Claud Allison Delivers First Wheat Of 1953 Crop

Claude Allison, whose farm is a few miles west of town, delivered the first load of new crop wheat Friday, May 29, to the Harvest-Queen Grain Company in Silverton. The wheat tested 61 on bucket test, and showed 15 1/2% moisture content. Also on May 29, Mr. Allison sold a load of wheat to H. E. Wilson Grain Company.

Mr. Allison was cutting from 160 acres of dry-land summer fallowed, and stated that he believed the crop would yield between 15 and 20 bushels per acre.

The number of acres of wheat, irrigated or dry-land, which will be harvested in Briscoe County this year is not available, due to the fact we no longer employ a County Agent to compile and keep a record of this part of our farm activity. Last year approximately 80,000 acres were sowed to wheat and about 65,000 to 70,000 acres, harvested. The dry weather conditions will greatly curtail these figures for 1953—Our guess, less than 10 per cent.

High Plains Underground Water Conservation

According to an old saying, "Two heads are better than one." By similar reasoning, two water wells in the High Plains should supply more water than one well for irrigating a farm; for municipal use, or for industrial supply. In general, that is true provided the wells are adequately spaced as shown in figure 1. However, if some of the wells are too close together, as shown in figure 2, the interference between closely spaced wells may cause so much additional lift and decrease in yield that over a period of years the profits from two wells may be no more than the profits from one well.

Imagine well "A", above, as the hole you might dig near the end of a wheat bin. Reaching the bottom, you are surrounded by the light-shaded cone. In the case of underground water, dotted line "X" is the static water level. The cone itself is the well's "area of influence"—the circle from which you well draws its supply of water.

Now, see what happens when two men dig away at opposite ends of the grain bin. Grain pours both directions from the supply zone between the two holes. In effect, the two diggers are fighting a silent battle with each other for the lion's share of the grain. The same is true of water wells "A" and "B", which are spaced several hundred feet apart.

Interference is a typical subsurface condition where water wells are jammed together. This causes increased drawdown, the point where pumping costs go up. Regulated well spacing, as practiced by the Water Conservation District, can help reduce this interference. Figure 2 may be the situation as found in a field of water wells. The four wells, spaced too near each other, have a leaping zone of interference. Drawdown increases sharply. Pumping expenses zoom. Often, some wells in a cluster like this have to be abandoned. Pumping rate may have to be reduced.

These "waterbug's eye views" show how easily drawdown can be increased by congested spacing at the surface. Drawdown can be measured at a distance of 100 feet from a pumped well, and has even been known to reach 3,000 feet in some areas. A sharp pencil and some quick figuring at today's drilling and pumping costs will show how spacing can cost, or save, thousands of dollars for the High Plains well owner.

Teople-Payne Marriage Rites Read in Home Wedding

Miss Norma Jo Teeple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Teeple, of Lone Star, became the bride of Charles Payne, of Matador, in a double ring ceremony, performed at 6:00 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 27 in the home of the bride's parents.

Rev. F. P. Graham, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lone Star, read the double ring service before a nuptial space, flanked by large floor baskets of white lilies, marked with bows of blue satin ribbon and lighted tapers in candelabra.

A prelude to the ceremony was played by Mrs. Robert McPherson, and included "The Indian Love Call," the "Bells of St. Marys," "Because" and the traditional "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin by Wagner.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a beige shantene street length suit dress with brown accessories. She carried a white bible topped with talisman rose buds, circled with white carnations and tied with blue and white satin streamers.

The bride carried out the traditional bridal custom of wearing something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue. Her something old was a cameo brooch belonging to her late maternal grandmother, Mrs. R. C. Covington; something new, her wedding ensemble, some thing borrowed, a ring belonging to her friend Beth Beene and something blue a garter given to her by Mrs. Tony Burson of Silvertown. Sentiment was given further consideration with a six pence in her shoe.

Miss Beth Beene, of Amarillo, friend of the bride was her attendant. Miss Beene was attired in a frock of rose taffeta shantung, accented by black patent accessories, and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

J. D. Payne, of Matador, attended his brother as best man.

Mrs. Raymond Teeple, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a grey silk shantung, with black accessories, while the groom's mother, Mrs. Ethel Payne, was attired in a printed nylon with black patent accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held. The bride's table was covered with a white and blue cut work cloth, with a net ruffle, floor length, and each corner of the cloth caught with a nosegay of colonial sweetpeas tied with the brides chosen colors of blue and white satin streamers. Tall white tapers in crystal candelabra adorned the center. A two-tiered wedding cake, crested with a miniature bride and groom standing under an arch and a crystal service was placed at opposite ends of the table.

After the bride and groom cut and served the cake, Mrs. Robert McPherson, friend of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Ray Teeple, sister-in-law of the bride presided at the punch service.

Guests included a few close friends and relatives.

Both bride and groom are graduates of W. T. S. C., the bride having received her Bachelor's degree in business administration with the May graduation. She was a member of Delta Zeta Chi Sorority. The groom received his Bachelor's degree in physical education in May of last year and will receive his master's degree in education in August.

They will reside in Canyon until he completes his schooling at the end of summer.

CARD OF THANKS

... fishin' for a
FREEZER!

That's what the folks will do who own freezer-refrigerator combinations. They won't have to stuff themselves right after the catch, and get tired of eating fish. Their fish will be frozen for enjoyment long after the fishing trip is just a background for tall stories.

When the men start to get out their fishing equipment is a good time, ladies, to "fish" for a freezer-refrigerator combination.
