Soil Conservation Essay Contest Open

The 19th annual Fort Worth Press Soil Conservation Essay Contest is now open in Briscoe County. The contest provides an opportunity for local boys and girls to earn $200 for writing in 300 words or less on the subject of soil conservation. The title chosen for the essays this year is "Youth's Stake in Conservation."

Contestants should study soil conservation, and then write how soil and water conservation can affect their future. The point is not to try to tell what conservation is or how to conserve the land, but how conservation will help now and in the future.

It is an open contest for any Texas boy or girl 19 years old or younger who is in or out of school but not a high school graduate.

Besides the $200 first prize, there are 50 trophies and medals for other winners. First place winner in Briscoe County will receive $10.00. The second place county winner will receive 7.50, and the third place winner will receive $5.00.

Entries are to be turned in to the Briscoe County News office on or before February 1, 1964. A committee of three judges will select the essays for which the prizes will be given. The winning county entries will be submitted to the Fort Worth Press by the Cap Rock Soil Conservation District for statewide judging.

Grain Sorghum Producers Financial Situation Critical

The Grain Sorghum Producers Association, which represents the grain sorghum farmers of the area, is in a critical financial situation. On hand at the beginning of this year there was less than five hundred dollars in the treasury, which won't go far when you consider last year's program cost nearly four thousand dollars a month. There is still some money to be collected in the area, probably $10,000 to $12,000, which leaves the association some $25,000 to $30,000 short of being able to hold its own with no new projects or increased activity. As new wheat legislation is considered, there may be a call for more activity in Washington to protect what we already have invested for grain sorghum. There will probably be attempts to tie in feed grain with wheat legislation resulting in lower grain sorghum prices. GSPA is the farmers best protection against this.

Right now all of us have too much at stake to quit and let our organization fold up, say members of the local chapter. It has been too evident how much good the Association's efforts have done for sorghum farmers and is in a position to do now, being recognized at home and abroad as the grain sorghum producers' spokesman. To lose this would mean a certain loss of prestige and loss of organized contact with other groups, loss of our office, a central focal point for work, loss of programs and loss of a staff in which there is a considerable investment, as they have gained an immense background of sorghum information. It would be a great task to put it together again. The fight ahead to maintain what we have gained will be just as great, if not greater, than the fight has been to gain them.

Dues to the Association are figured at the rate of two pounds per thousand pounds produced. If you have not already given your check or grain, please do so soon to help keep this organization on its feet. Determine your dues by your total yield in thousands of pounds, times pounds, times market value or price received, and mail or take your check to Briscoe County Grain Sorghum Producers Association, c/o First State Bank, Silvertown, Texas.

Boll Weevil Migrate Into Briscoe County

Boll weevils migrated to within three miles east of Tahoka by late October, 1963. And weevils were present in economic infestations in four High Plains counties. This was the progress last year in the boll weevils' march above the Caprock. The map shows the extent of weevil migration during the 1963 growing season.

But the deadly, costly enemy will surely meet his match in the team of scientists, technicians, and farmers who are pulling no punches to defeat the unwanted intruder. Researchers are hard at work in attempts to learn the weevils' innermost secrets of survival, according to Briscoe County Agent Leon Grossdier. Overwintering capabilities and migration potential are the two big questions they are striving to answer quickly and accurately.

This fall weevils were placed in about 150 cages located in strategic areas where the cotton pest might overwinter. Sites of cage placement included soil bank land, mesquite brush, and shinnery areas. Weevils in each cage were collected from the local areas. Next spring each cage will be checked to see if any weevils are alive.

Don Rummel, Area Extension Entomologist, says even if no weevils are alive, it might take up to five years of work to prove conclusively the weevil can't survive the winter on and near the High Plains. But if weevils in the cages are alive at winter's end, the question will be quickly answered. Then control measures will be begun with aid of researchers, chemical companies, and farmers.

In addition to the cage studies, trash samples from various possible overwintering sites will be examined for weevils during winter. This part of the study may also indicate which sites might be most Briscoe County banks reported deposits of $9,147,964.07 early this week.

H. B. Simpson, assistant cashier, reported that bank deposits with the First State Bank in Silvertown were at an all-time high of $5,836,679.52 on January 6, 1964.

O. R. Stark, vice president, said that deposits with First National Bank in Quitaque were $3,911,284.55, a near record figure. Mr. Stark told the Briscoe County News that a further indication of the prosperity of the people was the fact that loans with his bank were down more than they have been in a long time, standing at $660,457.87.

Deposits with First State Bank in Silvertown a year ago, January 6, 1963 were $4,795,536.43, or $1,041,143.09 less than they were Monday of this week.

First National Bank of Quitaque had on deposit at this same time last year a total of $3,338,703.70, or $572,580.85 less than now.

Total deposits in the county have risen $1,613,723.94. When the call for financial reports came on December 20, First State Bank reported a total of $4,642,391.35 while First National Bank deposits totaled $3,521,185.79.

Entries are to be turned in to the Briscoe County News office on or before February 1, 1964. A committee of three judges will select the essays for which the prizes will be given. Basketball Games To Help March of Dimes

A Black Bloomer game at the Silverton School Gymnasium on Saturday, January 18, will pit the Silverton women against the Quitaque women at 7:00 p.m.

The second game of the double header will be an Old fashioned Three Court between the Silverton and Quitaque men.

Admission will be 25c for students and 50c for adults, and all proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

If weather permits, the Mothers March will be conducted on the evening of Monday, January 20. The march will be sponsored by Eta Chi chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority and by L. O. A. Junior Study Club of Silverton.

Effective January 1 two new March of Dimes chapter-supported special treatment centers for birth defects and arthritis were added to the network of centers to serve the state of Texas. They are located at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston and at the Children's Center in Houston.

Each center brings together a team of experts—doctors, nurses, therapists, social workers and other specialists—to deal with the medical, economical and social problems caused by chronic crippling conditions. Each works to close the gap that exists between research findings in the laboratory and the application of new knowledge at the bedside of the patient. There are over seventy birth defects and arthritis centers supported by the March of Dimes throughout the nation which are affiliated with two-thirds of the country's medical schools.

The admission paid at the benefit basketball games and the donations collected on the Mothers March will go to assist the research, for care and treatment of those crippled with polio before the vaccines were discovered, those crippled by birth defects, in accidents and by arthritis.

Bridge Marathon Opens This Month

The youth who made his home with his parents at the Tomlin-Fleming Gin, apparently died of exposure Monday night when he decided to walk to Silverton from a home three miles northeast of town. His body was found face down in the snow by a brother Wednesday morning about a half mile northeast of his original starting point.

E. C. Strange, justice of the peace, ruled that the boy died from exposure and freezing.

Pallbearers were Santos Garcia, Jr., Beto Garcia, Andrea Nino, Silvestre Ortiz, Seledonio Calvio, and Felix Cruz. Burial was in the Silverton Cemetery under the direction of Roberts Funeral Home.

Survivors were his parents, Mr and Mrs. Felix Parras; one sister Rosa Davila; seven brothers, Felix Jessie, Victor, Manuel, Alfredo Juan and Richard.

BOLL WEEVILS ON THE HIGH PLAINS
OCTOBER, 1963

Prepared by Extension Entomologist, Texas A&M University, October 1963

This diagram shows the extent of the boll weevils migration this year and the western limits of economic infestation in this area, reports Leon Grosdidier, Briscoe County Agricultural Agent. The economic damage in Briscoe County was along the extreme eastern and southeastern edge of the county, but the weevils did migrate several miles west of Silverton. Cages containing weevils have been placed in several areas along the caprock in ideal hibernation spots to check the boll weevils' ability to survive the winter on the plains.

Boll Weevil --

favorable for weevil overwintering.

The Extension Service is planning a spring survey of early-planted cotton in an attempt to detect emergence of overwintered weevils. If weevils are present in early season, a chemical control program would be the most logical approach to control, says Rummel. This, combined with a fall spray program to reduce numbers before they enter diapause, will be recommended to prevent yield loss and provide control.
