RED CROSS BRINGS EARLY THANKSGIVING TO FAMILIES HIT BY FOUR-STATE FLOODS

After last July's floods, 52,275 families in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma ois were thankful to be alive, but many had lost everything they had worked for. In Wyandotte County, with Kansas City, Kansas, loss was greatest, with 4,725 homes destroyed or damaged. Red Cross, on a basis of individual need, made awards totaling $5,416,550 for assistan in rebuilding and repairing 2,945 homes in that county alone. In the upper photo, a Red Cross worker examines wreckage of a house, typical of damage in the Argentine and Armourdale districts of Kansas City. to estimate its replacement cost. In the four states, 32,057 homes were destroyed or damaged.

Thanksgiving came early for Mrs. Hazel Moberly, below, left, whose house was the first Red Cross-built new house completed in Kansas City, one of 2,945 being repaired or built new in Wyandotte County by the Red Cross. On October 6, she received the key to the house, rebuilt on Red Cross. On October 6, she received the key to the house, rebuilt on the old foundation in Kansas City's Argentine district. Red Cross also provided $470 worth of essential furniture. After verification of family needs, Red Cross awards—outright gifts, not loans—totaling $8,645,808.11 have been granted to help in building and repairing 4,800 homes in the four-state flood area. For the more than 25,000 families who applied for Red Cross help, Thanksgiving, 1951, came the day a family received notice that a Red Cross award had been granted to help them come back. Hanford Atomic Activity Is Not Harmful to Area

RICHLAND, Wash .- One person would have to eat, at a single sitting, 100 pounds of Columbia River salmon caught just below the Hanford atomic energy works here, to take into his body a noticeable amount of radioactive material resulting from operation of these

This shows how slightly such operations affect the nearby area, including the Columbia River, ac cording to George R. Prout, General Electric vice president and manager of the company's nucleonics department. The department operates the Hanford Works for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Describing the plant's operations Mr. Prout said atomic energy is used in great reactors, or atomic furnaces to make the atomic fue and bomb material called plute nium. Cooling water, from the Columbia River, is pumped through the reactors Later it is returned radioactivity has been reduced almost to the vanishing point, he

Thus, even if they were caught just below the plant, 100 pounds of almon would have to be eaten at one meal to give a person an ap reciable dose of radioactivity Even that amount might not nec essarily be harmful.

In addition to studies of the river water and its inhabitants some 25,000 salmon are hatched and specially raised each year by the Health Instruments Division of the Hanford Works. This group is responsible for checking any possible effects that radiation and radioactive wastes might have on the surroundings and on the people working in and near the plant.

The water in which these test fish are raised has a much higher radioactive contamination than any actually released. It is expected that this work will yield information valuable for future builders of atomic plants. It is not the water itself, but dissolved minerals, that become radioactive.

DODGEVILLE, Wis .- A 46 year old farmer from the nearby town of Mineral Point is recovering well from a strong overdose of excitement. He became a father and a grandfather on the same day.

Mrs. DeRoy Dobson, his daughter-in-law, gave birth to a fine son early in the morning Bearing up well under the strain, Willard Dobson tried to comfort his wife, who shortly after gave birth to a daughter.

It was too much for Willard, who collapsed with a heart attack. At last reports, however, all parties involved were doing

Red Tint of Pink Salmon Causes British to Blush

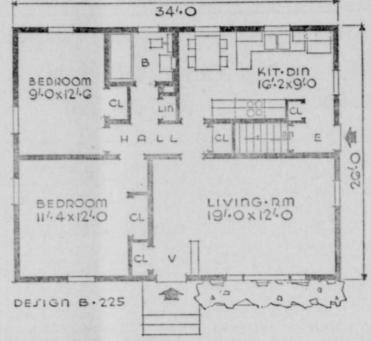

LONDON - The pink salmon served aboard ship on the H.M.S. Glory recently was as red as some of the crew members' faces.

A sailor assigned to the galley thought it time to write to a Member of Parliament when he noticed the bright red star on the cans and he words, "Product of U.S.S.R." The M.P. asked the Admirakty for an explanation, causing more red faces. The Admiralty passed the responsibility off to the Ministry of Food, where the salmon originated in the first place. The Ministry of Food could shuffle blame on no one else, so it said, "They asked for it (the sal-mon) jolly well enough."

'Rosetta Stone' Inscription Key To Old Language

ANN ARBOR-A perfect copy of new "Rosetta Stone" inscription, which has eluded would-be translators for generations, is now in

Rubber molds of the inscription, which is carved into the stone walls of a rugged mountain pass, 10,000 feet high, between Iran and Iraq, is one of the prizes of the University of Michigan Expedition is the key to hitherto unknown languages of the past, and conceivably, could lead to a new or different interpretation of ancient his-

The copy was brought back by Dr. George G. Cameron, director of the expedition and chairman of the University's Department of Near Eastern Studies.

The Michigan expedition stepped back into history to study a civil-ization which has changed little in recent centuries. Members of the group, first integrated study group of its kind in the Near East, spent more than six months in Kurdistan, an isolated and primitive region of Northern Iraq and Iran, which was historically inhabited by the Medes and early Persians. The group investigated the archeology, history, political structure, culture, people, language, geography and zoology of the little known area.

The original "Rosetta Stone" was found in 1799 and served as the key to deciphering the Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Colorful Costumes

In a letter to the University, Professor Cameron reported on the inhabitants of the region-"We found them, true to their traditions, the modern Rudolph Valentinos of the Near East clad in bright, colorful costumes, equipped with silver handled hunjurs or knives, and riding magnificent Arab steeds." The people were most friendly, he said, whether they were wealthy or poor, "they welcomed us to their homes and tents."

One of the most spectacular undertakings of the expedition was copying the inscription. In June, Cameron and his assistants made a three-day trip by horseback through places where the snow was six feet deep to the Kelishin mountain pass. Here they waited three days in hail, snow, rain, and freezing weather for a chance to scale the mountain wall to copy the inscription. The weather did not let up and they had to return to the base camp.

On July 4 they reached the pass again and made a perfect impression of the inscription with a rubber compound.

The location of the inscription has been known for years, but

General's Guests

Cooperation of the Iranian and Iraqi governments was freely given the expedition, Professor Cameron wrote. On one occasion members of the group were guests of an Iranian general on a tour of inspection of the Kurdish tribes.

An unparalleled analysis of the Kurdish city of Rowanduz in northeastern Iraq was carried out by all members of the group, each one studying his specialty. Most of the traveling in the mountainous terrain was done by jeep, truck and station-wagon. More than 10,000 miles were registered on the vehicles. Headquarters of the expedition was Baghdad, Iraq.

Don't Punish Children For Errors in Speech

If Junior says "Ain't" or "He done it", don't punish the child or ridicule his mistake by repeating it before others.

According to the child guidance experts, improper correction may cure the incorrect speech habit, but it may produce a personality problem that is far more difficult to cure. If correction becomes painful, a child may escape the attack by becoming silent and reserved.

The best method to correct incorrect habits is by a gentle reminder when the error is made and a quiet substitution of the right

School teachers have found that they get better results in private conferences rather than before a class. Parents, too, will get more desirable results if they use individual conferences when correcting a child's language.

A GGIE GARRETT, their hostess, shouted, "Quiet, quiet, you clowns, snake-charmers, pirates, dancing girls and frontier gamblers! Gather 'round, while the men draw their partners."

Costumed guests in domino halfmasks circled Aggie, and a clown drew a slip from her Mexican somto the Near East. The inscription brero. His glance swept the smiling group of masked girls until it reached one in Egyptian costume.

"You're mine, Cleopatra!" he exclaimed, laughing,

He walked into the hall and then stopped suddenly. Descending the stairs was Bo-Peep, crook in hand. Small and shapely, with ash-blonde hair, she had a pert nose and through her brief green mask peered two startled blue eyes.

"What a lovely Bo-Peep," he said. "It seems we're partners." "Does that costume express your personality, Captain Kidd?"

"My wife Judy thought so," he said wryly. "But I haven't seen her for millions of years. Or maybe three months separation from her just seems that long. In truth, Bo-Peep, this was the last costume left that would fit me. So many New Year parties, you know."

The girl hesitated. "Separations never copied. A brief examination aren't just hard for men, Captain by a British explorer was made in Kidd. It seems ages since I last saw my husband Bill."

"Have you tried calling him?" "After the cruel things he said during our last quarrel? Certainly not! I have my pride!"

"Me, too," he said, "But let's not talk of such unpleasant things tonight. Shall we be smart and Take things in our

"Naturally. I hardly think of Bill any more.

"Nor do I ever think of Judy. Not over a hundred times a day, anyhow. Well, at least we have something in common, Bo-Peep?"

"Haven't we, Captain Kidd! Ish't Aggie calling us to dinner?'

He joined the line of men forming at the buffet, and returned with two plates which he carried to a secluded hall alcove.

THEIR YES MET, and then they started eating, saying little until they finished, just as the carpets were being rolled up and the phonograph began playing.

"May I have the first dance, Bo-Peep?" he asked quietly.

Someone walked up when the music stopped, to ask her for a dance. They didn't dance together again until a few minutes short of midnight, when Captain Kidd cut in. He guided the girl into the hall and then they separated and walked side by side to the alcove window.

Moments later there were gay shouts of "Happy New Year" the next room, punctuated by the banging of the piano. Outside automobile horns made an incessant din, church bells rang forth their mellow chimes, and a distant siren screamed.

They looked out at the unbroken carpet of snow for several mo-ments. Hesitantly, then, they looked at one another.

"We ought to make resolutions, Bo-Peep," he said.

"I've made one," she whispered. "No more foolish false pride! Is all this heartache and loneliness worth it?" Her voice broke; she drew a quick, shaken breath and quavered, "Oh, I can't be smart and modern and take it in my stride any longer, Captain Kidd!'

Gently he drew her into his arms and raised her mask. Their lips met in a long, lingering kiss.

Neither can I, Judy."

THE SMALL BOY pressed his face closer to the window. Outside the snow lay a white blanket over the community, and darkness had drawn its curtain upon the day's activities. Johnny had been standing there since dinner.

His mother and father sat near-"He hardly touched his dinner!" his mother explained.

"It's too bad! He was very fond of that dog." his father said serious-

"I'm so sorry this happened. It's just two weeks until Christmas and there's so much to do. Scouring the neighborhood for the dog at this time will interfere with our other plans," the mother said.

While they were talking, the doorbell rang. The wife went to answer it and found two teen-age boys on the porch.

"Yes?" the wife questioned. The boys seemed to be out of breath from running. "Mrs. Rice, we saw two men take your dog into their car. They drove away with him," one of the boys explained: "What? When?" the wife was beside herself.

"About two hours ago. We were taking the groceries to Mrs. Jane; we couldn't turn back to tell you. Besides the car was gone before we knew what had happened. I think we'd know them if we saw them again," the boys finished.

"Don, will you come here?" Mrs. Rice called to her husband. "Now, will you please tell my husband what you have just told me?" she turned to the boys.

They reiterated the same facts to

His first statement was, "Don't say anything about this to Johnny." He questioned the boys further, boys if they would agree to go around the neighborhood with him to see if he could trace the men. Agreeing to this, the two boys left with Mr. Porter.

MRS. PORTER was sitting in the living-room when Mr. Porter returned. Her eyes questioned what her lips could not say.

"No luck!" he sunk into a chair. 'I didn't really think there would be any use to go out and look for them. There just wasn't anything else to do. Poor kid! With Christmas coming on and everything," Mr. Porter was very solemn.

On Christmas morning Mrs. Porter was up very early. The Christmas tree was trimmed to perfection. The wreaths were hung. The living-room was very picturesque. Johnny's stocking was hung over the mantle: it was brimming to the top. All kinds of toys that would delight the heart of a five-year-old boy were under the tree. His mother took one last look before she called to her husband to awaken Johnny.

A sleepy, tousled-haired boy crept down the steps to behold the wonders of another Christmas day. After viewing the scene, he gave one leap to the hobby-horse that waited for him. By now he was no longer sleepy, but had mustered energy to open all his gifts without any help from his parents.

And for a time Johnny seemed so engrossed in the many toys that he never mentioned about his dog. But their hopes were short-lived! For while they were planning for the day, they noticed that Johnny was watching at the window. Mr. and Mrs. Porter looked at each other and knew that they had lost in their endeavor to make Christmas Day a happy time for their boy.

When Mrs. Porter was nearly on the verge of tears, Johnny gave one scream from the window. They ran to it and looking out, saw a small white dog scurrying up the path. Mr. Porter never opened a door more gleefully and the dog dashed into the room, into the arms of his master. Johnny was laughing and crying at the same time. "Did Santa Claus send him back to me, Mommy?" was all he asked.

"Yes, dear," she whispered.

"The dog either broke away; or, the spirit of Christmas must have worked in those men's hearts." Mrs. Porter smiled to her husband.

MIDGE AND BILL were standing in front of Landsbury's department store, window wishing. Suddenly. Bill looked down at the sidewalk at his foot nudged the object he had dropped.

"Fumbler," he said under his breath and glanced toward Midge. She was gazing intently at the toys and did not seem to notice when he stooped to pick up the billfold and slyly put it into his pocket. Other-

"Bill, look," Midge was saying as she pointed to a large doll dresser. "Why the interest in toys . . . Now if . . ." He was hunting for words to hide his agitation.

Midge felt a slight warmth come to her cheeks and her heart began to pound. For a second she wondered if she could finish his 'now if' and tell him here and now. She wondered if they could be thinking of the same thing.

They continued on their way back to the apartment.

Bill was glad and relieved when Midge suggested coffee. That would

He waited until he was sure Midge was busy with the sandwiches before he got the billfold from his overcoat pocket. Finally, after what seemed an eternity, he was examining its contents. Here was more money than he'd ever had in his hands before.

SUDDENLY Bill heard Midge's voice. It seemed to come from thought for a time, then asked the | far away and then to crash in his

There was a brief tense silence as Bill looked at the billfold in her outstretched hand.

"Bill, the phone number is on the license . . ."

The lights on the tiny Christmas tree was blurred as Bill put his packages beside it. Lately, everything seemed to blur thru a mist of tears whenever he thought of Midge and Christmas. Why hadn't he told her everything the night that he returned the billfold instead of waiting until now. He looked up to see Midge standing in the doorway.

"Midge dear, sit down . . . I've something I've got to say . . . "What, darling . . ."

Are some of your Series E Government Bonds maturing this month?

Now they can earn more money for you!

New law provides 10 more interestearning years for your Series E Bonds . . . and you need not do a thing!

Are you one of those smart and patriotic Americans who began an automatic saving program with Series E Government Bonds in 1941? Then you're one of the lucky people who can profit by a new law now!

A bill recently passed by Congress now makes it possible for your United States Defense Bonds to continue earning interest ten years longer than was originally planned.

For example, a Series E Bond which cost you $18.75 in 1941 will pay you $25 in 1951. But if you hold that bond ten extra years, until 1961, it will pay you $33.33, an average interest of 2.9% compounded annually. You get similar increases on Series E Bonds of every denomination.

And there is nothing for you, as a bond holder, to do. You need not exchange the bonds you have. You need not sign any paper, fill out any form. You simply keep your bonds as you have been keeping them.

You may still redeem any Series E Bond at any time after you've owned it for sixty days. But unless you really need the cash you're much better off to hold your bonds. For United States Defense Bonds are as safe as America itself.

When you buy your bonds regularly and hold them, they are steadily building a sum big enough to buy something really worth while—a home, a business, a retirement fund, an education for your children.

And bonds are safer than cash! If you lose or accidentally destroy cash it's gone for good. But when you have your cash in United States Defense Bonds, the U.S. Treasury will replace lost or destroyed bonds at no cost or loss to you.

So if some of your bonds are coming due, take advantage of this new offer of your government—just sit back and let them go on making money. Meanwhile keep adding to your savings by buying more U.S. Defense Bonds regularly—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

If you want to be paid your interest as current income-

The new law also allows you to exchange your Series E Bonds, in blocks of \$500 or more, for Special Series G Bonds which pay interest semiannually at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ % per year. For full details, ask at any Federal Reserve Bank.

We want to thank Ralph Glover and the Southwestern Public Service Company for making it possible to have our two-day cooking school, and we also want to thank all the ladies that were present for their attendance. As we were being introduced to our class I was so full of gratitude I couldn't find the words to express myself, for the ladies of Silverton are all good cooks and they said more than I could ever think of saying by their presence. They were seeking new ideas and new and better ways of housekeeping. All the appliances were beautifully demonstrated.

We are sure we all got some new ideas. We want to thank everyone who participated in making the school a success.

We want to thank the little fellow specially for making all this possible, little "Reddy Killowatt."
