RALLS JACKRABBITS HOPS PAST SILVERTON OWLS 44-0 FRIDAY

From the opening minute of the contest at Jackrabbit Park the Rabbits had a field day. The Rabbits scored when wanting to in every period. With the exception of a little trouble from the line in the first half, the Owl backfield got most of the tackles.

The spirit of the Owls before the beginning of the game was equaled to their spirit when they played Crosbyton the week before; however, they got off to a bad start when The Owls fumbled the ball on the 22 yard line. Ralls scored three plays later. From then on to the final whistle, it was Ralls all the way. The Owls had some good blocking in the game but the ball carriers didn't get to the line of scrimmage before the holes would close up.

Ralls ruled the ball game from start to finish. Ralls had possession of the ball 90 per cent of the time. The Owls made only 3 first downs in the entire contest compared to 19 first for Ralls.

The Owls' only excuse was the absence of James Brown, Richard Jarnagin and T. D. West in the backfield, who were sidelined by injuries.

Lack of experience has plagued the Owls all season. Only four or five of the starting line up are veterans.

Silvertown Owls still looking for their first conference win, will play Petersburg next Friday night at Petersburg.

LAW DEMANDS COUNTY BOOKS BE INSPECTED

AUSTIN, October 23—County commissioners courts must inspect the county treasurer's books quarterly and publish the results four times a year in a newspaper, Attorney General Wilson said Thursday.

Noncompliance with a new law is punishable by fines of $25 to $500, Wilson told Refugio County Attorney Gerald T. Bissett in an official opinion.

Wilson said it was necessary that the commissioners court determine the amount received and paid out of each county fund since the previous report.

It is mandatory, the opinion said, "that the order of the commissioners court approving the county treasurer's quarterly report recite separately the amount received and paid out of each fund since the preceding report and the balance of such fund, if any."

George Seaney and Fred Mercer attended a meeting in Plainview Tuesday night on conducting local finance campaign for Boy Scouts of America. Raymond Akin, of Plainview, had charge of the meeting.

Mr. Seaney will announce his committees to assist in the campaign at an early date.

Special surveys have shown that three boys of every four would like to become Boy Scouts. You can help make this possible by giving as much as you can to your local Boy Scout finance campaign. In 45 years of service, Scouting has opened its doors to any boy who would enter, without regard to race, creed or class. Its only aim is to encourage each of these boys to become the best citizen he can make of himself. Troops have been established in Catholic parish, Jewish synagogue and Protestant church, serving alike boys of all races, and the rich and the poor.

There are even troops for handicapped boys. But Scouting today is facing a challenge. The mammoth increase in population, and in number of boys who would like to join, has created an urgent need—first for additional units and, second for more trained leaders. How well the need is met will depend largely on you. Those boys who want to join cannot enjoy this great program without your financial support. Help Scouting to reach every boy who is interested. Give your check to the campaign worker who will call on you.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle J. Montague and children, of Fort Collins, Colorado, visited his mother, Mrs. Dan Montague, and other relatives here from Friday through Sunday. It gets tiresome to search for food, more so when very little is thrown away. This youngster in Pakistan comes from a family which lost this year's harvest in the floods. He whines away his time in between begging from passers-by by toying with rocks and empty cans. The 1958 CROP appeal is held to send food to him and many others like him all over the world.

A NEW PROFILE PLANTER NOW ON THE MARKET

Damage to emerging cotton from heavy rains, winds, blowing soil is sharply reduced with the plateau seedbed created by this new attachment, researchers at Oklahoma State reveal.

"... we did not have to replant after heavy rains..."

The problem of having to replant their fields after heavy rains and severe winds has long plagued cotton farmers. This repeat process has regularly cut into the yields and profits of the business particularly in cotton-growing areas of Texas and Oklahoma, where rainfall is often of hard, dashing nature and can place a crust of soil over seed rows which impairs emergence. Moreover, wind and blowing soil also take their toll.

In a bid to eliminate or sharply reduce this difficulty, Cline Industries, Rush Springs, Oklahoma, is offering their Plateau Profile Planter attachment, which creates a new type of seedbed.

Originally designed and perfected by J. G. Porterfield and associates at Oklahoma State University, the attachment creates a plateau for the seed about two inches below the original ground level, with furrows on each side of the plateau which run about five inches below the original ground level, providing a trap for water which could impair the cotton's emergence if it were placed in a deep or shallow furrow, as is common. In addition, the attachment places earth several inches above the original ground level between each row to block winds from damaging the young crop.

Although basically designed for use in cotton planting, field tests have shown the attachment to work equally well with other crops planted in lister furrows, such as grain sorghum, peanuts, soybeans, corn and castor beans, according to a report in the May issue of the Oklahoma Farmer Stockman.

Tests in 1954 and 1955 at Oklahoma State's Cotton Research Station, Chickasha, Okla., indicated that the device develops a seedbed which substantially improves emergence over standard procedures, especially when rain follows shortly after planting.

On May 7, 1954, the researchers planted cotton in both the new seed bed and in conventional shallow furrows. A dashing three-inch rain came within 10 days and as a result, the ordinary furrow produced an average of one emerging plant per 10 ft. of row while the new method came up with 20 plants per 10 ft.

The following year the same experiment was tried. The planting was done May 6 and was followed by a rain of about nine inches. The shallow furrow was able to develop 10 plants per 10 ft. while the new seedbed produced 47.

Plantings which were not disturbed by severe rains did not reveal as broad a difference in emergence, although reports generally indicated a slightly better stand. Plantings on May 21 and June 8, 1954 came up at 25-20 and 14-10 ratios in favor of the new method.

Oklahoma's extension cotton specialist, G. E. Stroup, in discussing the seedbed in his service's circular No. 640, "A New Seedbed for Cotton", pointed out that it probably works best where land is flat broken. "However," he continued, "where land has been listed the ridges may be dragged down and satisfactory results obtained with this method. Some difficulty has been encountered in using this new type planter where soils are extremely tight. On such soils, the disk does not scour sufficiently and the seed-covering devices are ineffective."

Cline Industries cites two operations in western Texas which have claimed considerable success in using the Plateau Profile (or "W") planter. Francee Baker, Lubbock, Texas, head of Baker Empire Cotton Seed farms, said that he planted 300 acres beginning April 24, 1958 and has his finest crop ever. "We are about the only farmers in Lubbock County who did not have to replant on account of excessive rains. Our cotton is about 30 days old and has been worked twice already, while no other farmers we know of in the area have their cotton up. We estimate the planter will make us many thousands of dollars as a result of our not having to replant."

Similarly, L. P. Hines, Levelland, Texas, estimates that he would have saved $4,000 or more in 1957 plantings and perhaps would have gained from $20,000 to $25,000 by using the new planter, according to a report in the Levelland Daily Sun News. Four replantings that year by Hines shortened his growing season by 40 days and resulted in lowering grades and yields.
