OR Get

The gremlins got into this column last week and made pi! Not pie, just pi. That's our term for a mess. Some of our readers probably thought that my clutch was slipping, but it really did make sense the way it was originally written. A couple of lines out of their proper order destroy the sense of an entire paragraph.

公 公 公 All around the town people are complaining about the telephone service. I personally was in favor of a drastic change the last time petitions for better service were circulated here, and I was against the city fathers' letting the phone company get out of it so easily.

Of course, I don't know what General Telephone Company promised the city at that time to get the patrons off their backs, but I do know that the same thing had happened before with the same results, and as far as I can see the service improves slightly for a short while and then gets right back into the same old rut amazto school for the first time in the first grade rooms at 12:30

BUT, some of the telephone patrons haven't had much service since Christmas.

One of my friends told me that her phone had been out of order most of a month and that when it did ring one day it nearly scared her to death!

Folks often tell us that they try to call us during our business hours and aren't able to get us. Since we have an extension of our business number in our home, we expect to be able to get most all our calls. But, we don't because you can't get the number to ring. And we don't know the phone isn't working because we can call out.

One woman who had her telephone number changed by the company recently told me that she has customers tell her that sometimes they can't get her new number 'o ring. The other day the operator called to tell her that a relative was trying to get in touch Dawson Is Baptist with her. She dialed him back with no trouble. The hitch is that the woman has a beauty shop and Interim Pastor depends on her phone for her business.
