Floyd County Loses Courthouse By Fire March 11

An early morning fire March 11 virtually destroyed the courthouse at Floydada, causing an estimated damage of $170,000.

Approximately 15 persons worked all day mopping, and bailing out a carpet of water one to seven inches deep which flooded the first and second floors and basement of the courthouse.

To Set Up New Offices

Practically all damage below the top floor was caused by water, dispatches from Floydada indicated.

Emergency steps were taken to establish temporary county offices. County commissioners, in a special meeting, designated an office in the agricultural building, located on the courthouse grounds, as the commissioners court office. The fair and agriculture buildings were not damaged.

A temporary tax assessor-collector's office was set up in the same building, in what was formerly the home demonstration club kitchen.

The $170,000 loss estimate was made by Fire Marshal Carl Rodgers. Much of the amount probably will be covered by insurance, as the courthouse reportedly was insured for $200,000, and its contents for $25,000. Contents losses, however, were expected to exceed the $25,000 figure.

Because of the fire-proof-type structure of the lower section of the building, and of the combined efforts of 25 firemen of the Floydada, Lockney and Plainview fire departments, damage to the main section of the courthouse was held to a minimum.

Completed in 1912

The courthouse was completed in 1912 at a cost of $89,000. At the time, the building contractor described it as "practically fire-proof." Its survival in the blaze proved it so. Local observers said the lower section of the building was saved largely because of its concrete-and-steel construction.

Khiva's Second Annual Clinic to be April 30th

Plans have been completed for Khiva's second annual orthopedic diagnostic clinic, according to announcement by Garner Guest Potentate's Aide for Silvertown from Khiva Temple.

Mr. Paul M. Clauser is clinic chairman, a position in which he served for the 1948 clinic. At that time 77 children were examined.

"Anyone interested in having their children attend the clinic is asked to contact me at once," Mr. Guest stated. "Children under 15 years of age are eligible for the clinic, regardless of race, creed, or color."

Application forms must be filled out for eligible children. There is no charge for the application or the examinations. Lunch will be served at the Temple at noon for the children their parents or guardians, and all those assisting with the clinic," said Mr. Guest.

Plains Subsoil Moisture Near Record, Study Shows

Plainview, March 10.—Moisture penetration in a five-county Plains area ranges from 2 to 5 feet.

Tests made since the February snows by O. W. Sweat, observation aide in moisture-penetration research for the Soil Conservation Service, show that about 60 per cent of Briscoe and Floyd counties have moisture penetrations equal to that of 1947 at a corresponding time of the year.

The moisture depth in Hale, Deaf Smith and Castro counties is about 10 inches short of those at the corresponding time in 1947. That was the year of the record wheat crop in this area. A deep winter season was credited with a considerable assist in that year's harvest.

Compiling depths of approximately 60 tests in Hale County Sweat found moisture penetration averaged 37 inches with some as deep as 57 inches.

In Floyd County the range is from 20 to 50 inches with an average of 33.25 inches. In Castro the range is from 25 to 44 inches with an average of 32. Deaf Smith's average is 31 with a range of 28 to 36 inches. Briscoe has a range of 24 to 48 inches and the average is 34 inches.

The deepest moisture penetration Sweat has found is on the G. J. Clements farm near the Providence school in Floyd County. It is 5 feet deep. The Graham farms in Briscoe County where the land was chiseled several times have a moisture penetration of a little more than 4 feet, Sweat said. Both the Clements and Graham farms were summer fallowed.

Moisture distribution is comparatively even over the area where Sweat made the tests, he said. In making tests Sweat does not include penetrations of caliche in his measurements. He said that moisture in caliche leaches out so fast it cannot be counted on to benefit the top soil.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Boyce and son, Garry, of Monte Vista, Colorado, visited his sister and family, Mrs. Don Garrison and other relatives last week.

The game was marred with errors on both sides but the local boys hit the ball harder and more often than the Longhorns.

Donald Rhea did a fine job of pitching for the Owls as did Donley Gilbreath behind the plate.

The big guns at the plate for the Owls were Jimmie Nance and Robert McPherson, each garnering three hits apiece. Some nice field work was done by Donald Bean, playing right field. Rhea allowed the Longhorns only three hits.

Schools Menaced By Bureaucracy, Editorial Says

Consensus of opinion among lawmakers is that school teachers' pay will be raised through legislation, though not necessarily through the Glimmer-Alken bills. Meanwhile, as the public and the teachers are having time to study the effects of the bills, notably Senate Bill 118, opposition is growing rapidly. An editorial in the Fort Worth Press declares:

"Altogether there is too much power in Austin—so much so that if a school's classroom facilities do not come up to Austin's demands, the school can lose its accreditation. This, of course, is improper punishment because it punishes not the school board members or the administrators who planned a building that did not suit Austin, but the children."

Proposed legislation, the editorial continues, "puts much more of the control of the State's schools into the hands of the Austin scholastic bureaucrats. There is set up a commission which, by means of an economic index that strikes us as not being very accurate, can go into any school district of county and, in effect, set the tax rate. We doubt that the people of Tarrant County would like to have an Austin bureaucrat travel 300 miles up here to tell them what their taxes will be next year.

"Centralization of education is always bad. It was the method used by the German Nazis and the Japanese imperialists to rear their cannon fodder. It is an un-failing method of imposing the ideals of the central agency on the children of a wide area."

The editorial concludes by saying that the legislation should be amended to remove the threat to local control and "if it is not so amended, we believe the best interest of Texas school children would be served by its defeat."

Senate Bill 115 would divide the state into nine districts for the election of the nine members of the State Board of Education, who would receive no salary whatever and yet would be expected to make an expensive campaign and as each district would be dominated by large cities, it would be practically impossible for small towns and rural communities to have any representation on the central board whose strong grasp would control every public school in Texas.

Fattening Livestock Offers Opportunity For Greater Profit

Should I start feeding more live stock now?

Many farmers and livestock feeders are asking this question. A. L. Ward, educational director for the National Cottonseed Products Association, says that while the answer depends on the individual feeder's situation, indications are that the future outlook for efficient feeders is better than in recent months.

Feeds are plentiful, and have dropped more in price than livestock. Livestock numbers are relatively low. The income of consumers is at high levels, and meat-eating Americans are likely to spend a considerable part of this income for meats—especially for less highly-finished meat if they can buy it at prices lower than in recent years.

This should encourage those who have grain and roughages and have livestock to feed, or can buy feeder stock at prices lower than in the past, to start feeding now, Mr. Ward believes. While no one can predict future prices, it appears most likely that feeds are going to be worth more in the form of livestock products than if sold for cash.

In addition, livestock feeders get added value in the form of manure for fertilizer. To an increasing extent, feeders are realizing that they have profited from their operations if they merely "break even" on their feeding, but have the fertilizer value of the livestock manure. Manure is a valuable source of plant food and also furnishes humus which improves soil texture, increases water holding capacity and promotes soil bacteria action which makes plant food more readily available.

Efficiency in feeding, always important, is essential to the feeder now. Well balanced rations and good feed-lot management will increase the profits of the feeder who starts cattle now and will absorb much of the shock of lower prices for those who already have feed lots full of cattle.

Population

Tops 147 Million

WASHINGTON. — This country's population reached 147,290,000 October 1, the census bureau estimated.

Although that is the highest ever recorded, the bureau said the rate of increase has slowed down from last year's pace. Nevertheless, the 1948 expansion will top any other year's.

The bureau's figures included about 466,000 persons in the armed forces overseas and about 926,000 in military service in this country.

Population growth in the first nine months of 1949 amounted to about 1,800,000 persons, an average of over 200,000 a month.

In the corresponding period of 1947, there was an increase of about 2,100,000 persons, an average of over 200,000 a month.

Since the last actual count on April 1, 1940, the population total has risen by about 15,500,000 persons.

Coolers Are Needed; Aviation 'Red Hot' Because of Friction

WASHINGTON.—Jet and rocket planes flying high in the bitter cold of the stratosphere need cabin coolers instead of heaters.

Outside the cockpit the air is 67 degrees below zero. But without a refrigerator, the inside temperature would be 111 degrees at 10,000 miles an hour.

Flying at lower altitudes, say 10,000 feet with an outside temperature of 64 degrees, the 1,000-mile-an-hour pilot would be cooking in 242 degrees of heat.

Those temperature rises are figured only on the heat generated by friction with the air at high speeds. Actually the temperature in the cockpit would be increased further by heat from the sun, the pilot's body and aircraft equipment such as radio.

Jet fighters are equipped with a 16-pound refrigerator that can cool the air as much as 500 degrees. It works off the compressed air in the jet engine itself. The air is expanded in a "heat exchanger," which removes about 90 per cent of the heat, and then is used to operate a turbine which removes additional heat.

Such refrigerators cannot be applied to rocket planes like the X-1, the first plane to exceed the speed of sound. However, cockpit heat has not been a critical problem with the X-1 since it flies at its top speeds—reportedly up to 1,100 miles an hour—only a matter of seconds.

At its operating altitude the temperature is 67 degrees below zero and the air is very thin, which delays the onset of high friction heat. Heat control will be an important factor in pushing ahead with supersonic speed combat aircraft.

British Nurses Rebel At Training Harshness

LONDON. — Harsh methods of training, perpetuated by British hospital matrons who have been brought up in the old tradition of strict discipline, have tended to discourage members of the present generation from continuing their hospital courses, it was stated in a recent debate in the house of lords on the question of what could be done to attract young women to take up nursing.

Despite a widespread campaign of recruiting and the importation of a limited number of trainees from foreign countries—chiefly Germany—the hospitals still need greatly increased staffs. The shortage of nurses is estimated to be in the neighborhood of 48,000.

One of the suggestions was that the training of nurses be taken away entirely from the hospitals and turned over to some new authority. Lord Shepherd announced that this policy was already being "considered by the government."

Lord Crook told the members that several instances of petty tyrannies to which his attention had been drawn had resulted in the resignation of young women who resented being sharply reprimanded or punished for slight infractions of the rules.

Another suggestion for relieving the shortage was that provision should be made for the training of more male nurses, but the proposal met with little support. Lord Simon said most patients preferred having "a ministering angel of the female sex" to look after them and he doubted if they would be as comfortable under the care of the best-trained male nurse.

Patient Deer Winds up As Trophy of Huntsman

MONTGOMERY, MICH.—Lowell Hawkins can thank a patient deer for his success on a first hunt.

He saw a 10-point buck grazing with a herd of cattle and called conservation officials to find out what he should do about it.

"No," said the conservation department. "You can't shoot it because you don't have a license, and besides, you must use buckshot for deer."

Hawkins drove into town and got the license and buckshot. The deer was waiting in the pasture when he returned and he dropped it with a shot.

Teen-agers Use Picks Shovels Helping Get Play Field Ready

CRANFORD, N. J. — Teen-age pupils worked with pick and shovel on topsoil supplied by local townships in a community-sponsored effort to build a recreation field for Cranford high school. Folks here are proud of the project, which has been a cooperative enterprise from its inception.

Boys and girls in mathematics classes did the preliminary surveys on the block-long lawn behind the school set aside as the play area. Industrial arts students have got some practical training hoeing and grading the land.

It started when a faculty report prepared by Frank Zimmerman, vice principal of the school, with Vincent Sarnowski and Paul Buonaguro, teachers, urged the establishment of play facilities near the school. The institution's athletic field is a half a mile from the school building.

Everybody thought the faculty suggestion a good one. Students said they would do most of the manual labor and the board of education donated picks and shovels. Anthony Iacono, James Rankin and Michael Cipolla, local residents, agreed to supply topsoil and Fred Williams offered the use of his trucks. Township Engineer Patrick J. Grall promised the facilities of his department.

Plans called for facilities for tennis, shuffle-board, track, softball and field and ice hockey. The area was set off with flower gardens and shrubbery.

School officials think the recreation field not only will fill a community need but show the students what democratic cooperation can do.

'Bronx Cheers' on Phone Bring Woman into Court

PROVIDENCE. — A superior court judge listed for Mrs. Eva Parness four neighbors she must never call up again—because the neighbors said that for six years Mrs. Parness had forced on them "torture by telephone."

Judge Walter Curry enjoined Mrs. Parness from "any telephone calls whatsoever"—under pain of "drastic punishment"—to Mrs. Fannie Kaplan, Abraham Kaplan, Mrs. Freda Roiff, and Samuel Roiff.

Mrs. Kaplan testified she started getting the phone calls after once "butting into an argument" between Mrs. Parness and her sister-in-law.

All four testified that several times a day their phone would ring and they would hear — "curses, epithets, and Bronx cheers."

Youth in British City To Get Police Training

LONDON.—If the British home office gives its approval to the idea, youths in Liverpool will begin police training at the ages of 15 to 18 in a newly-created corps to be called city police cadets.

They will have their own special uniforms and in the beginning will confine their work to the police stations. But a small group of selected youths will operate in plain clothes to become familiar with detective work under the supervision of members of the criminal investigation division. One of the Liverpool officials explained that the city's plan was to have "a reservoir from which boys trained in police routine can go straight into the adult force."

The boys are not compelled to sign up for any set period of training but will be free to leave the cadet body at any time during their apprenticeship. Their pay graduates from one pound 10 shillings a week at 15 to three pounds two shillings at the age of 18. None of the boys will be permitted to do independent police work, but will at all times be under the supervision of regular members of the force.

Australian Urges Flight 'Round South Pole in 1950

PERTH, AUSTRALIA.—Charles K. Foot, West Australian, is trying to promote a round-the-South-Pole flight next year.

He thinks such a flight should be made early in the year to mark the visit of King George VI, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

Foot says such a flight would strengthen Australia's claim to part of the Antarctic continent and add to scientific knowledge of the old south. He suggests that the flight be made by flying boat and start and end at Perth.

From this west Australian city, he says, the plane could fly to Hobart, Tasmania. Then it would head south, refuelling at Macquarie Island at a rendezvous with a ship in the Ross sea and then at Palmer Archipelago.

It would make the next stop at Magallanes, the Chilean city at the southern tip of South America. From there the plane would fly to Cape Town, South Africa, stopping on the way at a permanent whaling station at South Georgia in the South Atlantic. Then it would fly to Prince Edward and Heard islands before completing the round-the-world flight at Perth.

THE JOHN STEWART FISHER'S ARE COMPLIMENTED ON THEIR WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AT FOGERSON HOME

Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Fisher were complimented on their wedding anniversary March 9, by a large group of friends, who gave them a happy surprise at the Fogerson home. The bride and groom of thirty-nine years ago, were invited by the Mesdames Fogersons to have lunch with them, on arriving Mr. and Mrs. Fisher found the home fairly running over with friends who came to surprise and congratulate them on thirty-nine years of walking together down life's pathway. After many expressions of good wishes for them as they continue the journey together, all guests were invited to the dining room to partake of a feast "fit for the gods." The table was laid with white lace cloth, and decorated with a large vase of gladioli, mixed with various other flowers and lace fern, and food made space for bids, suffice it to say there was nothing lacking either in quantity or quality.

The bride and groom of yester year was the recipients of several very fine and useful gifts. Mrs. Florence Fogerson read a very beautiful poem entitled "Friends." After lunch sometime was spent in visiting, and a short program of readings and music made the occasion a most happy one.

We feel sure we voice the hope of everyone, that Mr. and Mrs. Fisher enjoy many happy and useful years. They are a very fine couple and our community is indeed fortunate to have the Fishers reside among us.

In the voyage of life "None goes their way alone, all that you have sent in the lives of others come back into your own."

Reported by a friend.

The University Women Found Averse to Being Called "Maids"

Women Found Averse to Being Called "Maids"

MILWAUKEE.—Most women do not like to be maids. Even less do they like to be called maids.

Several Milwaukee agencies are sharply aware of this. For years they tried to sell a domestic employment program to Milwaukee girls with the aim of improving household working conditions, but most girls would have no part of it. Although they could cook, wash and take care of children, many women did not like to earn a living that way.

The household employment program, which was at its height here about 10 years ago under the supervision of a citizens' group, the YWCA and the vocational school, was never very successful even during depression years when women were forced into domestic jobs. At best it consisted of employer and employee placement bureaus and a training school. The spark of life it did have apparently was snuffed out by the surge of industrial employment which accompanied World War II.

Although the Milwaukee citizens' committee on household employment died with the demand for household jobs about 19 cities, including Milwaukee, were included in a recent report on household employment programs published by the women's bureau of the United States department of labor.

Problem General

No community has solved the important problem of household employment, according to Frieda S. Miller, director of the bureau. While specific standards and progress of programs varied from city to city, she found, the local projects have accepted the basic principle that wages and working conditions for houseworkers should be set in the same way as for other workers.

1. Establishment of working condition standards.

2. Better training for employer and employee.

3. Efficient placement service.

4. Improved status for household employees.

"For the worker," wrote Miss Miller, "such programs should result in better working conditions and more job security in the long established but unstandardized occupation. For the employer they should mean better trained and better satisfied workers, a partial answer to the difficulties thousands of homemakers have experienced since close to a half million domestic workers left homes for wartime jobs several years ago."

Failure of the citizens' group in Milwaukee to interest a sufficient number of women in the program is attributed by Mrs. Walter Blount, chairman, to the war.

"The war was upon us and we knew there was no use in trying to attract girls to housework when there was so much war work," she said.

Worked with YWCA

For a number of years the citizens' group worked with the YWCA in operating a household employees' and employers' placement bureau. They intended that ultimately the question of wages, hours and working conditions would be considered. The program passed to the vocational school, where after a struggle to interest girls, it faded.

From 1933 to 1942 the school had a domestic program, according to Miss Isabel Schell the counselor who directed it. The program mainly was a training course. A five room apartment was constructed for training in household work with full and part time classes.

Wants to Do Away with Fire Alarms

— Since boys will be pulling street corner fire horns for the fun of it, London is to do away with them, announced by the leader of the county council, I. J. Fire calls like those for ambulance will be made any telephone.

"A shocking thing," Haydn in a press conference, March 1 to Dec. 31 of more than 75 per cent of a given by fire alarms have been false."

Over the telephone, less than a fifth of street fire alarms are of the street alarms and will be accompanied by an increase in street costs.

England Will Resurrect Old Law for Juveniles

LONDON.—A 400-year-old law that had rested almost forgotten on the statute books was resurrected recently in the juvenile court in Havant, England, for the protection of a 15-year-old boy and 14-year-old girl who had been found in possession of football betting coupons. They were bound over on an order prohibiting them from ever again visiting the house of a bookmaker who had supplied them with the slips. It was explained in court that the law was passed in 1541 in the reign of Henry VIII to discourage young people from "indulging in unlawful games and frequenting gaming houses."

Two House Maids Named Trust Fund Beneficiaries

MORRISTOWN, N. J.—Two $20 a week maids on the estate of the late Leonard S. Hentz, retired New York cotton broker, were named beneficiaries of $100,000 trust funds.

The maids, Miss Annie Dempsey and Julia McCarthy, were listed as principal beneficiaries with Mrs. Marian Hentz Crossfield, the broker's niece, who was left a $500,000 trust fund on the provision that she take no legal action to contest the will.

Hentz, 92, cited the two maids, both of them employed by the broker's family for more than 20 years, as more than just employees.

Hentz was the son of a founder of the New York cotton exchange.

TRAVEL CUES... SPAIN

Windmills of the area Don Quixote sited against the Majorcan landscape (above). Windmill shows how its cloth sails, in use the sails are unfurled across the arms to catch the wind. They are a much-used source of power to pump water to irrigate the rice fields and for other local uses. Top picture shows a Majorcan driving his herd of goats home for the night along a country road.

There's a lovely little island called Majorca lying between Spain and Italy on the blue of the Mediterranean. It has suddenly become another contender for the patronage of American tourists because of two recent events — the devaluation of the peseta by the Spanish government and the opening by Pan American World Airways of the first direct air service between the United States and Spain.

Clippers make the flight to Barcelona via the Azores and Lisbon in 19 1/2 hours. Majorca is one hour away from Barcelona by plane, overnight by boat.

Thirty-five miles long and equally wide, Majorca is threaded with mountains in the northwest and bounded from the sea by a wall of rock. The southeast is gently rolling with pastures and plains and white beaches fringed with huge umbrella pines.

Despite the pastoral quiet of the island, there is much there to occupy the tourist. Mountain climbers will find enough elevation for their sport, and there are tennis courts at some of the hotels and plenty of beaches for the swimmers. The capital has several theaters and one of the most magnificent bull rings in all of Spain.

Hotel costs run from $6 to $9 per day, including meals. Other prices on Majorca are always lower than those in Spain and now that the tourist dollar buys even more pesetas, shopping has become doubly attractive to the visitors.
