

All Around the Town

by Mary Ann Sarchet

Dr. Vittorio Cerutti, who specializes in nervous breakdowns, has reported that housewives and working women are breaking down twice as much as they did before the war. He warns that breakdowns sneak up slowly with nightmares, odd pains, loss of appetite and general hatred for everything.

For this he recommends a diet of "less meat (never any at night), more fish and plenty of radishes, onions, olives, unpeeled potatoes and Swiss cheese". Now, I can well imagine how the Eat - More - Beef people will look on this suggestion. Personally, I don't see how a good cut of beef could possibly lead to nightmares faster than the radishes, onions, etc.

The doctor goes on to recommend that a woman should never work more than nine hours a day with a five-minute rest once each hour. (Tell that to a woman with three or four pre-school children, one of which is an infant. Men never seem to understand that women must work from sun-to-sun to accomplish the task of running a household and raising children.)

"After work," he says, "go home and sit in a cozy big chair. Put your feet on a foot rest, close your eyes and place your hands over them to get total darkness. Then imagine yourself floating in total obscurity with a brilliant ball of light in front of you. Concentrate on the ball, and a minute later you will feel remarkably fresh again."

Decided to try it the other evening between cooking supper and doing a few pieces of ironing. I seated a nice cozy chair, shooed the husband out of it, pulled up the footstool, turned down the television, and sat down, putting my feet up, as prescribed.

Just about the time I had the ball of light in view and was floating into obscurity with hands over eyes, I heard a persistent voice at my elbow: "Mom! Hey Mom! What'cha doin', Mom?"

And, of course, the spell was broken forever.

Jack Strange Receives "Citizen of the Year" Award

by Mary Ann Sarchet

At the regular noonday meeting of the Silverton Lions Club last Thursday, William (Jack) Strange was surprised with a "Citizen of the Year" presentation. The plaque read: "Distinguished Service Award for Outstanding Community Service."

Rev. Carlos McLeod, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Silverton, eloquently presented the award and a brief history of Jack's life.

The presentation had been a closely guarded secret, and members who were present reported that Jack was truly "speechless" when the announcement was made. Those who know Jack will realize that his being "speechless" was an indication that it really was a surprise to him, for Jack has never been known to be without words on any occasion.

Jack was born at Silverton, the son of the late Bryan Strange and Mrs. Strange. He attended school here and was graduated from Silverton High School. Shortly after his graduation from high school, he entered the service of his country and served with the paratroopers in the Pacific theater.

He worked for First State Bank in 1950, worked at White Deer in 1952 and 1953, and returned to his employment at First State Bank in 1954. He is presently vice president and cashier of the local bank.

As a trusted banker, Jack is elected treasurer or fund-raising chairman of almost every group of which he is a member, and it seems that his trustworthiness carries over into the attitude of his friends toward his wife, Eloise, for it seems that in her ladies' groups she, too, is often selected to serve as "keeper of the key."

Jack takes part in almost every civic activity. When community service is to be rendered, townspeople have come to depend on him. He serves the Little League, City Council, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Lions Club, Silverton Methodist Church and helped get a swimming pool built here.

In the presentation, Rev. McLeod said in jest that he did not have time to delve into Jack's boyhood because of the length of the county court records. A former driver of the school bus on which Jack rode to school, Earl Cantwell, said that he remembers him as a mischievous boy who was never known to pick on a smaller child. From his remarks it could be

Mid Plains Elects Four Directors

The tenth annual meeting of Mid-Plains Rural Telephone Cooperative was held Friday night, April 5, in the Tulla Junior High School auditorium. Sixty-six members were registered out of an estimated 150 in attendance.

Earl Cantwell Re-Elected

Highlight of the business meeting was the election of four directors to serve three year terms. They are Melton McGehee from Wayside; Bayard Sadler from Vigo Park; Earl Cantwell from the Rock Creek community near Silverton; and Milton Sharp from west of Tulla.

The invocation was given by gathered that Jack much preferred to pick on his school bus driver, and Earl said he never knew from day to day just what Jack would come up with. He added though, that he never knew of any act of Jack's causing harm to anyone or anything.

This article has been written with "tongue-in-cheek" because of the joking attitude Jack assumes for his friends, but it is meant in no way to reflect on his abilities as a banker. He renders his services at the bank with upmost sincerity and seriousness. Having known Jack only four short years, there is little we can add about him that people who have long made this community their home do not already know. In this short time, however, we have come to respect and depend on him, as others do, when there is a job to be done.

the Rev. H. M. Secord, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Kress. Wayne Cooper, manager of the Tulla Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, gave the welcome address.

Feature talk of the program was delivered by Coy McDougald, REA Operations and Loans Field Representative from Lubbock. Mr. McDougald told the members that serious opposition threatens the cooperative movement and the REA telephone program from many sources, some of which have remote interests or none at all with communications.

Service awards for loyal and faithful service were presented to directors and employees who had been with the cooperative for five and ten years. Those receiving five-year awards were directors Leonard Boehning, Canyon, Denis Brandt, Umbarger; Melton McGehee, Wayside; and Earl Cantwell, Silverton; Employees with five years or longer service are James E. Norris, Juanita Whigham and Leon Barham.

Those receiving 10 year awards were directors Victor L. Harman, Roy Stockett, Bayard Sadler, Bruce Fields, and New Redman, and employee R. W. Shackelford. Also presented was a certificate of completion of the National Telephone Cooperative Association's Basic Management Institutes, to Manager R. W. Shackelford. The management institutes consist of seven three-day courses covering the principles of management as applying to telephone and electric cooperatives.

Presentation of awards was made by Burrell B. Evans, attorney for the cooperative.

A subdistrict meeting on the wheat situation will be held in Plainview at the high school auditorium on April 18, at 10:00 a.m. The meeting is designed for all wheat producers in this area and will provide these producers with objective information on the wheat situation, thus enabling them to make their own decisions on the forthcoming wheat referendum. A team of specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will present the information in regard to the total wheat situation.

The meeting will last approximately four hours, which will give ample time for individual questions regarding the wheat situation as it now stands.

Briscoe County agricultural agent Leon Grossdier says that all wheat producers are urged to attend this meeting to receive factual information on the forthcoming referendum.

Telephone Company Places Service Man Here

Billy Ray Ford, combinationman for General Telephone Company of the Southwest, has been moved to the company in Silverton, effective April 5. Ford will assume the Silverton duties of Paul Bailey, combinationman at Quitaque, who will now attend the exchanges of Quitaque and Turkey.

In order to economically locate a man here, the company revised both the Ralls and Memphis plants and commercial districts. Mr. Bailey will be working Quitaque and Ralls, and Mr. Ford will take care of Turkey out of the Memphis District of Silverton and Happy out of the Ralls District.

Mr. Ford, a graduate of Claude Public Schools with the class of 1955, is married to the former Bobby Lyles of Panhandle. They have three children, Ricky Ray 6; Debbie 5; and Janis 3. They are members of the First Christian Church.

A highlight of the meeting was a lunch consisting of barbecued beef, potato salad, beans, apricots, bread, and soft drinks which was served at the noon hour. Mrs. Bill Long, Juanita Welch, Mrs. J. L. Webb and Mrs. Jack Strange assisted with serving plates for the 90 who participated in the outing.

A Board of Review for an Eagle Scout was conducted shortly after the noon hour. The committee, composed of Jack Strange, Bill Long, Charles Alexander of Lubbock and Glenn O'Neal of Plainview, examined Mike Baird of Quitaque, who passed with flying colors. Mike will now be required to pass an examination on the International level before being named an Eagle Scout. His Scout leader is Paul Bailey of Quitaque, who was also present for the review. Under Bailey's direction, several Quitaque boys have attained the Eagle Scout honors.

The Board of Review was held in a canvas "lean-to" with the scent of canyon cedar drifting through on the light breeze.

State Highway Department officials were on hand to note the improvement which has been made in the road from Highway 256 into the Scout Camp. In March a committee composed of Alton Steele, Jimmy Webb, Judge M. G.

Moreland, Bill Long, James Davis, and Gus Benner of Lubbock appeared before the Highway Commission in Austin to request that the state assume maintenance of the camp road. Word was received last week that the state has accepted this responsibility and will maintain a permanent-type paved road to the camp.

Marshall Formby of Plainview, who has taken an active interest in the Haynes Camp, was there, as well as Gene Crabtree and J. R. Long of Childress, district representative of the Texas Highway Department, and Manley Woods, who is the resident county supervisor for the Highway Department.

Local highway department workers had done an excellent job of grading, widening and smoothing the roadway before the district camp meeting.

Charles Alexander of Lubbock, chairman of the South Plains Council of Boy Scouts, estimates that in 10 years the Haynes Camp will be the top camp for scouts in the state of Texas. Members of the local scout committee believe that the great value of the camp site is in its natural setting and beauty. To develop it with permanent buildings would erase from the lives of the scouts the feeling of having "camped in the wilds."

I NEVER Walked Alone

In Loving Memory of William Malone by Eula Malone

I never walked the road alone
When he went away,
God took my weak and trembling hand
And kept me night and day.

I always knew that He was near
When hot tears had to fall,
For Jesus wept at Lazarus tomb
Our griefs He bore them all.

It seemed when sleep would never come
And nights were long and bleak,
In gentle voice so soft and low
To me He'd always speak and say:

"My child, this weary road
I had to walk alone.
None to me did comfort give.
I bore my cross alone.

"But then the tomb was opened wide —
I'll live throughout endless years
I'll give a gentle hand to those Who seek Me through their tears.

"I'll give them comfort, joy and love
Throughout eternity.
I'll give them grace to carry on
If they but ask of Me."

God helps me live the life I should.
May I with patience wait,
Till You shall call me safely home
And open wide the gate.

TEXAS COTTON GROWERS REPORT:

Entire Season Control of Thrips, Aphids and Mites...

Di-Syston Treated Plants Are Stronger, Straighter... Produce More Squares Earlier

West Texas and New Mexico cotton growers now have a new way to control thrip damage and early-season stunting... with Di-Syston granular insecticide. Di-Syston is placed in the soil with the seed or side dressed after planting. The chemical is then absorbed by the growing roots and carried to all parts of the plant through the sap stream—as soon as the plant emerges. No part of the plant is unprotected—even tender new growth as it is formed.

The result? With Di-Syston, your early cotton grows faster, has stronger, straighter stems, more vigorous foliage. Squares form earlier and the plant produces more of them. Many growers in the Lubbock area have reported full season control of thrip with just the one application. You get higher yields because of the good Di-Syston start. This year, get your crop off to a good start with Di-Syston. Complete instructions for use are printed on the label on every package. Use Di-Syston.

Is It Heartless?

Have you ever considered the plight of the six-year-old Latin-Americans who walk into the classrooms of our own public school each September? Most of these children are from non-English speaking families—or at best, from parents who have a limited understanding of English, but do not speak it in the home.

These small children, with the handicap of not understanding or speaking English, are forced to compete scholastically with others in their class. It is only human nature that they become inattentive and unconcerned with the activities when they do not understand the directions given. Primary teachers are aware of the fact that they are not necessarily "problem children," but rather, "children with problems."

Young Sam Johnson
by James L. Clifford

At the first mention of Dr. Samuel Johnson a vision arises of an old man—the great moralist of dictionary fame, lumbering on an uncertain course down Fleet Street with James Boswell in his wake. Now for the first time, this full-length biography by James L. Clifford concentrates on the first part of Johnson's remarkable life, showing what fashioned the amazing personality and character of the mature Johnson, how he grew into the colorful figure Boswell so marvelously described.

Mr. Clifford knows more about Dr. Johnson's family and his early life than did Boswell or any of Johnson's later friends. He includes a wealth of fresh and fascinating evidence—from manuscripts and old records in Lichfield and London, as well as in the recently discovered Boswell papers. The result is an excitingly original biography that may well revise contemporary thinking about one of the greatest literary figures of all time.

Here is the shy and ungainly Sam Johnson, physically handicapped in so many ways, poring over books in his father's Lichfield bookshop. Here is a full account of Johnson's family life and of the many tensions in the household which were possible cause of his later neurotic tendencies. The reader meets Sam's father, Michael, the traveling bookseller; sees the bustling Lichfield Square on market day; reads of Johnson's brief stay at Oxford and his unhappy experiences in bookselling and teaching.

There is startling new evidence about Sam's marriage to a wilful twenty years his senior, his beloved Tetty, and the strange course of their life together. We see Johnson and young Davy Garrick, with one horse between them, setting out for London where Sam plunges into the life of a hack writer—writing and translating, contributing to Edward Cave's famous 'Gentleman's Magazine,' befriending colorful eccentrics around St. John's Gate, prowling the dark alleys of noisy, brawling London with his crony Richard Savage.

Whether Johnson is undergoing his exciting yet painful literary apprenticeship in London or charming the gentry in the Midlands, this narrative of his early years is alive with the sights and sounds as well as the historical drama of England in the eighteenth century. Certainly these four decades were the making of the man, and at the book's end Johnson in his fortieth year, stands on the threshold of a glittering career, ready to make his immortal mark.

There are eight pages of illustrations in 'Young Sam Johnson' and can be obtained from the high school library. The book is on the senior reading level.

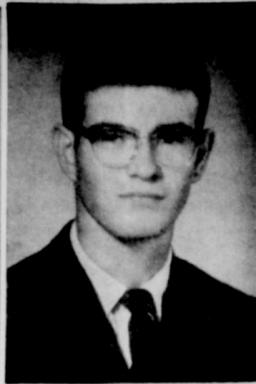

History Of The McDaniel House

by Jerry Lynn Garrison

Section No. 213 was surveyed January 10, 1879. The land grant was sold by Joe Gunter and W. B. Munson, attorney, to John G. Adair May 7, 1880. The land was given to Mrs. Adair on May 14, 1885, and was trusted by Alfred G. Renshaw of Scotland in October, 1887. W. T. McDaniel, then of Clarendon, bought the section on October 29, 1902. His son, Cross, was a college student in Clarendon. On weekends he rode home horseback across the canyons. The house, built some time between 1902 and 1910, on the east half of Section No. 213, is now in the possession of Billy McDaniel of Amherst.

Parallel to and somewhat typical of the history of all the oldest home sites in Briscoe County, the history of the McDaniel home place is bewitching. The story seems to be one of Texas hospitality.

During the era of the unpaved "28 mile lane" located between Tulia and Silverton, homeward-

Truman Loyd

It has been said that quite a lot of joy has been brought into the halls of Silverton High School by Truman Loyd. He likes to make people laugh and he always wears a smile, rain or shine.

Truman has been a member of the Future Farmers of America his freshman and sophomore years. He serves as their parliamentarian during his sophomore year.

Truman is one of the most eager-to-help boys in SHS, and is always on hand when there is a job to be done or fun to be had.

Teacher: What do ghosts eat for breakfast?
Student: Ghost Toasties and evaporated milk.

Joe Kitchens

Joe Kitchens usually has a smile for anyone willing to return it. He is rather quiet but proves his friendship through his actions.

Joe has been active in the 4-H Clubs of the community, and his achieve many honors in that organization. He has been a member of the Future Farmers of America four years and served as secretary of that organization his junior year.

He was a member of the Livestock Judging Team his sophomore year and of the Land Judging Team as a freshman, helping them win first place in the county contest.

You probably won't see Joe very often, but you can always depend on him when you need a helping hand.

SILVERTON STUDENTS DO WELL IN LITERARY EVENTS HELD HERE

Although Silverton High School was not well represented in some bound Silverton folks sometimes were forced by sopping rain and sticky mud to take refuge in the McDaniel home where they stayed overnight. (Highway 86 was paved in 1936.)

On Christmas day, 1928, a number of school students from Tulia visited the Tule Canyon in moderately mild weather. They were fronted by sudden, cold fury before leaving the canyon, but were able to reach the McDaniel home, which is near the canyon rim, for shelter and warmth.

The deserted, weather-beaten old house has a unique feature recorded in its years of hospitality. One instance of this was the time the McDaniels were gathered for a family reunion, and a lone gypsy appeared on the scene. Quicker than the family could realize, numbers of gypsies had poured in from all directions to camp between the house and the road. On several occasions, gypsies came in covered wagons and camped there overnight, seemingly in the same manner—one, then many. Although they never troubled or harmed the McDaniel family, these nomads were frighteningly impressive in typical gypsy apparel, around their campfires that crackled in the black night air.

And still, on rare occasions, modern-day gypsies camp overnight at the intersection of highways 378 and 86 immediately east of the Rock Creek Grocery. I wonder if this possibly is a hangover from bygone days.

"Excuse me, sir; did you happen to have seen a policeman anywhere about here?"

"I'm sorry, but I haven't seen a sign of one."

"All right, hurry up and give me your watch and wallet then," said the robber.

Two women, who had once been neighbors, met on the street after not having seen one another for several years.

"My," said one, "I would hardly have known you—you look so much older."

"I wouldn't have recognized you either," said the other, "except for your dress and hat."

CASE FOR THE ANNUAL STAFF

by Jerry Garrison
Assistant Editor

The work a student does on a school yearbook (or a school newspaper) is a necessary part of his education. This is not to say such work is a necessary part of everyone's education; however, the ones who choose to do this job have a basic interest in some form of journalism, art, graphic arts, history, photography, advertising or business management. Members of an annual staff may make one of these fields a career, and if they do, needless to say, they have a headstart.

Suppose we look a little further into the subject to see precisely what a person can learn (if he applies himself) by being a member of an annual staff.

Let's consider journalism. Writing is the primary step. The journalist must have an extraordinary command of the English language. He learns quickly that his space is limited and he must say the maximum in a minimum number of words. Laconic writing calls for a larger than average vocabulary, so that one word can replace five. But a larger vocabulary is not useful unless the writer can spell each word correctly!

Annual editor, hard at work getting things done on schedule.

Once the writer has the words and can place them in a short and entertaining sentence, he runs up against punctuation. Commas, periods, quotations marks are just as important to a journalist as words. Meeting deadlines teaches a person the necessity of getting a job one on time.

Responsibility goes with getting along with others to reach a common goal. Throughout school life each student is taught to accept responsibility for preparing his homework, for being honest on tests, for attending school regularly and for being on time to class. But these are responsibilities affecting the individual alone. He is the only one to suffer if he fails. However, on the annual staff the student is responsible to other persons—not just fellow staff members, but to every single person in school! When he does not meet his responsibility here, he fails the entire student body and faculty. This includes handling a budget and making it work.

Salesmanship is another area of education for the staff. This not only includes the excellent practical experience of selling annuals to students and advertising to local merchants but also the indirect "soft sell" of the school through the annual.

Appreciation of creativity and the graphic arts is an outgrowth of dealing with a publication of any type. But before the appreciation can exist there must be a basic knowledge of the field. Few high school or college students could explain the lithographic printing process or recognize a particular type style until they become a part of the printing industry by producing an annual.

The annual staff has a responsibility to turn out perfected work. Taylor Publishing Company, publisher of our annual, offers a monthly "text" pamphlet which includes a theme, articles on improving sections in the annual, lithography lingo, layout idea file, and heading type styles. A trained and experienced representative from the company, Mr. Floyd Hobson, works with the staff. Much of the business transacted with the publishing company is done through Mr. Hobson on his regular visits. Our staff receives individual interest and special attention from this cooperative and helpful man.

We would like to add just one statement in closing: Any extra-curricular school activity or project is worthwhile if it teaches appreciation for one's fellow man.

Armstrong County 4-H Sale Set April 20

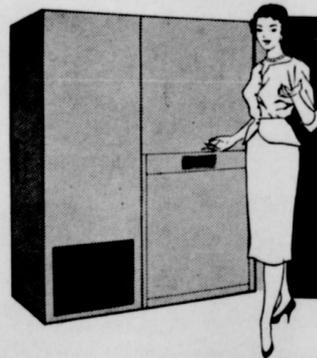

The Armstrong County Annual 4-H Club Farm Machinery Sale will be held April 20 at Claude. NITROGEN FERTILIZER

AMOUNT The profitable management of a modern farm takes the same kind of astute judgment as that required for any other business. The farmer is under the same pressure to get maximum return on his capital investment, raw materials and labor if he is to keep his farm profitable.

Most farmers are quick to realize that an unwise economy can be very expensive. No area of farming is more susceptible to unwise economy than that of fertilization. The investment in money and labor that goes into preparing a seed bed, planting, cultivating, irrigating and harvesting is great enough that the difference in the cost of doing a get-by job of fertilizing and doing an adequate job is negligible. But the difference in results, the dollar value of the harvest, can be 15, 20 or even 25 per cent. The only additional cost in applying enough fertilizer rather than nearly enough is the comparatively small cost of the fertilizer itself, yet it has a significant effect on the return from the whole farming operation including the big investment in the land.

Let's consider a hypothetical case:
If 100 lbs. of anhydrous ammonia per acre produces 5,000 lbs. of grain sorghum with a given level of crop management, we can safely say that an additional 50 lbs. of anhydrous ammonia will add 500 lbs. to the yield. At 6 3/4 cents per pound applied, the additional fertilizer costs $3.37. At $2.00 per hundred, the increase in yield is worth $10.00 or an increase in net profit of $6.62 per acre.

But what about wasting fertilizer? No one will question the fact that you can apply more fertilizer than the crop will use. There is a safety factor, however. Generally speaking, once the anhydrous ammonia goes into the ground, its nitrogen stays there until it is used by a plant. The nitrogen left over from this year's crop is there to aid in the decomposition of the residue and is still there at planting time next spring.

Your Nitromite dealer is ready now to put this profit maker to work in your fields. Call him right away. He has all the information on the Shamrock Farm Credit Plan.

SPECIAL NOTE TO CATTLE FEEDERS Nitrogen causes an increase in the protein content as well as an increase in yield of grain sorghum. Consequently, both the added protein and added yield must be taken into account in calculating the most profitable rates of nitrogen to apply.

Briscoe County Farmer Solving Own Water Conservation Problems

by Mary Ann Sarchet

Contrary to the opinions of many of the city dwellers, some farmers are seeking to solve water conservation problems which have occurred with increased irrigation activity. It is a popular practice among city newsmen to point up only apparent waste and negligence with no consideration of the activities underway for water conservation.

Earl Cantwell, a long-time Briscoe County farmer, is solving his water conservation problems with the assistance of the Cap Rock Soil Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service. Several others who farm in the area are considering similar plans according to Virgil Henson, SCS work unit conservationist.

Cantwell is the owner of a piece of land located five miles west and seven miles south of Silverton which was dominated until recently by an 80-acre often-dry lake.

The land has now been reclaimed through the construction of a circular dam or dike which will not only catch and convert to constructive use the irrigation tail water from two sections of land, but will also save and harness any rain water which may fall in the area. Cantwell's son, Elton, lives on this land not far from the location of the dike, which is the realization of a dream of several years. A total of 22 acres has been reclaimed from the lake bed, which is now inside the six-foot-high dike. The lake bed which lies outside the dike has also been reclaimed and will be sprigged to Bermuda grass about April 15.

When the water reaches the height of the drain pipe it automatically waters the flat pasture land inside the dike, and if the amount received is in excess of the pasture's need it can be pumped out to water any of the crops on the Cantwell farm. The reclamation project is tied to two irrigation wells by approximately 4000 feet of underground irrigation pipe.

A point of particular interest is that the entire project was accomplished with materials and labor contracted in Briscoe County. Carman Rhode Pipe Company installed all the pipe from the pump to the wells for the irrigation system; Silverton Metal Works made the stands, etc.; Dud Watters and Pete Chitty did the dirt work, and J. C. Fowler did the leveling. The work was accomplished from start to finish in three weeks. The dirt for the six-foot-high dike was moved in six days.

Including the dirt work, pump, 1,000 feet of pipe, motor, tank, labor—all costs of building and putting into operation, the dike cost totaled approximately $4,000. The size of the project is tremendous, and the cost is almost unbelievably low in relation to the increased value of the 80 acres of land.

"Why, I wouldn't take $1,000 an acre for my lake!" said Earl Cantwell with a broad grin. "That 80 acres is the most valuable property I own." Cantwell then added that a man would be impractical to refuse $80,000 for an 80-acre plot, and said, "The lake would be valueless alone, but to me it is worth $1,000 an acre!"

The dam has already caught wandering tail water which will no longer go to waste in a mosquito-breeding swamp.

The overall conservation plan was developed with the assistance of the Cap Rock Soil Conservation District and Soil Conservation Service technicians in Silverton. Bermuda grass sprigging and irrigation pipe lines are being cost-share through the Great Plains Conservation Program.

According to the SCS work unit conservationist, others in the district who have completed their conservation work plans for similar projects are Frank Mercer, J. D. McGavock, G. W. Lee and the Bomar Brothers. Others who are interested in conservation projects on their farms or ranches may receive further information on planning, building and cost-sharing by visiting the office of the Cap Rock Soil Conservation District in Silverton.

VIRGIL HENSON, Elton Cantwell, Carman Rhode and Earl Cantwell look over the completed project from the location of the irrigation pump adjacent to the dike. With the pump the water can be taken from the dike to any of the fields on the farm. Also seen in the foreground is the sump through which the water being reclaimed is drained before being pumped to the desired area of the farm. —Briscoe County News Photo

WHEN VIEWING the pasture inside the dike, one's attention is drawn to the absolute flatness of the land. The 22 acres inside have already been watered in preparation for sodding to Bermuda grass. The water caught in the three-foot ditch around the outside of the dike can be used to water the pasture inside or pumped to any of the fields on the Cantwell farm. —Briscoe County News Photo

 Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Watkins and family

CARD OF THANKS
 I want to say "thanks" to the good friends of Silvertown for the many nice things they did for me during my illness in the Plainview Clinic. The generous money donations, the beautiful get-well cards, visits and words of encouragement all helped to keep me keeping on. Thanks so much.
 Mrs. Viola M. Newman

SOUTHERN JOURNEYS
 128-page travel guide—Enjoy Our Wonderful Southland More

The 128-page travel book is presented by the Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers of the South. It is a carefully selected compilation of the outstanding Southland travel articles published during the past fifteen years in Ford Times, Lincoln-Mercury Times, and The Continental Magazine. The authors and artists, many of whom are Southerners, have depicted their area of the country in a way that makes fascinating reading. Southern Journeys is a useful travel guide, for in its pages the car owner finds the Southland's best known historic shrines and travel attractions, the little known by-paths leading to long remembered family vacations, and a listing of recommended restaurants of the South; all proving that there's something for everyone to enjoy in our wonderful Southland... the year 'round.
