The champion was a 640 pound hereford bred by Johnnie Burson. It was sold to the First State Bank of Silvertown for $37.50 per hundred. Bill received $240.00 for the calf and $50.00 premium. He also received $5.00 in merchandise from Seaney Hardware and Appliance.

The reserve champion was shown by Pat Northcutt, a Silvertown FFA member. Pat's calf was a very worthy animal and the judge used a great deal of time to decide between the calves for first place. Pat's calf was also a hereford that weighed 660 pounds and was bred by D. T. Northcutt. It sold to W. E. Scott for $35.50 per hundred.

Jimmy Nance, FFA boy from Silvertown, exhibited the champion barrow. It was a 335 pound hamshire that sold to D. T. Northcutt for $30.00 per hundred.

The FFA and 4-H Club boys wish to thank J. A. (Beef) Scofield for judging the animals and Earl Cantwell for his work as auctioneer. A special word of thanks goes to the business men of Silvertown and other interested people in the community who contributed the $190.00 in premiums. The buyers of the animals contributed a great deal to the success of the show, and County Agent Leo White stated that premiums and sales like those seen at Wednesday's show were the necessary things that develops interest in club work and future shows.

The annual Senior Class Play will be presented Friday night at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium. This year the Seniors have chosen as their production, "Silas Smidge from Turnip Ridge" by Jay Tobias, who is an amateur at writing plays about the back country.

Such characters as Silas Smidge from Turnip Ridge, County Clay in Iowa—bigash!—as played by Jerry Simpson, will give many a laugh. You will enjoy Deacon McPheeters, played by Arna Bingham, who, "is as close as the bark on a tree." Hazel McGavock and Raymond McJimsey, who play Neurastheny Twigg and Oswald Garlick, respectively, make a fine comedy team. The gossip of Leola Pixley, played by Eva Lou Self and the sophistication of Florence McPheeters, played by Lona Stephens, would add to any play. Joye Davenport makes a loveable character in portraying an old maid in love. Suspense is added by the villain, Freddie Arnold.

There are many more good characters, well portrayed to make two hours and thirty minutes of good entertainment. Since this is quite a long play, we must start promptly at 8 o'clock.

The admission will be 25 and 50 cents.

Agricultural Conservation Program Advances

Both the farmer who carry out the conservation practices and the consumer who helps "foot the bill" can be proud of what they've done under the Agricultural Conservation Program, says R. M. Haverty, Chairman of the Briscoe County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

This year about $150 million has been appropriated for conservation under ACP. Divided among the 145 million people in the country, that means a little over a dollar per person. But to the farmer it means that 10 or 20 or maybe 200 or 300 persons are cooperating with him in getting the conservation job done on his farm.

In actual practice, under this partnership program for soil and water conservation, the chairman explains, the farmer more than matches every dollar put up by consumers. In addition he usually does all the work. Often, encouraged by the limited help in getting started, he expands his conservation efforts far beyond the basic practices of the program.

Dividends resulting from this public-farmer partnership are many and varied, says Mr. Haverty. The farmer has a better farm. Erosion and depletion are slowed down. The farm will last longer. Continued operation is assured and production is increased.

The public benefits from continued abundant production of food and other essential agricultural commodities. The land is being held on the farm and improved. Essentially, says Mr. Haverty, the program is an insurance policy which continues to pay dividends indefinitely into the future. Both farmer and consumer help pay the dividends and both are the continuing beneficiaries. This partnership is about the most effective way found of getting the job done.

Miss Shirley Haynes had as her dinner guests Sunday, Wilton Whitehead, Robert Isabell, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Miss Norma Jo Teeple, of Silvertown.

Mr. and Mrs. Pascal Garrison, Mrs. George Seaney and Mr. and Mrs. Don Garrison were in Lubbock Friday. Mrs. Seaney attended a Red Cross meeting there.

For The Consumer . . .

It is probable that never in its long history has American retailing given so much thought, and devoted so much hard work, to the problems of the consumer.

It is doing this for various reasons, most of them obvious. First of all, protection of the purchasing power of the masses of consumers is vital to its existence. Secondly, retailing is always on the firing line in the debate over inflation. And, thirdly, the American consumer has a right to the best goods and better goods, for a smaller part of our earnings, than any other people enjoy.

Retailing's contribution to the fight against inflation has been partly obscured by the fact that prices remain high. This does not mean that the fight has been a failure. In the opinion of those who have studied the situation, prices would be substantially higher than they are now had retailing done nothing and simply passed the boosts along to the consumer. Instead, by shaving profits, by increasing efficiency, by keeping a tight rein on inventories, and by other economies, retailing has saved the people of America enormous sums of money.

"Resist further price increases to the limit!" is the policy retailing is following now. It may not be successful—most of the basic factors that control the price level are beyond its reach. But, regardless of the future trend, it will work with every weapon in its armory to save the consumer dollar from more depreciation.

The World's Oil Man . . .

At the last annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, one theme dominated most of the discussions. It was: "Oil is the key to worldwide recovery, and the world's oil man is an American."

That doesn't mean that our petroleum industry has succumbed to the vice of self-adulation. But, as the record so abundantly proves, the organization, the money, and the executive and engineering skill needed to provide the world with oil in almost unimaginable quantities are largely coming from this country.

U. S. oil is international business in the best sense of that much-abused term. It is developing the oil resources of a long list of countries. But it isn't exploiting those countries for the sake of earning as much money as quickly as possible. It is bringing some of the best fruits of American civilization to them. The Middle East is a fine example. Here one of the greatest oil reservoirs on earth is in the process of development. And the group of American oil companies which is doing the work has established model towns and agricultural experimental stations, has built schools and hospitals, and is teaching the peoples of the region skills and crafts which have greatly increased their earning power.

Oil is an instrument of diplomacy, and the industry works closely with the State Department and the military forces. It has shown the greatest resourcefulness in meeting one tough problem after another. And it is completely justifying the claim that the world's oil man is an American.

New Chemical Curbs Many Fruit Pests Tests Show Fungicide Effective in Orchard

Characterized as effective against a wide range of fruit pests and diseases, a new dinitro fungicide and insecticide for orchard use now is available commercially under the trade name of DN-289. It is a stable, clear solution containing eight ounces actual dinitro-secbutyl-phenol in each quart and is readily miscible with water.

DN-289 has proved effective as an insecticide for use in the dormant period against a variety of insects such as rosy apple aphid, currant aphid, black cherry aphid, mealy plum aphid and viburnum aphid, eye-spotted bud moth, cherry case-bearer, pear psylla and oyster shell scale on apple and lilac. Promising results also have been shown in control of San Jose scale, scurfy scale and the eggs of the European red mite.

As a fungicide, DN-289 has been used successfully for control of 'sooty blotch' on pears.

Amount of the compound required to attain good control ranges from one quart to two quarts in 100 gallons of water. Aphids are controlled with one quart while two quarts are needed to kill bud moths, case-bearer and the pear psylla. Heavier concentrations may be needed to control oyster shell scale.

Research workers are conducting extensive tests to find other insects and diseases that may be controlled with the chemical, which was developed by Dow Chemical company.

Packaging of Poultry Is New Development

Farmers of tomorrow must be poultry merchandisers as well as producers if they are to compete successfully with the new "broiler factories." Progressive poultry raisers must keep attuned to the times if they are to meet the challenge of new developments in the industry.

Within a short time the consumer will have a wide range of selection for poultry and meat products. This will necessitate better merchandising on the part of the individual poultryman.

One of the principal means of meeting this challenge is for the poultry raiser to start selling chickens under brand names in an effort to promote his product for the time when consumers again will be "choosy."

To accomplish this, good packaging is essential. Modern transparent packaging of ready-to-eat poultry will increase sales and profits.

Good packaging, as demonstrated by this cellophane-wrapped chicken, is good advertising.

Tests conducted with the same grade of poultry, half being sealed in flexible packages, the others with out covering, proved that demand for the packaged birds was one to three times as large as for the unwrapped ones.

For packaging, cellophane, transparent regenerated cellulose film or a rubber hydrochloride film are available. They are moisture-proof, air proof, strong, flexible and resistant to liquid and grease.

Pullets Termed Better Layers Than Old Hens

Further evidence of the importance of keeping only pullets for layers and selling all old hens is contained in tests conducted at western Kentucky substitution.

Average results over 11 years show that annual production of Barred Rock pullets was four dozen eggs per bird greater than that of hens. In the case of White Leghorns, pullets laid three dozen eggs per bird more than old hens.

Iowa Farmer Permits Herd Of 27 to Roam in His Field with Cattle

MILFORD, IOWA. — Most Iowa farmers want deer only in their smokehouses hanging on a hook but there's one farmer in Iowa who has put out the welcome mat on his 1,000 acres of land for any deer which care to accept his invitation.

His name is John Bush, 72, who lives 7 1/2 miles northwest of Milford, where a herd of 27 deer mingles with his Angus cattle. Bush, who admires deer, estimates that it costs less than 10 cents an acre each season to feed a deer. He claims that the animal is not as destructive to crops as a pheasant but is an asset to a farmer since it helps clear buck brush.

Deer are widespread in every Iowa county and frequently farmers request Iowa state conservation officials to reduce herds in their communities.

Insist Deer Are Pests.

Many farmers insist that deer eat more than their share of corn and soybeans and oftentimes break fences. But Bush, who knew deer even in his native Scotland, staunchly defends them.

"Deer do not take as much corn as pheasants," he explained. "And what they do eat, they do not shell off as wastefully as pheasants. They don't bother the corn when they can get grass. They don't tramp it down or eat the young plants."

"It's hard to say exactly how much corn the deer will eat but they don't do 10 cents worth of damage to an acre of corn. Furthermore, deer eat buck brush which sheep and cattle won't touch."

The Bush farm has a fine stand of oak timber which offers excellent shelter to the deer.

Trains His Dogs.

When he first moved to his farm Bush saw two deer. He ignored them and gradually the deer became accustomed to the man who seemed so interested in the cattle nearby that he paid no attention to them.

In the winter when the ground was frozen the deer accompanied the cattle to the barnyard for food. One day Bush's three well-trained Collies tried to drive the deer along with the cattle but were perplexed when the strangers adeptly jumped over fences to keep out of range. So Bush taught his dogs to ignore the deer.

It wasn't long before the pair of deer spread the good word among other deer and soon the deer population on the Bush farm zoomed up to 12.

Disappoint Visitors.

Sightseeing visitors who come to the Bush farm to see the deer oftentimes are disappointed. Unless he keen-smelling deer are approached from downwind they retreat deeper into the forest. They can be viewed in the evening when they come in with the cattle for food or at odd moments when they pound across a road.

According to Bush the deer provide a homelike atmosphere on his farm. He likes to listen to the clash of antlers when the bucks duel in the spring.

"It sounds like a fight with pitchfork handles when they 'battle,'" he said.

Despite the permanently closed season, deer frequently are shot by hunters in this vicinity. The community here has alerted itself and now maintains closer vigilance.

There are between 2,000 and 3,000 deer in Iowa. Most of these trace their ancestry to Ledges park, where a buck and doe named Jack and Babe were introduced in 1923.

Woman Recluse Dies in Home Jammed With Merchandise

LYNBROOK, L. I.—Elise Mestra Wolff, 53, one of two sisters weighing more than 300 pounds, died of a heart attack in a five-room frame house which she shared with her sister, Edith Wolff, 51, since the death of her father nine years ago.

The sisters lived quietly in the kitchen, the only room which was not crammed with litter. Other rooms were jammed with merchandise, mostly unsalable, that they had moved from the dry goods store had their father had operated for many years.

With no electricity, gas or water, each morning the elder sister would go to a garage next to their home and get a bucketful of water. They cooked by a kerosene range and all shopping was done by neighborhood youngsters. The sisters paid cash for everything and, according to police, had $12,000 in the bank.

Cases, boxes and cartons were piled in every room and only a narrow passage was left between the front door and the kitchen at the rear of the two-story house.

In recent years, the younger sister never left the house while the elder emerged only to draw funds from the bank. While the sisters rarely discarded anything, police said an examination did not turn up any unusually valuable possessions.

The surviving sister, who is in good health, said she would continue to live in the house.

Engineers Study Gas Consumption

Auto Makers Scan Means of Increasing Mileage for Motor Fuel

DETROIT, MICH.—Realizing that there is a tremendous waste of motor fuel in the U. S. each year, automotive engineers have started to do something about it by steadily increasing engine compressions. As yet they haven't been able to devise a practical and economical way to get more mileage out of a gallon of gasoline in midsummer than in winter and wasteful driving habits still are going unchecked.

Although there are certain fuel adjustments which may be made in carburetors during the winter and summer, in most instances, carburetors are fed as much gasoline in warm weather as they are in sub-freezing temperatures. The use of so-called "octane selectors" does not provide the solution.

Explore Problem.
At a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers it was proposed that dual carburetion systems be installed in future automobiles. Feeding high quality gasoline for cold starting and grade climbing and lesser quality for level surface driving would effect huge savings for automobile owners.

Experiments proved the practicality of dual fuel systems but the major setback is that they add materially to costs already plaguing the average motorist.

New engine bends that step up the compression ratio are one of the few advances in postwar automobile engines. There have been such things as improved engine mountings and other minor alterations designed to reduce vibration but increased compression appears to be the biggest step toward fuel economy.

Motorists Waste Gas.
According to engineers, millions of gallons of gasoline are wasted annually by the unnecessary use of high test or premium fuels in automobiles that derive absolutely no benefit from them. Not more than 10 percent of the 37 million vehicles on the nation's highways today require premium fuels, these authorities say.

Engine temperature control is among the other plans being considered to save fuel in winter driving. Also, improved distribution of fuel to the various cylinders of the power plant will save gas too.

It is unlikely, however, that new model engines this year will disclose more than increased compression as a fuel-saving development.

Fear Gasoline Rationing.
Many chiefs of industry believe that gasoline rationing would very seriously damage car and truck production, and distribution. Some contend that widespread order cancellations would follow any major curtailment in the availability of automobile gasoline.

While many car dealers have refused to accept new orders and others have taken "informal" orders with no down payment, a considerable amount of money is tied up in down payments on unfilled car orders. Some industry sources estimate this amount at upward of $150,000,000. A sizeable part of this sum would be reclaimed by would-be buyers if fuel scarcities limited vacation driving.

SWING OF THE SOUTHWEST FARM MARKETS

Grain and cotton furnished principal strong points at southwest farm markets during the past week, as most livestock sold lower, according to the Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Sorghums gained 15 cents a hundred pounds for the week, and wheat 10 cents a bushel, with other grains one to five cents higher. No. 1 ordinary hard wheat closed Monday at $2.58, No. 2 white corn at $2.94 to $2.98, and milo $3.85 to $3.90.

Rice markets showed little change last week. Rice planting started in Texas and Louisiana. Millfeeds and meat scraps advanced, while other feeds sold steady to lower. Farmers rushed their surplus hay to market, but spring weather reduced demand. Shelled peanuts continued slow. Cold damaged early plantings in Texas.

Cotton closed Monday around 55 a bale higher than a week earlier. Dallas quoted spot middling 15-16 inch at 33.25 a pound.

Easter week trade held prices fairly firm on eggs and poultry. Increased egg production in recent days no more than filled the gap caused by earlier cold weather. Offerings of hens and fryers barely kept up with demand. On Monday, current receipt eggs sold mainly from 37 to 41 cents a dozen, and fryers 38 to 40 a pound.

Cabbage and spinach maintained trends during the past week, while other southwest fruits and vegetables moved in rather dull trade at southwest shipping points. Strawberry movement from southern Louisiana got into full swing. Prices fluctuated widely, but week-end auction sales at Hammond averaged $7.10 per 24 pint crate. White grapefruit netted Texas Valley growers around $4 to $5 a ton.

Cattle sold stronger to 50 cents higher for the week at Texas markets in contrast to losses of mainly 25c to $1 at other southwest terminals. Monday's trading showed little change from last week's closing trends. Medium and good steers and yearlings ranged from $23 to $28 a hundred pounds in Texas sales, $23 to $26 at Oklahoma City, and around $24 to $27 for steers and heifers at Wichita, Denver and Kansas City. Good beef cows reached $21 to $22.50 throughout the Southwest.

Hog prices drifted downward almost continuously since Monday last week for losses of $1 to $2 at principal southwest markets. This week opened with Texas markets showing a little strength, but other terminals continued weak to lower. Top butcher hogs ranged from $21.25 at San Antonio to a high of $22.75 at Denver.

Lamb prices eased downward 25 cents to $1 for the week at most southwest terminals, although woolled lambs sold strong at Fort Worth and all classes held steady at San Antonio. Aged sheep held their own fairly well at all markets. Fort Worth and Oklahoma City paid $19 to $22.50 for medium to choice spring lambs and $20.50 for medium and good woolled lambs in this week's early trade. Dust storms and unsettled markets almost halted southwest wool contracting.

Cops Return Escaped Hags To Glue Factory for Fate

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Police men here participated in an impromptu roundup after 24 horses rebelled against their fate as contents for a glue-pot and broke out of a glue factory corral.

An excited newspaper carrier salesman telephoned police that two dozen wild horses were running east on Grand avenue. In response to the call a police crew soon trapped ten of the horses at one spot, got four more in a schoolyard and then began rounding up stragglers in ones and twos.

The freedom-seeking horses were taken back to the factory.

Scientists Control Air Flight of V-2 Rocket

WHITE SANDS, N. M.—The army announced that American scientists succeeded in controlling the flight path of a German V-2 rocket at the White Sands proving grounds. Maj. J. B. Diekey, public relations officer, said the V-2 was kept under control by means of an electronic guidance system developed by a contractor for the army's ordnance department.

He reported that the rocket was maneuvered successfully in movement from right to left and up and down during its flight. It reached an altitude of about 70 miles.

Other officers at the proving grounds pointed out that a "beam guidance control" was used in early stages of V-2 tests but it merely maintained a desired flight path and did not maneuver the V-2.

During the war the Germans were able to have the V-2 rockets follow a predetermined course but could not control the missile in flight.

FARM FACTS WORTH KNOWING

Q. What causes coughing in a dairy herd? Would this make the milk unfit for human consumption?

A. Coughing may be caused by any one of several things. Dusty hay, for example, will usually make some cows cough while they have it before them. Dusty grain ration will also have a similar effect. Coughing for these reasons would not affect the milk. However, it is best to call the veterinarian for proper diagnosis and treatment.

Q. What is the greatest individual cause of feed wastage in pork production?

A. Mortalities. According to available records, the average pork producer does not market more than 36% of the pigs farrowed. It has been estimated that each pig dead at farrowing time represents a loss of 140 pounds of feed. A mortality at 10 weeks represents a loss of from 250 to 275 pounds of feed. A program of good breeding, sound management, careful sanitation and good feeding can result in sending to market 80 to 85% of the pigs farrowed. This has been demonstrated at the Ralston Purina Company's Research Farm at Gray Summit, Mo.

Q. What causes laying hens to eat the litter?

A. This is quite common, and it is often caused by insufficient feeder space, keeping the feed hoppers empty too long, unbalanced feeding rations lacking certain ingredients, insufficient fiber, or inflammation of the intestines caused by coccidiosis or worms. If not sure what is causing the trouble, one or two of the birds should be killed and thoroughly examined to see if they are infested with worms.

Q. When should pigs be vaccinated for cholera?

A. Pigs should be vaccinated for hog cholera at six weeks of age. The safe thing to do is to vaccinate the sow for cholera before gestation. However, if this has not been done, give the sow hog cholera anti-serum at the time the pigs are farrowed. Then at six weeks when the pigs are vaccinated, vaccinate the sow with serum and virus. We suggest having your veterinarian do this for you.

Send your questions about livestock or poultry problems to FARM FACTS, 815 South Eighth Street, St. Louis 2, Missouri. Questions will be answered without charge, either by mail or in this column, as a service of this newspaper.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 17—A stone from the British House of Commons has been placed in Texas Memorial Museum on the University of Texas campus.

It was presented to the State by Charles Sumner Bird of Massachusetts and Eric Gordon Underwood of England, through the American and British Commonwealth Association, an organization founded in America to foster understanding of British history and institutions.

Each State capital in the Union will receive a souvenir stone as a symbol of the common traditions of political freedom and representative government shared by the English-speaking peoples and owed in large measure to legislation passed through centuries in the British House of Commons.

The stone is encased in a mahogany frame about two feet high and one foot wide bearing a certificate as to its authenticity from the Lord Mayor of London. The stone was taken from the House of Commons which was wrecked by German bombs May 10, 1941.

PATENTS and BACKLOG
1920-1947

Two years behind in its work, inventions buried under an immense backlog of more than 151,000 applications! That is the deplorable story of the U. S. Patent Office today, pictured clearly in this National Patent Council chart. The Patent Office log jam is a drag on inventors and on industry, when greater expansion of industrial production and new industries could help build an even finer way of life in America and provide more aid for an ailing world. The Patent Office—and the Nation—paying now for some of the Henry Wallace fallacies, according to the Council. It pointed to the apparent need for more adequate personnel and a new and modern building for the sole occupancy of the Patent Office.

In this striking aerial view a six barge tow passes under a raised Illinois river bridge pushed by a modern towboat. American Waterways Operators, river carriers association, explains that tows are often twice the size of this one. This tow equals about two freight railroads.

Fashioned For Two

Once just the delight of the small fry, ruffles this season are being taken over by big sisters and mothers, too. The "Sew and Save" theme then finds many a smart seamstress turning out twin outfits for both herself and "Daddy's little lady." And since it takes little extra time and fabric to turn out a kindergarten version of Mother's outfit, pattern companies are offering big and little patterns in outstanding styles.

Mother will find it's no chore at all to turn out smart washable spring-into-summer dresses such as this for herself and daughter, too. For even a beginner seamstress can achieve a whole array of today's petticoat fashions after just a few lessons at a local Singer Sewing Center. Simplicity Patterns No. 2396 for Mother and No. 2417 for Daughter will enable you to create these styles with high fashion appeal.

Femininity in design is noted in the apron effect highlighted with sparkling white ruffling on both dresses. And for added ease and convenience while you're learning to sew, you'll find "petticoat" ruffling featured at the notion counter of your local sewing center.

Giant bows that tie in back carry out the apron effect in these styles and make their bid too, for first place among finishes that follow the softening aspects of current styles. Be sure to select one of the clever new prints in fabrics now available for your spring Mother-and-Daughter dressmaking project. The fabric used for these styles boasts of your sewing ability for it is an all-over design of specks of thread, and threaded needles.

SAFE DRIVERS ARE SMART DRIVERS.
SAYS CHIEF ELLIOTT

At the baseball game, you can't tell the players without a scorecard, and behind the wheel, you can't drive safely without knowing traffic laws and obeying them, according to W. J. Elliott, Chief of the Texas Highway Patrol.

"It's as simple as that," he said. "You can't be a safe driver unless you are a smart driver—and you are not smart unless you know and obey traffic rules."

Captain Polk Ivy of the Amarillo District said that accident reports indicated left turns at intersections as one of the common situations which cause trouble because drivers do not know the rules. As part of the nationwide "Know and Obey Traffic Laws" Program in which the Texas Highway Patrol is participating, he listed the following things a driver should remember about right-of-way on left turns.

1. When you are turning left, you must give the right-of-way to a car in the intersection or approaching closely.
2. When you are approaching the intersection and a car which has been waiting in the intersection to turn left (then starts to make the turn) you must allow it to make the turn in front of you.
3. When you turn left, be sure you are in the correct lane and that you give a signal.
4. Don't insist on your right-of-way at the risk of an accident.
