ARMIES MEET IN MORTAL COMBAT

General Navarro Holds City Against Attack of 3000 Insurrectos.

HOPE OF RELIEF LIES IN RABAGO'S FORCES REACHING JUAREZ

Battle in Lower California Results in Many Dead and Wounded--Battle Rages Throughout Day.

By Associated Press.

El Paso, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—A general attack was made on Juarez about half past four o'clock this morning by 3000 rebels who practically surround the city and its federal garrison of 700 troops under General Navarro. The attack was made after the return of insurrecto envoys who went to ask the surrender of General Navarro and his force, which was peremptorily refused. The federals are strongly entrenched behind fortifications built by one of the ablest military engineers connected with the army. The rebels are strongly entrenched on the high hills surrounding the city and with their machine guns are in a position to work terrific destruction on life and property. Judge Carabojal, the government peace envoy, is shut up with the federals in the city and the second armistice that was proposed on yesterday, has been flagrantly violated. All El Paso was aroused at an early hour this morning and eager crowds from every point of advantage on hill tops and roofs of houses watch the army maneuvers across the river in the historic city.

The hopes of Diaz are resting on the ability of Madero to hold the city until the arrival of reinforcements from the South and the return of General Reyes who will in all likelihood be ordered to the front.

The fighting began by a detachment of insurrectos who were located in an old adobe house near Station Street Bridge with machine guns which commanded the main street of Juarez leading east and west from the old Cathedral with its sides pierced with loop holes for riflemen with machine guns on its roof. American soldiers who swam the Rio Grande last night have returned and report that the rebels have sufficient ammunition to last them throughout the day. Reinforcements are arriving to join the insurrectos.

General Colvillareal arrived this morning from the east with six hundred fresh men from the siege of Ojinaga. Madero is building a series of strong fortifications around the city and making preparations to meet the federal reinforcements that are expected from Chihuahua.

Scouts reaching the city report that three thousand federals under the command of General Rabago and Ora are coming from the south by forced marches to the relief of Juarez which they expect Navarro with his twelve machine guns to hold until their arrival. The machine guns have been in action all morning shelling the hills where the insurrectos are camped. Unless Rabago reaches here within twelve hours the city is almost certain to fall into the hands of the rebels. Two Americans, Joseph Garcia and Young, on the El Paso side of the river, were wounded during the first two hours of the fight. The insurrectos are anxious for the fight and have evidently been gathering ammunition for several days past for the battle which they foresaw was coming.

Many Dead at Tia Juana

By Associated Press.

Santiago, Lower Cal., May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—Tia Juana, Lower California, was attacked this morning by Mexican insurrectos and many dead bodies may be seen from here lying in the streets. A small force of federals still hold the Mexican Custom House. The fighting has been fierce and sharp and the dead is heavy on both sides but the list of casualties not obtained.

Madero Watching the Battle

By Associated Press.

El Paso, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—After two or three hours fighting this morning the federals commanding Juarez began a heavy rifle fire on the insurrectos posted along the hills. The first volley of bullets passed near the United States immigration station but none were hurt. General Madero is not in active command of the insurrecto forces but is watching the progress of the battle from the field.

Fight From House to House

By Associated Press.

El Paso, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—The fighting continues at close range in the streets of Juarez this afternoon, both sides fighting from house to house. The federals now have their machine guns planted at the principal street crossings, and they are doing deadly work in the advancing insurrecto columns

Five hundred rebels made a successful dash up Commerce street. Madero says his men have already captured a big cuartel and the federals are retreating towards the race tracks.

Juarez Swept by Shrapnel.

By Associated Press.

El Paso, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—The federal machine guns were slackened for a brief period and it was reported that the rebel guns had silenced the federal fire.

Prospects are for an all day battle without any decisive turn. The rebels pour a stream of shot and shrapnel into the city.

Americans in the Battle

By Associated Press.

El Paso, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—The American legion under Gaubald is fighting its way towards the bull ring which is considered one of the main points of vantage in the city.

The re-inforcements on their way here from Ajuango are reported to have already joined the rebels with two pieces of artillery.

Many Killed

The dead from today's battle number about 150 insurrectos and an equal number of federals killed and wounded.

Two More Female Painters

By Associated Press.

Fort Worth, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—Two recruits were on hand this morning to join the feminine contingent to the house painting force in Fort Worth. Misses M. Wells and Ida Smith, sixteen years old, dressed in male attire, presented themselves as applicants to join the two women who went to work Monday. The painters' union are trying to get them to join the union, but they do not seem inclined to do so, especially since they would have to serve the usual one year apprenticeship.

News in London

By Associated Press.

London, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—Lord Cowdry who has immense interests in Mexico received a telegram this morning from his Mexico City agent which read "Peace Signed." This may refer to some small bands of insurrectos in the states of Guerrero and Morelas.

Wilson at Denver

By Associated Press.

Denver, Colo., May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—Governor Woodrow Wilson reached the city last night on his trip to the West. He received an ovation.

Cattlemen to Be Heard

Washington, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—The Senate finance committee today decided to set aside next Monday, May 15, for the cattle men, especially the Texas delegation, to present their views on that part of the Farmers' Free List bill which is supposed to effect the cattle industry.

Railroad Revenues and Expenses

By Associated Press.

Austin, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—For eight months, ending February 26, all railroad revenues in Texas showed an increase of 7.48 per cent and operating expenses had increased 8.96 per cent. This is according to the official report of the commission.

Roads May Consolidate

By Associated Press.

New York, May 9.—(Special to the Signal)—It is believed by officials of the Texas Pacific that the appointment of T. J. Freeman as receiver of the I. & G. N. is a forecast of the consolidation of these two important Texas roads.

Not in the Movement

Col. F. W. James, president of the R. S. & P. railroad, has been in Snyder for several days enjoying the promises of prosperity here. When asked by a Signal reporter what he thought is meant by the survey being made between Maryneal and Roscoe he said he didn't know. He said, "They are surveying there and of course have some purpose in view." He admitted that Roscoe feels greatly concerned about it and some of the citizens have been trying to confer with him but he has told them that he has nothing to do with any road but the R. S. & P. and therefore knows nothing about the surveys.

The Scurry County Telephone Company have put in a number of telephones on rural lines during the past few days. The telephone is one of the most important adjuncts of modern civilization. Telephones and good roads bring town and country close together.

School Matters

The Snyder School Board held a meeting Monday for the purpose of organizing. Mae Taylor was elected president, and Fred A. Grayum secretary. Saturday, May 13, was set for a meeting to elect the grade teachers and principal of the High School and Monday, May 15th, to elect a superintendent. There are several applicants for superintendent. The position pays $1,500 a year.

"Mother's Day" and What We Should Do.

Sunday, May 14, will be Mother's Day. On this day all will wear a white carnation or a white flower in honor and reverence of mother.

Possibly the pure white blossom will be worn by some in memory of mother. Honor, reverence, memory, all linked together, convey so much. Mute the flowers may be, but it will speak volumes to the world of sentiment in which the mother is held—the individual mother, also in a collective sense.

Some one names a trinity—Mother, Home and Heaven. Were words more nearly divine ever used? Would it be amiss to offer a suggestion here?

The white flower speaks a world of beautiful sentiment. Can we not in some way on that day administer to someone to whom the endearing word "mother" is no longer spoken—erect a monument—one built on a foundation of deeds of purity of thought and reverence.

Commissioners' Court

The County Commissioners' Court is in regular session this week. They are transacting routine business. Today has been devoted mainly to consideration of accounts. They will, at this term adopt plans for the new jail and provide for work of construction to begin at an early date. The court spent several days last week as a board of equalizers and persons whose renditions were not what the court believed correct have been notified to appear on May 17 and 18 and show cause why such appraisements should not be changed.

From a Baltimore paper we find that Scott Standfield is with the Montreal team in the Eastern League and went into the box for the first time last Wednesday and while it was not his game and was only used after two other pitchers had been knocked out of the box by the Baltimore team his showing was fine and the Baltimore paper states that Scott was hard to fathom and held the Baltimore team to two singles.

B. Y. P. U. Meeting

The B. Y. P. U. had a very profitable business meeting Monday night with Miss Ethel Fickas. The affairs of this organization of Christian young people were carefully looked after by the officers and members, after which a pleasant social time was had. In Compliment to Miss Mona Clark

The record of things social the past week was particularly accentuated and brightly illuminated by that beautiful event of Thursday evening when between the hours of eight and ten Mrs. Mae Taylor, assisted by Mrs. Jas. R. Welch, entertained with a farewell party in honor of Miss Mona Clark who is soon to leave for her new home in Fort Worth.

The interior of this home, with its attractions truly inviting and so well adapted for entertainment, presented a pleasing spectacle as it was thronged with handsomely gowned young ladies and gentlemen in their conventional dress as they gaily mingled with hostess and guests taking part in the games previously planned for their enjoyment.

Postoffice afforded much merriment after which a house-furnishing contest proved Misses Anne Young and Lena Grantham with Roy Brown adepts in the art, thereby earning a box of candy which was enjoyed by all. Participants in these games had so zealously labored that at this point were just ready for the delightful refreshments which were served them in the dining room where roses in profusion were used for decoration.

The entire affair was a beautiful compliment to Miss Mona, and was no doubt so great a success socially as to prove gratifying to the hostess who, with her assistant so graciously dispensed this hospitality. All too soon comes the departure—when the honoree on this occasion will take up her abode elsewhere. To us her charm will be missed, but she takes with her into her new home the best wishes of a host of friends who will always be glad to welcome her back.

Diaz and His Country

Some years ago when Diaz became president of Mexico, that nation had little to boast of in social or financial lines. The country was undeveloped, the resources were unknown, the people were unambitious, the lands were held by a few owners and what work was done, was in a crude way by a kind of peon or serf labor. Other nations, and especially the United States, regarded Mexico as an untutored barbarous, priest ridden country. Her commercial standing was low and in International affairs amounted to but little. Great change has come. Since Diaz has been at the head of the affairs, by his wise statesmanship, he has placed his country on a sound commercial footing, has gained the respect of other nations, the condition of serfdom among the natives has been greatly mitigated and the better classes of the citizenship have made advancement in social standing and ethical culture. The resources of the country have been wonderfully developed, American ideas have been appropriated, and the people have been given a taste of liberty, individuality and international fraternity not before thought or known to them. The Diaz regime has brought about these conditions and now the people feel that they can govern themselves, and the man who has brought them from darkness into light, seems to have fulfilled his mission. He took hold of affairs at a time when no weakling could have controlled them. An iron will, a wise head and a firm hand were necessary and these qualities have marked his administration. Now, since the country advanced and prospered, many of the more intelligent and ambitious natives, having become familiar with the system of republican government in the United States, have taught the doctrine of political liberty until a revolution has arisen to end the control of the one man who, formerly was hailed as the social and political savior of the nation, and it looks now like Diaz must go. The people are demanding a greater degree of democracy—they want free elections and uniform taxation. The leaders are men who have studied the American system of government and nothing short of equal rights of citizens will satisfy them. Diaz has served his people well, but his methods have become obnoxious to the citizenship and he may as well relinquish his iron grasp and let his country go forward and build a modern government upon the solid foundation which he has established. History will write him down as the greatest statesman, the wisest ruler, the most successful nation builder that Mexico ever had.

SELLING FOR CASH

How to Meet Mail-Order Competition Successfully

Every merchant would be glad to do business on a purely patronize mail order houses when impossible. The average country merchant works under trying conditions. He extends credit freely, carrying his customers for weeks or months. Many of these which the local dealer carries in they have ready money, and allow the local merchant to wait for what is justly his due.

It is useless to deny that a mail order house is serious competition. Neither can it be denied that, in many instances, this competition could be almost eliminated were the local merchants to supply their trade with all the goods in demand. The mail order catalog is a bulky volume. It prices a host of things, many of stock, but when a buyer sends stock, but when a buyer sends abroad for a few little items he cannot get at home, he usually makes up a liberal order for goods that he can buy right across the street.

About the time that a merchant in any locality has built up a really profitable trade, along comes another fellow to divide it with him. This competition is much keener than that of the mail order houses. Speaking on this subject the Saturday Evening Post says: "A license will not be issued for a new bank unless it appears there is reasonable need of additional banking facilities in that locality. Multiplication of competitive banks is sure to weaken the whole banking position. Two strong banks can serve a community better than four weak ones. So can two strong retail stores, if people only realized it."

The country town is important to the farmer, and the country merchant everywhere should be able to count upon the support of the rural population. Money sent to mail order houses destroys home trade, and with a loss of home trade, merchants are unable to carry proper stocks, and the town fails in its purpose as a market place. It is true that sentiment rarely figures in the farmer's buying transactions. But the farmer is not alone to blame, for the residents of country towns are equally familiar with mail order catalogs. It is the business of the merchants and the editor of the home newspaper to educate consumers. A combination advertising campaign in which the expense should be shared will often prove effective. The nearer a farm is to a good live market town, the more valuable the land. With the decay of business importance of any town, farm lands depreciate in price and the benefits of a good life are curtailed. We live but once and only one place at a time, and it is our duty to make that town a good place in which every citizen and every farmer in the rural district can help.

To The Public

The distribution of lots in Oil Field will not be May 11, as advertised, but on June 1st, 1911, as set forth in literature. But the sale on present terms will cease on May 11, and after that date all lots will be sold for $50.00 and $100.00 as advertised.

General Robert E. Lee

There is no north and south today except as it exists in a beautiful sentiment in the minds of the patriotic citizens of these sections who in their filial loyalty to a common, united country, do not forget the chivalric past. The bloody chasm that at one time separated the two sections has been forever bridged yet the people of the South will forever cherish the memory of Robert E. Lee, who stands today easily the first citizen of the southland and shares honor with the father of his country.

The following beautiful eulogy on Lee is from the pen of L. N. Cooper:

He never planted a thorn in the bosom of a man, never threw a shadow in the face of a woman, and never caused a dimple to fade from the cheek of a child. With a strong and iron hand he struck deep for the silver of sunshine and deeper still for the gold of goodness. Like the little bird which builds its nest only of the sweetest spices, he gathered all about him the waters of Marah with the wand of a talisman, sweetened them with the touch of truth, and sent them, a bounding flood, to lift higher and higher an ark of safety to the summit of an Ararat. Like the poet, "all nature mourns his obsequies." In the rustle of the leaf he heard the unfolding of a wing, and in the blush of flower he saw the crimson of a throne. On woodland heights he saw the lofty colonnade of a "house not made with hands," and in the murmur of the brook he heard the waters break against a farther shore. In the lily of the valley and in mountain pink he saw the stroke of the master brush, and in the song of the meadow lark he heard the music of invisible choirs. In the dew-drop on the grass he saw the tear of a cross, and in the bearded grain he counted the "general assembly of the church of the First-born." In the quiet glow of sunset he saw the glory of departing saints, and in the morning light he saw the dawn of the resurrection day. In the circle of the sun he saw the signet ring of the King; in the pale mintage of the moon the treasure trove of dismantled orb, and in the stars lamps of a lighthouse piloting over eternal seas. In every tree he saw the seasoned rafters of his Father's house, and in every stream "a fountain opened in the house of David." In the cling of vine at the heart of oak he saw his own life press against the print of a nail, and in the blush of flower a scarlet line in a window on the heights of Calvary.

On tombstones strange stories are often told, but on the sentinel shaft which guards his speechless dust let there be "graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever" these words in soberness and in truth: "He revered God, loved the little children, and never went back on a friend."
