

County approves election precincts, discusses budget

The Bailey County Commissioner's Court on Monday formally approved the designation of election precincts in Bailey County.

The precincts were approved by the Justice Department on March 16, 1993 in accordance with the Voting Rights Act.

Under the Voting Rights Act, government entities must redistrict or make changes if necessary after each census to make sure districts represent populations living in that area.

There are seven election precincts in Bailey County and four commissioner's court precincts.

The precincts were redrawn prior to being approved on March 16, 1993. The precincts which were approved on Monday are the same ones that were used during the March primary this year and have been in place for the past 1-1/2 years

During the budget workshop held Monday, the Commissioner's Court continued talks about possible raises for county employees.

"I think this will be a good year for raises," said Marilyn Cox County Judge. "We will not need to purchase a new ambulance this year and our medical insurance costs will be down."

According to Cox, Bailey County is becoming one of the lowest paid counties in Texas.

The Commissioner's Court also discussed the possibility of hiring a deputy county clerk. The county has not had a fulltime deputy clerk for several months now and currently utilizes a relief clerk on a part-time basis.

Cox also brought up the possibility of considering hiring a relief person for other offices located in the court house, including Community Services, the County Judge's office, the District Clerk's office and others located on the first floor.

The commissioners also discussed the fire department budget and effect of an increase in rural calls; and the Sheriff's Department budget, particularly concerning compensation and overtime.

No action was taken on any of these items on Monday.

In other business Monday, the commissioners approved the appointment of election judges and approved a bid by Morrison Oil, Inc. for county fuel purchases.

Shipman shoots course record; wins 3rd tourney

Muleshoe native Todd Shipman made history in Bandera last week, shooting a course record score of 64 at the Flying L Ranch and Resort Course.

Shipman, the 18-year-old son of Garry and Sherri Shipman of Muleshoe, was eight under par on the par-72 course. Playing with family friend don Musselman of Helotes, Shipman beat the previous course record by one shot.

It was a personal best for Shipman, who will be a senior at Muleshoe High School this fall. He has been playing golf since age four and has three brothers and a sister, all of whom enjoy the game.

"I never took any lessons," said Shipman, who played No. 1 for the MHS golf team last spring. "I just learned by watching my dad as I grew up and from watching my older brothers.

Shipman, a four-year veteran of high school golf, helped the Mules finish second in the District 2-3A golf race last spring and to qualify for the Region 1-3A tournament in Odessa.

Shipman competes in the North Texas Professional Golf Association's Junior Circuit during the summer months, playing in tournaments all over West Texas. He has won three NTPGA junior tournaments in 1994; most recently at Farwell, where he finished ahead of Ryan Harman of Lubbock and Chris Holt of Tulia. He also won tournaments in June at Plainview and Denver City.

Shipman will compete in the NTPGA area junior championships in Amarillo Aug. 1-2. The top two finishers advance to the NTPGA junior Tournament of Champions in Dallas. Shipman could also qualify for the Tournament of Champions if he won two more of the regular tournaments in the area.

Shipman hopes his love for the sport of golf will lead him to college, where he would like to earn a scholarship. If a scholarship offer doesn't come his way however, chances are he will attend a school with a golf program

Watch out for poison ivy itch

TEMPLE—Poison ivy has returned in its annual itchy rite of spring, summer, fall and winter.

"The poison ivy plant family is the most common cause of allergic contact dermatitis (allergic skin rash) in the United States," said Delma P. Posey, M.D., director of the Division of Dermatology at Scott & White Memorial Hospital and Clinic in Temple, Texas, and associate professor in the Texas A&M University Health Science Center College of Medicine. Scott & White is one of the largest multi-specialty group medical practices in the United States.

Poison ivy and its close cousins, poison sumac and poison oak, thrive in Texas, particularly along streams and moist, shady spots. They contain a toxic agent called urushiol, that can cause skin inflammation at even the slightest contact.

"The poison will produce a reaction in the skin of virtually everyone of us. Depending on one's sensitivity and the degree of exposure, the reaction may vary from moderate itching and redness to severe swelling and blistering," Dr. Posey said.

Perennial plant

Poison ivy, a perennial native plant, belongs to the sumac genus of the cashew family. The most widespread variety is common poison ivy, which some sensitive people, the rashes erupt within a few hours. The affected area reddens and swells, and small itchy blisters and bumps form. The blisters first fill with clear fluid and then burst, revealing raw skin susceptible to bacteria and infection. The itching can range from minor to severe. The rash usually reaches its peak after about five days and is usually gone within one to two weeks.

Applying alcohol to the irritated area will make the itching worse. For mild rashes, Dr. Posey recommends Calamine lotion and over-the-counter hydrocortisone cream. However, people with severe reactions should see their physicians for a more vigorous treatment plan. "This may include potent topical and internal cortisone-like medications," Dr. Posey said. Persons with rashes in sensitive areas such as the eyes, face, and genital region should be treated by a physician.

Stay away from the plant. The best solution is learning to identify the plants and staying away from them.

Haying, grazing program approved

Bailey County has received approval to hay or graze Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acreage effective immediately. In order to qualify, a person must meet the following requirements:

1. Producers may hay or graze CRP acreage from the date they are approved by the county office through Sept. 30.
2. The cost to hay or graze the CRP acreage will be 25 percent of the annual CRP payment per acre hay or grazed. This cost may be paid by the individual in advance or may be withheld from their annual CRP payment. An example would be: $40 per acre annual payment x .25 percent = $10 per acre cost for haying or grazing of the CRP acreage.
3. All individuals receiving a share of the CRP payment must agree to the 25 percent reduction of their 1994 CRP annual rental payment. They must also agree to all conditions of the haying and grazing of the CRP acreage.

4. Producers who own livestock and have suffered at least a 40 percent loss of normal production of hay and pasture may hay or graze their CRP acreage.
5. CRP producers may rent or lease their CRP acreage to any livestock producer that has suffered at least a 40 percent loss of pasture and hay production.
6. All livestock producers, whether renting or leasing the applicable acreage, must file an application to determine that a 40 percent loss has occurred before haying or grazing the CRP acreage.
7. CRP producers must agree to re-establish, at their own expense, any cover on CRP that is destroyed or damaged as a result of the haying or grazing of the acreage.

8. Producers must agree to leave at least 25 percent of each field or adjoining fields untouched for wildlife cover.
9. Producers must designate the specific fields that will be hayed or grazed as well as the 25 percent remaining acreage.
10. Producers that intend to graze their CRP acreage will be required to follow SCS's Forage Inventory and Annual Grazing Plan. These plan specifications cannot be exceeded.
11. Hay shall not be harvested for seed or grain.
12. This approval allows participants to hay or graze the applicable acreage, not both.

The same CRP acreage cannot be both hayed and grazed.

13. The definition of "haying" means one cutting only and the bales must be removed from the acreage by Dec. 31. Participants will not be allowed to stack the hay on the corner of the applicable acreage. Important reminder - Sept. 30 is the final date to hay the applicable CRP acreage.

14. On or before Oct. 14, participating producers will be required to report to this office: acres actually grazed, total yield in tons if hayed, number of livestock owned or leased and the number of livestock grazed.

People interested in haying or grazing CRP acres are asked to please contact the ASCS office at 272-4538.

She participates in several arts and crafts show each year. Betty is also a member of the Muleshoe Art Association of Muleshoe and Pintores Art League of Clovis, N.M.

Minding Your Own Business

By Don Taylor

Collecting

Larry is a successful small business owner whose sales are increasing steadily. In May, he achieved his third record month in a row. Business is booming, but Larry's bank account is empty. Selling is becoming easier, but Larry is slow in collecting the money his credit customers own him.

Like Larry, most businesses are selling on credit. We're not talking about credit card sales, rather we mean open account, non-secured credit. When you sell on credit it means that you are not only in the selling business, but also in the collection business. This is an area of business that many entrepreneurs struggle with.

Laura is a perfect illustration of this point. Laura runs a very successful service business. She is bright, talented and pleasant. Her work is excellent, and her prices are reasonable.

Laura came to us for help because we was out of cash. Sales were strong and she had more work than she could do, but she had no cash and couldn't pay some of her suppliers.

The first thing we did was analyze Laura's financial records to see if she had a profitability problem or a cash flow problem. After examining Laura's business records we found that she was generating profit, but she wasn't collecting cash from her customers quickly enough. The result was that Laura was using her available cash to pay the higher variable expenses that come with increased sales. It was a classic cash-flow problem. Improving collection

In Laura's case we made several recommendations for improving collection and cash flow. Here are several tips that you can use, too:

*Bill quickly. When Laura landed new clients and got very busy, her billing regularity slipped. Sometimes accounts went along for as long as 45 days without receiving a bill.

Our experience has been that even your best paying accounts won't pay until they receive a bill. If you're experiencing cash flow problems, we recommend that you send out bills as soon as you complete the work.

*Bill frequently. On jobs where you don't complete the work quickly, make partial billings. Bill on the 15th and 30th of each month. Billing quickly and more frequently will improve cash flow.

*Bill clearly and accurately. Inaccurate or unclear invoices will always delay your collection process. To ensure clarity, keep bills simple and uncomplicated. Describe each billing item separately.

Check you math. Double-check all figures and calculations. Make certain that all bills are based on accurate charges.

You may wish to provide documentation of delivery or services rendered.

*Bill conveniently. Enclose a self-addressed envelope. Make it easy for the person you've billed to pay your bill. Although simple, this technique may move your invoice to the top of the "to be paid" pile.

*Expect prompt payment. Once you've sent an accurate bill, you have a right to expect prompt, timely payment. If you don't receive that payment within a reasonable period, communicate your expectation clearly. Don't delay.

Get on the phone and let your customer know that you expect payment.

If you're not going to get paid the sooner you find out the better. You may want to take quick action such as cancelling further work orders or shipments.

*Follow-up. No one likes to make collection calls. It is stressful. It is not fun. However, there is no fun in not being able to pay your bills either.

B.B. King...Live at the Woodlands

One of the most renowned blues musicians of the past 40 years takes to the stage in B.B. King...Live at the Woodlands. The program features several numbers by King, an intimate monologue about his many years in the music business, and a historic closing jam session with Gregg Allman, Buddy Guy, Koko Taylor, Lonnie Brooks, Junior Wells, and Eric Johnson. Singer/songwriter Lyle Lovett hosts.

King will be 70 years old in 1995, but the years have barely touched his vitality. During the taping at an outdoor amphitheater north of Houston, Texas, B.B. King and the band add heat to an already simmering day with "Caldonia," "Playin' with My Friends," "B.B.'s Blues," and more, including his 1970 hit, "The Thrill is Gone."

B.B. King...Live at the Woodlands will be broadcast Friday, July 15th at 9:00 p.m. It repeats Sunday, July 17th at 4:00 p.m. on KENW-TV.

Love Guaranteed with Ed Ford

For the past 20 years, longtime marriage/family counselor Edward E. Ford has been conducting workshops for couples interested in better understanding and improving their marriages. When counseling a couple, he offers them a money-back guarantee — that's how certain he is that he can teach them to improve their marriage.

Love Guaranteed features Ford's insights into human interaction, the differing ways men and women view relationships, and relationship building within the context of marriage. Ford offers clear, understandable, and specific steps that couples can take immediately to renew and strengthen their relationship with one another utilizing his "quality time" technique.

Love Guaranteed with Ed Ford airs Saturday, July 16th at 7:00 a.m.

Rough Guide

Nestled high in the majestic Andes Mountains lies Los Nevados, a remote village "off the beaten path" that takes four long hours to reach by donkey from the main cable car depot. Its spectacular view of the rising mountains, the city below, and pristine surroundings make it a paradise for determined tourists. But even the most adventure-seeking tourists visiting Venezuela would never have unearthed this unique facet of the area because most travel programs and tour guide books highlight typical tourist sights and rarely talk about the real local culture. Then there's Rough Guide, a 13-part series that skillfully combines travel and geography with social and political commentary into one fast-paced hour packed with useful information for the world traveller.

Rough Guide airs Sundays, at 11:00 a.m. beginning July 17th.

Channel 3 Television from Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, New Mexico

Training session on pesticide safety to be held on Friday

Farm workers who want to learn more about pesticide safety are invited to a free Texas Department of Agriculture training session Friday, July 15 in Muleshoe.

This training provides farm workers with the information they need to work safely around chemicals and treated areas. Workers completing the training also receive certification in pesticide safety.

The training is being sponsored by the Texas Migrant Council. It will be held at 6 p.m. at the Muleshoe Migrant Council Head Start Center at 101 East Ave. B.

Workers will have an opportunity to ask TDP employees questions during the training session, which will last about an hour.

Workers will have the opportunity to learn more about the Texas Agricultural Hazard Communication Act, more commonly known as the Right-to-Know law, which serves to protect farm workers when they work with pesticides.

Under this law, administered by TDA, workers must be advised about the chemicals they are working around, pesticide exposure symptoms and ways to guard against contamination.

Agricultural employees who use pesticides are encouraged to send their employees to the training, which will also cover the Environmental Protection Agency's new Worker Protection Standard requirements that go into effect Jan. 1, 1995.

After taking this one-hour course, participants receive new EPA certification cards verifying that the trainee both WPS and RTK training that they can present to employers.

For more information on this program, contact the Texas Department of Agriculture at (512)463-7622.

Bailey County authorized to participate in water program

The Texas Soil and Water Conservation Board in Temple has authorized 16 counties on the South Plains, including Bailey County, to participate in a Water Quality/Non-Point Source Pollution program.

"We have received cost share money to help install conservation practices," said Ernest Ramm, chairman of the local district.

People interested and needed more information can contact the Soil Conservation Service in Muleshoe.

This program is offered on a non-discriminatory basis without regard to race, sex, age, origin, religion, marital status or handicap.

Legal Matters

By Dan Morales

AUSTIN—Many schools across Texas are experiencing unprecedented levels of violence. In an effort to protect students and teachers, some administrators choose to remove disruptive students—temporarily or even permanently—from the mainstream school population.

Often, school officials view expulsion as the simplest and most effective solution to the complex and frightening problems posed by problem students. These students repeatedly violate district policies, get involved in fights, or worse yet, bring weapons to school.

It is understandable why parents, administrators, teachers and students would want to remove individuals whose conduct is dangerous or disruptive. We should not tolerate students who bring weapons to school. That's absolutely unacceptable.

But do we really want the same kids, with the same guns, walking the streets of our cities? There are no positive role models, and certainly no solutions, on the streets. And while expelling disruptive students may make our schools safer, simply transferring them to the streets will not help the community as a whole.

Alternative Schools Work

Recognizing this, a number of school districts around the state have instituted alternative education programs for disruptive youth. These districts preserve the safety and focus of the general school population while addressing the issues of disruptive youth

Legal Matters

By Texas Attorney General Dan Morales

in a more structured setting.

Students who consistently violate school conduct standards, disrupt classes, and endanger others need a different environment from the mainstream. They need clear guidelines. They need specialized instruction. And they need individualized attention.

Criminal Justice Awards for Alternative Education

As part of a continuing commitment to recognize excellence in the area of crime prevention, our office recently presented Criminal Justice Awards to nine alternative school programs in Texas. The successful alternative education programs target students who have been expelled for various reasons, including fighting, disruptive behavior, and other violations.

These schools set high expectations for success. Discipline is consistent. The students know that the rules and the consequences of their actions are the same for each student. The schools offer accredited academic support, and provide a low student-teacher ratio. Generally, there are no more than 15 students per teacher in a classroom.

The successful programs also offer additional self-help and behavior modification courses to assist students in understanding alternative means for expressing emotion and making decisions. Examples of behavior modification courses are "conflict mediation", "controlling your anger", "how to take no for an answer", and parenting skills classes.

Some alternative education programs in the past earned negative images by simply warehousing difficult students in a separate facility or area. Today, evidence shows that, when correctly structured and conscientiously implemented, an alternative school curriculum can be successful. They recapture students who might otherwise be chronic disciplinary problems, disruptive, dangerous, and ultimately lost to crime and truancy.

Water conservation field demonstration day scheduled

A water conservation field demonstration day will be held Thursday, July 21, at the Jeff and Robert Kauffman farm on Highway 114, two miles east of Levelland. Area farmers are invited to drop by the field day at their convenience between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to see the many water conservation techniques being demonstrated.

A highlight of the field day will be discussion of the 10-acre drip irrigation system installed at the site. The drip irrigation demonstration project is partially funded by a grant from the Texas Water Development Board in Austin and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

Drip irrigation is the slow, frequent application of small amounts of water to the soil area directly surrounding plant roots. Water losses caused by evaporation, deep percolation, and runoff are virtually eliminated. Using drip irrigation can save 30 to 40 percent of the water required by most other irrigation systems.

"The value of drip irrigation as a means of irrigating cotton will really be seen this year because of the lack of moisture during the winter and spring, as well as the record high temperatures experienced so far in the area," says Ken Carver, High Plains Water District Assistant Manager.

"Most producers are aware that drip irrigation requires less water than conventional furrow irrigation. However, most want to see how well it performs. This will be a good year for producers to come out to our Hockley, Lubbock, or Lynn County field days to see the results of drip irrigation," says

Carver. Wilfred E. "Willie" Crenwelge, USDA-Soil Conservation Service (USDA-SCS) Soil Scientist, will demonstrate the neutron moisture meter. Brian Houston, Water District Agriculturist, will explain the use of gypsum blocks and resistance meters.

Dr. Rose Mary Seymour of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will discuss evapotranspiration and how to utilize the Potential Evapotranspiration (PET) Network.

Jerry Funck, Water District Agricultural Engineer, will discuss the benefits of irrigation pump plant efficiency testing. Arnold Husky, Water District Engineer Technician, will discuss the drip tape, emitters, and other drip irrigation hardware installed at the Hockley County site. USDA-SCS District Conservationist Gerald McMasters and staff will be on hand to demonstrate the TOPCON land surveying unit and the mobile field water conservation laboratory.

In addition, drip irrigation equipment dealers will be showing their products and answering producers' questions. Additional information about the 1994 Hockley County water conservation field demonstration day is available by contacting Ken Carver, High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, TX 79405-1499 or by calling (806) 762-0181.

Work this summer is a 'fiesta' for Muleshoe boy

SAN ANTONIO—Guy Wiley, a native of Muleshoe, is one of the professional crew of 61 technicians that is providing support this summer for the quality shows performed daily at Fiesta Texas in San Antonio. Wiley was recruited during Fiesta Texas' annual Auditions USA tour, which stops at more than 40 cities nationwide each October and November.

Wiley attended Muleshoe High School and is the son of Kent and Wanda Wiley. He is a technician for the show Rockin' at Rockville High, a 45-minute walk down memory lane which brings to life those old high school days of football games and pep rallies, sock hops and Top-40 dance shows.

Fiesta Texas is one of only two entertainment theme parks in the country that offers all live musical productions, and, with up to 60 entertainment performances daily and nearly 400 entertainers, there are more shows in one day than a week on Broadway during the peak summer season.

There's no lip-syncing or recorded music tracks in these shows, which range from German to Tejano to Country to Rock 'n' Roll. For example, Rockin' at Rockville High not only keeps the days of '50s shark-fin Chevys and poodle skirts alive, but it has been voted the number one theme park show in America for two years running by the readers Inside Track magazine.

The Park is located at the intersection of Loop 1604 and IH-10 West in San Antonio. For more information, please call 1-800-473-4378.

Health coverage on decline for children

Changing family demographics, escalating medical costs and an eroding private health insurance system have left many Texas children without coverage to meet their health care needs, according to an article published in a special June issue of Texas Medicine focusing on children's health.

Health services for children are financed by a wide array of private and public sources using different eligibility rules, benefit packages and reimbursement methods.

Texas Medicine is the official magazine of the Texas Medical Association.

"Health care for children in Texas is complicated further by a diverse and often fragmented array of public programs that frequently target only parts of the at-risk population and create significant gaps in care," the authors write.

The article was written by Dr. David Smith, Dawn Jahn and David Warner, Ph.D.

The special issue on children's health features a cover story on school-based clinics in Texas and also includes articles on special health care needs, financing health services, infectious diseases, neonatology and non-traditional solutions to health problems.

Programs and services reviewed in the article include Medicaid, immunizations, community and migrant health centers, rural health clinics, public health departments, Maternal and Child Health Block Grant, Chronically Ill and Disabled Children's Services, Women, Infants and Children Program, Indigent Care Act of 1985 and community-oriented primary care.

"Comprehensive community-based care should be promoted through the use of public, private and local business leadership and funds with the goal of expanding the role of all types of providers," the authors write.

Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 33,000 physician and medical student members.

It is located in Austin and has 119 component county societies around the state.

Better Business Bureau

The Department of Insurance is warning older Texans to beware of home care policies that require up-front "service fees" of as much as $8,000. Companies that are marketing these policies use misleading sales tactics and they may not be healthy enough financially to be around when you need them most.

Hundreds of Californians already have lost money on what they thought were insurance policies that provided 24-hour nursing care at home for those too sick to care for themselves.

Anyone with information should contact the Better Business Bureau at 763-0459 or the Texas Department of Insurance at 512/475-4279.

To protect yourself in cases where high-pressure sales tactics may be used: never agree to talk with the salesperson alone; never agree to sign a contract the same day you hear the sales presentation; and always check the company out through your BBB or the Dept. of Insurance.

The BBB is increasingly concerned about two fairly new methods of payment used in telemarketing schemes and urges consumers to see a "red flag" when they are asked to give their checking account number on the phone or send payment by Western Union, using a code name.

Your checking account number might be requested by telemarketers so that payment, usually about $150, can be withdrawn from your checking account.
