Weevil program headed toward long court battle

LUBBOCK — Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. plans to proceed with the boll weevil eradication program despite a ruling from the 242nd District Court in Hale County declaring the program unconstitutional.

In June, District Judge Marvin Marshall of Plainview ruled in favor of 10 Hale County farmers who challenged the constitutionality of the assessments levied by the Texas Boll Weevil Foundation.

Marshall ordered the foundation to return $21,000 in assessments, six percent interest and $65,000 in legal fees to the 10 growers.

The PCG claims that the ruling is limited to the ten plaintiffs in the case and does not prohibit the operation of a eradication program in 1996.

"The Hale County court has ruled the state boll weevil law unconstitutional," explains Wayne Huffaker, a member of the Boll Weevil Steering Committee and president of the PCG, which administers the eradication program in 30 counties in the High Plains. "This law created authority for the High Plains program and other producer-led efforts across the State."

Huffaker adds that the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation is in the process of appealing the decision to the Texas Supreme Court.

The PCG will also have to contend with the High Plains Weevil Recall organization, which claims to have 5,000 signatures aimed at recalling the eradication program.

The foundation will continue to process and collect assessments for 1996 programs to the fullest extent possible.

Council reviews manager applicants

By JOANNA GALLMAN Journal staff writer

The long-awaited search for a new city manager began Monday as City Council members reviewed approximately 18 applicants to the position.

Councilmen convened into executive session for more than an hour to discuss and review applicants.

"We really didn't have enough applicants to look at until Monday night," said Muleshoe Mayor Robert Montgomery.

Montgomery said that councilmen decided to meet weekly to review applicants instead of forming a selection committee.

"We're just going to look at applications on a weekly basis as a whole Council. That way everyone will have input and know what's going on," Montgomery said. "We recognize this is a very important decision we're going to have to make. We want everyone to be involved and be able to express their own ideas."

There is no set deadline for hiring the new city manager, although current City Manager Dave Marr's resignation becomes effective Aug. 15.

"We've just now gotten started in the process," Montgomery said. "The plan right now is that Dave will stay with us until Aug. 15. He has offered to stay as long as we need him," he added, noting that Marr's departure date is not set in stone.

"He will probably depart about Aug. 15," Montgomery said. "By that time we will be well into the selection process."

Montgomery said the new city manager will not be hired before Marr's departure. He added that, as Mayor, he will ultimately undertake the manager's responsibilities until a new one is hired.

"I will be the one that is responsible for the things a manager does on a day to day basis," Montgomery said. "But we have personnel here in the city that are capable of running the city operations in the absence of a city manager - for a short period of time."

"Obviously, a manager is needed to manager the city. But I don't perceive it to be a problem," he added. "It'll just be business as usual."

Windbreak proves stout in drought

A joint conservation project involving several state agencies in Bailey County proved successful in maintaining a windbreak even when planted in drought conditions.

A mile-and-an-eighth windbreak stretches between Highway 214 and the dryland family farm of brothers, John and David Hall of Needmore.

The brothers are amazed at how the trees have lived with the extreme dry conditions in 1996.

"We hauled a lot of water when we first planted them," said David, the younger of the brothers. "I think what made the difference is the fact that they got established — they got a hold," he added.

The windbreak has had a 90 percent survival rate, despite the current drought and the dry years in which it was planted.

The windbreak was planted in 1990, a year in which Bailey County only received 11.03 inches of precipitation. The windbreak was extended in 1995, when the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge recorded 10.77 inches for the year.

The first portion of the Hall's windbreak was sponsored by the Texas Forest Service, West Texas Nursery, Natural Resource and Conservation Service, Blackwater Valley Soil

The smell of authentic Spanish foods wafted through the air, as masses of spectators milled in and around game and food booths.

More than 2,000 people turned out Sunday for the 16th annual Immaculate Conception Catholic Jamaica, the Church's only fundraiser for the year.

"We had the biggest Jamaica we've ever had," said Noe Anzaldua, a Jamaica volunteer. "Several of our food and drink booths sold out really early."

Several live bands, authentic Spanish dancers, a Selena contest, game and food booths, and a raffle for a Chevrolet S-10 pickup attracted spectators of all ages to the new Jamaica grounds built west of the Catholic Church.

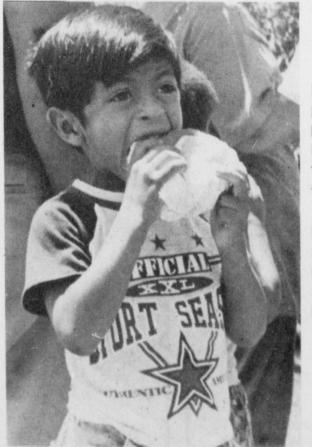

A children's train, with a lawnmower for a locomotive and wagons for cars, pulled tiny kids around, while kids too old for trains and too young for bingo tossed darts at balloons.

Anzaldua said the festivities yielded a net profit of approximately $23,000.

"The whole thing was really successful," Anzaldua said. "We knew it would be that way. The

ETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The people of Muleshoe are very caring people. I want to thank every one that helped my husband and his friend, Son Wright and Rube Morris, after the train wreck.

The engineer thought they were trying to get across before the train. He's wrong. Two 75-year old men don't take chances like that. They were not in a hurry to get to the cow sale, they just did not look before crossing. That happens sometimes.

The Myers family that was out there so fast and stayed and helped, we thank them so much for helping.

To all the people that came out of the sale barn and helped, we're so grateful to you also.

Jack Burris and his crew did a wonderful job taking care of them and keeping us informed by phone. His ambulance service gets a 10 from us.

Special thanks to the doctors and nurses at the Muleshoe Hospital for their care and patience with two "grumpy old men." You are a very caring town.

Thanks to Jackie for caring enough to bring Son all the way back to Levelland for us. They are both doing well. Thanks Muleshoe! The Wright and Morris families are forever grateful to you.

Sincerely, The Families of Son and Rube

Conklin's travels prove noteworthy

By JOANNA GALLMAN Journal staff writer

Mason Conklin feels fortunate he was able to visit the birthplace of much of the work he studies today.

Conklin, a junior piano performance major at Baylor University, recently returned from studying piano and touring in Vienna, Austria.

"We visited the Danube River, which inspired the Danube River Waltz,"said Conklin, a 1994 graduate of Muleshoe High School. "It was just amazing to be there where all the music took place and originated."

The trip was sponsored by Krassimira Jordan, Conklin's piano professor and a native of Austria.

"She takes a group every other year to Vienna," Conklin said. "It's the equivalent of a summer camp — it's on a canpay basis."

Jordan's students spent three weeks studying piano in the Bosendorfer Company Piano Academy, conducted by the renowned piano manufac-

"We got to practice on very fine pianos," Conklin said, adding that he rehearsed on one of only four pianos manufactured world-wide in honor of the 150-year anniversary of the Bosendorfer company. "It was worth about a half a million dollars," he said.

The remainder of Conklin's trip was spent attending operas and concerts and touring.

One of the highlights of the trip was hearing renowned tenor Placido Domingo in the Conklin said that by attending the operas and theatres, he learned more about the culture of the Viannese and how they interpret music than he did about the music itself.

"I became really familiar with the Viannese culture," Conklin said. "They are very picky in their musical tastes."

Although he was aware of the finicky tastes of the

Weevils

"We intend to take advantage of the promising situation we currently have following our first cold winter in five years," says PCG Boll Weevil Program Coordinator Roger Haldenby. "We have a tremendous opportunity to reduce boll weevil infested acreage and it is important that producers keep moving ahead and make the most of the investment they have already made."

"During the last three seasons cotton producers have invested almost 19 million dollars in diapause control on the High Plains," says Huffaker. "We have made an impact and are in a position to begin the final push to rid ourselves of the boll weevil."

Without an aggressive diapause program, Texas Agricultural Extension Service entomologist, Dr. James Leser, predicts treatment costs and yield losses could total over $250 million each year at the farm level.

The Cancer Society collected donations and proceeds from the silent auction. Items in the auction were donated by local

"We are really lucky to have such generous business owners here," Harris said. "They gave some really neat stuff."

In other business, Councilmen passed a resolution reducing the size of the TCDP paving project in the "flats," north of the railroad tracks.

The resolution eliminates the paving of Boston Street, north of its intersection with Date and Elm Street, and will affect three of 92 homes in the flats.

The resolution was passed after the second round of bidding on the project was deemed above the budgeted $262,387 for the project.

After the deletion, the total cost of the project will be $266,270.56 — a $3,883.56 margin over the budget for the paving.

Live From Lincoln Center

"Lincoln Center Festival '96: Beethoven's Ninth"

The color and texture of Beethoven's music comes to life when Grammy Award-winner John Eliot Gardiner leads the Orchestre Revolutionnaire et Romantique in its American debut on Live From Lincoln Center's "Lincoln Center Festival '96: Beethoven's Ninth." Joined by the Monteverdi Choir, the 65-piece period-instrument ensemble from England performs Beethoven's Cantata, Op. 112 "Meeresstille und Gluckliche Fahrt" and his monumental Symphony No 9 in D, Op. 125 ("Choral"), with featured soloists soprano Charlotte Margiono, mezzo-soprano Anne Sofie von Otter; tenor Michael Schade; and bass Franz Hawlata.

"Lincoln Center Festival '96: Beethoven's Ninth" also includes a special intermission feature that gives television viewers a peek at the extraordinary events taking place during Lincoln Center Festival '96, a major festival that features dozens of international artists and events in more than 200 performances of music, dance, theater, and cyberarts in just three short weeks.

"Lincoln Center Festival '96: Beethoven's Ninth" will be broadcast Wednesday, July 31st at 8:00 p.m. on KENW-TV with a stereo simulcast on KENW/KMTH-FM.

"SWOON"

Based on the True Story of 1924 "Thrill Killers" Leopold and Loeb

American Playhouse, television's longest-running anthology drama series, presents "Swoon," a highly stylized 90-minute black and white psychological drama. "Swoon" is based on the true story of Nathan Leopold Jr. (Craig Chester) and Richard Loeb (Daniel Schlachet), two upper-class Jewish intellectuals who gained worldwide notoriety for the 1924 kidnapping and murder of 13-year-old Bobby Franks. Defended by Clarence Darrow, the precocious 18-year-olds allegedly committed the grisly murder to cement a tangled sexual relationship.

The trial of Leopold and Loeb was one of the most scrutinized cases of the "jazz age." Cinematic treatments of the case include Alfred Hitchcock's "Rope" (1948) and "Compulsion" (1959), starring Orson Welles.

The trail of murder eventually led to Leopold and Loeb — the quiet Leopold, nicknamed "Babe," had left his eyeglasses near the swamp where he and Loeb deposited the boy's body, and the two men's alibis for each other quickly broke down under police examination.

As the facts of the crime and the two men's private lives became known, the proliferating discourse surrounding the case began to focus on homosexuality as a pathology that had led the otherwise "normal" Chicago youths to commit a series of minor criminal acts that led ultimately to the murder. So convincing was this attitude that defense attorney Clarence Darrow managed to circumvent the death penalty for his clients by arguing that their sexuality was evidence for their insanity; thus, they should be spared the gallows.

American Playhouse "Swoon" airs Wednesday, July 31st at 9:30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Devin Duvak

Jill Noble, Duvak wed in candlelight service

Dana Jill Noble and Devin Dean Duvak were united in marriage at the First Baptist Church of Muleshoe on June 22, 1996, with Bary Moynihan, formerly of Muleshoe, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Sandy and Deborah Noble of Muleshoe. Parents of the groom are Sammie and Ronda Duvak.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a straight white faille wedding gown with off the shoulder pleated sleeves and a mermaid inset. She wore a pearl laden tiara and a waistlength veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of white cali-lilies, roses and Swedish ivy. She wore a pearl choker with a luggage tag pendent. She also wore pearl drop earrings. Her throw-away bouquet was made of Swedish ivy and small blue and large white

For something old the bride carried her great-grandmothers handkerchief. Something new was her dress. Something borrowed, was her veil, and something blue, was her garter.

The matron of honor was Lisa Gunstream. D'Ann Box and Tiffany Boeing were bridesmaids. They were attired in floor length, slim, navy dresses accented with white pearl accessories. Their bouquets were of white cali-lilies.

The groom was attired in a black tux with a white vest and white bowtie with a single rose boutonniere.

Leonard Gruca served as best man and Brian Duvak and Casey Duvak were groomsmen. They each wore black tuxes with a single rose boutonnieres.

The church and the fellowship hall were decorated with ficus trees and a large variety of plants.

The bride's table consisted of a crystal punch bowl and crystal accompaniments. The table was centered with a threetier crystal fountain with floral arrangements on both sides. A four cake arrangement laced with flowers and Swedish ivy topped with a Precious Moments Bride and Groom. The guests were served chocolate, strawberry or traditional white cake and citrus tea by Danielle Taff and Tory Matthews.

The houseparty consisted of Judy Wilbanks, Debbie Jo Kemp, Glenda Copley and Billie Downing.

After a honeymoon in Lubbock and Ft. Worth, the couple will be at home in Bedford,

The bride received her bachelor's degree in elementary education from WTA&M and the groom received his bachelor's degree in engineering technology also from WTA&M.

trict and Bailey County and was planted as a demonstration for landowners.

The evergreens planted in 1990 reach as high as seven foot today.

The windrow was extended in 1995, a year John believes was the driest year Bailey County has seen in 50 years.

The brothers, along with the joint organizations, planted an additional 2,000 seedlings, cost-shared through the TFS Stewardship Incentive Program.

"The way the weather was last year we were wondering if putting a tree row in was a waste of time," John said. "But you know, we didn't lose but one tough tree," John said. "It 10 percent."

The Hall's neighbors thought they were crazy for planting in 1995.

"I thought we were crazy too, but we started it and we were going to finish it," David said.

Both plantings contain two rows of eastern red cedar and a single shrubrow of sand cherry and aromatic sumac.

Both windbreaks, once planted, were over-laid with a UV synthetic fabric to reduce weeds and retain moisture.

"1990 was a terribly dry year," John said. "We planted those, and during the summer we watered them three times, giving them a gallon a piece. That fabric kept what little water they got from evaporating. It made all of the difference," he added.

The Hall's eastern red cedar trees have proven themselves on the Texas plains.

"The eastern red cedar is is very well adapted to this area. I don't think there's one better — I don't think you can kill them," he said, adding that the tree does not seem to have any insect problems and is well suited to drought conditions.
