Temple, Texas, January 3, 1957. State Conservationist H. N. Smith of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service today announced plans to take quick action to put into effect the stepped-up Great Plains program in this state.

Smith said that he has called a conference of state leaders of agricultural programs and agencies in Texas for January 11 at College Station to blueprint the plan of action on the farm and range lands of the 85 counties in that portion of the state.

Administrative responsibility for and leadership in the Great Plains program was recently placed on the Soil Conservation Service by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

Smith pointed out that Secretary Benson's order provided for the combining of the resources of the Department of Agriculture's various agencies in a step by step process for making long time adjustments in land use, cropping systems, and in the treatment of cultivated lands and range, under the climatic hazards of the Great Plains.

The Great Plains program, brought into being by Public Law 1021 only last August, is designed to give farmers and ranchers, in the Great Plains area of the 19 involved states, both immediate and long range help in the use of their land within its capabilities, Smith pointed out.

He explained that Public Law 1021 authorized an appropriation of not over $150 million for a 15 year period. Funds to aid farmers and ranchers are expected to be available after July 1, 1957. Expenditures may not exceed $25 million in any one year.

The program will apply in counties to be designated by the Secretary of Agriculture in portions of Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming. The continued drouth in these states has emphasized the need for such a program to help develop a more stable farm and ranch economy in this region, Smith said.

Wind erosion conditions in the Great Plains area of Texas are serious with 403,000 acres damaged during October and November. Approximately 6,500,000 acres in a 68 county area of northwest Texas are in condition to be damaged by wind erosion this winter and spring, Smith announced.

He emphasized that the Great Plains program is not an annual or disaster type program nor does it replace any other existing agricultural program.

"This is a way to an enduring agriculture based on the capabilities of land and geared to the climatic hazards that we all know are ever present in this important area," he said. "It is not a production adjustment or an income supplement program. It is a voluntary program with long term assurance of needed financial help for a complete soil and water conservation plan applied to individual farms and ranches."

"The program," Smith added, "will point up the responsibility of local people in fitting their agriculture to the capabilities of the land and the hazards of climate. This responsibility is shared by farmers and ranchers, soil conservation districts, county commissioners and by all other groups, urban and rural, interested in the economy and the development of their home areas."

Eddie and Eunice Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Crow and children visited in the home of Eual Newman Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Crow is Mrs. Newman's niece.

Rev. H. B. Coggin, Methodist pastor, read the vows as the couple stood before an arch covered with green tropical foliage and white mums centered with red Christmas balls. White wedding bells hanging from the center of the arch held sprigs of mistletoe. Two seven-branched candelabra on either side of the arch were laced with fern and decorated with mums centered with red balls. In tall baskets were white mums, holly and red bead spray. Spiral candelabra, palm trees and poinsettias completed the altar setting. The aisles were marked with candelabra tied with a white satin bow accented with red balls.

Mrs. C. H. Farish played a prelude of organ music and accompanied Miss Joan Harris as she sang "Indian Love Call," "Whether Thou Goest," and "The Lord's Prayer" which was sung as a benediction as the couple knelt on a satin-covered prayer bench. "I Love You Truly" was played as the tapers were lighted.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white imported net all-over embroidered, over net and taffeta. An original model, the gown was designed with portrait neckline framed with scalloped lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. The fitted embroidered net bodice had long sleeves ending in points over the hands and terminated with a point at center front. From this, stemmed a voluminous floor length skirt. Made of tulle, fully shirred, white with circular pointed yolk joining the tulle at lower hipline, the immense fullness was emphasized by hoops and crinoline worn underneath. Her veil of silk illusion was joined to a tiara of pearls, rhinestones and silver beads. She carried a white orchid and white feathered carnations flecked with rhinestones arranged on a white bible showered with white bridal satin streamers tied in love knots.

Carrying out the traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue, the bride wore her mother's ring and carried a handkerchief belonging to Betty June Jackson. Blue was a garter, a gift from Joan Harris. In her shoe she wore a penny engraved with the Lord's Prayer, a gift from the bridegroom. Her pearl necklace was also a gift from the groom.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church. The serving table was covered with white linen cutwork and accented with the bride's and her attendants' bouquets. The tiered wedding cake was iced in white featuring white Christmas bells, red roses and was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Silver candelabra and a silver punch service completed the table appointments. Mrs. Bobby McCormick, sister-in-law of the groom, Mrs. Deanie Henderson, Mrs. Conrad Henderson, sisters in law of the bride, alternated at the serving table. More than a hundred guests registered.

For a wedding trip to Corpus Christi the bride chose a suit of brown imported wool tweed with winter white and brown accessories. Her corsage was an orchid. After December 30 the couple will be at home in the South Plains community where he is engaged in farming.
