Silverton (Briscoe County) Texas

VOLUME 55 NUMBER 23

County Soaked Daily By Rains

Briscoe County has been soaked during the past ten days by rain showers which have fallen almost daily. Some of the surrounding counties have suffered heavy hail and flooding, but Silverton has not had hail and the rains have fallen comparatively gently.

Amounts reported in Silverton during the past week have been:

May 28.....	.30
May 30.....	.03
May 31.....	Trace
June 1.....	1.19
June 2.....	.25
June 3.....	.27
June 4.....	1.44

The May total as measured in Silverton was 2.26 inches, and so far the June total is 3.15 inches of moisture. The amount received has varied over the county, but all parts have received a good soaking.

"Red" Deisher at the Rock Creek Store measured three inches of rain Tuesday night. Wednesday at noon water was still draining into the Roy Mayfield lake, and it was estimated that the lake would contain the largest amount of water it has ever held when all the water is in.

Severe weather was predicted beginning at 11:00 a.m. Wednesday and with dark clouds overhead at press time, more rain was forecast. Some hail damage has been reported along the southern area of the county. Some reported that wheat crops, almost ready to harvest, were destroyed Sunday evening. James Davis said, after surveying crop damage on one of the places he farms (not his home place) that it looked like the hail was about the size of golf balls. Some damage to utility poles was also seen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holt of Silverton caught these prize rainbow trout while stream fishing in Red River, New Mexico. The fish measured 15 inches and weighed one and a quarter pounds each. The Holts, who have a summer home in Red River, were awarded Fishermen's Certificates. They report the fishing excellent at this time of the year.

School Bond Election Carries 174 to 20

The property damage in the Silverton community from the storm on the evening of May 27 has been estimated at more than $20,000. Some plate glass windows were blown out in business fronts in Quitaque the same evening.

Funnel clouds have been reported in the immediate area at least twice in the past week, but none have traveled on the ground in populated areas.

The community of Aiken, southwest of Silverton in Floyd County, had heavy rains and hail Sunday. The Lynn Rhodericks reported watching a tornado form. They sought cover at the home of a neighbor about a quarter of a mile away and when they returned to their home the roads were almost impassable after the flooding and the fields were under water. The light hail that fell at their place did not seriously damage the wheat crop, but the young cotton was a total loss.

In other places near Aiken hail was reported to have covered the ground like snow.

Webb AFB Named For Son Of Local Man

Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring, Texas, is named for a former Big Spring man, 1st Lt. James L. Webb, Jr., whose father, James L. Webb, Sr., operates the Silverton Clay Products plant.

Mrs. Rilla Webb, mother of Lt. Webb, has worked at the base since its activation.

Emerging from World War II with 49 combat missions to his credit in the European theatre, Lt. Webb gave his life in a crash off the coast of Japan on June 16, 1946. His father, Mr. Webb, told the Briscoe County News this week that his son was on a mission for which he had volunteered at the time of his death.

Born in Sweetwater, Lt. Webb moved to Big Spring with his parents as a boy, and attended school there and at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell before going to the University of Texas. He left his studies there to enter the Army Air Force, crowding in 49 missions before rotation to the United States and re-deployment to the Pacific. The war ended and he returned to his civilian life. He never did, however, get flying out of his system and soon he was back in the Air Force.

His P-51 Mustang crashed into the bay while returning from a reconnaissance mission.

Eleven years ago between 15,000 and 20,000 people were on hand at the air base for the open house which marked its dedication to Lt. Webb. Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper dedicated the base to "the strength of the nation," and Rep. George Mahon, chairman of the House committee on military appropriations, praised those in military service, noting: "If it were not for you, we would be in slavery."

Col. Ernest Wackwitz, the base commander, handed a bronze plaque to the mother of Lt. Webb, whose name the base henceforth was to bear. Today the bronze plate is imbedded in a stone marked near the base flag pole, a solemn reminder of how much a man can give for his country.

On hand for the ceremony as the colors were raised proudly in the crisp breeze, were Lt. Webb's widow, Mrs. Doris Hall, his two children, Karen and James Taylor, his father, James L. Webb of Silverton, and his sister, Mrs. W. L. Walker of Levelland.

THE LATE

TAYLOR WEBB

KAREN WEBB

On November 12, 1949, an athletic stadium at Itayube, Japan, was dedicated. The name selected was Webb-Byerly Stadium, in memory of Lt. Webb and another who helped organize athletics there.

These tributes show that Lt.

Webb was beloved by those who knew him, both in Japan and in Texas.

Karen Webb, who is now 17 years old, was graduated from the Russell, Kansas, high school this spring. She attended school one semester in Madrid, Spain, and one semester in Paris, France, last year while living with two of her uncles who are Colonels in the Air Force. Taylor, 14, is a sophomore in high school at Russell, Kansas. Both will be visitors with their grandfather, J. L. Webb in Silverton, this summer.

been to an allergy clinic and may not be familiar with the procedure used. It isn't such a painful process, but to complete the test it is necessary for a tiny dose of vaccine prepared from every known allergy-causing substance to be injected just under the patient's skin.

These tests are read by the amount of reaction, swelling and color, and the vaccine is compounded for the individual of the specific things to which he is allergic in percentage amounts as determined from the tests.

My series of tests took several days, and when it was finished I had had about 200 "jabs" of everything ranging from dog dander, evergreens, careless weeds, molds, dusts and pollens to ingredients used in cosmetics. It never ceases to amaze me that dog or cat dander can be compounded into a clear liquid vaccine!

So, for all of us who sometimes feel like pin cushions and for all the husbands and wives who tire of boiling syringes and stabbing the mate or child every few days—there is hope in the offing. Not hope for being able to stop the boiling and stabbing, but hope that one day soon a more effective vaccine will be compounded to
