Plans Made For Farm Improvement Program

Highway Department Will Pave If Owners Will Curb On Hi-Way

This is good news to me. A few weeks ago I dreamingly mentioned in "The World As I See It" Column that curbs and more paving would be a wonderful thing to have around Silverton, not dreaming that in such short a time someone would come up with the way out, for at least a portion of the city. Milton Dudley, one of our commissioner's, tells us that he has been to see the headquarters of this district's highway department at Childress, and they advised him that the state highway department would do the paving on the streets that run through the city, if the property owners would pay for the curbing. That is they would complete the paving from curb to curb running east and west through town.

Now all we need is an interested individual or organization to get to work on contacting the property owners and getting them to sign their contract, if there are enough in favor of course.

We think this would add greatly to the appearance of Silverton and that maybe even other blocks or parts of the town would get together and pave and curb more of the streets. Our town would be cleaner and more pleasing to the eye if paving and curbing could be at the disposal of the entire town. I have a particular spot picked out in the south part of town that I think would make a beautiful home-building site - don't want to live on an unpaved street though - I have in the past for a time and I know the difference it makes. So sure would like to see Silverton citizens interested in paving. Eventually home building is going to start up again here, several are on the list right now when proper financing is available. If we make our town more pleasing to the eye, and offer more of the County Seat town advantages that is due Silverton residents, I think it will be to everybody's advantage. We don't want an unattractive town that new comers shy away from, or make you haven't been a newcomer and you don't know what I mean.

To myself I'm wondering if it's asking too much of our town as a whole to pool our contri-

County Agent Explains Black Point Wheat Fungus

Weather conditions this spring have been favorable for the formation of certain fungi that are responsible for what is commonly known as black point in wheat. These fungi are a form of root rot commonly found in wheat and only give trouble when ideal weather conditions prevail. Here in Briscoe County, a good part of the wheat harvested has been infected with black point, but not to damaging conditions. Mr. Robert Hill of the Co-op Elevator gives these figures for the amount of infection to reduce the grade two to four percent infection grade 2, four to seven percent infection grade 3, and under two percent infection grade 1. James Whitfield of A. S. C. office reports that the Government Loan value of the wheat will be reduced 1 cent for no. 2 wheat, 3 cents for no. 3 and 6 cents for no. 4.

D. T. Northcutt and Fred Mercer consulted Mr. Fred Dines A. & M. Wheat Marketing Specialist about the infections of Black Point. They report that Mr. Dines was not too concerned about the damage that was being done. No infestation over one percent had been reported are graded at the wheat terminals. Mr. Dines stated that eventhough many of the kernel points are infected, that such infection would not count until the grove was black too.

Black point may be prevented by planting thoroughly clean seed, treating these seed, and making sure they were of the variety that withstand root rot. Rotation with other crops and the seedling of Madrid Clover will reduce the incidence of root rot said County Agent Robert Ledbetter.

to provide some of the advantages that will benefit everybody.

I was just dying to write this story, after W. A. first told me the news. Sure hope enough of you feel the same way I do. More paving, more curbing for Silverton.

SCIENCE and your Health

THE THREE-PART EAR By Science Features

Most people think the ear is simply that shell-like thing seen on both sides of the head. But actually it's a complicated mechanism that, like an iceberg, has more to it than meets the eye. Behind what you see are two internal parts essential to hearing: the middle ear and the inner ear.

The external or visible ear collects sound waves and directs them through a canal into the ear drum. These waves vibrate against the drum and the impulses are picked up on the other side by the middle ear. The vibrations are then transmitted through the inner ear to the brain.

In addition to its role in hearing, the inner ear also acts as the organ of balance that is responsible for any feeling of dizziness or nausea when the body undergoes rapid, unusual movements.

The delicate mechanisms of the three-part ear are very sensitive to infection and, since the ear is open from the outside, many diseases can enter. For example, one common ear ailment is caused by an infection of the mastoids. These cells in the middle ear become inflamed and fill up with a fluid that turns into pus, producing pain and fever and hampering hearing.

Remarkable control of this infection has been obtained through the use of antibiotics. Three British physicians found terramycin highly effective when applied to 41 cases of mastoiditis. The drug dried up the fluid and cleared the infection in 83% of the patients. Prior to the use of antibiotics, operations were necessary to remove the infected mastoid cells and to drain the pus.

Air-Condition To Save Money

Home air-conditioning offers not only year-round comfort, but advantages which tend to offset much of the operating cost of the equipment, according to American Builder magazine.

Humidity control eliminates extreme moisture which is responsible for peeling paint and sagging wallpaper, creaking chairs and bureau drawers that refuse to open. Less redecorating is required because paint and wallpaper stay clean longer.

Closets and basement become safe for storage use, the magazine says, with danger of mildew and dampness virtually removed. Packaged foods stored in cabinets or on pantry shelves remain fresh longer.

In a special section on its history, technical aspects and advantages, American Builder sums up the job done by complete home air-conditioning:

It heats the home and adds moisture to dry air in cold weather. It cools the house and removes moisture from the air in hot weather. It filters dust, soot, dirt, and pollen from the air. It circulates this clean air throughout the house, using some outside air constantly to freshen the inside air.

Air-conditioning, the magazine observes, "emancipates" the homeowner to a great extent from dusting, cleaning and sweeping. Plants grow better, smoke clears away immediately and the piano won't need as frequent tuning.

A typical home air-conditioning system described by American Builder consists of a compact refrigerating unit and furnace installed in the basement, the attic, or a storage closet, with ducts carrying the warm or cool air to the various rooms of the house.

Patching Futile When Old Roof Starts to Leak

Roof leaking? A checkup may reveal signs of wear in your home brought on by age and rough winter weather. It could be expensive to ignore these warning signs.

The underside of roof deck boards should be carefully inspected for dampness. If the roof is old and leaky, patching is not the answer, because other leaks are certain to follow soon and water may damage the interior by seeping down through the walls and ceilings.

A new surface of durable asphalt shingles can usually be laid right over the old roofing for an economical job which retains the insulation value of the worn material.

Ben Ramsey In Race For Lieutenant Governor

In this state of razzle-dazzle politics and slam-bang campaigns, the calm, deliberate manner of Lieutenant Governor Ben Ramsey is an oasis.

A friend, in introducing Ramsey, once remarked, "Ben has been more places and been seen by fewer people than any man in Texas public life."

He might have added, as the records show, that when the modest Ramsey was temporarily hospitalized during his first state-wide campaign, friends from the forks of the creeks and cities carried on. Ramsey won by 177,851 votes.

The quiet campaign for reelection as lieutenant governor formed his ideas about people and politics during his youth as the son of a district judge and farmer in Deep East Texas. He hasn't strayed.

Ramsey lives on a farm near San Augustine and practices law there when official duties do not keep him in Austin.

His own words seem best to explain Ramsey's campaign attitude. "A man or woman doesn't buy a suit or dress without feeling the cloth and I don't think the people of Texas will select their officials without checking the record. That is all," Ramsey said, "that I ask."

Perhaps the key to Ramsey's success as a legislator and public official is his studious approach to problem, his experience and respect among colleagues as a sound thinker.

Ramsey served eight years in the Senate and four years in the House of Representatives. He was appointed as secretary of state by the late Governor Beauford Jester and continued under Governor Allan Shivers until he resigned to make the race for lieutenant governor.

A man of few words, Ramsey is quick to act when a problem comes within the scope of his authority.

The lieutenant governor had announced strengthened insurance laws "to weed out the few parasites" as one of the planks of his platform for re-election several months before headlines spotlighted certain insurance operations.

Ramsey, who doesn't have a vote in the Senate except in case of a tie, does head the Legislative Council and Legislative Budget Board. They are the research arm of the Legislature.

Ramsey set these legislative wheels turning on the insurance problem as quietly and studiously as he went about building up,

Car Fabric Equal to Six Dresses

Enough fabric to produce six average-size dresses is contained in the upholstery and trim of a Chevrolet sport coupe. With this 30-foot train, Maureen Johnson illustrates the 23 square yard requirements of a single automobile. Material is similar to that used in the car.

with soil conservation practices, 200 acres of depleted East Texas soil into a year-round pasture for his small herd of cattle.

Ramsey's experience as a farmer led him to single out the need of a coordinated water and soil conservation program, and rural roads as chief problems before Texans. "A man who has fought this battle knows it is the state's foremost challenge," he said, "and farmers must have good market roads."

A keen wit and ability to conciliate warring factions enable Ramsey, as presiding officer, to ease the tension of heated Senate sessions. His gavel is gaited to fairness and his theory of government is to provide the people the services they need and require at the least possible cost for efficient management.

An avid reader, Ramsey too is one of the government's best listeners. On a train trip, the lieutenant governor will pull out a book on Thomas Jefferson he likes to stop, buy five gallons of gasoline and while the children are getting a drink, listen to what the people are talking about.

Contemporary Home National Contest

A $25,000 contemporary home is the top prize in a new national contest, open to every American family, according to George Seaney, owner of Seaney Hardware & Appliance Inc. He said his store is local headquarters for contest information and entry blanks.

The $25,000 home is one of 1,181 prizes, worth a total of $75,000, being offered by Kelvinator in its second annual "Homemaker's Holiday" contest. Contest theme is the holiday from former arduous, time-killing chores made possible in the home by modern electrical appliances.

The first prize is a ranch-type three-bedroom "Holiday House," featuring a new type of room for family living that includes kitchen, dining, laundry and recreation areas, Seaney said. The winner may choose the house award, which includes $3,000 cash toward the purchase of a suitable lot, or $25,000 in cash. He said other awards are five second prizes of $1,000 each, 75 awards of Kelvinator appliances, 100 prizes of $1,000 each, and 1,000 prizes of $10 each.

All residents of the United States except company employees are eligible for the contest, which runs from Easter Sunday through midnight July Fourth.

Designed by Charles M. Goodman, noted Washington, D. C. architect, the "Holiday House" is a one-story ranch house of contemporary design, introducing a "new concept in informal living," George said.

"The living center of the home is a large L-shaped family room that incorporates a fabulous holiday kitchen. In addition there is a large formal living room with fireplace and built in woodbox. three full-size bedrooms grouped into a sleeping wing; complete bath and extra lavatory; and a carport and workshop separated from the rest of the house by a covered breezeway.

"For privacy, the house partially encloses a garden court to the rear, away from the street. Extensive use of glass walls and doors along the inner sides of the house helps to make the garden court part of the living area, and a homemaker from her holiday kitchen can survey her family at work or play, inside or out, at a glance."

The holiday kitchen is L-shaped in arrangement, and stands at the corner of the larger L formed by the family room. The kitchen area has two walls, one including an 11-cubic-foot automatic defrosting refrigerator, sink and storage cabinets, the other including an 18-cubic-foot upright freezer and storage cabinets.

The electric range stands as an island, surrounded by a breakfast bar. Other Kelvinator appliances in the home include an automatic washer, dryer and ironer in a laundry area nearby in the family room, a garbage disposal unit and a room air conditioner.

The World As I See It

Doris Amburn

Most of my childhood days were spent in the pink house on Thrifty Road. Looking back, I can see we were just twenty years ahead of the times - that is in the color we painted our house! Pink is quite common these days, though the reason our house was pink was due to a heavy hail storm which followed almost immediately the last stroke of the paint brush. Originally it was a conventional white. The folks just mixed together what was left of the paint, after the hail storm, so we had a pink house, not bad looking - though unconventional for the times.

All these black - thunder and lightning filled clouds, which keep dumping huge amounts of rain and hail over areas in the Panhandle, keep reminding me of former years. I developed "cloud jitters" at an early age, and on this unfortunate night when rain and hail fell in torrents and peeled the fresh paint from our house, we were keeping watch with our neighbor's daughter in their storm cellar. Her parents were water bound on their way home from a neighboring city.

I can still hear the familiar noise of the little RR cars, which always went out after a heavy rain or storm to check on the tracks. On that particular night the sounds were very plain - even though the rushing of the water, and the cries of the frogs were in keen competition - because after the night of storms, with the approaching dawn - came calm and stillness that is best appreciated after a night of winds and storms.

We had spent that night shifting from house to cellar - three clouds maybe more had sent us under the protection of the cellar.

That was fun as a child. I enjoyed the visiting and fun we had with the neighborhood children. After we built a cellar of our own, and all the neighbors had one too, it wasn't nearly so enticing to crawl out of bed and go into the storm cellar, so gradually that storm cellar urge has disappeared.

This is wheat harvest time and also hail time on the Plains, when a cloud in the sky also means anxiety on the faces of the farmer, but when the thunder has passed, relief, that once more God has seen fit to spare.

First established in 1924, the General Motors Proving Ground near Milford, Mich., has more than 25 miles of roads of every type - from smooth inter-city highways to boulder-studded raw dirt trails.

More than a half million gallons of enamel is applied to Frigidaire products in Dayton, O., each year - enough to paint 70,000 average size homes with Lubbock, Tex. — You had to be named Calhoun to score a touchdown in the Texas Tech-Loyola of the South game at New Orleans Nov. 5, 1937.

Charlie Calhoun scored four touchdowns for Texas Tech, and Clay Calhoun crossed for the Wolves. Babe Curfman added an extra point to give Tech its 25-6 victory.

Jodie Marek of Texas Tech's 1938 football team scored 10 points in the game's final 32 seconds to give the Raiders a 17-7 win over New Mexico and keep them in the running for the Cotton Bowl.

Rick Spinks, who'll be Texas Tech's starting left halfback next fall, has played only fullback for the Red Raiders except for a few plays in the Gator Bowl.

Texas Tech's quarterback, Jack Kirkpatrick, handled the ball called only four plays against New Mexico A&M, and each was a touchdown. Although he handled the ball all four times he is not credited with a yard gained from scrimmage in Tech's 71-0 win.

Elmer Tarbox's pass interceptions for Texas Tech in 1933 led the nation and still are a Red Raider record. His 85-yard pass interception return against New Mexico in 1937 is the longest on the Tech books.

Texas Tech opens its 1954 football schedule against the only team to down the Red Raiders last fall — Texas A&M — at College Station, Sept. 18.

SUMMER EGG QUALITY

Does summer egg quality give you a headache? Seems there's always a surplus of low-quality eggs going to break plants, but never enough top quality eggs. Folks who break out a few "runny" eggs lose their appetite in a hurry, and consumption of all eggs drops.

Production of top quality summer eggs is actually not too difficult. It takes a little effort, but folks who are trying report it pays.

FLIES NEEDN'T BE A BOTHER ANYMORE

Seems like flies get smarter every year, and built up resistance to more new chemical killers.

But Purina Research workers are smarter than flies, and they have a program that really do kill. First there's Purina Building Spray that you use in dairy barns, poultry houses and other buildings where flies are troublesome.

Then there is a new spray for cows. It both kills and repels after you spray.

For use inside the house Purina Household Spray is tops for killing flies, mosquitos, moths, silver fish, roaches and many other pests.

Then there's a special beef cattle spray, too.

We'll be glad to explain details of this fly control program to you. We are looking forward to a visit from you. If there is any way we can help with your livestock or poultry feeding or management problems, remember we are here to serve you.

Texas Income at New High

Texans enjoyed the greatest per capita income in the state's history last year a report prepared by the American Peoples Yearbook will disclose. Total income was estimated at $12,442,000—about 20 per cent of which was derived from crude oil production.

At the same time, individual farmers and ranchers in certain parts of the state were hard hit by the third successive year of drought, it will be reported. The western three-fifths of the state was designated as a disaster area. State and federal aid was concentrated on relief programs designed primarily to preserve and maintain breeding herds of cattle, sheep and goats.

The American Peoples Yearbook will report that income from the sales in 1953 tumbled to $6,658,000 from the boom high of 1951, when sales ran to about half a billion dollars. On the other hand, farm income, exclusive of livestock, was down about 3 per cent to $1,253,000.

An interesting aspect of the drought situation reported in the yearbook was the fact that the drought, resulted in the best rains coming to the drought-stricken per-acre yields of cotton in the history of Texas. Total income from cotton last year placed at $682,181,000.

Tornadoes combined with the drought to make weather the latest single news-making event in the state during the year. It has been termed the worst tornado day in the history of the Lone Star state. It was on that day last year that the twister in San Angelo and Waco causing an estimated 55 million dollars damage, taking 124 lives and injuring nearly 700 other persons.

Veteran's Questions And Answers

Q — My husband, a World War II veteran, died recently. Would I be eligible for VA death pension if my income falls below the $2,700 limit? I have a young child.

A — You would be eligible only if your husband had a service-connected disability at the time of his death. His disability, however, need not have been the cause of his death.

Q — I am a disabled Korean veteran, and I'm planning to take on-the-job training under Public Law 16. Will VA furnish me with supplies I need to pursue my training?

A — Yes, within limits. The kind, quality and amount of supplies will be limited to those commonly required to be owned personally by non-veterans taking the same training. If your disability warrants it, you may be issued special equipment to help you to do your job.

Q — I am a Korean veteran who was totally disabled in service. I intend to apply for the special GI permanent-plan insurance available to disabled Korean veterans. Would it be possible to have my premiums waived because of my total disability?

A — Yes. You should apply for a waiver of premiums at the same time you apply for your insurance. But be sure to pay the required premium with your application, and be sure to continue to pay premiums until VA tells you your waiver has been granted. If it is granted, you will get a refund of premiums paid under waiver.

Q — If I get a GI business loan, will I have to operate the business myself? Or could I turn it over to someone else to run?

A — You will be required to devote your personal labor or supervision to the business, either on a full-time or part-time basis.

No Place On Hogs For Lice

COLLEGE STATION — Hog prices are favorable and profits can be stretched further if producers will control the lice on their animals.

This parasite constantly irritates the hog, slows its rate of gain and, in turn, raises the producer's feed bill, explains E. M. Regenbrecht, extension swine husbandman. Lice also are a common spreader of Swine Pox.

Hog lice too often are taken for granted, but they can be easily controlled with DDT, chlordane, toxaphene or methoxychlor sprays at 0.5 percent concentration or with 0.06 percent lindane or gamma BHC. The latter two insecticides give best results, Regenbrecht adds.

Sows with suckling pigs should not be sprayed with any of these insecticides, the specialist precautions.

A BILLION AND BETTER!

Way back in 1819 the canning industry came into being, no doubt the fruit of some good farmers' fertile minds. For this was the answer to their problem of marketing their produce the year 'round. Thus, agriculture and industry came together for a common good, forming a partnership which has operated to their mutual benefit ever since.

Today our farmers produce millions of tons of top-quality fruits and vegetables, and the 3,000 canning plants scattered throughout the country process them in cans and jars, bringing to our nation "good eating" in every season. Canning has now become a billion dollar harvest for the American farmer.

This alliance between farmers and canners means that the farmers can depend on a more stable price and ready outlet for their produce. In 1951, for example, the canning industry bought and packaged the crops from 1,880,500 acres of 11 major vegetables—70% of the entire crop.

To be specific, about 80% of all sweet corn and tomatoes harvested is canned; about 75% of the green peas and beans; and about one-half the asparagus; about 60% of the red sour cherries and 45% to 60% of peaches, pears and apricots.

What happens then? In 1953 the per capita consumption of canned foods averaged 102.2 pounds. Because of this great popularity, the canning industry has developed the responsibility of producing quantities of high-quality products to meet the housewives' demands—500 different foods packed in cans and jars—for convenience, nutrition, economy, variety, versatility and all-year-round availability. Mrs. Homemaker appreciates the value of the no waste, pre-cooked goodness, and points with pride to her canned foods shelf. She adds her own deft touch of the master chef—the final link in the partnership chain.

Accent Hue Draws Eye

This drawing illustrates several basic rules in modern color-styling for the home. Printed here in black, the bright "accent color" on door, porch post and ponderosa pine window gives the eye a focal point of interest and says, "Welcome!" Wood windows can be painted to go with any color scheme. The accent is the last color chosen and should be in cheerful contrast to the roof and siding colors. Color selection should start with the roof, the largest unbroken surface on the house. Asphalt shingles are popular because they come in a wide range of solid and blended colors, both pastels and darker, conventional shades. The colors used on walls and trim should harmonize with the roof.

Homemaking Girls Attended Pruning Demonstration

All homemaking girls who have chosen home improvement as a part of their summer project attended a pruning demonstration Thursday at the home of Mrs. Walter Brannon and Mrs. Verel Vaughn. The Homemaking teacher Mary Watson Jones pruned Mock Orange, roses and Bridal Wreath — Mrs. Jones pointed out that all flowering shrubs should be pruned as soon as they have bloomed. She said that we prune for three reasons, comfort, convenience and beauty. Dead limbs should be removed at any time. Mrs. Jones made a cutting bed using limbs that were grown a year ago. She estimated that at least 50% of these cuttings would root and could be set in a permanent location, next spring. Some of the shrubs pruned had yellow leaves which indicated a lack of soil nutrients. Mrs. Jones said that this could be corrected by adding sulphur and coppers to the soil.
