasing pools to strengthen their bargaining power in the marketplace. Health providers will be forced to compete for business, leading to lower prices and improved quality. This will shift the power of the marketplace in favor of employers and their employees.

Implementation will be managed at the local level by employers, employees and the states. This will create flexibility at the state level for employers and employees to design and control the local health care system. An independent National Health Board will act as the board of directors for the health care system, setting national standards for comprehensive benefits, quality and cost. Health plans must meet national standards on coverage, quality and access to care, communities will tailor the new system to local needs and conditions, opening the way for local innovation within a national framework.

Under reform, employers contribute 80 percent of the insurance premiums, calculated on the weighted average premium among health plans in their area. Under the Health Security Act, employer contributions for insurance premiums are capped at 7.9 percent of payroll. The cost of providing health coverage declines for most firms that currently provide insurance. Smaller businesses (those with fewer than 50 employees) with low wages will receive discounts of between 30 percent to 80 percent compared to what the average big business pays. Employees pay the difference between the employer contribution and the premium of their chosen health plan. If they choose a plan that charges an average premium, they may pay up to 20 percent, unless their employers choose to make a higher contribution.

The plan will reduce most employers' direct out-of-pocket costs. The present system is inequitable and unfairly penalizes companies currently providing health insurance to their employees. The Health Security Act seeks to lift that burden. It will inject fairness into the system, shifting power in the marketplace in favor of employers and their employees.

Every employee will receive their own Health Security Card which will provide access to high quality, comprehensive health care that can never be taken away.

Letter To The Editor

Re: An appeal to the editor by the people most affected by Proposition 3.

Dear Editor,

Imagine, if you will, what would happen to your community if the state suddenly laid claim to one-third of the real property in your town. Bankers would soon realize their loans were not properly secured. Businesses would be reluctant to locate or expand within such a disputed community. Family farms may fail because one-third of their collateral was determined to be the states domain. All this can be neatly and swiftly accomplished with a broad stroke of the legal pen moved by the strong arm of the Land Commissioner. Imagine also the anguish and fear that the senior citizens of your community would feel!

Proposition 3 could be about your community, but this time it is about ours. If the state can act upon title discrepancies which occurred before there was a Texas, what community is safe and what community is ripe for a LAND GRAB?

Proposition 3, if passed by the hands of the voters, will cure our land problems. To the hundreds of families, two churches and local school system the voters are our last hope. The editors of this states newsmedia are our last and best hope of educating the voters. Please review the information enclosed, it says best what Proposition 3 is and from a historical prospective why it is necessary.

Please help us.
Sincerely, Don Simpson
409/779-2020

Vote FOR Proposition 3 on November 2

There is a small farming community in Texas where life is quit and people work hard. Most of us can trace our land back to the times when Stephen F. Austin colonized this area in 1824.

But all this changed when an Oil Company wanted our land to look for Oil and Gas. To get what they wanted, the Oil company appealed to the State Land Office, promising a 1/3 interest in the production. All the State Land Office needed to do was to accuse the Mexican Government. Stephen F. Austin, and members of Austin's 1st Colony of inappropriately handling Deeds during the time the Mexican Government was Deeding land to the early Texas Settlers.

The Land Office then moved to award a "Protective Lease", to the Oil Company under questionable authority, and clothed the maneuver as a right of the State Land Commissioners Office in its role as custodian to the Permanent School Fund. Reaching back on another ruling, the Land Commissioner determined that he could evoke Sovereign Powers of the State, and take the land away from its owners without Due Process.

Notwithstanding the fact that for 168 years; the men and women whose descendants settled this land, fought and died for its independence, and helped establish the State of Texas, and having relied upon two (2) State Supreme Court rulings in the 1850's which "Quieted all claims to Title in the Austin Colony", they now find themselves in a drastic condition.

Now Titles have been clouded, farmers no longer can get loans for operation costs and the land we have paid taxes on for over 160 years is in jeopardy of being taken away by the State. When the Texas Legislature was made aware of this situation, they moved unanimously to pass in both the House and Senate, a resolution to provide for a proper disposition of this wrongful act. There was not one dissenting vote recorded throughout the Bill process.

Proposition 3, amends the State Constitution and provides relief for the Farmers, and a victory for all Texans. It is important to note that even the Land Commissioner's Office now endorses this amendment.

Don't change 168 years of Texas history. Please help us get our land back! Do what is right and help save Tax Dollars.

NFIB/TEXAS WEIGHS IN ON SIDE OF PROPOSITION 2

The state's largest small-business advocacy group today announced its support for Proposition 2, the proposal to exempt pollution control equipment from local property taxes.

"Of the 16 constitutional amendments on the November ballot, only Proposition 2 will help preserve jobs and clean up the environment," said Robert Howden, director of the 37,300-member state chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business.

"The soaring cost of complying with federal and state environment regulations threatens to bring tens of thousands of small Texas businesses to their financial knees," Howden said. "Prop 2 is our best hope for reducing these costs in the long run and helping these people stay in business."

New federal clean air standards alone will affect more than 60,000 small firms in the state, according to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission. Compliance is expected to cost them more than $1 billion in capital investments, increased operating costs and administrative expenses.

Dry cleaners, service stations, auto garages and bakeries will be hit especially hard by the new standards, Howden said. "Their only options are to buy expensive pollution control equipment or to shut down." He noted that "coming up with the cash to buy the equipment is extremely difficult because it won't make the business more profitable. That's not the kind of investment local bankers or outside investors are looking to make."

Proposition 2 won't help small firms round up purchasing capital. "But at least they wouldn't get slapped with annual tax bills, on top of purchase payments, for equipment they're being forced to buy," Howden said.

Proposition 2 would not take effect until January 1, 1994, so no property now being taxed would be removed from local tax rolls. "It would not undercut property tax

Fort Bend County State Representative Asks For Texas Voters Help

A Fort Bend County state representative is asking the voters of Texas to correct a technical oversight and return the ownership of their land to 140 families, two churches and a school district in Fort Bend and Austin counties.

State Rep. Huey McCoulskey, D-Rosenberg, says that when Texas voters go the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 2 to consider a number of Constitutional Amendments, one of the proposed amendments, Proposition 3, will deal with state ownership in 4,428 acres in Fort Bend and Austin counties.

The land in question was part of a Mexican land grant, McCoulskey said, which was partially voided under Mexican law prior to Texas becoming a republic. After Texas won its independence from Mexico, he said, all land not in private ownership reverted to the new republic.

The one-third state ownership in the 4,428 acres was discovered in 1991 during a routine title search for mineral rights. In that search, McCoulskey said, it was discovered that one of the Mexican grantees had not fulfilled ownership requirements and his rights to the land were voided.

Since all state land which was not designated for other purposes was made part of the Texas Permanent School Fund in 1900, McCoulskey says that in the eyes of the state, one-third of the Austin and Fort Bend acreage has been a part of the fund for 93 years.

In March, 1992, McCoulskey said the Texas General Land Office informed the disputed land-owners of the possibility of a state claim for a one-third undivided interest in their land. McCoulskey pointed out that Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro has not as yet officially laid claim to the land, but that he would have no option if Proposition 3 fails.

McCoulskey pointed out the state has not claimed the land since 1824. He said the May 1993 issue of Texas Monthly asserts the state even "technically purchased land from itself" for highway right-of-ways.

McCoulskey said Proposition 3 passed both houses of the legislature unanimously and approval by a simple majority of Texas voters would "instantly cure the legal deficiencies" in the land ownership.

"If Proposition 3 is rejected, it will mean complete devastation to 140 families and two church congregations and could mean a large tax increase for the patrons of the Wallis-Orchard Independent School District, which has its high school and stadium facilities on the disputed land," McCoulskey said.

"I urge all voters in the state to vote for Proposition 3," McCoulskey said.

Letter To The Editor

October 9, 1993
Editor, Muleshoe Journal,
From the October, 1993 VFW Bulletin, "On behalf of myself and nine other veterans who are personal friends, I am protesting the relocation of Iraqi POWs who have been sneaked into the U.S. by the Clinton Administration and given all the benefits of U.S. citizens. And at the very time when veterans are being told there is not enough funds for medical care." (Quoted from Letters to the Editor Column). This was followed by the VFW Editor's Note: 1,000 Iraqi POWs have already been resettled in the U.S. Another 3,000 are scheduled to be brought here at taxpayer's expense. The campaign to have the President issue an executive order denying refugee status to additional Iraqi soldiers still in detention in Saudi Arabia is being spearheaded by Rep. Donald A. Manzullo (R-111). A bipartisan group of 75 members of Congress sent a letter of protest to Clinton in August." End of quote.

This article and numbers are very deceiving. It leads people to believe that all this started with President Clinton, which is absolutely wrong. The first Iraqis to enter the U.S. under this program was October 1, 1992 while President Bush was still in office. It is evident that Bush set this whole scheme in motion. If the editor of the VFW was fair, he would state when it started, how many Iraqis were brought over here under Bush and how many under Clinton. It seems that he was more interested in bashing the Democrats and Clinton than being fair. Check with your Congressman about when this was started. Where was Cong. Manzullo and the others when the first ones were brought over here? They should all be fair and quit trying to deceive people that this was President Clinton's idea. Please write your Congressman to protest bringing any more Iraqi POWs to the U.S.

Very truly yours,

Summit To Explore Texas Agriculture's Future

Agriculture leaders will look beyond the industry's traditional segments during the first-ever Texas Agricultural Summit Oct. 27-28 in College Station.

The summit will explore solutions to the expected hot issues of the 21st century: changing consumer preferences, uncertain world markets, managing business changes, the environment, technology, public policy and innovative leadership.

"To make wise decisions regarding new priorities and resources, we need a better understanding of the changes that have taken place in society," said Dr. Ed Hiler, vice chancellor and dean of agriculture at Texas A&M University.

The Agriculture Program at Texas A&M is organizing the summit, which will rely on input and leadership from the Century 21 Blue Ribbon Committee chaired by Plainview banker John C. Anderson.

Texas Speaker of the House Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, will be the luncheon speaker on Oct. 27. On Oct. 28, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry will address the state's role in the changing industry. U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, will talk about the federal issues that will impact Texas agriculture in the future.

Representing consumer concerns will be Amy Barr of the Good Housekeeping Institute. Josh Harr, vice president of research at Sandoz Pharmaceutical Co., will discuss technology development. Speakers for the remaining issues will be named soon.

"We are attempting to build this summit around the industry and educational institutions, and Texas producers certainly are encouraged to attend," Anderson said. "We plan to involve all segments—especially the traditionally non-agriculture components. In my opinion, agriculture has had a big void because it has not tried to meet and work with people representing other viewpoints."

Anderson said preparing for these issues is vital for the state's economy as the 21st century nears because agriculture is the No. 2 industry in Texas. The industry will remain strong only if Texas farmers and ranchers produce for consumer demands and desires, and if consumers have a better understanding of production requirements and problems, he said. The summit will tap many segments of society and will involve the state's institutions of higher learning.

Hiler said colleges and universities need to understand the demands and desires of society in order to direct education, research and programs to meet those expectations.

"The summit is an ambitious step toward achieving new movement and direction for Texas agriculture," said Dr. Gene Nelson, agricultural economics department head and summit planning committee chair.

Nelson said groups have been formed to prepare issue statements for consideration at the summit. These statements will identify, define and document the high priority issues for resolution and follow-up action.

"Just as a diplomatic summit brings leaders of nations together, we intend to involve Texas' leaders to bring their expertise and viewpoints to the table," Nelson added.

Hiler said the goal of the summit will extend beyond the October meeting.

"The trends and issues identified, as well as any conclusions reached during the summit, will be disseminated throughout the state and to federal agencies," Hiler said. Organizers plan to follow up on summit conclusions with a series of statewide meetings at the beginning of 1994. If talks proceed as expected, organizers said, a strategic plan with specific goals will be developed to benefit Texas agriculture and its consumers.

"This is a big, brave, bold step for agriculture," Anderson said. "But we won't accomplish anything in Texas if we don't try."

Managing Stress

What do you think of when you hear the word "stress?" Stress, quite simply, is the way you react physically and emotionally to change. Like change, stress can be either positive or negative. Stress may be the sense of concentration you feel when faced with a new and challenging situation or it may be the vague sense of anxiety you feel after "one of those days!" In any case, you can learn to manage stress so that you can be in control.

Positive stress can help you to concentrate, focus, perform, and can often help you reach peak efficiency. Many people do their best work when under pressure. Then, when the challenge has been met, they take the time to relax and enjoy their achievements. This relaxation response allows them to build up the physical and emotional reserves to meet the next challenge. This is one of the key elements of positive stress.

Stress becomes negative when you stay "geared-up" and do not or cannot relax after meeting the challenge. In today's world, where many situations can "push your buttons," it's no wonder some people think stress is a way of life. Unfortunately, when stress becomes a constant, ongoing cycle, your health and well-being can suffer. "Negative stress has been linked with many physical ailments from tension headaches to heart attacks," said Wanda Young, education coordinator at Methodist Hospital. The good news is that stress does not need to be hazardous to your health. You can learn to manage the stress in your life.

Stress is a fact of life, not a way of life. The first step in learning to control your stress is to be able to recognize the signs of stress.

Awareness of stressful situations can help solve the problem. Listen to your body, headaches, stomach aches, tensed muscles and cold or clammy hands are all sign of stress. You can break the cycle of negative stress by learning ways to help relax yourself. Practice simple relaxation techniques on a regular basis to give yourself a chance to unwind. A positive attitude and lifestyle are also key elements of stress management.

Relaxation techniques:
1. Deep breathing- by inhaling deeply and allowing your lungs to breathe in as much oxygen as possible, you can begin to relieve that tension that lead to the negative stress.

2. Clearing your mind- by allowing yourself to mentally focus on a single peaceful word, thought, or image, you can create a feeling of deep relaxation.

3. Stretching- one of your automatic physical responses to stress is muscle tension. A simple way to loosen up tight muscles and combat stress is to do stretching exercises.

In today's hectic, fast-paced world, stress is part of life, a part you can control. You start by becoming aware of what causes stress and how you feel when under stress. Then, by using simple relaxation techniques and developing a positive attitude and lifestyle, you can manage your stress.
