Mackenzie and the Indians
 In the 1870's, Indians were attacking surveying parties who were coming into this part of the country. They killed some cattle and stole horses from the ranch people who were migrating to this area to make their homes.

It was in the Linguish area that the Comanches and Kiowas met the Comancheros (Mexicans who traded with the Indians) to trade the thousands of Texas cattle and horses which the Indians had stolen. Humans were also traded in the canyon, which was sometimes known as the "Valley of Tears" because of all the weeping and crying among the prisoners.

General R. F. Mackenzie, in the years 1874-75 gathered a small military force to come to this area to subdue the Indians and their attacks upon the white people.

He started from Fort Duncan near Eagle Pass and as he moved along his force increased to 2500 men, whites, Negroes, Mexicans and Indians, 125 wagons, a good number of mules, horses and other campaign necessities. Then Mackenzie made his way northward toward the Plains country, the Llano Estacado, the land of the Comanche, and the home of the buffalo.

Before reaching the area which is now Briscoe County, Mackenzie's troops encountered the Indians several times. The first battle took place at Renderbrook Springs about twenty miles south of the present site of Colorado City. The second battle was on Tobacco Creek, a tributary of the Colorado River. The army continued in pursuit, and the third battle took place in Blanco Canyon. At Quitaque the Indians tried to make a stand (battle four); failing, they continued northward along the "breaks" of the Plains. As the pursued and pursuers moved along, the Indians grew in number and their provisions became less and less; dried buffalo meat was the staple and almost only food. The men and horses were worn out and the weather was severe. The only source of fuel was the dried buffalo chips which were poor indeed for an open campfire and no shelter.

At the Tule Canyon a number of the troop wagons were rendered tearless and Mackenzie ordered them burned. There were wounded and dead on both sides, and the Indians seemed to be proving their ability to outstand the white man in face of starvation and cold. Following the fifth battle, the army was short of food and supplies, and the Indians continued to increase in numbers and strength.

Two days later the Indians were known to be making a fortification for what proved to be their last stand in the canyons. They were felling the huge red cedar trees and arranging them in lines of defense and protection. The scouts, who were familiar with Indian characteristics, knew what the Indians were doing.

General Mackenzie, after looking the situation over, formed his troops and made plans. It was clear that the longer the delay, the better prepared the Indians would be. He, therefore, built a big fire of buffalo chips and any available fuel as if they were to spend the night in camp. Later in the night, the army went out in the direction of the Indian encampment on the Palo Duro. Seven hundred of his soldiers with some citizen-scouts were to cautiously proceed to a hiding place about one-half mile above the Indian camp. Here they were to wait for further orders unless an unusual opportunity presented itself. The General took the remainder of his army and quietly entered the canyon just below the Indians.

At early daybreak the fight was on (battle number six), white and colored alike charged the red cedar fortress, and a hand-to-hand battle followed. General Mackenzie personally led the battle and his horse speared from under him. The Indians, after a hard fight, were forced to flee up the canyon where they were surprised by the waiting seven hundred soldiers. As the two forces closed in, the Indians fled toward the canyon walls, and the fight became a running fight. The Comanche warriors were killed al-

The first meeting will be on April 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the home of President Verna Allison. Roll call will be answered with name suggestions for the club. Each member is urged to bring a prospective member.

most to the man; more than two thousand dead Indians lay scattered over the battlefield. About three thousand squaws and children were taken from their hiding places under the nearby caprock. They were kept unharmed as captives. Mackenzie had lost three hundred men. The long trenches were dug side by side and the whites were tossed into one and the blacks in the other and were covered there to mark the last battleground with the Comanche redman. The Indians were not buried. All Indian ponies not desired by the troops, as well as the incapacitated horses of the army, were rounded up just above the battleground and shot by the General's orders.

The power of the Comanche was broken forever. The captives were exchanged for two chiefs yet at large with small bands. They surrendered and the remnants of the tribe were placed on a reservation.

Fungicides Vital To Top Cotton Production

High quality cotton seed properly treated with a protective fungicide will get the cotton producer off to a head start this year, according to Briscoe County Agent Leon Grossdidier.

In addition, the application of in-furrow soil fungicides at planting time will boost production.

Fungicides which provide adequate seed protection include Ceresan M or L, Panogen 15 and Thiram, says Grossdidier. Research has found that no significant benefits are merited by overcoating with PCNB or Demosan during times when no severe disease problem exists.

Protective fungicides perform the following functions:

1. Promote better seed germination.
2. Reduce seed decay, which results in better emergence and improved stands.
3. Insure an adequate stand at first planting, thus providing an earlier stand and earlier maturity.
4. Conserve soil moisture by eliminating replanting.
5. Eliminate cost of replanting.

In-furrow soil fungicides applied at planting time protect the seedling from soil-borne organisms which may attack the young plant either before or after it emerges from the soil.

Furthermore, these fungicides control pre- and post-emergence damping-off and root rot and help maintain a uniform stand.

Among those soil fungicides providing effective protection are Lanston plus PCNB, Terrador plus Super X, Demosan and Pantera.

Tests at the South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock, with in-furrow soil fungicides have shown increases in yield and stand about 60 per cent of the time.

In these tests, 20 to 25 pounds of seed were planted per acre and returns averaged seven dollars for each dollar invested in the cost of fungicides.

Soil fungicides are recommended where there is evidence of seedling diseases.

The Briscoe County Commissioners' Court among other business at the regular meeting on Monday, March 20, passed an order creating Briscoe County Defense and Disaster Commission.

This was the first step in the organization which will involve the County and both Silverton and Quitaque in its operations. The implementation of this program will serve to benefit all parts of the county.

Mrs. C. L. McWilliams was in charge of the program, and showed colored slides of points of interest around Silverton and Quitaque, including most of Briscoe County and surrounding counties. The pictures showed how much Briscoe County has to offer tourists as well as "homefolks."

Brownies, coffee and punch were served to Judge M. G. Moreland, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Northcutt, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Allard, Mrs. McWilliams and Mrs. Berton Hughes.

Mrs. O. Z. Light of Panhandle spent Easter Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Shelby Haynes.

Grossdidier reminds cotton producers who have saved their own seed to be sure to have it checked for germination percentage. This should be done prior to treating the seed with fungicide.

Texas Cotton Farmers To Visit Washington

A chartered plane load of Texas cotton farmers will fly to Washington on April 4, to participate in the National Farmers Union Cotton Legislative Fly-in Program. Regarding the purpose of the "fly-in", Naman said, "We are asking farmers to take a couple of days off their farms to speak up on the problems facing Texas' cotton growers where their words will directly reach those who are making the decisions that affect prices and costs."

Those from here who are planning to participate in the "fly-in" are Beryl Long, Milton Dudley, J. D. McGavock and possibly Faris Martin, a co-op representative.

THE OPEN DOOR

"Behold, I have set before thee an open door . . ." Rev. 3:8
 by Rev. Clyde Cain

Paul Harvey has released several startling facts that I want to share with you:
 Has Christianity lost its forward thrust?
 The 116 million churchgoers in the United States are more than ever before. That's an increase of 30 percent in ten years.
 But illegitimacy has increased 300 percent.
 Pornography has become a 500-million-dollar-a-year business.
 Venereal disease has increased 72 percent in one year!
 Our crime bill is 20 billion dollars a year. And crime is increasing four times faster than our population is increasing.

 Juvenile crime is increasing five times faster.
 For every dollar we spend on churches we spend 12,000 on crime.
 Our nation has 7 million alcoholics and 3 1/2 million problem drinkers. Combine all our churches, synagogues and temples and they are outnumbered by our taverns by 175,000!
 Combine all the money we spend on religion, education, medicine and automobiles—and the money we give to gamblers is greater than all those put together!
 Ours is the most civilized, most Christianized nation on earth, yet 37 million of our own children receive absolutely no religious instruction.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strange, Darla and Ronny, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McPherson, Leila Jo and Bobby enjoyed an Easter Sunday picnic dinner at Burson Lake.

David Strange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Strange of Tulla, had a small growth removed from behind his right knee Monday morning at the Plainview Hospital. Mrs. Ray Thompson was in Plainview Monday helping care for David.

Mr. and Mrs. Bern May were in Amarillo Friday to visit Walker Leonard, a patient at the Veterans Hospital. The men have been close friends since they were cowboys on the Matador ranch when young men.

Mrs. Clifton Stodghill, Mary, Donna and Carol, Mrs. Robert McPherson, Leila Jo and Bobby

What I am saying is that we have more preachers in the United States—but we are paying less attention to them—than at any time in our nation's history.

The Devil's disciples are obviously better salesmen.
 Our clergy is not being persecuted, it's being ignored.

Methodist Dr. Kermit Long says, "With all our education, our theology, our fine buildings, our image of the church, we are doing less to win people to Christ than our unschooled forefathers did."

He says, "We're no longer fishers of men, but keepers of the aquarium, and we spend most of our time swiping fish from each other's bowl."

What makes a nation strong? What keeps its people safe?

If political organization and regimentation would do it, Germany would never have fallen.

De Tocqueville said, "America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, America will cease to be great."

Mr. Clergyman, the responsibility is yours. Whether you like it or not, whatever your strategy has been, it's not good enough. It's not been good—enough. How lead you now?

were in Amarillo one day last week.

Mrs. H. P. Rampley visited her niece, Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Ogan and children near Hereford from Saturday until Monday.

Sandi Rhode, a student at Hardin-Simmons University, arrived home Sunday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carman G. Rhode.

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Hall transacted business in Lubbock Tuesday.

Alvie (Dick) Mayfield has been a patient in the Plainview Hospital since early last week when he was flown there from Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, where he had been for several weeks. Mrs. Mayfield is at the hospital with him most of the time.

Newest thing in clothing is the disposable trend—paper clothes.

One of the most revolutionary ideas on the clothing industry today is paper apparel. The ultimate in easy care is the disposable garment. Imagine a label which says wear but don't wash, just throw away. Shorten with scissors. Press with a cool iron.

Disposable apparel is made from a thin netting of rayon or nylon sandwiched between layers of specially processed cellulose. Other disposable garments are made of spun-bonded olefin or saran. The materials, before being made into apparel, can be treated to make them fire-retardant, water and abrasion resistant or even luminous, as in jackets for highway workers.

How are these garments being used? Women and girls enjoy the novelty of disposable garments as well as the ease of care. Some women are using them for maternity apparel. Others find them ideal to wear while doing messy household chores such as cleaning the oven. For the bride, disposable bridal gowns are available as well as bridesmaid dresses and flower girl dresses. For the do-it-yourself cutup, a gold or silver evening gown can be created from a packet of paste on jewels, pattern, and paper fabric. It is thought that dresses which are copies of original Paris designs will soon be available. Men and boys are also enjoying disposable garments. Probably the biggest success story is the disposable swim suit for men. It is available at many hotels which either sell or give them to the traveling man who would like a swim but hasn't brought his suit. These garments are made of olefin and resemble lightweight vinyl. They will last from three to five wearings. One paper manufacturer is testing paper golf slacks, underwear and coveralls. For boys, there are disposable football jerseys. They're just for fun and to be worn at social events, not for football.

Paper products are now moving into schools. For example, disposable caps and gowns can be used at graduation, then thrown away. Paper aprons may be a good idea for the classroom kitchen. One firm is considering making this fabric available by the yard for use in beginning sewing classes.

One of the greatest potentials for disposable merchandise is in the medical field. Doctors and hospitals are already using disposable paper garments ranging from jackets and examination gowns to surgical drape sheets. Other uses being investigated are bed sheets, pillowcases, and wash cloths. Medical people like disposable textiles not only for convenience, but also

Mark Twain

When Mark Twain started "Tom Sawyer" in 1875, he used a new invention to produce his manuscript—a typewriter. Twain was the first American author to show that the keys were faster than the pencil.

Twain was also one of the first reporters to visit Hawaii in 1866. He later gave a series of lectures on this then unheard-of island.

Men in today's world of communications retain Twain's characteristic eagerness to use new, helpful inventions and discover interesting possibilities. For example, the type you're now reading was set by a special new IBM machine—about the size of a typewriter—that can prepare copy in any of 50 type faces with straight right and left margins.

for hygienic reasons. Another possible market for disposable garments would be for travelers and vacationers. Some day hotels may have sufficient quantities of disposable clothing available so that vacationers could buy paper clothes when they arrive, throw them away when they depart, and eliminate entirely the need for packing and carrying heavy luggage.

Marketing experts of large paper manufacturing companies calculate current expenditure for disposable goods at $50 million per year. The success of disposable-textile merchandise rests primarily on the convenience factor. In other words, cost has not played a dominant role. Disposable clothes at the present time cost about $1.75 for a shift dress, $5.00 to $15.00 for an evening gown, $15.00 for a bridal gown, 40c for a child's pinafore, and $3.00 for a matching bra, pettiskirt and kerchief. If the disposable apparel is to reach a true mass market, cost will probably need to be competitive with the cost of laundering conventional clothing. One problem is that it now costs nearly as much to manufacture a paper dress costing $2.00 as it does a regular fabric dress of similar style which would cost $20.00. The industry hopes to develop a machine which will cut and seal a number of garments in one operation.

However, the notable fact in the world of disposable items is that their success is not always dictated by cost. For years, housewives laboriously emptied vacuum cleaner dust bags; when the handy throw-away bag came along, they purchased it enthusiastically even at an extra cost.

Disposable handkerchiefs have almost become a necessity in the American way of life. Other disposables may be just as taken for granted in the future. It is almost impossible to think—that in the future a housewife may be able to purchase inexpensive paper garments in cartons of a dozen or so at a local supermarket along with her groceries. But for the present, despite the proliferation of garment styles and types since the first paper dress, many disposable items are available only in certain areas and others are available only in large department stores.

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne[®])—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H[®]. GOD AND THE MINORITY

Did you know that it is the minority that is on God's side and not the majority? It has always been this way and always will be until the end of time. Scripture is full of proof.

People thought Noah's plans were foolish and only a few trusted in them. What about Joseph's leadings from God? Were they accepted by the majority? Did not the Israelites constantly refuse to obey God through Moses? Look what God did through Gideon and his 300 soldiers. God and the minority put to flight a Multitude, the camels of which were without number. Note Joshua 7:12. You know about David the little man who slayed the giant Goliath. Take a look at that man Daniel. God and the minority.

The Lord is the same and changes not. Malachi 3:6. He doesn't vary. James 1:17. Jesus the same yesterday, and today, and forever. Hebrews 13:8.

Now look into the New Testament. Was Jesus' message received by the majority? No, only the minority accepted salvation, healing, and believed in His miracles, etc. They called Him a sinner. John 9:16 and 24. He was considered gluttonous, and a winebibber. Matt. 11:19. The Pharisees said Jesus cast out devils by Beelzebub. Matt. 12:24.

LONG'S PHILOSOPHY

Can you tell a story JUST the way you heard it? Can you retell the story without putting in little phrases or words? Can you tell a story without changing it just so it is more interesting to the ones you are telling it to, even though it might be a lie? I bet there is not one person who can truthfully answer "yes" to all the questions.

Gossip can probably hurt someone more than any other thing in this world. Gossip can hurt people's feelings, break up marriages, and ruin a person's life. It can even hurt a person bad enough that he or she will take his own life.

Small towns are the best place for gossip. Everybody knows everybody else, so they like to hear stories about one another. Gossip gets started when someone sees someone else doing something that they don't like. They just believe what they see. They never think about circumstantial evidence. Circumstantial evidence has probably hurt more people in this world than all the heartaches combined. Now the person that has seen the deed has "just got to tell someone else." He'll tell his story to someone else and maybe touch it up a little to make it better. Then this person will tell someone and touch it up a little to make his story sound better. After about twenty people have touched up the story, the story doesn't relate to the original story at all and the poor victim is right in the middle of things when he didn't do anything wrong in the first place. The victim can't prove his innocence because everybody is too darn stubborn to listen to the truth. They got the information from a "reliable source." Now the victim is ruined in the town and he has to leave because of what someone thought he saw.

All of us gossip. Everytime we tell a story about someone else, we gossip. And this is good, we need to know about other people as long as they want us to know. It's when we make up stories or tell real stories that hurt other people that we commit our sin. Sometimes I think people enjoy hurting other people by gossiping.

 The sixth grade doesn't do it. The FIFTH grade doesn't do it. But the High School DOES! What? Have an Easter Egg Hunt! It's hard to believe, but it was fun while it lasted—I guess.
 Rhonda Drewry, I've figured out why you found so many eggs. You're closer to the ground than anyone else, and already down there.

Only three days of school this week and three last week and then two solid months. And then three solid months of pure freedom, then more school until Thanksgiving, and . . . oh, well.
 Mike, thank you very much for the portrait you drew of me on the board of the O. H. staff room. You might have some real talent. You might. But that wasn't MY Snoopy you had up there. Maybe you made a mistake and drew a picture of Gary's dog, SHEBA.
 Faye, the Easter eggs COME with speckles on them. Really they do. Jimmy wouldn't eat dirty eggs, would you, Jimmy? WOULD you?

Cynthia, don't closets get a little stuffy for a while?
 Joyce, it's nice going steady, isn't it? I knew you'd say YES. (You did say YES, didn't you?)
 Roy Ann, it sure is nice to know that L. H. can be good when he wants to, isn't it?
 If Joni and Kathy's car is the Silver Fox, and Van's is the Yellow Mare, then what is Roland's, I mean Carron's? The Girl Mobile?

Oh, well, I tried.
 There are three very lucky girls in school. I'll give you three guesses and three clues who they are. They have been the cause of much happiness at the Rampley's and the Drewry's, because three certain Southwestern boys come home every weekend to see three certain girls. One has red hair, and the other two have brown (they go with the Rampleys). They are all fairly short. Who are they?
 Susan, how do you like these visitors you have on Tuesday nights who stay about five minutes but manage to accomplish their purpose? It's a good thing your house is well equipped, isn't it LL, J.S., and V.V.?
 Tommy, where in the world did you get the nickname WOLF?
 What are those strange noises coming from the science room, Mr. Evans?
 Before closing I want to remind you that most of this paper was written the Wednesday we got out for the holidays, so don't be upset if some of it is OLD.
 Oh, yes, the answer to this week's mystery question is: MJB, RJB and PDT. Does that help?

 A Winter's Tale

DEAR MEDUSA,
 Last week I waited patiently for the arrival of the Easter Bunny. I stayed home all day, and was very quiet, trying hard to control anxiety. Soon the awful truth began to dawn on me. He wasn't coming. How can I express the pain I felt? It was more than physical pain. It came from deep within me. From my very soul. No matter how I fought it, the ugly truth was still there. The Easter Bunny was DEAD! I thought the Easter Bunny was immortal. Please help to console me during this trying time.

Heart-Ripped

Dear Ripped,
 It is with a glad heart I bring you these happy tidings. The Easter Bunny lives! He informed me himself that he was pooped out before he reached your house. This just proves an old saying: "Don't jump to conclusions." It proves "Don't count your rabbits before they're Dead." BONG.

Dear Moron,
 I will sit down, typewriter in hand to write you a letter by pencil, so please pardon the pen. I started to come to see you when I saw a sign that said, "This will take you to Tulsa." I got on the sign and sat there for three hours and the darn thing never moved.

I don't live where I used to live because I moved to where I live now. When you come to see me you can ask anyone where I live because no one knows.

I am sorry we are so far apart and I wish we were closer apart, then I might come to see you. Aunt Liza died and is doing fine. Hope you are the same.

By the way, we are having more weather this year than we had last year.

I'm sending you a coat by express. But I had to take the buttons off to make it lighter, but if you want them they are in the coat pocket.

Our neighbor's baby swallowed some pins but we fed him a pin cushion and he is doing okay now.

I would send you the money I owe but I have done sealed the envelope.

If you don't get this letter let me know and I will mail it to you.

Sincerely mine,
 Second Moron

P. S. Enclosed you will find a picture, but for fear of getting it lost, I took it out.

P. S. Jr. Be sure to send me your address because I can't send you this letter until I know where you are.

 A Winter's Tale

A Winter's tale always begins briskly—with holiday fun and frolic, presents and parties, skating and skiing. And then it fizzles along somewhere in February and there's a little in the offing except school exams and more chilling winds and rain.
 What's more, when you feel too cold—you don't look so hot.
 If your skin is beginning to look a little pinched (marvelous old-fashioned word!) try slathering on gobs of soft whipped cream skin preparations. If your lips are chappy, invest in one of the protective lip glosses when you go outdoors. Probably your biggest cold-weather beauty dilemma will be your not-so-glorious crown. Winter can damage the hair; it gets scraggly and separates; it fails to hold a curl; and it seems that all the washing in the world simply can't bring that "bounce" back.
 This is the time to give your hair a boost. And the best way to extend the length of a set is with Breckset Style Setting Lotion which comes in two formulas, regular and extra hold. Packaged in an unbreakable "squeeze" bottle (no butterfinger accidents in the bathroom), this lotion prepared by Beautiful Hair Breck can be applied to either just-washed tresses or dry hair. It's marvelous not only for setting purposes—but aids in styling the comb-out since it makes your winter locks very manageable.
 You can easily pull yourself out of the Winter's tail-end doldrums with a little effort. Make the best of the season—and you'll look your best for it. And mind old Percy Bysshe Shelley who put the whole thing in this optimistic nutshell: "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?"

Buy Bonds where you work.

They do.

They work in Vietnam—for freedom. They're helping to pay the bill for freedom, too. Like many of our servicemen overseas, they're investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. Bonds are a good deal. A good way to save up for college . . . or for a home . . . or just for a future that's free and worth having. There's a good way to show these men you're on their side. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds where you bank, or join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. You'll walk a bit taller.

U.S. Savings Bonds

Bond facts: Savings Bonds pay you back $4 for every $3 in only seven years . . . are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen . . . have special tax advantages . . . can be redeemed whenever the need arises.
