What Makes a Community Great?
The two essential elements used in the creation of any community—village, city, state or nation—are land and people. Land by itself is utterly worthless. Any value it acquires must be given to it by the use made of it by people. The character and personality of a community are also gifts of people. In every community there are three classes. The first class is made up of those who take from the community and give little or nothing to it. They are the ones who break the laws of health and require hospitals. Others break the laws of society and make police prisons and other corrective elements necessary. Class two is made up of citizens who pay their own way. They run their business efficiently. They are paid adequately for the services they render. They take good care of their homes and families. They do not give much thought to general civic betterment. Most important is the third class. That is made up of citizens who not only pay their own way but contribute generously to community betterment. They build the hospitals, parks, libraries, schools and other community institutions. They concern themselves with the welfare of all citizens. They not only refrain from harming others, but use their time and energy and money to help their fellow citizens achieve their good purposes. A mere handful of such leaders gives a city a reputation that holds a high place for centuries. The Golden Age of Greece has taken its high place in history because of the creative leadership supplied by no more than 15,000 citizens. The creative wealth of this third group of citizens is not their money and other material possessions. What gives them their character and personality which they give to their community are their ideas—their mental wealth.

Deadline Near for Cotton,
Grain, Wheat Sign-Up

Cotton farm operators today were reminded of the fast-approaching deadline for signing up to take part in the 1965 domestic allotment program for upland cotton. The last day for filing a program application is Friday, March 26. Louie Kitchens, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, points out that the sign-up is being conducted only for the operators of farms whose domestic allotments are less than their effective allotments; in general, these are farms with an effective cotton allotment of more than 15 acres. Growers on farms with cotton allotments of 15 acres or less are eligible for program benefits without signing up provided their cotton acreage is within the farm's domestic allotment. (For these small-allotment farms, the domestic allotment is the same as the effective allotment.) The sign-up now underway at the Briscoe County ASCS Office applies primarily to operators of domestic cotton the chairman explained, since it provides for the initial enrollment of operators who wish to take part in the 1965 feed grain program. During the current sign-up period wheat farm operators in this area have an opportunity to change their sign-up intentions regarding the number of acres they signed up last fall for diversion under the wheat program. Wheat farmers with feed grain base acreage who wish to use the program's acreage substitution provisions—as between wheat and the feed grains—also need to sign up in the feed grain program at this time. The current sign-up period extends through Friday, March 26.

House Bill 11, by Representative Ralph Wayne of Plainview was signed into law today by Governor John Connally. The bill is a break for cotton farmers throughout the State and increases the gross weight limit on cotton trailers from 10,000 to 15,000 pounds. Under Wayne's bill there is no increase in the registration fee and brakes will not be required.

It's Coming-Out Time For Termites Again

Termites aren't known to have a high school of their own, or even to run dances, but entomologists of the National Pest Control Association say that the springtime swarming of the termite is part of their courtship prior to setting up housekeeping.

It's "coming out" time again for a socially-minded insect which has the dubious distinction of eating its way through $250,000,000 worth of building lumber every year.

Coming out time for the termite, one of man's oldest and perhaps his wildest enemy, means swarming time, a phenomenon of termite social life which starts in Florida and California in February, moves north with the season, and continues through most of the warm months of the year.

Swarming time, warns Dr. Philip J. Spear, technical director of the National Pest Control Association, is when the wise home, store, restaurant or building owner must be on the lookout.

The signs are a flock of insects which look like winged ants flying around the premises. This means termites are nearby and that young couples are looking for a place to light and start a new colony.

Termites inhabit the soil throughout most of the temperate and tropic zones of the earth's crust and are constantly in search of their only foodstuff — cellulose. Since wood is the chief and most common source of cellulose, they are naturally enough searching for wood.

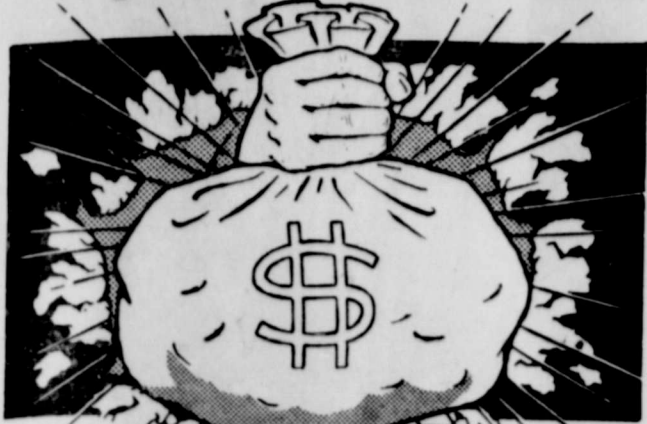

Anyone who has left a stake in the ground for a few months, and then pulled it out, has seen how it has been furrowed and will realize how well the termites scout for food supplies. If, as they travel, they run up against a house foundation, they search out any possible openings — and usually find even the smallest crack. Then they move in, forming what amounts to a continuous supply line of tiny tunnels.

But, Dr. Spear adds, termite damage can be prevented. Modern scientific methods can keep termites out of buildings and can kill those which have gotten in. To avoid trouble with this costly and almost universal pest, the NPCA expert advises regular checkups by experienced pest control operators — especially when termites have been seen swarming from structures — and the hiring of a reputable and recognized pest control firm when the pests are discovered.

"There are no good bargain termite control jobs," Dr. Spear said, "but good control costs far less than many home repairs and the home owner who calls in a reputable firm will be surprised how reasonable his service can be."

The NPCA executive noted that most chambers of commerce and Better Business Bureaus, county Agricultural Extension Agents and the NPCA at 250 West Jersey Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey, will furnish the names of reliable termite control men in any neighborhood.

CASTOR BEAN GROWERS GET INCREASED PARTIAL DIVERSION PAY RATE

The U. S. Department of Agriculture this week increased the partial payment rate to 50 percent of the farm average diversion rate where castor beans are grown on diverted feed grain-wheat acreage. The change applies to the 1965 crop year.

When the substitute crops for 1965 were announced, it was indicated that participants wishing to plant castor beans on diverted acreage could do so, and that they would receive 30 percent of the farm average diversion payment rate. In the 1964 program, this partial payment rate was 50 percent. Reduction in the 1965 rate was initially made because it was believed adequate production could be obtained.

Because of a number of circumstances developing since the original announcement, USDA officials said it has become apparent during the current program sign-up, particularly in the major producing states of Nebraska and Texas, that farmers would not produce castor beans on their diverted acres at the reduced rate. Consequently, in order to maintain U. S. production of this crop, the 50 percent partial payment rate for diversion again will be used when castor beans are grown on diverted wheat or feed grain cropland.

Castor bean oil is used as a lubricant; as a fluid in manufactured items including hydraulic brakes and lifting mechanisms, and for chemical processes whose end products are paints, foam rubber and nylon.

Selection Method Gets Attention Of Cattlemen

A new method for selecting breeding animals, which emphasizes what livestock professors call "functional efficiency," is getting a lot of attention from Texas cattlemen. In it, the fertility potential of cattle is judged by visual appraisal of their physical characteristics. It is best used as a supplement to performance records.

The method was developed by Dr. J. C. Bonsma, internationally known animal scientist and head of the Department of Animal Science at the University of Pretoria, South Africa. Bonsma, now serving as a visiting professor at Texas A & M University, was brought to Texas by a grant from the Wortham Foundation of Houston.

Improving Texas' calf crop percentage is Bonsma's primary goal. His solution is the selection of breeding animals with no structural abnormalities and showing no symptoms of endocrinal imbalance. Signs of endocrinal imbalance show up in an animal's appearance.

"Any experienced cattleman can tell at a glance the difference between a steer and a bull," Bonsma points out. "But he seldom recognizes gradations in differences which are of great importance in assessing the masculinity of the male. A similar situation exists in appraising the relative femininity of the female."

Mrs. Nuke May and Mrs. Obra Watson assisted with the judging at the Floyd County Favorite Food Show in Floydada March 19. Mrs. Edwin Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Bomar, jr., took several of the Silverton girls to observe the Floyd County show.

Mrs. Jack Sutton and Mrs. Obra Watson attended a Foods Training Meeting in Lubbock on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Franklin of O'Donnell attended the funeral of her cousin, Carl Bean, in Amarillo Tuesday of last week and spent the night in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thompson. The Thompsons were also in Amarillo for the funeral.

For instance, Bonsma says the subfertile female frequently has coarse hair growth upon the head and neck and is coarse in bone structure. The fertile female, in turn, is generally refined in hair growth and bone development, showing over-all femininity.

Besides hair growth and bone development, Bonsma's visual appraisal method considers such body characteristics as fat deposition and distribution and muscle development. He has measured more than 22,000 cows and correlated external measurements with each animal's fertility rating.

Most objective and controlled studies on type, Bonsma maintains, have failed to show any correlation with productive or reproductive capacity. Continual observation and evaluation of breeding animals and their offspring in their natural environment contribute greatly to rapid improvement by selection.

"Students showing aptitude for the general stereotyped judging readily learn this new technique and have used it with success in the field," Bonsma asserts.

Through his work at Texas A&M and through speaking engagements over the state, A&M officials and those of the Wortham Foundation hope Texas cattlemen will profit from Bonsma's year-long stay.

Dr. Bonsma will appear in a speaking engagement and demonstration on Friday, March 26, in Hereford, at the Bull Barn. All interested cattlemen are urged to attend.

Registration will begin at 9:15-9:45 a.m. After introductions by Juston McBride, County Agricultural Agent, I. A. Maddox, jr. will speak on "Improving Present Breeding Programs by Selecting for Functional Efficiency," at 10:00 a.m.

The lecture by Dr. Bonsma, "Selecting and Breeding Cattle for Functional Efficiency," will be at 10:30 a.m. Lunch will be served at 12:00 noon, after which Dr. Bonsma will give a demonstration on selecting cattle for functional efficiency.

March of Dimes Reports Drop In 'Water on the Brain' Deaths

Of all birth defects, one of the most shocking and dangerous is hydrocephalus.

This is an affliction characterized by an enlarged and usually misshapen head, caused by the pressure of blocked fluid accumulating in the infant's brain.

Unless this pressure is relieved, severe hydrocephalus can result in death or lifelong blindness or mental retardation.

But a great deal of progress has been made in combating this disease. The National Foundation-March of Dimes points out that the infant death rate in the United States from hydrocephalus is falling substantially. However, an immediate word of caution: this reduction in the death rate is not to say that there is any decrease in the number of babies born each year with hydrocephalus.

What is happening is that many more of them are surviving.

In this country, the annual total of infants now born with water on the brain (another way of defining hydrocephalus) is estimated at more than 15,000. Of these, 8,000 are born or die before the age of one month.

Appalling as that total is, hydrocephalus accounts for far fewer infant deaths than occurred only a few years ago.

For instance, the death rate during the decade 1953-1962 declined by one-third. This means that 579 fewer infants died from hydrocephalus in 1962 than in 1953.

What accounts for this extraordinary and heartening reduction in deaths from a dread and mysterious condition that predates recorded history?

Dr. Martin P. Sayers, a widely known authority on hydrocephalus and a neurosurgeon at the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center, Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio, attributes the drop in the mortality rate to two factors. "The first," he explains, "is that fewer parents nowadays attempt to cover up the birth of a defective baby. A definite reform in attitudes toward birth defects has been brought about in quite recent years by potent and constant doses of public education.

"The second factor is the recent and substantial improvement in the techniques of 'shunt' surgery. In this area there are refinements every year. There are fewer complications such as clogging in the shunt tube in the head and infections arising from it. In general, too, we are now able to operate earlier on these babies before the accumulated pressure damages both sight and intellect and endangers the infant's life."

"Shunt" surgery in hydrocephalus means the insertion of a fine plastic tube into the brain cavity passage where the circulating fluid is "dammed" so that it flows away harmlessly into the blood stream and thus relieves the pressure on the optic and other nerves.

A specialist in this delicate technique, Dr. Sayers has performed about 1,000 such shunts.

"Let me say that contributors to The National Foundation-March of Dimes deserve the gratitude of the medical profession, as well as that of present and future parents, for making possible greatly expanded teaching in this field through medical school grants," Dr. Sayers declared.

Riding With Rover

Some dogs just don't like to ride in cars and others get car sick. Either type will make a miserable passenger. However, you might be able to lessen or even eliminate the situation. Your dog's unhappiness might be caused by static electricity. A static belt hung from the axle and touching the pavement has cured many dogs of car sickness. It has also made riding pleasant for other dogs.

Veterinarians now have calming drugs for excitable dogs. If your dog actually gets motion sick consult the veterinarian for a remedy. Usually the drug recommended will prevent motion sickness for as much as 8 hours.

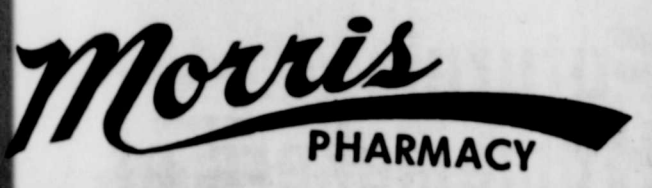

Some dogs insist on hanging their heads out of the window while riding. The experts at the Furina Pet Care Center advise you never to permit this. Bits of grit may easily be driven into his eyes. Or, your dog may get nasal and eye inflammation just from the wind. Either make him keep his place in the car or close the window most of the way.

If Rover is driving out of the country with you, don't forget to check health requirements. Canada requires a health certificate and a rabies vaccination certificate. Or, if you and your dog travel down Mexico way, your dog must have been vaccinated against rabies within the past year. A few precautions will make it a happier trip for both of you.

Mission of Ysleta by E. M. Schiweitz

THE MISSION OF YSLETA The Church that changed sides!

When the Indians revolted against Spanish rule in 1681-2 in the upper Rio Grande Valley in New Mexico, refugees sought safety at the mission at El Paso del Norte (now Juarez). One group settled on the Mexican river bank and named its community Ysleta del Sur (South). This settlement was established in 1681 and a mission was completed the following year on a small island in the Rio Grande.

The Rio Grande changed its course and the site is now in Texas. Ysleta and its mission are generally given the distinction of being the oldest permanent settlement in Texas... truly a church that changed sides!

From Kathy

Each of us was born with a God-given talent and it is our duty to cultivate this talent to the best of our ability. The seed was there at birth. We must feed it until it is full grown.

The first thing which must be done is to determine your talent or talents. For some this takes many years of searching. For others it is found instantly.

Secondly, you must learn how to make this talent grow. You must learn all you can about it. Go to a school or an institute which will enable you to better use it.

After you have gained as much knowledge about it as is necessary, put this talent to use. No matter how small it is, it is important and should be held as so. Never let it dwindle away. Never be satisfied with it. Always try to better it and make it grow more.

Many of you have not yet determined what you will do in life or what you wish your profession to be. In choosing, take into consideration what you can do and what you would be happiest doing. You may not have discovered what your special talent is yet. It may take you many years; but once you find it, it will always be yours.

EASY PEAR KUCHEN USES CAKE MIX

Please all members of the family with this tempting dessert. Slices of tender canned pears are arranged over a chocolate malt layer, then covered with a sour cream custard and crunchy filberts.

The dry cake mix is merely crumbled with butter to make a brownie-like bottom crust. A simple custard of sour cream, egg and sugar binds the sliced pear and cake layer together. Canned pear and chocolate flavors are most compatible, however you might try a spice cake mix if you prefer.

PEAR KUCHEN

- 1 (1 lb. 13 oz.) can Bartlett pear halves
  - 1 egg
  - 1 cup dairy sour cream
  - 1 package chocolate malt cake mix
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1/2 cup butter
  - 1/4 cup toasted chopped filberts
- Drain pear halves, slice each in fourths. Crumble cake mix and butter together to consistency of coarse corn meal. Reserve 1/4 cup mixture for topping. Pat remaining mixture into 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Cool. Arrange pear slices over cake. Beat egg slightly, blend in sour cream and sugar. Pour over sliced pears. Mix remaining 1/4 cup cake mixture and nuts, sprinkle over top. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes or until custard is set. Makes 12 servings.

Each spring you lay it on the line . . . betting everything on a profitable harvest. It's just good business to stack the odds in your favor. An ideal way to start improving the odds is with a pre-plant application of Nitromite . . . Shamrock's fine brand of anhydrous ammonia. Then you'll know the crop you plant will have all the nitrogen it needs. Sufficient nitrogen all through the growing season means the crop can produce more PROFIT at harvest time. Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

No matter how you look at it, this car makes a lot of sense.

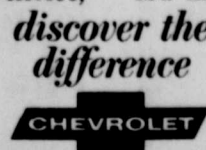

If you're interested in value (and who isn't), the eleven features above give you a good idea why more intermediate-size car buyers are thinking Chevelle.

If you're looking for a wide power choice, Chevelle starts out with a standard 120-hp Six, an ideal city performer. After that you may order from a variety of engines that turn it into an even greater highway performer.

Room? Large door openings. Wide curved side windows for extra shoulder room. Great front and rear leg room. Those four, five or six passengers have it made. And so do you. Chevelle may seat like a big car but it handles like a smaller car.

Comfort? Thick wall-to-wall carpeting in Malibu models. Foam-cushioned seats. Easy-to-read instrument panel. The whole interior looks like those in cars costing far more. Come on down to our showroom and take a drive soon. Chevelle begins to make even more sense after you've gone a couple of miles.
