THE OPEN DOOR

Rev. 3:8

by Rev. Clyde Cain

How deep is our appreciation? After Andrew Carnegie's death, one of his relatives was especially bitter toward the old gentleman. The relative reviled the steel king, heaping upon his memory curses that would have made the old Scotsman turn over in his grave had he been able to hear them. Finally friends were able to drag out of the disgruntled relative the reason for his hatred of Andrew Carnegie. Carnegie had left him only one million dollars in his will and had given 365 million to public charities.

I do hope that this is not a picture of YOU.

Do you take advantage of opportunities to show your appreciation for what others have done for you?

In this society it seems that there is always an "open door" for the expression of appreciation.
