Poison Ivy Leaf Costs U.S. Workers Lost Working Days

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Leaflets three, let it be.

There is much practical truth in this old rhyme concerning poison ivy, according to Dr. Roland R. Cross, director, Illinois state Department of Public Health.

Pointing to the relative seriousness of ivy poisoning, Dr. Cross said that a recent survey has indicated that about 600,000 work days are lost each year in the United States because some 350,000 unwary persons come into contact with the poisonous weed.

Ability to recognize poison ivy, and avoidance of it, is the only sure preventive of this type of poison, he said. This is not always easy, for the plant may take the form of a small shrub, a climbing vine or a thicket of plants growing as tall as five feet.

The compound leaf composed of three shiny green leaflets is characteristic of all types of poison ivy, however.

Dr. Cross added a special note of warning to those individuals who boast of natural immunity to poison ivy. Investigations have shown that no one is immune to the poisonous element in ivy, although some persons require greater exposure to be affected.

Immunization against ivy poisoning by intramuscular injections of urushiol, which is the poisonous element in the ivy plant, has proven successful in some cases. In other instances, the injections have not resulted in immunity, but usually prevent severe attacks. Generally the injections must be taken each year to be effective.

If a person knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe, that he has been exposed to poison ivy, the best precaution is to wash all possibly exposed parts of the body with laundry soap and water as soon as possible. Ordinary toilet soap is ineffective to neutralize the poisonous substance, Dr. Cross said.

Dredge Scoops Up Live Bomb; Frightens Bristol

BRISTOL, Eng. — A dredger pulled up a live 1,000 pound bomb here recently and the entire city became tense with emotion when the bomb suddenly started ticking.

Surrounding streets were closed off and people hurried from their homes to emergency shelters until British army engineers managed to neutralize the bomb. Shipping was banned from the danger area until the all-clear signal and boats consequently missed the morning tide.

The bomb had been pulled up from the mud of the harbor and engineers worked on it all night before getting the fuse out.

Perfume Maker Gets Nose Into Work for Best Results

PARIS—Creating a new perfume may take a perfumer one year or ten years... (no reputable "nose" would leave his "work" until it was as close to perfection as he could make it). During all the time he is striving for the exact scent which is in his mind, he spends his days—and often nights—smelling and mixing. On blotters specially made for this purpose from odor-free paper, he sniffs each changed solution in all kinds of environments—in his laboratory, in his home, in various places where he might find himself. He sniffs, too, under all types of weather conditions—a bright sunny day, a muggy, warm day, a clear, cold day. As he progresses, he may find that the mixture is a bit too sweet or tart, perhaps a touch too smoldering or too airy. At the same time he is working toward his goal, he considers what is called the "roundness" of the bouquet. We like to compare a "rounded" perfume to a perfect flower setting which has just the right number of blossoms and leaves, arranged in beauty of form and color. Add one too many parts or take away one too many, and it loses its lovely balance.

NEW YORK—Anybody with a normal walk will find that his heels wear out first on the outside. Years ago, people wore their heels down evenly—because they kept switching their right shoe to their left foot and vice versa!

This shoe switching routine predated the invention of "rights" and "lefts". The idea that a shoe should conform to the shape of the human foot was well known, in antiquity, but was not heard of in this country until the Civil War days. With improvements in tanning, which produced leather soles and uppers more flexible for increased comfort, shoemakers began to experiment with left and right lasts and with more sizes and widths than the traditional "slim" and "stout" which were the only choice a shoe buyer then had.

The first manufacture of right and left shoes on a wide scale occurred when Union soldiers were outfitted during the Civil War. As a result of the popularity of these shoes, civilian footwear was designed in the same way, and different right and left shapes became standard.

Iowa Doctor Tells Of Successful Eye Cataract Removal

CHICAGO—An operation for one type of congenital cataract, which has proved successful in 17 out of 18 cases of children with impaired eyesight, was described here today by Dr. Otis E. Wolfe, chief of the department of ophthalmology at Deaconess Hospital, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Dr. Wolfe spoke at a clinical session held as part of the 16th annual assembly of the United States and Canadian chapters of the International College of Surgeons. He presented several patients he had operated on, showing the sight restoration and general social and economic rehabilitation resulting from it. The clinic was held in the Chicago Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital.

Cataract is basically a condition in which the lens of the eyeball is clouded, which interferes with vision by preventing the passage of light rays. It is usually found in older persons, but occasionally children are born with it. There are several types of cataract. The treatment is to remove the lens entirely, substituting glasses.

Dr. Wolfe's cases involved a congenital displacement as well as clouding of the lens. The cataractous lens in these patients is broken loose from its suspending muscles and displaced into the back part of the eyeball. It has been customary to wait until the lens hardens later in life before operating to restore vision to such children.

Using a technique slightly different from standard cataract operations, Dr. Wolfe believes in operating at once, and his report showed that, even though the lens is soft, it is absorbed and disappears almost entirely in these children, permitting them, with properly fitted glasses, to follow a normal life immediately. Special eye training after the operation is essential.

Confederates with Money Turn Up in Strange Places

RICHMOND, Va.—Old confederates never die, or so it seems. Robert Porterfield, director of the Virginia Barter Theater, tacked a sign over the theater ticket window reading: "Confederate money honored here." The sign drew only comment until recently when a tall stranger came up and plunked down a $20 Confederate note and said: "Five tickets, please." The director handed out the tickets and then wisely tore up the sign.

Psychologist Would Deport 'Bossy' Parents to Russia

Hopalong Cassidy is in danger of losing his popularity crown to one of the nation's leading child psychologists. He is Dr. Martin L. Reymert, Ph. D., who has had the courage to come right out and say that too-busy parents belong in Soviet Russia or Hitler's Germany.

The heroic gentleman writes, in the September issue of "Your Child's World," monthly child guidance magazine. "Blind obedience to parental authority has no place in our democratic way of life where the child is supposed to grow into a responsible citizen who is able to think for himself, to act for himself, and to live successfully with others."

He regrets that even today, some parents think of discipline as just that and declares "Parents who are over-dominating toward their children are apt to squelch all personal initiative and make them totally ineffectual members of our society."

As Director of the famed Mooseheart Laboratory for Child Research at Mooseheart, Illinois, Dr. Reymert has had the opportunity to observe hundreds of children and to study their reactions at first hand.

Transocean Cable Lines Link Free Nations Tightly

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In the cold war of intercontinental radio jamming, one path of instant communications between free nations stays open, protected by the ocean depths. This is the century-old submarine cable system, tying New and Old Worlds together with thin copper-hearted strands, the nervous system of international trade and statesmanship.

The North Atlantic alone is crisscrossed by at least 19 such cable links. All told, underwater cables cross more than 400,000 miles of the wetter parts of the world.

Three cables span the Pacific. Two follow a parallel route from Vancouver Island in western Canada "down under" to New Zealand and Australia. From the Canadian terminus to Fanning Island in mid-Pacific is the longest single cable jump in the world, some 3,600 miles.

The turn of the century saw the laying of the only cable that exists even today between the United States and Asia. This line, going by way of the Philippines, includes the second longest single span, stretching 2,670 miles from Midway to Guam. Cut for security purposes just before the Battle of Midway in 1942, the link was restored in 1945.

Are you one of those smart and patriotic Americans who began an automatic saving program with Series E Government Bonds in 1941? Then you're one of the lucky people who can profit by a new law now!

A bill recently passed by Congress now makes it possible for your United States Defense Bonds to continue earning interest ten years longer than was originally planned.

For example, a Series E Bond which cost you $18.75 in 1941 will pay you $25 in 1951. But if you hold that bond ten extra years, until 1961, it will pay you $33.33, an average interest of 2.9% compounded annually. You get similar increases on Series E Bonds of every denomination.

And there is nothing for you, as a bond holder, to do. You need not exchange the bonds you have. You need not sign any paper, fill out any form. You simply keep your bonds as you have been keeping them.

You may still redeem any Series E Bond at any time after you've owned it for sixty days. But unless you really need the cash you're much better off to hold your bonds. For United States Defense Bonds are as safe as America itself.

When you buy your bonds regularly and hold them, they are steadily building a sum big enough to buy something really worth while—a home, a business, a retirement fund, an education for your children.

And bonds are safer than cash! If you lose or accidentally destroy cash it's gone for good. But when you have your cash in United States Defense Bonds, the U. S. Treasury will replace lost or destroyed bonds at no cost or loss to you.

So if some of your bonds are coming due, take advantage of this new offer of your government—just sit back and let them go on making money. Meanwhile keep adding to your savings by buying more U. S. Defense Bonds regularly—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

If you want to be paid your interest as current income—

The new law also allows you to exchange your Series E Bonds, in blocks of $500 or more, for Special Series G Bonds which pay interest semiannually at the rate of 2 1/2% per year. For full details, ask at any Federal Reserve Bank.

Look how your maturing bonds go on earning under the new law!

The Supervisors of The Cap Rock Soil Conservation District are: Chairman, Joe E. O'Neal; Secretary, Chester Burnett; Guy Edens, L. A. McJinsey and Glynn B. Morrison.

Joe E. O'Neal, six miles southwest of Silverton, newly elected member of the Board of Supervisors in the election held October 2, 1951, was elected chairman of the board at the regular meeting October 10, 1951. O'Neal will succeed Earl I. Cantwell who has been an active member and chairman of the board for the last five years.

Mr. O'Neal will serve as representative for the farmers and ranchers of region No. 3 which is in the southwest corner of the Cap Rock Soil Conservation District. Region No. 3 is bordered on the north by the Tulia highway and on the east by the Floydada highway.

The board of supervisors also reelected L. A. McJinsey as vice chairman and Chester Burnett as secretary for the following year.

Since October 10, 1951 there has not been and there will be no clerk hereafter at the Silverton Work Unit Office. Discontinuance of clerical assistance was necessitated by reduction in funds available to the Soil Conservation Service this fiscal year and the increased demand for technical assistance to Soil Conservation Districts and the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Korean Network

The "Han River Network" is far from being the largest radio network in the world but it has done much to bolster the morale of B and C Batteries, 58th Field Artillery, of the United States Army's 3rd Infantry Division now in action in Korea. Recently, Captain Horace F. Potts of Killeen, Texas, then commanding B Battery, decided to do something about the lack of entertainment in the combat zone. Captain Potts took a radio that had been issued by Division Special Services, and rigged a telephone in such a manner as to pick up the news and music being broadcast. The telephone line went to the Battery switchboard, and from there the music was put on telephone lines to gun crews and outposts. At this juncture, PFC Arthur Reggie of Pasadena, California, working of the battalion Fire Direction Center switchboard, increased the volume and the music spread to the men standing in the plotting room. C Battery joined the network and, as a result, the one radio in B Battery was furnishing entertainment through more than 25 outlets. If the lines are needed for a fire mission, the Armed Forces Radio Service yields to the flick of a switch and the crews swing into action.

Modern Barter System Finds Feed Bags Valuable as Cash

If magazine and newspaper swap columns are any indication, owning empty cotton feed bags is just like having money in the bank. Some homemakers may have antique vases and even crystal-footed cake stands to barter but nobody can strike up a better bargain than the trader with extra feed sacks.

Making a check on thousands of items women have offered to swap for salvaged cotton sacks to be used in home sewing, the National Cotton Council reports that housewives holding the bag in these spirited trades possess a magical medium. For example, a flower enthusiast could practically cover all her gardening areas with rare plants and beautiful bulbs offered in exchange for print sacks. Purple African violets, purple glloxinia rooted leaves, red glloxinia leaves, tall red canna roots, gladioli, iris, and dahlia bulbs are among the many flowers offered.

In the baby department, pink carriage robes, a child's folding car seat, and baby buggy have been put up for cotton bags. A housewife from the mid-west wanted to trade a car heater for white feed sacks, plus six small and three miniature flower pots as a swap for two matching print bags.

Another lady with a keen sense of the value of the feed bag offered to trade a two-quart hand-operated ice cream freezer for six 100-lb. cotton bags, plain white or striped. "One cactus lamp, one iron base two-socket lamp, and one wooden base floor lamp" were listed in a recent column in exchange for feed bags.

The pet department comes forth with some of the most interesting offers of all. One woman who had some five-week-old puppies figured each puppy was worth ten 100-lb. white feed sacks, seven 100-lb. print sacks, or fourteen 50-lb. flour sacks.
