REDDY'S Farm Report

FROM THE AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT
SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

Elimination of risk with greater assurance of profit from flat storage of grain or seed, on the farm, is possible where the farmer has made provision for aeration of the stored grain.

Aeration prevents excessive moisture from forming on top of the grain and, in addition, cools the grain, thereby preventing insect and small rodent growth. Since grain is usually cut with a moisture content of about 13%, it is practical to maintain that percentage with aeration equipment.

The easiest way to accomplish aeration is to have a well advised installation consisting of a wire mesh tunnel running the length of the storage building, at one end of which is an electrically driven fan capable of pulling or pushing large volumes of air through the grain. Since aeration is simply a matter of cooling and maintaining quality after the grain has been dried to desirable moisture content, good aeration equipment can be used successfully for fumigation.

Some grain growers have attempted to dry high-moisture-content grain with aeration equipment, however, this practice is not recommended because upwards of ten to twenty-five times greater air moving capacity must be employed. In drying, air is "pushed" through the grain rather than "pulled" through as in aerating.

Farmers have found that by storing grain on the farm, with proper anti-spoilage equipment, they have good returns for labor performed, good return on investment through saving the usual storage fees and grain handling costs. In addition, the grower maintains control of his crop, and he can sell whenever the market looks best.

Information on grain storage equipment is available through college agricultural departments and equipment suppliers.

Anticipated Housing Shortage Calls for Early Reservations

Because of an anticipated housing shortage this fall at West Texas State College, President James P. Cornett has urged that dormitory reservations be made as soon as possible.

Campus housing officials are asking upperclassmen who will be back at WT this fall to make reservations before they go home for the summer, not later than June 1. Incoming freshmen should make reservations early to be assured of campus housing. Present students will be given first priority until June, and freshmen then will be given next consideration.

A waiting list for upperclassmen who do not reserve rooms before June 1, and transfer students will be kept and will be honored in late summer.

Despite three major dormitory additions recently completed, housing this fall at WT is expected to be "tight," Dr. Cornett said. West Texas State has two large dormitories for women, two large and three smaller ones for men, which will accommodate over 800 students. Several hundred stu-

Storing Surplus Grain Poses Major National Problem

WASHINGTON—Like giant fingers thrust into the sky, the nation's grain elevators loom mightier than ever in these days of grain glut.

The United States has almost a third again as many commercial off-farm elevators as it did only four years ago. Their capacity now totals 2.8 billion bushels. But it also harbors twice as many government steel storage bins with a capacity of 850 million bushels, plus a variety of previously untried structures ranging from circus tents to ships.

Inside all of them are the biggest stores of wheat, corn and other grains collected by man. The wheat alone, of which the government owns 95 per cent, now adds up to 1,020,000,000 bushels. Turned into bread it would feed every American a pound loaf every week for the next eight years.

Eighty per cent of the bread-grain rests in country or terminal elevators. The largest single unit of these—with a capacity of 50,300,000 bushels—stands in Oklahoma. Kansas, however, provides the greatest aggregate elevator capacity, outpacing Texas which led the list a few years ago.

Wheat not in elevators is either in transit, in bins or ships. Until 1949, wheat had not been stored in ships. That year 20 million bushels were put away in the moored Hudson River fleet.

Today 81 million bushels cram the holds of 357 Liberty-type vessels in the James and Hudson River fleets, at Astoria, Ore., and Olympia, Wash. Excellent granaries, ships will do even more wheat duty soon.

Efficiency Down During Heat Wave

CHICAGO—Stenographic errors increase 1,000 per cent as the temperature increases from 78 to 96 degrees a survey taken during Chicago's heat wave revealed.

Among typists, errors increased from an average of 11 per hour to more than 95 per hour as temperatures rose from 78 to 96 degrees.

The survey, made by the Chicago manufacturers of air diffusing and electrical equipment, also showed that in other lines of work efficiency increased by more than 50 per cent as the temperature fell off to the optimum of 78 degrees.

One manager reported his company had kept statistics during hot and cooler periods of summer. He said a definite unit of work in a drafting operation was chosen as an example. During the eleven-day heat wave in early August, statistics showed that 564 work units were produced in 282 man hours. After the heat wave broke, in the same length of time and for the same kind of work, 807 work units were produced in 220 hours.

U. S. Is Medical Magnet For Foreign Physicians

CHICAGO—The United States has become a "medical magnet" for physicians in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

More than 5,000 foreign physicians came to this country during the year 1954-55 for study according to a survey by the Institute of International Education and the American Medical Association.

They came from 83 different countries for internship and residency training at hospitals in 42 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone.

The survey of 1,177 hospitals indicated that there were at least 5,036 alien physicians in training. Not included in the study were immigrants and displaced persons.

Students Dislike for Mathematics Studied

DAVIS, Calif.—Why do some students dislike mathematics?

Child development specialist Thomas Poffenberger and mathematician Donald A. Norton are trying to find out what, besides a natural ability, makes some students poor and others outstanding in algebra, geometry and calculus.

In spite of more and more need for engineers, chemists, and physicists, proportionately fewer students are entering these fields in colleges and universities.

The researchers are going to start their study in intermediate algebra courses. Students selected from the top and bottom of a class will be interviewed in hopes of finding out what their attitudes, influences of family, grade school teachers and friends.

Roy Huddleston went one better: he forgot he was on the roof. Doing some repairs, he "put one foot right out in mid-air and that ground sure came up fast."

He suffered a jarred hip bone.

Panic in Streets Usually Greeted Free Wild Animals

WASHINGTON—Wild animals that escape from the circus, pet shop or zoo often aren't as wild as the human beings they excite by their chance meetings in the open.

Take the case of the ocelot (tropical American wildcat) who escaped from a Washington pet shop and roamed for more than a week among homes and woods around the Naval Observatory, dodging police shotgun blasts, traps baited with halibut fillet and a number of persistent coon dogs.

After nine days of freedom, the hungry ocelot voluntarily limped back to the pet shop.

When big cats escape they often cause panic, maul people and have even taken human lives. Thousands of volunteer searchers, police, Marines, helicopters, planes and trained dogs failed to find a leopard which escaped from the Oklahoma City zoo. The zoo staff finally captured the animal by planting doped horse meat—but the meat killed the valuable animal.

Much less trouble was Jackie, a young male lion who escaped from New York's Madison Square Garden. Jackie wandered into the basement and lay down for a short nap. He was safely caged in time for the circus matinee.

A kangaroo, fresh from a TV debut in Baltimore, departed the studio and lit out across the city. Sunday drivers snarled traffic at the sight of the animal, which once leaped over an auto hood. The kangaroo bit one pursuer, kicked the wind out of another in its one-hour fling at freedom.

Scientist Claims Birth of New Stars

MT. HAMILTON, Calif.—Dr. George H. Herbig, associate astronomer in the Lick Observatory, has raised the possibility that he may have detected the "birth" of two new stars.

If confirmed, the event will have been truly unique in the history of astronomy.

The discovery of the possible "birth" of the two stars is based chiefly on two types of evidence:

First, Dr. Herbig has taken two photographs 7 years apart at the same point in the Orion Nebula. In the first of these photographs, taken in 1947, there are three stars imbedded in a dark cloud of dust and gas. In the second photograph,

AMARILLO AIR FORCE BASE WILL JOIN NATION IN ARMED FORCES DAY

Amarillo Air Force Base will join the nation on May 19, in the seventh annual observance of Armed Forces Day.

Armed Forces Day was established in 1950 by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the President, for the purpose of giving official recognition in a single public presentation by the Armed Forces of the United States in lieu of the anniversary dates previously observed by individual services.

The designation of a single occasion for a joint report to the people on the state of the nation's defense by act of the Congress. Thus, Armed Forces Day was intended to symbolize unification and afford an annual opportunity to demonstrate the close working relationship of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Reserve forces at all levels of command.

The President proclaimed the third Saturday in May, 1950, as the first Armed Forces Day. The third Saturday in May was selected only after thorough study of all possible alternatives. It was generally agreed that Armed Forces Day could not be properly observed in the winter months because of school and college vacations, or in the autumn because of conflict with established school and college sports events. Service anniversaries and such dates as VE-Day, VJ-Day, Independence Day and Armistice Day were unfavorably considered because each has a particular significance which would be undeniably diminished by conversion into Armed Forces Day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Giddens and children, of Amarillo, were week end guests of her mother, Mrs. Agnes Donnell.

Mrs. R. E. Brooksheir visited her father, H. C. Doak, age 97, and other relatives, in Hereford last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Evans and children, of Amarillo, attended church here Sunday morning and were dinner guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George West.

Mrs. Sybil Allard, of Amarillo, spent the week end here with her father, Bill Watters, and other relatives.
